Closes Door On City Pay Raises

Mayor: 'Substantial' Tax Hike

Mayor James R. McIntyre gloomily predicts "another substantial" tax rate increase for Quincy this year.

In two major austerity moves to tighten the city's municipal belt and help head off a big tax rate hike, the Mayor said he will:

- Reject any general pay increase requests for city employees
- Cut department budgets "to the bone".

"There will be no general pay increase for city employees this year," he told the Quincy Sun last night. "We just cannot afford it.

The 1969 tax rate is $116.40–a $17.50 hike over 1968.

The city's chief executive said he has told department heads to "Keep your budget requests to necessities. Any frills will be cut out."

Expenditure requests for the 1970 city budget are expected to be submitted to the Mayor by the end of the week.

The 1969 city budget was a record high $34,594,682 despite the fact McIntyre slashed $2.6 million from the original requests and the City Council trimmed another $286,594.

"I intend to cut this year's budget to the bone," McIntyre declared. "Only necessary items of municipal service will survive the pruning."

McIntyre noted that the dismal financial picture is attributed in part to a drop in state aid to cities and towns.

He said that state aid in 1969 was less than in 1968 and anticipates that in 1970 it will fall below that given in 1967.

"I appreciate the fine service of our many dedicated city employees," McIntyre said. "But we fiscally cannot afford another general pay raise for them this year. I have got to say 'No'"

McIntyre noted that the City Council last year voted a 12 per cent pay hike for city employees over his veto.

The Mayor, however, said he has informed department heads that if some employees feel they have salary inequities to submit their grievances to the Salary Survey Committee by the end of this month.

The committee, headed by John J. Sullivan of Marion St., Wollaston, noted federal mediator, will give the grievances "study and consideration", McIntyre said.

"The word is going to be austerity this year," he declared.

In another move toward that goal, McIntyre announced that Quincy is dropping out of membership in the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns.

Membership dues last year, McIntyre explained, were $1,800.

"This year the dues are going up to more than $3,400," he said. "I feel we cannot afford this spending in the difficult fiscal period ahead."

Shipyard Seeks 2,000 Men

$12 Million Impact Seen On General Dynamics Payroll

The hiring of nearly 2,000 more tradesmen during the next few months will help make 1970 General Dynamics' busiest year at its Quincy Shipbuilding division.

The 2,000 additional employees would mean an increase of approximately $12 million above the shipyard's current payroll of $70 million, a spokesman estimated.

With current shipyard employment at a level of 8,300, the drive for new employees would bring the work force to more than 10,000.

The 2,000 new employees will be spread throughout all areas of production, but with an emphasis upon several major shipbuilding trades.

Welding will lead the way with approximately 300 newcomers, followed by about 250 new electricians, 200 pipefitters, 175 sheetmetal workers, 100 painters, 100 shipfitters, 70 carpenters, 70 riggers and 60 outside machinists.

An intensive effort by shipyard recruiters is already underway with four teams going to various Massachusetts Division of Employment Security offices throughout the state to interview prospective employees, both experienced and those who would join the General Dynamics work force as trainees.

In addition to working with the DES, shipyard recruiters will be seeking new employees, particularly from among minority groups and from areas of high employment, with the assistance of the NAACP and other organizations.

The new employees will join the current work force in helping meet an impressive number of shipyard milestones during 1970.

Scheduled for delivery by the end of the year are four, possibly five, Navy ships. Four other Navy ships will be christened and construction will be started on four more Navy ships and two commercial vessels.

The Navy submarine tender L. Y. Spear will be the first ship delivered in 1970. She is going to sea next week for her Navy preliminary acceptance trials and is expected to be delivered to the Navy in Norfolk, Va., before spring.

Two Navy fleet replenishment oilers -- Kansas City and Savannah -- and the recently christened dock landing ship Portland also are scheduled for delivery during 1970.

NASA Closing $1 Million Blow To Quincy Company

Closing the NASA/ERC facility at Cambridge will mean the termination of services valued at close to one million dollars to one Quincy firm during the last two years.

Mayor James R. McIntyre who has protested the NASA closing by President Richard M. Nixon, received a letter from Nicholas A. Pepe, senior vice president of S. Gunnar Myrbeck & Co., Inc., stating that firm has had approximately 30 employees working on a prime contract for the facility for the past two years.

"Termination of these services will present an employment problem to us. The volume of services for the past two years has been close to one million dollars, and the loss of benefits as a result of this decrease will be noticed by merchants and others in the South Shore area."

266-Unit Senior Facility 100% 'Filled'

The 266-unit south wing of Senior Citizens' Housing at 1000 Southern Artery has been 100% leased, and 275 names remain on the waiting list with more being added each day, according to a report from the Center.

Completion of construction is expected by May 1. Cold weather has prevented finishing of the exterior masonry work, but interior work is continuing on schedule.

The south wing will be connected to the present 216-unit structure by an overhead mall.

Plans for the mall include a barber shop, beauty salon and other service shops.

The south wing will have a 400-seat auditorium for civic activities, movies, lectures and plays.

The non-sectarian, non-profit facility built and operated by Quincy Point Congregational Church Homes, Inc., is for senior citizens age 62 and older.

It is the largest facility of its type in the U.S.

Meanwhile, Back On Earth

You've probably wondered about it, too.

Mayor James R. McIntyre, in his inaugural address noted in part:

"We need a reassessment of our federal priorities and programs.

"We can land a man on the moon., but we cannot prevent the Furnace Brook from flooding our homes!

"We can build a super jet, but cannot stop Wollaston Beach from being polluted!

"We can develop gas and bombs to destroy the world, but we cannot house our elderly adequately! How absurd!

"Yes, we need a drastic reappraisal of our nation's goals--for service to her citizens in the Seventies."

Anybody second the motion?

Lack Of Interest In Cultural Activities

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I am a concerned student at Quincy Junior College, located here in Quincy, and though not a resident of this community [Cohasset being my home] I am still troubled with the ever decreasing support Quincy residents have for any given cultural activity that takes place in this city.

On December 19, 1969 the Quincy Junior College Drama Club put on Neal Simon's Comedy play Bare Foot In The Park at the Atlantic Junior High School. Out of a possible 450 seats that were available only 120 people actually showed up for the performance. Advertising was placed in your paper and on radio station WJDA. Even billboards were distributed throughout Quincy. The residents still did not respond.

I am not putting the blame on Quincy residents alone, the students of Quincy Junior College are also partly at fault for their lack of interest toward the school activities, but this is Quincy Junior College's responsibility.

What I am saying is that the whole concept of a "Community" college, such as Quincy Junior College, is falling apart and that we must work together to bring that concept back into focus, and that you, as citizens of this "Free Society" should appreciate something that is brought forth to you for pleasure; for pleasure seems awfully hard to come by these days.

Sincerely,
Thomas Davis
Sophomore
Quincy Junior College

Thanks From Vietnam

Letters of thanks continue to come in from servicemen in Vietnam for holiday packages sent them from the city through Mayor James R. McIntyre.

John H. Cameron, machinegunner working in the mountains around "Charlie Ridge", plans to be back in Quincy next September.

He wrote: "I see there are a lot of improvements being made in Quincy and quite a few proposed improvements! Keep up the good work...."

SP/4 David Bright said: "It's a good feeling to know that people still support us."

Col. Salvie L. Reid at Tan Son Nhut Air Base noted: "As the Base Director of Personnel at this base, with a military population of over 15,000, I am probably in the best possible position to assure you that programs such as yours have a tremendous impact on the morale and welfare of our military members and your future returning citizens."

Mothers' March Ward Majors

Mrs. Frances Brahm, 11 Hodges Ave., Mrs. Richard Grant, 68 Upton St., Mrs. L. Attardo, 50 Presidents Ave., Mrs. Henry Costello, 226 Belmont St., Mrs. Norman McHugh, 59 Safford St., and Mrs. Ray Radford, 19 Montclair Ave., N. Quincy.

Sunbeams

Arthur Tobin is the new City Council president--a post long considered the "springboard" to the mayor's office.

But is it, really?

Actually, only six of the 23 mayors since Quincy became a city in 1888 were former council presidents. The six:

Charles M. Bryant, Joseph L. Whiton, Thomas S. Burgin, Charles A. Ross, Amelio Della Chiesa and present incumbent James R. McIntyre.

ACTUALLY, a candidate might stand a better chance of being elected mayor by growing a mustache or a beard, than wielding the gavel.

In recent years, of course, Quincy voters have preferred their chief executives clean shaven. But, for the record, 12 of the 23 mayors sported mustaches and-or beards.

It's been 48 years since the last mustached gentleman has occupied the mayor's office. He was William A. Bradford who served from 1921-1922.

However, with the way hair is growing today, it might be a political asset again soon. Especially among the young voters.

FROM A HEALTH viewpoint, the mayor's office has been kind to the men who occupied it. Only one Quincy mayor has died while in office. John L. Miller succumbed in 1914, several months after his election.

MANY OBSERVERS look on the mayor's office as a political "dead end". They feel it ties a man to his city and doesn't give him the opportunity to "move up".

History seems to back them on that point.

Only one Quincy mayor thus far has gone on to become a national figure. He was Charles Francis Adams [1896-1897] who served as Secretary of the Navy under President Hoover.

Adams, of course, had a pretty good name going for him. He was the great-great grandson and great-grandson of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams.

He has a long way to go to match his predecessor, Amelio Della Chiesa. The latter holds the city's mayoralty longevity honors. He served 12 years--four years under Plan B and eight under Plan A.

The all-time champ under a single form of government was Charles Ross. He had nine years under Plan A.

Incidentally, Della Chiesa and Thomas Burgin are the only Quincy mayors to serve under both Plan E and Plan A.

QUINCY now has only three living former mayors. Della Chiesa, Burgin and David S. McIntosh. The latter was a Plan E mayor, who also served as state representative and senator. Della Chiesa is a former representative and Burgin a former senator.

CITY HISTORIAN William C. Edwards personally got to know all of Quincy's chief executives--some of them after they left office.

And he confesses he has one favorite: William T. Shea. The latter served from 1908-1911, and was Quincy's last Democrat mayor until the arrival of McIntyre.

Shea is Edwards' favorite not because he thinks Shea was a better mayor than the others. But because of a lasting boyhood impression.

Seems little Billie Edwards and some other kids were playing ball behind Adams Academy one day and a crank shooed them away.

Edwards and the others "marched" on City Hall and demanded to see the Mayor. Shea invited them into his office and listened intently to their complaint.

"Go on back," His Honor smiled, "and play all the ball you want."

And, says Edwards: "I've never forgotten that".

THE WORD "Manet" in the City Seal hanging in the City Council chamber is from the Latin meaning "It Remains".

But the cedar tree shown in the seal has been long gone. The cedar stood at the Mt. Wollaston summit when Capt. Wollaston came ashore in 1625.

But the tree was blown down during the famed "Portland Storm" Nov. 26, 1898. Pieces were saved and are now cherished mementos.

But may Quincy--as Manet proclaims--remain forever.

UNDER the city's original charter, mayors served one-year terms. Whiton was the first elected to a two-year term, serving from 1917 to 1920.

AND THAT REMINDS US: Some who take in the city council meetings nowadays think they last too long. The nine-member councils of recent years usually spend several hours a meeting to dispose of business matters.

But just think how long the meetings would last if Quincy still had its original size council of 23 members.

You'd need a new City Hall just to store the resolves in.

AERIAL VIEW of General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard which is looking to 1970 as the busiest year. The yard is already looking for another 2,000 employees

General Dynamics Seeking 2,000 More Employees

By the end of the year, the shipyard will have started building two more replenishment fleet oilers, two additional dock landing ships, and the first two of three giant commercial cargo ships.

The latter, known as "Seabees," are going to be the largest of their kind in the world – 874 feet long and a displacement of 44,000 tons – and will be owned by the Lykes Bros. Steamship Co. of New Orleans, La.

During the past year, the shipyard delivered a nuclear attack submarine and two replenishment fleet oilers to the Navy. It also christened three ships and started building two others.

During 1969, General Dynamics continued its program of modernizing and updating shipyard facilities. Nearly $2 million was spent improving a variety of production and production-support centers.

The projects ranged from installing a new vacuum system for the facility that automatically cleans steel ship sub-assemblies to installing a new machine that automates the process of removing flanges from the thousands of steel beams used each year in ship construction.

Beginning with his appointment as general manager in early October of last year, Lloyd Bergeson began instituting a series of changes in management approaches, planning and control functions and other aspects of shipbuilding.

"Our objective for the 1970s is to become the nation's number one shipbuilding organization. Not one of the best - the best!" Bergeson told employees.

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

THE BEST MAN

The best man is selected by the groom and is usually his brother. If he doesn't have a brother then his closest friend is chosen or perhaps he prefers to have his father if there is a special closeness between them.

His duties are many and varied. Of course the most important one is being a witness. The rest of his duties are of equal importance.

He provides his own clothes and must make sure the groom is properly outfitted and his entire outfit is in correct size and complete a few days before the wedding. It's up to him to be sure the ushers are on time for the rehearsal and sees to it that it goes off according to schedule.

He stays with the groom the day of the wedding until they leave the reception.

He makes sure the groom has the marriage license.

He must have the sealed envelope containing the clergyman's fee and give it to him. If the fee is paid by check make sure it is made out in the clergyman's name and not the church name.

It's also his job to have the groom at the church 30 minutes before the appointed hour.

In case of a winter wedding he should appoint someone to bring his coat and the groom's coat to them.

It's up to him to take proper care of the bridal couple's luggage.

One thing that is seldom done today but is correct is to send flowers to the bridal couple's room.

At the reception the best man sits on the bride's right and offers the first toast. He also reads all telegrams.

He must dance with the bride, her mother, the groom's mother, and the brides attendants.

When the bride and groom are ready to leave the reception he notifies the parents so they may have a last word with them. Then he clears the way for their grand exit.

O'Connell Sees 1970's As Quincy's 'Golden Era'

By WILLIAM A. O'CONNELL

Quincy, because of its geographical location and its antecedents, has always been a sleeping economic giant. Its cultural position has had an architectural base. The city has several buildings of good design and style -- a tribute to the taste and refinement of its past inhabitants.

From its inception, Quincy has been a middle-class community which has provided firm economic stability. Our main-street layouts, especially in the downtown area were of classical conception.

Quincy's great handicap has been the lack of a stable transportation system. During the early prosperity of the New Haven Railroad, affluent residential sections developed in Wollaston and on Presidents' Hill.

The construction of Route 128 and the Southeast Expressway hastened the demise of the Old Colony Division, New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

Public services have not materially deteriorated over the years. All municipal administrations have endeavored in a meaningful way to meet the comprehensive needs of all residents.

OFF-STREET PARKING INSPIRATION

A favorable political climate encouraged a number of diversified industries to locate in Quincy, and the city's initiation of municipal offstreet parking areas has inspired a vibrant and prosperous central business district.

Quincy in some instances may have neglected its natural environment and beautiful landscape, but it has never ignored them.

The city has had several immigration waves which have enriched its race-culture.

It has not faltered in its steady growth over the years; on the other hand, it has not yet realized its socio-economic potential.

ECONOMIC REVIVAL

The advent of a completely integrated electric rapid transit system presages a golden era for the Quincy-South Shore Area. We can expect an economic revival similar to that which has already occurred in Toronto and Montreal, and is presently happening in San Francisco. Quincy is well prepared for the new opportunities.

Quincy's political administration is capable and respected. Mayor McIntyre and members of the City Council have shown rare political vision, courage, and understanding in preparation for the opportunities of the 70's. City department heads and the various municipal boards are part of the total municipal team which collectively is destined to attract national attention as the city begins to witness its capacities at work.

MAYOR, CITY HALL TEAM KEY

The key to purposeful movement in all urban areas must remain that of each Mayor and his team in City Hall.

There will be much conflict in the 70's. Change is always resisted and political expediency might well ruin many projects. Every effort must be made to advise Quincy's citizens that the ultimate objectives of the business and political leaders are creation of a totally good city.

The Chamber realizes that business progresses only in a free Society which has a strong sense for the future; that tomorrow's city must be an improvement on today's; and that a city is a process and not a product; and that to accomplish these ideals relevant objectives are essential.

OBJECTIVES ESSENTIAL

1. To provide adequate education for young and old, and job opportunities at various educational levels.

2. To provide adequate cultural, recreational, and health facilities to meet the comprehensive needs of residents.

3. To stop environmental deterioration.

4. To provide means for the protection and safety of all residents.

WILLIAM A. O'CONNELL

5. To encourage citizen participation in public and civic affairs at all levels....local, regional, state, and national.

6. To provide multiple modes of transportation, with good access and adequate offstreet parking.

POPULATION 100,000

The Chamber feels that in the next decade the city's population will increase to at least 100,000. This represents an increase of about 11,000 people, and $35,000,000. yearly in additional purchasing power. A large percentage of these new residents will be in the higher-income brackets and, consequently, will provide prime tenants for new apartments.

Quincy's present labor force of about 33,000 will increase by 15,000 in the next decade. Most of the increase will represent non-manufacturing employment.

This employment figure represents a payroll increase of about $100,000,000., and will bring Quincy's total annual payroll to about $300,000,000.

In 1969 we predicted that about $500,000,000. in new construction would occur in the next ten years as a result of the MBTA in Quincy and the new north-south artery. We are still optimistic on this prediction.

Last year about 1000 undeveloped acres existed in the city. Since then, undisclosed developers have acquired a substantial portion of that land. Within the next two years we expect that most of the acreage will be taken off the market.

250 BUSINESS ACRES AVAILABLE

We mustn't lose sight of the fact that there are about 250 acres of existing business property in moderate-size tracts that should be available for redevelopment in the next few years. These locations are prime and will require more sophisticated investment. In this period the accumulation of large tracts will be difficult, so the types of businesses will be different.

In 1966 the City Council accepted a new building code prepared by the Chamber of Commerce. It was accepted at a most opportune time in view of the building boom now before the city. It is most important at this time that the city's zoning and sign ordinances be brought up to date.

DESTINY IS CORE COMMUNITY

Quincy is destined to be the core community of the South Shore and thus provide opportunities for our neighbors to share in our role.

Aside from all these new developments and redevelopment, we believe that the period will be one of consistent growth.

Our shipbuilding industry should share in new and radical types of naval construction. The Merchant Marine, after many decades of deterioration, appears slated for resuscitation. There have been many false starts in past years, but this time we are optimistic.

Money will remain scarce, but mortgage funds will undoubtedly be available for the individual home owner. Savings account interest rates will probably continue to climb in order to meet the competition of U. S. Government issues, stocks, and bonds.

Government building construction will taper off by Presidential edict, but private construction will continue, although at a reduced pace. Apartment construction under private sponsorship must continue and expand, or socially-inclined, non-profit groups will do the job.

Consumer spending will continue at a high rate as long as goods are available.

POLLUTION LAWS TO TIGHTEN

Air and water pollution laws will tighten, and all business should be sure that their plants conform to standards. Total environmental controls by the government will extend far beyond air/water pollution controls, however.

Downtown traffic congestion will increase, and old established downtown business areas will suffer unless immediate relief is forthcoming.

People will have more leisure time. Recreation and vacation travel will increase. Individual trips, however, will be for shorter periods of time. Motels, restaurants, and resorts will share large in the vacation dollar.

Crime of all types will increase, and business should strengthen security control methods.

The next ten years will be interesting, opportunistic, and profitable for those alert to the shift in people's habits and the change in values which New Englanders have cherished for so long.

Mayor McIntyre:

U.S. Aid 'Desperately Needed'

Mayor James R. McIntyre has called for a "reassessment of our federal priorities and programs...a drastic reappraisal of our nation's goals" to help the cities of America to meet the urban crisis of the 1970s.

"Washington must cease debate about federal revenue sharing and initiate the flow of desperately needed funds to cities and states so that local administrators may give new hope to the cities of America," he told Quincy citizens in this third inaugural address.

"For many years, the federal establishment has been obsessed with external dangers, never appreciating the debilitating effects of this policy on our cities.

"Increases in crime, physical decay and hostile camps of haves and have nots are the signs of a break-down in social order which is draining the life blood of this young and vital civilization, the hope of the Western World."

McIntyre's plea for more federal and state aid was the keynote of his approximate 3,000 work inaugural address delivered during ceremonies in the City Council Chamber at City Hall Monday.

Though sounding a strong warning of the urban crisis facing the nation in the next decade, the city's 39-year-old chief executive had "guarded confidence and anticipation" for Quincy's future.

UNPRECEDENTED GROWTH

"The year 1969 has been one of unprecedented growth," he said. "Over $26 million in construction was initiated which more than doubles the building starts from 1968, the greatest year in Quincy's history.

"With rapid transportation access and the North-South Arterial highway, Quincy becomes an increasingly attractive community in which to work and live. We can look forward to another active growth yea to come."

Among the coming developments in Quincy he listed:

● The $100 million State Street South Complex, "the largest single private venture since the Prudential Center...a tremendous vote of confidence for us all...a new focal point for the metropolitan business and financial community."

● Hazeltine's million dollar testing laboratories, the multi-million dollar Ledgewood Park housing complex, and the new northeast headquarters for the Kemper Insurance Company.

MAJOR COMMITMENTS

He also ticked off the major commitments of his administration as it faces the 1970s:

● The Quincy Government Center--"I am today submitting an order for the City Council to authorize the first appropriation of $30,000....for preliminary architectural services."

* Landtakings at Black's Creek--"to assure that it be made part of our land-bank of public open space to compliment our fine park system."

* Acquisition, with state and federal aid, of Cunningham Park --"for conservation and watershed reserve rather than allowing land used detrimental to the residential area of West Quincy."

* Rectifying inadequate sewerage in Quincy Point--"I shall have prepared the necessary orders and will submit them to the City Council this month, authorizing sufficient funds to relieve the Quincy Point Sewer System."

* The proposed new zoning ordinance--"We must insure a viable growing city while protecting Quincy's basic residential character....the most important means by which a community decides its future."

PRAISE FOR POLICE DEPARTMENT

McIntyre praised as "most rewarding" the modernization of the Quincy Police Department in 1969 through the use of more than $140,000 in federal funds for new equipment and operations.

He forcast "an urgent need for new school construction and modernization of existing facilities" to meet an expected increase in enrollment that has now reached 17,000 students.

"During 1970," he said, "it will be necessary for us to give serious consideration to moving ahead on plans to modernize both Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and be prepared to come to grips with the need for additional new construction at the high school level.

"I have filed in the Legislature a bill that would provide $75 million throughout the Commonwealth to assist communities in modernizing older school buildings."

HOUSING PROGRESS

He reported progress made in the field of housing and neighborhood rehabilitation "but as we look around us we see there is more we must do."

He said he is requesting:

* Recommendations from the Planning Department and applications for a second Federal Neighborhood Improvement Project, similar to the North Quincy Improvement Project.

* A plan by the Quincy Housing Authority to provide at least 150 new housing units for the elderly and expand its leased housing and rent supplement programs.

REVALUATION 'THORN'

He also promised a continued battle and eventual victory over "the thorn of revaluation."

"I have been successful in putting a far-reaching constitutional amendment on the state-wide ballot permitting a disproportionate assessment formula in Massachusetts cities and towns.

"If approved on the November ballot of 1970, the battle will be won and the homeowners of Quincy and throughout the Commonwealth will have been relieved of the onerous burden of 100 per cent revaluation."

In calling for more federal and State help for the cities, McIntyre declared:

"Even handouts of federal aid cannot respond to state and local needs when straight-jacketed by intense competition and under-funding.

"Cutbacks by the federal government are further frustrating the cities, after leaving them burdened with a little desired but legally imposed bureaucratic framework and little else.

"The state and federal government have not been doing their job for the cities.

"It is deeply depressing to announce this morning that in 1969 aid from the Commonwealth to her cities and towns was less than that of 1968 and that aid in 1970 is anticipated to be less than that of 1967.

"While aid goes down, local costs continue to soar upward as evidenced by a 14 per cent rise in Massachusetts local governmental costs during the past year.

"The powers on Beacon Hill must be re-oriented to help the Commonwealth's cities and towns in their fiscal struggle. The atmosphere of broken commitments, pledges and the fend-for-yourself attitudes must change.

The glamorous powder-puff press conferences in the plush State House offices should end in results and not result in the end of much needed action.

"Priorities must be established, talk must cease at the state and federal levels and action must start if we are to be a house united, for if we are a house divided, our cities cannot stand, our noble experiment, so long saved from extinction by external threats, will be torn apart by internal division."

Burgin, McIntosh Attend, Della Chiesa Ill

Two of Quincy's three living former mayors attended the third-term inaugural of Mayor James R. McIntyre as his personal guests.

Quincy's only other living former mayor, Amelio Della Chiesa, 67, also invited by McIntyre, sent regrets that he could not attend. He said he was home ill.

Both Burgin and McIntosh also served as City Councillors, state representative and senator during their long political careers.

Inaugural Marks Anniversary For Former Mayor Burgin

Forty-five years ago on Jan. 5, 1924, he was sworn into office as a City Councillor for the first time at the age of 22. He is now a young looking 67.

Burgin went on to become mayor at age 33 and served Plan A chief executive from 1935 to 1942 when he resigned to enter the Navy, during World War II.

He returned as Plan E mayor in 1950 and 1951.

Tobin President, Pledges Support

Arthur H. Tobin became Quincy's new City Council president this week and pledged "whole hearted support and cooperation" to Mayor James R. McIntyre's administration.

The 39-year-old councillor at-large and state representative accepted his new post "and the responsibility to meet the challenges in the coming year."

Tobin was unanimously elected by his colleagues at Monday's inaugural ceremonies. He succeeds as president, Ward 6 Councillor J. Vincent Smyth who held the gavel the past two years.

Tobin was nominated by Ward 1 Councillor Edward S. Graham who said the new council president was a "self-made man who came from modest circumstances."

Smyth seconded the nomination and Ward 5 Councillor Walter J. Hannon moved that the nominations be closed.

The text of Tobin's acceptance speech follows:

With your kind permission, I should like to address myself at this time to my distinguished colleagues of the City Council to express my most sincere appreciation for your kind vote of confidence in electing me as your new Council President.

I offer my grateful thanks to each of you for this most distinct honor. I accept the nomination and the responsibility to meet the challenges in the coming year.

My friends, you are witness this morning to the inaugural ceremony of the young men of Quincy who shall guide the destiny of this great city into the new decade of the 70's. Although young in age and fresh in ideas, they are extremely mature in wisdom and perspective, and no other group of individuals are more keenly aware of the varied and complex problems which face municipal government today.

We applaud you, Mr. Mayor, in your excellent inaugural presentation. We applaud, also, your awareness of the problems of our times and your willingness to accept the responsibilities to provide the leadership of a great city and its future.

On behalf of my colleagues in the City Council, let me assure you, Mr. Mayor, of our whole hearted support and cooperation for the programs of your administration which will make our city an even better place in which to live.

We are acutely aware of the burdens of your office, and we share the same hope and the same anxieties as you for our future welfare. We also share the same pride as your administration in your accomplishments of the last two years in the previous decade of the 60's, for it is this same dedicated body who voted for and supported the up-grading and modernization of the Fire and Police Departments for the greater safety of our citizenry.

The same group of gentlemen on the Council supported and voted for the humane programs for our elderly.

City Council stood shoulder to shoulder with you and supported you in the fight against 100% revaluation, and it was this honorable body that took the initiative and unanimously voted a cost of living increase for our most deserving municipal employees.

As Chairman of the Ordinance Committee, I took personal pride to move passage of this order, so that municipal employees could exist on a decent living wage.

We are extremely fortunate in this great historic city of our's to have a capable, young, chief executive as Mr. McIntyre, and the young gentlemen of this distinguished City Council, who are willing to dedicate themselves to public service by giving of themselves in solving the problems of our fellow man.

In a spirit of mutual respect and cooperation let us now go forth to do the peoples' business by bringing government closer to the people.

Smyth Momento, Praise At Ceremonies

Outgoing City Council President J. Vincent Smyth received a special memento and words of praise at Monday's city inaugural ceremonies.

Smyth, Ward 6 councillor, who served the last two years as president, was presented a gavel mounted on an engraved plaque by Mayor James R. McIntyre on behalf of the council.

"You are one of the finest council presidents Quincy has ever had," said McIntyre. "You did an outstanding job."

Smyth was called to the center of the council chamber for the special recognition by his successor as president, Arthur H. Tobin.

Mayor's Address Taped For Posterity

The recording of Mayor James R. McIntyre's inaugural address on Monday inaugurated also a new program by the Quincy Historical Society.

To broaden its capacity to preserve history of the Quincy area, the Society is adding tape recordings to its collection of material objects and its library of written information.

This includes facilities for recording, preserving and playing back tapes of local historical interest.

The purpose of the new program is to record local history as it is made, to record talks on historical subjects at Society meetings and elsewhere, and to record information from individuals who have recollections of historical information that has not been written down and would otherwise be lost.

With the addition of tape recordings, a new dimension has been added to the 77-year old Society, noted H. Hobart Holly, president.

She will fill in for veteran Percy N. Lane who is now convalescing from an illness.

Lane who had been elected to 32 consecutive one-year terms as clerk, will still hold the post this year. Mrs. Carnali will carry out the duties in his absence.

She is a senior clerk typist in the office of City Clerk John M. Gillis where she will have served 10 years on Feb. 6.

'Quincy Faces Urban Crisis' In 1970's

Today is a very significant day for us all. We have ended a decade and have entered a new one fraught with new opportunities, problems, hopes and aspirations for our community, the cities of our nation, and yes .... our nation herself.

Last year, we warned of a fiscal storm into which Quincy and every municipality was entering. Regrettably, this came into being in 1969. This year, the unsolved problems of the Sixties confront this and every city: clearly the greatest challenge of our modern day. No longer a fiscal crisis alone .... Quincy faces an urban crisis .... a seeping sickness plaguing all American cities, burdened by finite resources and infinite problems.... The urban crisis of America. In one evening, millions of dollars are appropriated by a City Council or School Committee, but years of struggle are required to provide the tax base capable of supporting these commitments.

Quincy's opportunities and challenge for the Seventies is, at once, a part of the greatest domestic crisis of our lives .... the salvation of our republic by the saving of our cities.

Action Must Start

We here in Quincy cannot alone preserve our nation, but we can do something; unify as one citizen to aid our city. The states and Nation also must respond .... priorities must be established, talk must cease at the state and federal level and action must start if we are to be a house united, for if we are a house divided, our cities cannot stand .... our noble experiment .... so long saved from extinction by external threats, will be torn apart by internal division. Through deeds, not words, we as leaders must demonstrate the value of our institutions particularly to our young.

When a citizen has a problem in America, his first stop is City Hall. I meet many people who have never been to the State House, but few who have never been to City Hall. The performance of government at the local level leaves a lasting impression on a concerned citizenry. When lack of resources prevent a quick and efficient response, the resulting dissatisfaction is a discredit to all American government not just municipal administration.

State Aid Drops

The state and federal government have not been doing their job for the cities. It is deeply depressing to announce this morning that in 1969, aid from the Commonwealth to her cities and towns was less than that of 1968 and that aid in 1970 is anticipated to be less than that of 1967. While aid goes down, local costs continue to soar upward as evidenced by a 14 per cent rise in Massachusetts local governmental costs during the past year.

The powers on Beacon Hill must be re-oriented to help the Commonwealth's cities and towns in their fiscal struggle. The atmosphere of broken commitments, pledges and the fend-for-yourself attitudes must change. The glamorous powder-puff press conferences in the plush State House offices should end in results and not result in the end of much needed action.

For many years, the federal establishment has been obsessed with external dangers, never appreciating the debilitating effects of this policy on our cities. Increases in crime, physical decay and hostile camps of haves and have nots are the signs of a breakdown in social order which is draining the life blood of this young and vital civilization, the hope of the Western World.

Even handouts of federal aid cannot respond to state and local needs when straight-jacketed by intense competition and underfunding. Cutbacks by the federal government are further frustrating the cities, after leaving them burdened with a little desired but legally imposed bureaucratic framework and little else.

A Man On The Moon But—

We need a reassessment of our federal priorities and programs. We can land a man on the moon, but we cannot prevent the Furnace Brook from flooding our homes! We can build a super jet, but cannot stop Wollaston Beach from being polluted! We can develop gas and bombs to destroy the world, but we cannot house our elderly adequately! How absurd! Yes, we need a drastic reappraisal of our nation's goals,-for service to her citizens in the Seventies.

Washington must cease debate about federal revenue sharing and initiate the flow of desperately needed funds to cities and states so that local administrators may give new hope to the cities of America. Only such action now will afford we in the city the resources to meet our responsibilities. Massachusetts, with a greater reliance on real estate property taxes than any other state, will benefit most by a direct local federal arrangement, but at this point in our national crisis any meaningful arrangement of revenue sharing will be helpful.

$26 Million In Construction

Locally, here in Quincy, we are entering the Seventies with guarded confidence and anticipation, reaping the benefits of much hard work of this administration done by so many citizens to bring us all a better future. The year 1969 has been one of unprecedented growth. Over $26 million in construction was initiated which more than doubles the building starts from 1968, the greatest year in Quincy's history. With rapid transportation access and the North-South arterial highway, Quincy becomes an increasingly attractive community in which to work and live. We can look forward to another active growth year to come.

Central among Quincy's new citizens of the Seventies will be the $100 million State Street South Complex. This development, the largest single private venture since the Prudential Center, is a tremendous vote of confidence for us all and we look toward a cooperative infusion of resources for what shall surely become a new focal point for the metropolitan business and financial community. In addition, 1970 will mean the initiation of Hazeltine's million dollar testing laboratories, Legewood Park's multi-million dollar quality housing complex, and the new Northeast headquarters for the Kemper Insurance Company. This administration will continue to encourage quality investments such as these to provide new employment and to broaden and diversify Quincy's economic base.

The work of this administration in the Sixties has manifested itself in many other ways.

South Shore Community College

We look with pride to the announcement that the location for the $15 million South Shore Community College has been finalized in our city. Our youth will now receive an opportunity for higher quality education equal to those in other areas of this Commonwealth.

We look with pride to the Federal Beautification Funds which have resulted in major improvements to parks, ballfields and playgrounds in every section of our city after decades of neglect.

We look with pride to the construction of new and needed public facilities such as the Public Works-Civil Defense Center, the Registry of Motor Vehicles building, the Adams Shore Branch Library and the Vocational-Technical School.

New Bridges

We look with pride to the participation of the Commonwealth Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority and the Metropolitan District Commission in the funding of the construction of new bridges at West Squantum Street, Beale Street, Dimmock Street, Adams Street, Granite Street and over the Neponset River, and to their commitments for further assistance in the construction of the new School Street bridge.

We look with pride to the Quincy City Hospital which has now, under this administration in three years, become self-supporting.

Yes,-we look with pride to a community improving in the Sixties and making new commitments to progress in the Seventies.

Government Center

Among the first commitments of this administration in the Seventies is the furthering of our efforts to build a Quincy Government Center. Accordingly, upon the recommendation of the Government Center Commission, I am today submitting an order for the City Council to authorize the first appropriation of $30,000. These funds will be utilized by the Commission for preliminary architectural services and to retain necessary professional appraisal and feasibility studies. We shall work closely with the Commission to support fully their program to bring into being a Government Center for Quincy.

Black's Creek Landtakings

I am asking also that the City Council act immediately on the pending orders for landtakings at Black's Creek. Grants from both the Federal and State Government will be soon lost unless we act quickly. This open space area has been designated as our first priority and I am requesting that every effort be made to assure that it be made part of our land-bank of public open space to compliment our fine park system.

In addition, I am directing the Planning Department to prepare applications to the federal, state and county governments for financial assistance in the acquisition of Cunningham Park. This valuable open space area should be utilized for conservation and watershed reserve rather than allowing land uses detrimental to the residential area of West Quincy.

Quincy Point Sewerage Inadequate

One of the most serious utility problems Quincy has endured for 30 years has been inadequate sewerage in Quincy Point. Engineering studies have indicated that properly serving that area could cost as much as a million dollars. With new development currently under way to help offset these costs, I believe the time is long overdue to rectify this dangerous health problem. Therefore, I shall have prepared the necessary orders and will submit them to the City Council this month, authorizing sufficient funds to relieve the Quincy Point Sewer System.

New Zoning Ordinance

Most sincerely, we are asking that the Planning Board and the City Council give careful consideration to the proposed new zoning ordinance now under final review by the Zoning Study Committee. This new ordinance, the first major revision since 1943, is the result of months of effort by the talented and able staff of our Planning Department. We must insure a viable growing city while protecting Quincy's basic residential character. I urge cooperative review of this, the most important means by which a community decides its future.

Modern Police Techniques

Progress in the modernization of our local law enforcement effort has been most rewarding. Most notably, in 1969, the Quincy Police Department has become a statewide leader in the utilization of federal funding to improve the technical and program capacity of our crime-fighting efforts.

The application of modern techniques of management, organization, and operations is the key to a successful police department. The vast majority of police operations in middle sized communities are not prepared to deal with either the volume or sophisticated nature of modern crime. I am proud to say today that Quincy's Police Department is prepared. In 1969 alone grants for new equipment and operations exceeded $140,000 including four authorizations under the Federal Safe Streets and Crime Control Act, coordinated through the Commonwealth's Committee on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

The most far reaching program, Project SPAIS - Suburban Police Automatic Information System - will computerize data on criminals, their techniques and operations and coordinated with known high risk areas, actually predict potential crimes. This, as only one of the more dramatic applications of a regional computerized effort, will hasten the day in Quincy and our neighboring towns when the only way criminals can avoid walking into police traps is early retirement.

New School Construction Needed

Enrollment in our public school system has reached an all-time high of just under 17,000 students. For the past several years, school enrollment has been increasing at the rate of from 250 to 300 additional students. We can expect this increase to continue at least through the first part of the Seventies.

'U.S., State Not Doing Their Job For Cities'

Because of increasing enrollment and antiquated facilities, there continues to be an urgent need for new school construction and modernization of existing facilities. By the fall of 1970 a new 600-650 student elementary school should be under construction to replace the Lincoln and Hancock schools, both built prior to 1900.

The City Council, acting on a recommendation of the School Committee, recently appropriated $8,000 to move ahead on a critically needed addition to the Furnace Brook School. This added classroom space will bring relief to several of our more seriously overcrowded elementary schools in the center of our city, but will not completely solve the space shortage at the elementary school level.

During 1970 it will be necessary for us to give serious consideration to moving ahead on plans to modernize both Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and be prepared to come to grips with the need for additional new construction at the high school level.

I have files in the Legislature a bill that would provide $75 million dollars throughout the Commonwealth to assist communities in modernizing older school buildings. The Superintendent of Schools is preparing project proposals to qualify for such aid if this funding is authorized.

We have reason to be proud of our public school system in Quincy. Scarcely a week passes that educators from other parts of the country, and even the world, are not visiting the Quincy Public Schools. During a period when our schools and educators are on the firing line, subject to constant scrutiny, the goals of the Quincy Public Schools remain clear and unfettered by educational jargon. They are:

1. To develop a program of instruction that is relevant to the times.

2. To teach to each youngster what he needs to know in a manner in which he as an individual can learn it best.

3. To use the advantages of our technological age as they lend themselves to the educational process.

Housing Program

Four years ago we initiated an expansive housing improvement program, the first and only such program on the South Shore. I am proud to report to you today that over 9,000 of our 29,000 dwelling units have been inspected since that time and home repairs have become the keystone to that effort.

The North Quincy Improvement Project has proved the success of Quincy-Federal cooperation for neighborhood rehabilitation and I feel this type of program offers the greatest single hope to our community to prevent the blighted and deteriorated conditions so many other cities face. These programs have been closely coordinated with an expansive building program for Senior Citizens housing which has resulted in the construction of 306 units now under way, and the authorization of 337 leased housing units for our elderly and needy citizens.

We have made great progress in improving the homes and the neighborhoods of our community but as we look around us we see there is more we must do. Accordingly, I am requesting:

First, that the Planning Department submit to me its recommendations and applications for another Federal Neighborhood Improvement Project within 45 days, and

Secondly, that the Housing Authority initiate plans to provide at least 150 new units of housing for the elderly and further expand its leased housing and rent supplement program.

Battle Against Revaluation

The thorn of revaluation passed to this administration still remains with us today. We have fought this battle successfully for four years and will continue with every legislative and legal means available to us.

As the state-wide leader against revaluation, I have been successful in putting a far-reaching constitutional amendment on the state-wide ballot permitting a disproportionate assessment formula in Massachusetts cities and towns. If approved on the November ballot of 1970, this battle will be won and the homeowners of Quincy and throughout the Commonwealth will have been relieved of the onerous burden of one hundred per cent revaluation.

Praise For City Employees

I would like to say a special "Thank You" to Quincy's municipal employees. In these days of questions and complaints it is all too easy to criticize those who serve us well. Our employees are the unsung heroes of this and every government body and we truly owe them all our deep appreciation for a job well done.

Looking Back

As we begin the Seventies, I cannot help but look back 10 years to another inauguration. A young president called us forth to the challenge of a new decade filled with a vigorous and youthful hope for the future. How different his vision from the world we face today. His was a vision of a land of opportunity for all Americans, yet some feel bitterly excluded from the wealth they see around them.

His was a vision of America the beautiful, yet we pollute not only the land beneath us, but the seas around us. His was most of all a youthful vision, a calling to young minds to grapple with the very marrow of our problems; yet many of our youth have chosen to drop out and tune into a world unknown to those of greater years.

Looking Ahead

Yet that hope of a decade past still lies within us. Ours is not an empty spirit, only an uncertain one, buffeted by 10 long years of rapid change. It is not a time to despair, but a time to take those lessons so painfully learned and use them as guidelines for a new decade. We have only to redirect our vast resources, to channel our wealth toward real and not imagined perils.

Our true strength will only be achieved in purposeful programs which seek to insure that each American has not only the physical amenities of life, but that inner peace which is the binding force of all great nations.

Let us strive to create such a society here and now and History will say "We took one small step for America and one giant leap for mankind...."

School Committee Meetings To Open With Flag Salute, Silent Prayer

Quincy School Committee meetings in the future will be opened with a salute to the flag and a moment of silent prayer, the result of two motions passed by the committee at its special 1970 organization meeting.

The motions were made by Paul C. Kelly and included also the ideas of Miss Ruth Scanlon, who seconded his motions.

"We wondered why no flag had ever been prominently displayed at meetings," Mr. Kelly explained. "Also, I knew from attending City Council meetings that they were always opened with a moment of silent prayer for Divine guidance. At the School Committee, we never did anything but raise a gavel."

Since Quincy School Committee meetings except for executive sessions are open to the public, Mr. Kelly said, it would seem appropriate to have an American flag displayed as a reminder of the democratic tradition.

Mayor James R. McIntyre, chairman of the school committee, administered the oath of office to Mr. Kelly, Frank Anselmo and Charles T. Sweeny, recently elected members.

James F. McCormick, Sr., beginning his 11th year on the committee, was elected vice-chairman by a 5 to 2 vote. He succeeds Mrs. Alice Mitchell.

Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, superintendent of schools, continues as committee secretary and Mrs. Theresa Schott was elected clerk.

The committee meets the second fourth Wednesdays each month.

After Three Months Study

Special Commission Urges Youth Program Expansion

Youth programs at Houghs Neck, Germantown, Quincy Point and Southwest Quincy should be "encouraged and supported by all City Departments," and a youth facility developed in North Quincy, according to the report of the Committee on Recreational Needs of Youth.

The citizens' committee, of 20 members, headed by James F. McCormick, Sr., recently elected School Committee vice-chairman, was appointed late in August, 1969 by Mayor James R. McIntyre to study the recreational needs of the city.

Funds totaling $52,000 were appropriated by the State for the study, of which $32,000 was granted from the Division of Youth Services and $20,000 withheld by the State.

The committee met first on Sept. 4 and 14 subsequent meetings were held. A 25-page report by the committee was submitted to the Mayor this week, listing four priorities.

According to Mr. McCormick, the development of youth facilities at North Quincy was the most pressing need, and one which could be met with very little cost. The Civil Defense Center at the Myles Standish School property, now used for storage, could be made available for immediate use, he said.

Immediate action was recommended also for all items listed as top priority. They included:

* Use of the $32,000 grant from the Division of Youth Services in present youth programs at Houghs Neck, Germantown, Quincy Point and Southwest Quincy.

* Programs planned and conducted in close cooperation with already existing groups in these areas and immediate needs beyond the already-operating programs should have money allocated to service them.

* An increase in the Recreation Department budget, and the hiring of an assistant to William F. Ryan, director, who was a member of the Mayor's committee.

* Development of a central youth facility as soon as possible. "It should be partially self-supported using such devices as young people see fit, e.g. boutique shop, dues, fees, etc."

* Land on Pond St. be used for a multi-purpose center.

* All youth centers should have paid personnel as supervisors, and should be open to junior and senior high students, with girls to be included in all activities.

City funds should augment the $32,000 Youth Services' grant. This, it was noted would not mean the spending of actual money, but the use of City personnel for clerical work and other related activities.

David Ezickson, Head Start Program director; James Nolan, director of United Community Services; Rev. Bradford Gale of United First Parish Church; Gerald Gherardi of the Quincy Neighborhood Youth Corps; Robert Galligan of 52 Stoughton St.; William Trifone, director of Quincy Neighborhood Youth Corps; Carl R. Deyeso, Social Studies coordinator of the Quincy School Department.

These are among the approximately 2,782 names for the State of Massachusetts, involving a total amount of money estimated at $256,900.

William E. Williams, District Director, has expressed concern over the fact that the people included on the list have a rightful claim to the money and yet apparently have never contacted the Internal Revenue Service for their refund check.

Quincy residents include Foster and Ethel Kneeland, Alfred Morin, Anthony M. and Ruth M. Rotunno, Peter J. Sherbertes, Edward Smith, Vincent and Jeanette Solimini, Wilburt R. Stadig, John Allen Sullivan, John M. Sullivan, John L. Suter, Stephen George Theodore, Joseph R. Thorley.

Come Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Ways To Show Affection'

"I just have to have affection, Doctor....my wife is a good woman....really a fine person....but she's not meeting the needs of my soul....I did love her so much....but she neither gives affection nor accepts my affection to her....I feel like a fool begging for her love." He was 38. His wife was 36. They had been married 13 years. He looked sad. He knew he had a problem that he couldn't handle alone...."I have no real grounds for divorce.... I don't really want a divorce....but affection to me is like food. I just can't live without it."

If this isn't your problem, you can't feel with this man. If it is your problem, then you'll be concerned with the feelings which he was expressing to the counselor. If you're a man-hater, you'll say he's a big baby. But you're wrong....he's every bit a man.

Different people have differing needs for affection. People who have grown up in a home where there were genuine demonstrations of affection expect it from their partners. If there was none of it, a man or woman may find himself/herself unable to relate to a partner.

Some men marry it seems, just to have built-in maid service.... laundry....meals....beds made....house cleaned....and kids. Other men marry to have warm feminine companionship....a woman on whom to lavish their love and affection....a woman who returns love and affection feeding his soul.

Some women marry to have security....prestige....children.... others, to have a man whom she can respect and on whom she can lavish her feminine love and affection.

I happen to believe that love and affection are important in a marriage. All power to those who have been successful in a marriage arrangement on some platonic level where affection does not figure. But in my experience as a counselor herein lies the cause of a large number of break-ups....and a much larger number of unhappy people who are still together but suffering from emptiness....soul hunger....loneliness.

Why do people have difficulty showing affection? The main reason is bad teaching or example in the homes in which they grew up.... where they saw no affection. Men as well as women have been cheated in their preparation for adult life who have not had the example of seeing their own mother and father embracing and expressing their love to each other. No one ever taught them. It may not "just come naturally."

Many women feel used by undemonstrative husbands....they do all the things they know to do to make their husbands happy and in return are taken for granted....never a kiss....or pat or loving word. Many men feel used by unaffectionate wives....they provide financial security....give their wives position in the community and in return get no expressions of love....no praise....no feminine affection. An awful hollowness continues to eat out the hearts of these unfortunate people.

There are several ways to show affection....they need to be learned well by every husband and wife:

1. By words....praise....compliments....expressions of care, concern, love. Our voices are not merely to give orders....they are best used when expressing love.

2. By touch....the brushing of the hand on the shoulder....the holding of the hand in Church, in the movie, while riding in the car....complete and blissful sexual freedom with each other....the warmth of each others bodies lying together in sleep. Jesus' greatest healings were by touching the ill person. Much of our relationship sickness would be healed by more physical closeness. You probably can't be close spiritually unless you are close physically.

3. By the glance across the room or table as you dine together ....or in the crowd....the wink of the eye which says "I love you"....the nod of agreement to feelings you share together can make both lovers tingle.

4. By loving service of a woman in the home to her man....hard work translated into a paycheck by a man so they may share the good things of life together.

How do you show affection?....or do you? If you don't, chances are you have a husband/wife who is starving right in your very presence. Affection is learned behavior....you can learn it too.

Business Guide

A Reliable Directory Of Goods And Services

NICHOLAS NASHAWATY, proprietor and stylist at Jay-Ro Hair Styling Salon, 27 Cottage Ave., at the John Hancock Parking area, with his staff of trained personell. Jay-Ro features styling, facial and make-up lessons and hair-removal processes.

"We have the only salon in the South Shore which offers, in addition to hair styling, private features such as complete facials, individual make-up lessons, and facial or body hair removal through a painless wax process", notes Nicholas Nashawaty, owner and stylist of JAY-RO HAIR STYLING SALON, 27 Cottage Ave., Quincy.

Mr. Nashawaty, who has been a professional Quincy hair stylist for 15 years, started JAY-RO four years ago at the present address. He is familiar with all aspects of hair style and care, body and facial make up, and hairpieces. He has even created an "original" hair style--the Niro Cut--which still enjoys popularity after three years.

In addition, he confided he will be opening another new beauty salon in the Quincy area. Although he couldn't give all the details, he revealed that the specially designed building will house sauna units, massage, electrolosis studios, men's and women's botiques, four men's hair stylists, and a 22-car garage on the premises. He also noted that this new salon will duplicate all the features already found at JAY-RO.

In line with his expanding facilities, Mr. Nashawaty makes it a point to accompany his staff to all the major hair-fashion shows each year. He feels that a good salon must have up-to-date personnel. Each month, he calls a general meeting and employees discuss new trends and problems in an informal discussion.

Mr. Nashawaty's golden rule, however, is very simple for his employees:

"Bring out the face. Every woman has a certain beauty. It's up to you to find that beauty, and frame it accordingly."

Raiders On Celtics Card

North Quincy Seeks Third Straight Win

North Quincy's basketball team, defending Greater Boston League champion, is off and running and Friday night seeks its third straight league win against Medford in a 6 o'clock game at Boston Garden.

The game is a preliminary to the Celtics game and tickets can be purchased in advance at North Quincy High School. Tuesday night the Raiders play at Chelsea.

North exploded in the final period to break a close game open and top Revere, 75-57, Tuesday night at the Raider gym but Coach Bob Nolan, whose team has been involved in squeakers, still didn't have a chance to relax until late in the game.

North took a 20-12 first period lead, held a 34-28 halftime edge and took a 51-47 command into the finale. Here the Raiders exploded and outscored the Patriots, 24-10.

"The kids did a fine job and it was good to be able to relax a bit late in the game," Nolan said. "At one time in the third period we led by only two points.

Brian Donahue scored 20 points for North and Co-Capt. DeRosa, observing his 18th birthday, had 19. Dan Zink scored 10 and played an excellent defensive game.

Last week North opened defense of its league title and pulled out a 49-48 squeaker over Quincy in a typical Quincy-North game before 1000 fans at the Quincy gym.

"This was a typical game between our teams," Nolan said. "It will be dog-eat-dog this year in our league as there isn't a weak team in it. Quincy has a fine club and is going to win its share this year. The ball hasn't bounced right for them, but it will."

North had a lead of 18-15 after a period and a 31-27 edge at the half. Quincy tied it at 39-39 in the third period but North forged ahead, 47-40, in the early minutes of the final quarter, its biggest margin of the night.

Quincy rebounded to make it 47-46 with 4:12 left but Dan Zink made it 49-46 and Quincy's Bob Pike sank two foul shots to make it 49-48 with 3:41 remaining.

Neither team cashed in on foul shooting opportunities with time running out and Quincy had a life when Rich Sanderson missed one with eight seconds left.

But the Presidents were called for travelling with two seconds on the clock and North was in.

North's 6-6 sophomore center, Tom Cairns, held Quincy at bay during the hectic final period, scoring the go-ahead basket and twice blocking Quincy shots.

"Tom did a great job but this was a true team effort," Nolan said. "Everyone came up with a big play or big basket when we needed it and if they weren't scoring, they were getting the rebounds."

Sanderson paced North with 13 points and Jim Small had 10. Dan McKay scored nine, all in the first half.

Joe Amorosino's North junior varsity edged Quincy, 49-45, paced by Bob McKay's 18 points and Leo Papile's 14.

Earlier in the week North dropped its first decision, 67-61, to a tall B. C. High quintet which had earlier topped Quincy, 45-41.

North led, 45-39, after three periods but fouls hurt tremendously and B. C., hitting on 14 foul shots, outscored the Raiders, 28-16, in the finale. McKay, who scored 12 points, fouled out with three minutes left. North outscored the winners from the floor, 22 baskets to 20, but B. C. hit on 27 foul shots to 17 for North.

Sanderson scored 23 points and McKay 12 for North Quincy.

Quincy Icemen Seek Fifth Straight Win

When the schoolboy hockey season got underway, Quincy was rated as a solid contender for the Greater Boston League championship but hopes dimmed on opening night when the Presidents were bombed by Everett, 7-0.

However, Bob Sylvia's team shook off the effects of that walloping and Friday night at 6:30 will seek its fifth successive win when it meets Medford at the Boston Arena. The Presidents and Malden, which won the final Met League title last year, are tied for second place with 4-1 records behind 5-0 Everett.

Wednesday night Quincy faces Boston College High in a non-league game at Weymouth Skating Club.

Meanwhile, Bob Laing's North Quincy team, which has had some good moments but is making too many mistakes, due to inexperience, is still looking for its first win. The Raiders face Malden at 9 Friday at the Arena.

Quincy's latest win was a 6-1 decision last week over a tough Revere team, which followed up a big 6-1 win over Malden early in the week.

Quincy dedicated the Revere game to Jim Cedrone, captain of last year's team and brother of Steve, a soph standout on this year's club. He was rushed to the hospital the afternoon of the game with convulsions.

"I was very pleased with this game as Revere is a real tough club," Sylvia said. "We had to watch out for a letdown after the Malden win. We had trouble getting started as our Red [first] line wasn't moving the puck and the Green [second] line got us going. I was especially happy that I was able to get everyone into the game.

"I'm disappointed the White [third] line and Blue [fourth] line didn't score but they held Revere defensively and did come close one or twice themselves."

After the game the coaches and players, as usual, were eating cupcakes baked by the cheerleaders for each game. "This is a fine example of the tremendous spirit connected with Quincy hockey," Sylvia explained.

Chuck Peterson put Quincy on the scoreboard first early in the game with an unassisted goal, but Revere tied it up two minutes later. Peterson scored his second goal, the game winner, later in the period. Dom [Bomber] Burke, a regular third liner playing with the second line, made it 3-1 before the opening period ended. Kevin Grogan assisted on Burke's goal and Chuck Condos and Harry Bertoni assisted on Peterson's second tally.

In the middle period Condos scored unassisted and Phil Rugg scored twice, the first unassisted and the second on a pass from Dave Mariano.

Laing was disappointed in North's 5-2 loss to Somerville because "I thought we could beat those guys. We had a real bad night defensively."

"Not only were our defensemen not hitting enough, not aggressive up front, but they weren't clearing well and their passing was bad, too. I think the key play was [Steve] Burlamachi's second goal [he had three for the second time this year] for them after 35 seconds of the final period. Neil Cronin had scored for us 16 seconds earlier to move us to within one goal, 3-2, but that goal took any edge we had away."

North's first goal was scored by Wayne Fick late in the second period to cut the gap to 3-1, Bob Gilfeather and Tom Golden assisting, while Cronin scored the second on passes from Bill Gardner and Pat McCormick.

Laing had praise for his third line of juniors Fick and Vin Cameron and soph Gilfeather. "They not only got our first goal but picked up up," Bob said. They took a regular turn in the third period and did very well."

Contino 235-628

Quincy's Lou Contino rolled a 235-628 to lead Citgo Gasoline to a 6-2 win over Sea 'N Surf Restaurant in the Massachusetts Classic League at Boston Ten-Pin Bowl, Dorchester.

Presidents Face Everett Friday

Hard-Luck Quincy Still Chasing Victory

Quincy's hard-luck basketball team, still seeking its first win of the season, plays at Everett Friday night and will be home to Malden Tuesday night in Greater Boston League games.

The Presidents dropped their fourth in a row Tuesday night as Boston College High pulled away in the final period for a 59-53 win, its second over Quincy and a clean sweep over Quincy teams. The Eaglets also handed North Quincy its only defeat.

"This is the first game in which I can say I am very disappointed," Coach Marty Finnegan said. "In the first three losses the boys did a fine job and the games could have gone either way. But tonight we threw it away ourselves with poor shooting and far too many turnovers."

Quincy hit on only 17 of 53 shots from the floor, its poorest showing of the year, and was 19 for 35 from the foul line. Also, the Presidents turned the ball over more than 20 times.

B. C. led, 20-13, after a period and held a 34-27 halftime edge but Quincy narrowed the gap to 44-42 in the third period. B. C. went ahead by 10 midway in the final period.

Bob Pike scored 14 points, Billy Maver 12 and Jim Furfari 11 for the Presidents.

Three of the four Quincy losses have been non-league games with the North Quincy thriller the only league encounter. However, from here on in it will be only GBL games.

Fran Conroy's Quincy junior varsity won, 45-33, to make its record 2-2. Bob McDermott sparked the attack with 20 points, while Jim Walker excelled off the boards and John DuBois starred as playmaker.

Last week Quincy opened its league season and dropped another heartbreaker to rival North, 49-48, in a typical Quincy-North game before 1000 screaming fans at the Quincy gym.

It was the third loss in a row all by four points or less, for the Presidents. They lost to B. C. High, 45-41, and to Weymouth, 57-55.

Quincy trailed, 18-15, after one period and 31-27 at halftime. The Presidents bounced back to tie it at 39-39 in the third period but the Raiders opened up a 47-40 lead, their largest of the game, early in the final period.

Quincy came back as George Davey sank a pair of foul shots and Rick DeChirstofaro and Bob Pike sank a field goal each to make it 47-46 with 4:12 remaining.

After Dan Zink scored for North, Pike added two free throws to make it 49-48 with 3:41 left in the game.

Each team had its chances from the foul line in the last seconds and Quincy had a life when a North player missed one with 18 seconds left. But the Presidents were called for traveling with two seconds left and that was that.

"It was very disappointing because our kids tried so hard," Finnegan said. "I know how much they wanted to win. It was just one of those games that could have gone either way."

Pike, outstanding throughout the game, scored 18 points and Billy Maver 10 in a losing cause.

The Night Before Christmas

It was the night before Christmas,
When I heard a noise,
That sounded like the tingle of toys.

I ran to the window,
And opened my eyes wide,
I saw a jolly old man,
On a reindeer ride.

He landed way down the street,
With dolls and toys,
And good things to eat.

I went back to bed and Went to sleep, and dreamed
Of something good and sweet.

On Christmas Day I looked under the tree,
And found a bunny twitching at me.

It was small and fat and hopping too,
It hopped right into my Dad's shoe.

This was a Merry Christmas for me,
When I found a bunny under the tree.

Scary Old Night

One Halloween night my friends and I went out with no mother or father. Then all of the sudden I was lost from all my friends! I was scared half to death when I saw a scary old man up in a tree. He smashed a punkin on my head. Then I saw two dark blak eyes. A black cat from up on a tree jumped down on my head. I got chased by the scary old man into a haunted house. I was scared were you?

I saw bats, cats and I saw a mummy also. The mummy walked up to me very slowly. Then the cat jumped off my head to play with the other cats. There was more then one mummy. There were twenty mummis. Out of the mummies came all my friends. I was so happy to see them that I almost fell down. Then we went to more houses tp get more candy. Then we all had a Halloween party. The End.

The First Snow Of The Season

1893, it's snowing out, the first snow of the season. It's 11:00 at night, I couldn't sleep. Everything is silent and beautiful. Lovely snowflakes gently, gracefully falling towards the ground. The snow, piling in a heap on the ground is sparkling as beautifully as the stars in the sky. The flames in the fireplace sputtering and waving. The candles swaying gently. Taking one last look at the snow and blowing out the candles I go to bed at last.

Snow

Snow is something that I like best,
It comes when animals are in their long winter's rest.
It makes you want to make a snowball,
Children slide down the hill on a sled.
But it snows much harder when the're in bed.
It lets you know Christmas is near,
Soon sleigh bells you will hear.
Santa comes and brings you toys,
But only for good girls and boys.

Thanksgiving

November 27 is Thanksgiving Day. We have turkeys and big dinners. We have pies and other things. I like Thanksgiving because we have fun. Thanksgiving started more than three hundred years ago. Christmas Eve

It was Christmas Eve,
And everything was bright,
With the Christmas tree dressed in lights.
Santa Claus comes with his elves all around,
You can hear their feet tapping on the ground.
They're putting many presents under the tree,
And many presents there will be,
For my family and me.
We wake up the next morning,
Surprised, curious and too busy yawning.
At lunch there will be, good things to eat,
Then playing with toys in our bare feet.

Christmas Toy

I am a toy on Christmas. Someone bought me the night before Christmas. He was young and nice. He gave me to a little boy named John. John plays with me every day. One night John left me on the floor and his big brother Tony stepped on me. John found me the next morning and cried and cried. He took me [all six pieces of metal] to his father. His father got out his hammer, monkey wrench, nails and screwdriver and put me back together. John was so happy that he took all his other toys out and had a parade. He let me be the leader.

I Would Have Rather Lived In Ancient Greece

I would like to live in Ancient Greece because the Olympics started there and I could watch them. Sometimes I would read some myths. Many times I could see men making buildings or a man sculpturing a statue that would one day be famous. In Greece you wouldn't have to shovel snow.

A Merry Christmas Indeed

It was the day before Christmas and everyone was gay. That is, all except one little family. The families name was the Smiths. You see the Smiths were very poor.

Their house was small and the furniture shabby. The fire in the fireplace was small and was dwindling away slowly. It was now supper time but all they had to eat was water and bread. There were five in the family. Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Cindy, Joe and Mary.

All day long little Mary kept asking, "Will we have a tree, a big one? Will I get presents from Santa? Will we have a turkey for dinner tomorrow?" But the people just answered, "No".

Finally it was time for everyone to go to bed. Little Mary tried to stay awake, but just couldn't.

Now the people in this town were very kindhearted and liked this family very much. During the night, as quiet as mice, they came in and set up a magnificent tree. Then the people decorated it with dazzling ornaments and scattered gifts below the tree.

The next morning when the family came into the room and saw the tree they were shocked.

Mrs. Smith was the first to break the silence by saying, "A true miracle has been made!"

What Christmas Means To Me

What Christmas means to me is the birth of Christ, the Son of God. He was born of Mary, in the town of Bethlehem. The shepherds and wise men came bearing gifts. This is why we give gifts. Our Armed Forces in Viet Nam are fighting for our freedom and give us a present day after day.

Christmas

Christmas is a time of glee,
When everyone goes on a shopping spree.
Bells are ringing brightly,
Carols sung lightly.
Stores are filled with toys,
Children waiting for Christmas joys.

Christmas day is very near,
Children know, and it's hard to bear.
Santa is in all the stores,
Listening to girls and boys.
Snow crunches underfoot,
While children clean out the chimney soot,
So Santa can come down.
Santa Claus has come to town.

Christmas Eve

Christmas Eve is a joyful night,
Just waiting for Santa to take his flight.
The tree was dressed in colorful joys,
Waiting to watch over many toys.
Jesus was born on this glorious night,
Under a star that shined so bright.
Now I'll say one more prayer and then I'll go to bed,
And wait for Christmas thoughts to enter my head.

Brett Remembered 365 Days Each Year

Every day of 1970 a potential 2,500 people will think of State Rep. Joseph E. Brett, of Quincy.

The reason is a desk calendar included for 12 years with his holiday greetings. From a small beginning, his list grew to roughly 1,500 Quincy acquaintances; several hundred brother Elks [Brett is President of the Mass. Elks Association]; and 200 or so State House associates. They go to 49 states [including Alaska], and to Japan.

Each recipient is known personally by Brett, and all envelopes are hand addressed.

"My wife does practically all of them, addressing about 2,100," Brett confessed. "I have a file card list and we get started about the first of November to check addresses with the telephone book and the Quincy Police listings.

We both stuff envelopes. "Then I separate them into ZIP code districts and deliver them to the Quincy Post Office where they do a fine job in getting them out before Christmas. Usually only a few dozen are returned for lack of proper address."

Postal costs runs about $75., under a bulk mail permit which comes to $30. for a year. The calendar itself and printing costs are on top of that.

"Yes, I plan to send them out next year, God willing. People seem to like them and it's hard to stop," Brett says. "It's like the baseball trip I have each year for 500 kids. Boys come in when snow is on the ground wanting to get their names on the list for the trip next August."

Nature And Infection

In the past a frightening sight was the "streak of red" which arose at, what may have appeared to be, a minor scratch, pustule or puncture wound. A finger, hand or sole of the foot was the more likely area. This streak could arise within hours or days of the injury or infection.

Tradition has labeled this worrisome lesion as "Blood Poisoning". In the days prior to antibiotics, especially penicillin, there was justification for fear and concern.

Lives were lost, including the son of a former president who developed a blister of the heel, or so the story goes. A brother of mine spent months recovering from a similar infection back in the 20's.

In truth, the streak represents a bacterial infection, usually, either a staph or strep, which is superficial. It need not be deep. The streak is a lymph stream manifestation - because this system lies in the upper layers of the skin, the direction is usually up the arm or leg and is heading for a lymph gland which nature has strategically placed as a way station to thwart the spread to the body where it can become generalized and becomes a septicemia. The wisdom or genius of creation, recognizing the need for protection here and there, never ceases to amaze me!

The glands usually become enlarged and tender and thus warns the person of his infection. The original wound may be exquisitely tender or have no pain at all. The streak, as I have said, does frighten one - especially the mother, and of course fears are alarms to be heeded.

Often foreign material as dirt or mineral particles, such as rust, or wooden splinters in the wound aggravate healing and encourage infection.

The treatment, while you wait, should be hot wet soaks with the most readily available material, table salt. The salt is poured into hot water until it is saturated, a soak of the part, if you can, directly into the water for 10-15 minutes, followed by swathing the area with a hot wet towel. All this enclosed in a plastic bag [to maintain the moisture and warmth] all night long if necessary, will usually show improvement by the following day by beginning lessening of the streak.

Penicillin or some other recommended antibiotic - if a person should be sensitive to penicillin will delimit the spread of infection. Your physician should obviously have been consulted and visited when arrangements can be made. All he may have to do is drain the pus or foreign material. Being superficial, anesthesia is rarely needed and the pain is slight for the timid ones.

So don't fear! Not only is nature wise and provident, but has taught us how to stop this infection - with the teleological wisdom of showing us how to discover agents like penicillin appropriately.

Nature seems every now and then to show us new tricks - makes us think we are clever - yes, true geniuses working hard to find discoveries, but isn't it true again that these inventions and discoveries have always been here?

Moving Into Dick Tracy Age

Police Plan TV Traffic 'Eye'

The Quincy Police Department is moving into a Dick Tracy-like age of electronic law enforcement, according to a report submitted to Mayor James R. McIntyre by Police Chief Francis X. Finn.

Major features of the Department's plans for 1970 include:

● The start of a computerized traffic signal system from the Neponset Bridge to the Braintree line that will be monitored by closed circuit TV from the police station.

● A new $90,000 communications system, half paid for by federal funds, extending to four high frequency channels compared to the present one low frequency channel that is easily monitored by criminals.

● Implementation of a security code requiring business establishments to secure properly their buildings, install an adequate burglar alarm system and light the darkened areas outside their buildings.

● A training program to help police officers to recognize family crises and difficulties so that they "will be able to make intelligent and meaningful referrals for assistance."

● Development in association with South Shore Mental Health, the State Department of Mental Health and the Quincy School System of a program for the proper handling of emotionally disturbed and suicide prone individuals.

● A new system of intensified patrol through the use of two-man ranch wagon ambulets working with two, three or four smaller satellite vehicles, the number being determined by the area's crime rate and accident frequency.

"The possibilities of [the computerezed traffic signal] system," says the report, "are beyond imagination at the present time for most people."

The system will be in effect on Hancock St. and Newport Ave. on each side of the new MBTA rapid transit line to ease the flow of traffic through the city at peak hours.

"It has many other distinct advantages," the report noted,

Mr. And Mrs. John Houston Mark 70 Years 'True Love'

BY RUTH WAINWRIGHT

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Houston, Sr. of 21 Clive St., North Quincy, are still very much in love today.

Just as much--if not more--as they were 70 years ago when they were wed Jan. 22, 1900 as a couple of kids--21 and 18.

Now 88 and 91, they will officially mark their 70th wedding anniversary next Thursday.

But on Sunday, more than 100 friends and relatives honored them at a surprise pre-anniversary open house and reception.

Mr. Houston, one of four known surviving South Shore area veterans of the Spanish-American War, is a familiar and popular figure at Quincy Memorial and Veterans Day exercises.

Mrs. Houston remains active herself, keeping house and whipping up delicious dishes for her husband.

"Mrs. Houston does all her own cooking and is a wonderful cook," says her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John A. Houston, Jr. "Also, she taught me all I know about cooking."

And, she adds:

"They are both wonderful."

The party was held at the home of their daughter-in-law where they have a separate apartment.

A granddaughter has taken over the task of bringing in groceries for the couple. Other than that, they are pretty much self-sufficient.

Mr. and Mrs. Houston's entire living family including five grandchilren and 10 great-grandchildren were present to make Sunday a memorable day for them. Their two sons and a daughter are no longer living.

The couple were married in Lawrence when the former Zoa Dearborn was 18 and John was 21. They remained there for a short time, and except for some 15 years in Weymouth, have lived most of their married life in the Atlantic section of Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Houston, who spend most of their time at home now, traveled considerably in their younger years, wintering in Florida and returning north for the warm weather.

Mr. Houston is Commander of the George A. Boyd Post, Spanish War Veterans. He was a supervisor for 30 years at Boston Navy Yard, retiring about 40 years ago.

Among those attending the 70th anniversary celebration were Mayor James R. McIntyre, and Councilor and Mrs. J. Vincent Smyth. Mrs. Houston's nephew, Col. Richard Irving and his family traveled here from Connecticut, where Col. Irving is director of the ROTC at Yale University.

Other surprise guests were Rev. Rosman MacDonald and his wife from Nahant. Rev. MacDonald was minister of Atlantic Methodist Church nearly 40 years ago when Mr. and Mrs. Houston were parishioners there. He married their oldest son and his wife, and christened the grandchildren.

Mrs. Houston still goes to church luncheons occasionally and they are in constant touch with church affairs.

"True Love"--that song must have been written for them.

More Thanks From Vietnam

SP-4 Tom O'Connell, serving with the 4th Infantry, wrote:

"When I was a civilian I never realized how lucky I was to have a good home and a nice place to live. I can't wait until May so I can get back and enjoy all the great things we have in the States....Thank you again and keep up the good work."

Sunbeams

Perhaps never before in its history has Quincy had a mayor and city council president such close personal friends.

The bond between Mayor James R. McIntyre and Council President Arthur H. Tobin goes back 39 years to the day of their births.

They were born at Quincy City Hosptial in May, 1930 just three days apart. Tobin, May 22 and McIntyre, May 25. Their mothers were in ward beds next to one another.

The two families have been close ever since.

McIntyre entered politics first and Tobin worked for his election in each campaign.

And it was McIntyre, an attorney himself, who encouraged and helped Tobin through law school during lean times for the latter.

Tobin once revealed:

"Jimmy helped me more than he will ever say. And I mean he helped me with more than just words of encouragement."

Little did their mothers realize back there at Quincy Hospital 39 years ago that their two infant sons one day would be mayor and council president together--holding the two most influential political jobs in Quincy.

DAN CUPID DEPT: The first marriage intentions of 1970 filed at Quincy City Hall were those of Michael L. Watson, 14 Billings St., North Quincy, a soldier and Miss Jancie M. Barker of Sawyer Ave., Dorchester, office clerk.

RICO PETROCELLI, honored by the Montclair Men's Club the other night, said he feels the Red Sox "have a good chance of going all the way" in 1970...Incidentally, he had this advice for parents or coaches of Little Leaguers' "The most important thing you can do is instill confidence in the youngsters."

OLD FRIEND Max Zides of Hum 'n Strum fame, still has his tonsils well tuned. He sang a few numbers at the Montclair Men's Club awards dinner and had everyone singing along. Everybody's favorite still seems to be "Heart of My Heart".

Max is now public relations director for the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome and several other alleys. His old partner, Tom Currier, is living and selling real estate in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

HERE'S a grim prediction for 1970. The Norfolk County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association forecasts that about 300,000 persons will die prematurely during the year because they couldn't kick the cigarette habit.

And, says the association, nearly one million persons--most of them teen-agers--will take up the habit.

On the brighter side: one million now smoking will quit in 1970--quit for good. This will bring to 22 million the total number of Americans to give up smoking.

INCIDENTALLY, one of the latest to kick the nicotine habit is Bob Bee, general manager of the Quincy Giants. At last count, he hadn't had a puff in 859 hours, 33 minutes and 15 seconds.

CITY COUNCILLOR John F. Koegler now has an artist in the family. His wife, Gladys, has been taking instructions and is already good at it. Good enough to paint a landscape she presented to her sister, Phyllis for Christmas. A nice one, too.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: City employee Louis J. Caruso has again gone out on his own to raise money to help youngsters at St. Coletta's School, Braintree. Caruso raised $150.

SMILE DEPT: Roland [Pop] Josselyn of Mears Ave., Houghs Neck, is an 85-year-old [young] carpenter who still climbs ladders to work on houses and buildings. He sends along this "public notice":

"As I have been in the school of "Hard Knocks" for some 50-60 years, and although I haven't graduated yet, I do feel that I have earned a degree.

"So I have appointed myself as a committee of one to grant that degree and I therefore grant myself the degree of "Doctor of Ailing Buildings."

"So from this time forth I am, 'Dr. Pop Josselyn', Doctor of Ailing Buildings".

Congratulations, Pop.

Senior Citizens Seek Phone, Gas, Electric Rate Cuts

Public utilities, telephone, gas and electric companies, are being petitioned to provide reduced service rates for persons 60 years and older.

"We believe that this special consideration is a right persons over 60 are entitled to in return for all they have given to this country in past years," the petition reads.

"Now when persons over 60 are largely forced to exist on fixed incomes while prices continuously rise, this special consideration is urgently needed."

"This is a campaign started by the Council of the Elderly in Roxbury," Donald Strong, director of the Quincy Council on Aging, explained. "The local Council on Aging has voted to support the effort. It is simply based on the request of senior citizens for a percentage eduction in utility rates."

A series of meetings have been held throughout the area, Mr. Strong said, and the matter has been discussed by senior citizens groups in Quincy who favor the request.

The petitions are being circulated through churches and through senior citizens' organizations. While there is no deadline for their return, Mr. Strong expects to have them collected by the end of January. All interested residents, regardless of age, may sign the petitions.

Brett Would Require Advance Notice On Assessment Hikes

Advance notice of increased assessments would be given property owners under a bill being filed by Rep. Joseph E. Brett, if its consideration as a "late-filed" bill is permitted.

Brett's bill provides that local assessors when increasing the assessment on real and personal property over the assessment of the previous year, be required to notify property owners of the proposed new valuation not later than 30 days prior to mailing of the tax bill.

This would give the property owner advance knowledge of his new assessment before he receives his tax bill.

"I have received a sizeable number of complaints in recent weeks from Quincy property owners [business] that their properties had been revalued upwards by a considerable amount without learning about the new assessment until they received the tax bill," Brett stated.

"It also appears from the complaints I have received that the properties have been re-assessed on a rather selective basis in that other business properties adjoining had not been re-assessed.

"There is a question in some minds as to why certain individuals have been hit by new valuations while others nearby have not been touched," Brett said.

Present law allows a property owner who objects to his assessment on grounds that it is excessive, 90 days from the date of his tax bill to apply for an abatement.

It is possible that because of this law, the proposed bill may be considered unnecessary. Also because the question was not called to Brett's attention until after the deadline for filing bills, it will require a two-thirds vote of House and Senate members to be admitted for consideration in the 1970 session.

Broad Meadows To Air School Bus Complaints

MBTA representatives and members of the Parents' Advisory Board at Broad Meadows Junior High School will try again to get together on Feb. 9 to discuss complaints on bus transportation for students.

Because of a confusion in dates, Manuel Repoza of the MBTA who was scheduled to discuss problems with the group on Monday night, did not appear. He has agreed to meet with the board at the rescheduled date.

Mrs. John F. Morrissey, serving as interim chairman, stated that in addition to board members, an estimated 30 parents mostly from the Houghs Neck area were present. Also attending were School Committeeman Paul Kelly, who plans to bring the matter before the committee, Joseph Long, assistant principal and Wilfred Nolan of the Broad Meadows faculty.

Principal complaints are that busses pass students, there are not enough busses at rush periods, children are not permitted to get off at stops near Broad Meadows, and the disparity in student bus fares between Quincy and Boston.

$1,572,579 Wiring

A total of 1,391 permits representing an estimated $1,572,579 in wiring were issued in 1969 by the City Wire Inspection Department, reports Inspector William H. Pitts.

By far the greater permanent wiring for appliances was for electric ranges [740], disposals [769] and air conditioners [676].

Pitts noted that there are still about 2,000 homes in Quincy that are inadequately wired for proper use of modern appliances found in the average home today.

Because of the many inspections, investigations and other duties of the office, he strongly recommended that an assistant be appointed to his department.

Of the 81 new buildings wired, 28 were multi-family houses and 23 new single homes. Largest was a 64-apartment building at 1 Canton Rd. Others included a 56-apartment building at 10 Arnold Rd., and a 51-apartment dwelling at 197 Presidents Lane.

Eight new business establishments were listed plus additions to existing housing for the elderly, industrial establishments, and the new medical building at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway.

"including the relief of a number of men from traffic posts for duty elsewhere and the video taping of any crime in progress within the range of the TV cameras."

New traffic signal devices are also planned for five major intersections, including Southern Artery and Hancock St., Southern Artery and Washington St., Southern Artery from McGrath Highway to Sea St., and along Sea St. to the new Public Works Building.

Application has been made for 100 per cent funding of the five new devices and plans for three more are on the drawing board.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of 1969 was Project SPAIS, [for Suburban Police Automatic Information System] a computerized network that can actually predict potential targets of burglars.

The system is being developed in consort with Milton, Braintree and Weymouth, with a grant of $15,000 in federal funds under the "Safe Streets Act."

"Most other police computers," said the report, "have been developed only in the biggest cities, like Boston, Chicago, Detroit, New York and Baltimore.

"These cities have different needs for a police computer than Quincy and its neighbors. For example, it would take a computer for a Boston division head to know where all his men and cruisers are at any given moment. We don't need that.

"On the other hand, here in Quincy we can do tricks with the computer that are impossible in Boston. Because 90 percent of the police officers in a moderate sized community perhaps know on sight 90 percent of the criminal element, we can put valuable information into the computer.

"For example, when a home has been burglarized the computer will literally 'put the finger on' hoods that have been seen in that area. Going a step further, the computer will be able to keep track of all vacant homes in the city [providing citizens call the information in].

"Putting two and two together, the computer will combine this information with what it already knows about the activities of local hoods, and predict potential burglary targets!

"The day is coming in Quincy and the neighboring towns when there will be only one way for burglars to avoid walking into police traps – and that is early retirement!"

The police computer, incidentally, is known as the "coputer," with the accent on "cop".

Also in 1969, the Quincy Police Department obtained a $15,000 grant of Safe Streets Act funds for a detailed study of its management system so it can keep pace with advancements in techniques and operations.

The Police Cadet Program, first in the state, continued under a Safe Streets Act grant of $8,000 with plans to add a classroom schedule.

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

FEMININITY STRESSED

The news is -

Styles reminiscent of other times - great grandmother's time.

The charming and delicate look of generations ago. A kind of magic has happened to spring and summer styles in bridal wear this year.

There is more skirt fulness. Necklines are high. Either mandarin or wedding ring collars are the mode. The most important and biggest change is in sleeves. Lantern sleeves, bishop sleeves, juliet sleeves are a few of the more popular styles. The important thing is fullness in the sleeve.

Femininity is stressed in all gowns. Lace is used with abundance but it's a delicate lace. The basic fabrics are light and airy looking.

The headdress is either the face framer or juliet cap, but always with the train length bouffant veil. The designers and buyers have made sure there are styles in the new look for every type figure. Today's gowns will be tomorrows legends.

When you're sure of your wedding date start shopping for that "once in a lifetime" gown early. Remember it takes about eight weeks for delivers. The main reason is the labor shortage in New York. It is at a crisis. One N. Y. paper reports: "The labor shortage in the garment industry is so acute that employers pay elevator operators $5.00 a head for every new worker they can lure into the factory". Today's generation just aren't entering the needle trades. Because of this labor shortage those who are in the business must have more time to produce.

This is why I keep trying to impress on brides the necessity of shopping early.

HOUSE CALL

By Dr. Charles Djerf
Pediatrician

What Did Grandma Say?

Once upon a time a beautiful young princess went into a wood near her father's palace and sat down beside a spring of cool, clear water. She amused herself by tossing up a golden ball and catching it again as it fell. But one time she threw the ball so high that she could not catch it, and it fell into the spring.

Then the princess began to weep, "Oh! Oh! If I could only get my ball again, I would give all my fine clothes and my pearls, and diamonds - everything I have." As she said this, a big green frog stuck its head out of the spring and asked, "Beautiful Princess, why do you weep?"

I will go no further with this story, as I'm sure most of you recognize it as the story of the princess, and the frog who became a prince, when kissed by the princess.

However, if you were to believe some people in our society, the kiss could only have resulted in warts on the young ladies lips, and not the happy ending we all know about. I had thought that the myth about toads - frogs causing warts was completely and forever dead. Warts [or verrucae] are caused by a virus, that infects the skin.

The above mentioned myth is a type that is seen nearly every day in medical practice, known commonly as "old wives tales". These "tales" or "myths" are not to be lightly regarded, as some are based on fact. Others can be dangerously misleading. Also, the holders of these myths are often neither old nor are they wives.

While on the subject of kissing, let's pause - awhile - and discuss infectious mononucleosis. This disease is often called "kissing disease". While it is true that the virus that causes "mono" can be passed by kissing, it can also be transmitted by other means, just as many other diseases, even the common cold. So go easy on the sweet teenager with mono, as well as the child and grandparent who has it. But if you have to get mono, you might as well enjoy the process, eh?

While STILL on the subject of kissing, consider the fact that human bites get infected more often than dog or cat bites, so if you want a clean kiss, you know where to go.

Another "myth", so to speak, that one encounters frequently, is the idea that a child who has had bronchitis one, two or even three times over a period of years is an unusually ill child, and needs to be rushed to the doctor, everytime there is a sniffle or a bit of a fever. Undoubtedly there are children with recurrent respiratory infections that merit close attention, but the average "chronical bronical" child I see is healthier than I am.

I will never cease to be amazed that people try to bring down a high fever by bundling the patient up. In the old days we used to "sweat out" the fever with blanket piled upon blanket. I can remember doing it myself. However, a fever will be a degree or two lower if the patient is dressed lightly [underwear], and with no blanket cover, at usual room temperature, than if the patient is bundled up warmly. I don't care how he or she seems to shiver. How can somebody with a temperature of 104 or 105 get a "chill"? Of course, if you want baked child, then disregard all of the above.

Let's spend a minute talking about bowel habits - maybe half a minute - that's all its worth. One need not have a BM every day, despite what grandma says. Everyone has his own pattern, and this varies from two or more daily to one or twice weekly. "There is on medical record a man who had one bowel movement a year." [Gould] Our society is over enemized and over catharticized. Just think what our world would be like if our social problems got as much attention as our bowels.

Well, enough about old wives tales - there will be more later. I must put on my ear muffs and scarf [shouldn't get a chill] and my rubbers [mustn't get my feet wet] and go to the drugstore for my milk of magnesia.

REV. EDWARD S. SULLIVAN

He had since his ordination in 1924 served as a part-time circus priest, his formal title being "National Chaplain of the Circus Fans of America."

Fr. Sullivan's circus association began as a youth in Charlestown. He later worked at Benson's Wild Animal Farm in New Hampshire. During his years as circus priest, he became known to thousands of performers. He officiated at marriages, conducted classes for children, visited the sick and injured.

Fr. Sullivan served as assistant in several churches of the Boston Archdiocese before being appointed pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Gloucester, in 1947. In 1951 he was named administrator of All Saints' Church, Roxbury, and appointed pastor a year later. He remained there until he was named pastor of Star of the Sea Church in 1967.

Last year he was honored on his 45th anniversary as a priest.

Fr. Sullivan was Catholic chaplain of the Quincy Fire Department, an honorary deputy fire chief of the Boston Fire Department, and honorary captain of the New York Police Department.

Fr. Sullivan is survived by sisters, Mrs. Mildred A. Gallagher of Arlington and Mrs. Margaret K. Sanda of Boston, and two brothers, Francis Sullivan of New York City and Chief Warrant Officer John Sullivan, serving with the Army.

O'Connell Demands Action To Prevent NASA Closing

William A. O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, has written a blunt letter to Sen. Edward W. Brooke demanding action on the closing of the NASA installation in Cambridge.

"We expect," he said, "that you will exert every effort to protest the closing of the Cambridge NASA facility.

"It seems to me that New England, and especially Massachusetts, has suffered a severe loss in its share of the outerspace research program, and, conversely, that some other sections of the country have gained.

"We realize that many times the closing of a government facility is more than offset by more lucrative or appropriate substitutes. However, this particular case does from our position appear to be an exception.

"Electronics is our bailiwick, and our educational institutions are close by. The engineers and scientists find it convenient to work, study, teach and live in a total society.

"The facts in a situation like this are hard for an organization like ours to ferret out, weigh and judge. Far be it from us to want to go off half-cocked.

"You are close to where it's at....

"If the decision is wrong, or if there are mitigating circumstances, it would seem to us that you, the Republican senator from our state, would be in a better position to advise us, even though people of other political affiliations are also affected, at least economically.

"This letter is not written in rancor. What's right is right, and we are entitled to the facts, political or otherwise."

Sheffield Superintendent At South Postal Annex

George K. Walker, Officer-in-Charge of the Boston Postal District, announces the promotion of Edward J. Sheffield to Superintendent, South Postal Annex, the largest postal facility in the New England area.

Approximately 10 million pieces of mail are processed daily at the Annex where 4,500 employees work 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Mr. Sheffield, a resident of Wakefield, is a career Postal employee of 28 years. He has served in a succession of supervisory positions from Foreman of Mails, General Foreman, Tour Superintendent, to his present assignment.

In promotion ceremonies conducted at the GPO, Mr. Walker said that the years ahead at South Postal Annex would see more progress and improvements in mail service than ever before, and that Mr. Sheffield's expertise in postal operations would be the guiding force in fulfilling this program. Construction of a modern mechanized addition to the present building is slated for completion in 1971.

Mr. Sheffield, a World War II Army veteran, rose through the ranks to Warrant Officer. He was awarded the American Defense Medal, Combat Infantryman Badge, Bronze Star with Cluster, Asiatic Pacific Medal with 3 Stars and Arrowhead, Presidential Citation and Philippine Liberation Medal.

Come, Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'A Winter Vacation For You'

"Modern man is too tense....too concerned for results....too anxious. We must form the habit of freeing our minds of the inhibitive influences....we work too hard trying to rid ourselves of anxieties....worries....inferiorities....guilt feelings by conscious efforts. Instead try to surrender....less activity....more relaxation....let go your hold....resign the care of your destiny to higher powers....give your private self a rest." This is what William James wrote in 1899.

A shorter and plainer way to say what I think the great psychologist was saying is...."Wouldn't a winter vacation be good for you?"

If there was anxiety....worry....inferiority....guilt feelings and pressures in 1899, these have compounded these 70 years later. The pace is faster....the responsibilities are greater....the stakes are higher. Mistakes are more costly. We have to be on our toes most of the time. Men at work are popping pills....so are their women at home. William James might say...."No wonder some people don't succeed....no wonder they have trouble relating to each other. People are up tight."

I don't like writing my column under compulsion of a deadline. When I do, the writing is more cold....more sharp....shows less understanding. Usually I jot down notes through the week....at lunch....while I drive....even upon waking in the morning....see, these are relaxed times.

My point is that we press too hard....inhibit our creative powers with trying too hard....too long....too concentratingly.... too compulsively. We need to learn to live and work with greater ease....we just must in this new decade.

Our minds and bodies are so clamped down as to a machine....we run on a treadmill of responsibilities....trying to be true to rigid patterns of ethics and success goals. No wonder men have heart attacks and ulcers....no wonder women have headaches and rough menstruations. People drink and smoke trying to get some relief and these drugs only make their conditions worse. Maybe we would all do well to have a winter vacation.

When I say YOU, I mean you and your wife. I know all the arguments for men going alone....women going alone and the whole family going together.

But the truth is that most men do not know what it is to live with their wives without the distractions of home and job....children....citizenship responsibilities....all good things but not exactly "relaxing....rejuvenating" factors in your lives. You and your wife need to get away from it all together....that is if you love each other....like each other....enjoy companionship and fun together.

You're always so careful to fulfill all your responsibilities....so eager to be thought well of. So you may be doing what tens of thousands of other Americans are doing....holding yourself back because you're tied up in knots fulfilling what you "ought to be." You need a winter vacation together.

This sounds a little like a "Winter Haven Resort" Chamber of Commerce brochure doesn't it? Well....I have no connections anywhere but I am convinced that the dollars you spend with your wife for a few mid-winter days....or even a week-end....or only over night....will be one of the best investments you can make. It will be good for her too....a wife's routine is confining and dull....meals to prepare.... lunches to pack....beds to make....vacuuming to do....taxi-ing.... shopping....writing checks....and trying to be a good wife to a tired....tense....frustrated husband while at the same time trying to be a good mother to three children. Quite a role! If you've done it well....you deserve a winter vacation with your husband alone.

Have a restful time....who knows, maybe we'll see you there....I hope so. And we'll all do a better job in our various roles when we get back.

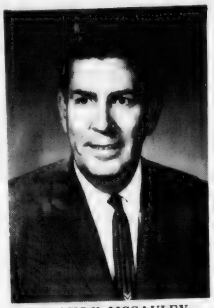
Shipbuilders Co-Operative Starts Second Half-Century



Shipbuilders Co-operative Bank, chartered on Jan. 16, 1920, tomorrow enters its second half-century as a Quincy financial institution.

Last night a 50th Anniversary dinner at the Quincy Neighborhood Club was attended by officers, directors and staff members with their wives or husbands.

During the evening Paul Revere bowls were presented to two retiring officers. Judge Kenneth L. Nash, second vice-president, associated with the bank for 32 years, and Richard J. Larkin, D.D.S., third vice-president, a 30-year associate, received the bowls from William J. Martin, Sr., first vice-president.

Judge Nash is Chief Justice of the Massachusetts District Courts and presiding justice of Quincy District Court. Dr. Larkin is a dentist of many years practice in Quincy. Mr. Martin is also chairman of the board of the South Shore National Bank.

The bank's history goes back to Dec. 9, 1919 when a handful of Fore River Shipyard men sought a banking charter. It's first treasurer's report on May 14, 1920 showed total assets of $8,730.70, with a balance on hand of $2,056.40.

FRANCIS X. MCCAULEY

Today there are an estimated 3,400 savings depositors, with 700 mortgages held by the bank. Its total assets are $7,325,492.53.

Originally the bank business was conducted in Fore River Shipyard itself, with Henry F. Lally as its first president. As the bank grew, offices were opened on Hancock St. on the floor above the present Burgin, Platner Insurance Company. Moving again, in 1947, headquarters were in the South Shore National Bank Building on Chestnut St.

In 1965 the present modern and spacious facilities were opened at the corner of Granite and Hancock Sts., Quincy Sq. Here the bank now receives deposits from many parts of the country, as well as the South Shore.

"During the past 50 years, thousands of residents from this area have purchased homes with the aid of Shipbuilders mortage loans," Francis X. McCauley, president, states.

"And as many thousands have taken advantage of home improvement loans, savings certificates, regular savings accounts, daily interest savings, Christmas club accounts, and term deposits."

Mr. McCauley became the bank's fifth president Jan. 22, 1968. He was first employed by the bank in June, 1958; elected assistant treasurer in August, 1960; and treasurer in November of that same year. In addition to Mr. Lally, his predecessors were Dr. William R. Hurley, Herbert A. Brecht and George F. O'Brien.

Mr. McCauley, a former Ward 1 Councillor, is married to the former Sandra MacKinnon. They live with their five children at 210 Manet Ave., Quincy.

Wig Tips FOR THE LADIES

By Sabina

WHICH WIG IF YOU'RE HESITANT?

Granted: wigs are the perfect answer for instant hairstyle. Granted: wigs are the answer for instant color changes without the bother of bleaching or rinses.

Granted: They allow dramatic change from short hair to long without waiting and long hair to short without cutting.

But...if you are reluctant about wearing a wig, I suggest your first selection should be of a color and style similar to your own hair. The reason is simple. You will look quite natural and, consequently, be more comfortable in it and, thus, less hesitant to wear it.

Soon you will find yourself experimenting with different styles, different colors and enjoying the freedom and convenience of instant change.

The next logical step will be to become more adventurous.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. I have been filing a 1040A for the past ten years. This year I received a new booklet containing many different forms instead of the usual card. What has happened to the 1040A?

A. The 1040A has been eliminated because many taxpayers, in choosing the short form, denied themselves tax advantages to which they were entitled. It did not provide space to claim such benefits as itemized deductions, exclusions for sick pay, retirement income credit and reduced tax rates for head of household. The 1040A and 1040 have been replaced by a new form 1040 which is accompanied by various schedules which can be used if needed. Nearly half of the 75 million taxpayers who file individual income tax returns will need to use only this one page Form 1040.

Q. Where may I obtain the necessary Federal tax forms?

A. If you do not receive the necessary forms in the mail, they may be obtained at any Internal Revenue Service office and also at most banks and some Post Offices.

Q. Where do I file my return?

A. The mailing addresses are furnished on the back of Form 1040. For taxpayers filing in Massachusetts, all returns, whether they involve refunds or taxes due, should be mailed to:

Internal Revenue Service Center
310 Lowell Street
Andover, Mass. 01812

Q. How will the surtax be computed for 1969?

A. If your regular tax is less than $735.00, refer to the surcharge tables on Page 38 in the instruction booklet. If your regular tax is $735.00 or more, multiply it by 10% to determine your surtax. Then add the surtax to your regular tax to determine the total combined tax. Therefore, if the tax due on your return was $700.00, your surtax would be $70.00 and your total tax due would be $770.00.

Q. I work as a construction laborer and was employed by many different firms in 1969. Each employer issued a W-2 and I was wondering if I should attach them all to my return or add them up and give you the totals?

A. You should attach Copy B of all your W-2's to your return although only the totals need be entered on the tax form. If you fail to include all W-2's Copies B, the processing of your return will be delayed.

Q. I have always itemized my deductions but am a bit confused with the new Form 1040. Which of the attached schedules should I use?

A. The attached Schedule A has been specifically designed to enable you to list your itemized deductions. The total of itemized deductions is then carried forward to Schedule T for the computation of your tax.

Q. Could you briefly explain the various schedules and forms attached to the new Form 1040?

A. The new package of forms contains the following schedules:
Form 1040 - U. S. Individual Income Tax Return
Schedule A - Itemized Deductions
Schedule B - Dividend and Interest Income
Schedule D - Sales or Exchanges of Property
Schedule E - Supplemental and Miscellaneous Income [Rental Income]
Schedule R - Retirement Income Credit
Schedule T - Tax Computation
These are the basic schedules which will be used by the majority of taxpayers.

Q. My son is in Vietnam. He will be discharged late in April 1970. Will he be penalized for filing his income tax return after April 15, 1970 and is there any special exclusion from taxes because he was in Vietnam?

A. The answer to your first question is that the due date of returns for servicemen in a combat zone is automatically extended to 180 days after they leave Vietnam. Therefore, there will be no penalty for late filing. To answer your second question, the following applies. For enlisted men, warrant officers and commissioned warrant officers, compensation is excludable from gross income if it is for a month, any part of which was served in Vietnam or its adjacent waters or for that period of time that a serviceman is hospitalized at any place as a result of wounds, disease or injury incurred in Vietnam or its adjacent waters. The same exclusion applies for commissioned officers except that only the first $500.00 of monthly compensation is excludable.

What Christmas Means To Me

I like Christmas because you can go Christmas shopping.
The cold nose and toes.
The hot cocoa.

You can go coasting and make snowmen,
The cold wind in your face,
The shivering of the cold snow.

The feeling of the cold and hot air gets you mixed up.
The throwing of the snow balls, Oh Boy!
The fighting in the snow is cold.

Now is the time that icicales come down from above.
Now is the time that branches are frozen.
The time has come to go skating on the ice.
Now is the time that snow falls down from above.

Christmas Feelings

On Christmas Eve we go to sleep,
To awake the next hour,
So curious little children are!
To awake before the last star.

I go to sleep to dream of presents,
Only to be interrupted by the moon like a crescent.

Another noise now comes to ear,
Sleighbells ringing, so merry and clear!

Jesus was born this day we know,
Oh! How we hope for snow!

Now the morning is drawing near,
And the sun is shining, so bright and clear!

That Terrible Night

One Halloween night I was out with a group of people, and we walked all around the streets. I got lost. I heard something yelling and I got so scared that I jumped and bumped right into a tree. Then I saw a big black bat flying around. Finally it flew away. Then I felt something like fur. It felt like a warewolf I ran, I ran and ran! Presidents On Win Trail

Quincy Seeks Second Against Medford

Quincy's basketball team is finally on the win trail and will seek its second straight Greater Boston League win Friday night against league-leading Medford at the Quincy gym. The Presidents then must go into the lion's den at Somerville Tuesday night.

After dropping five games in a row, none by more than seven points, Marty Finnegan's team finally pulled one out against Malden, 58-51, in an exciting overtime game Tuesday night at the Quincy gym.

"Boy, we needed this one," Finnegan said. "This win should give the boys a tremendous boost and it couldn't have come at a better time with two of the league's toughest clubs, Medford and Somerville, coming up. It should be a real morale booster."

Malden led, 14-11, after a period and increased its margin to 27-21 at the half. Midway in the third period with Malden still leading, 35-30, Finnegan shifted from a zone defense to a man-to-man and this was one of the keys to the victory. Quincy roared back to take a 36-35 lead but trailed, 38-36 going into the final regulation period.

The lead changed hands several times in this period and things looked bad when 6-5 George Davey fouled out with 3:54 remaining. Malden hit on three straight foul shots to take a 47-44 lead.

In the extra session Richie DiCristofaro hit on two from the floor, Bob Pike had a basket and two foul shots and Furfari added a pair of free throws as the Presidents outscored the Golden Tornado, 10-3.

Furfari scored 19 points, Pike had 17 points and 16 rebounds, Davey 10 points and 11 rebounds, and Billy Maver and Mike Donahue also excelled on the boards.

Quincy was 25 for 58 from the floor and eight from 16 from the foul line, while Malden was 15 for 53 from the floor and 21 for 35 from the foul line.

"It is hard to pick out any one boy, as everyone did a fine job," Finnegan said. "But DiCristofaro was the difference for us, especially in overtime. I use him as a sixth man because when I put him in, I don't weaken the club at all.

"He proved his worth tonight and his constant hustle and those two big baskets in overtime were the keys. Pike was outstanding and so were Furfari and Donahue. It was a real fine effort all the way."

Fran Conroy's Quincy junior varsity romped, 57-39, to make its record 4-2, with Bobby Malvesti scoring 14 points, Jimmy Walker shining on the boards and every player getting a chance.

Last week Quincy played what Finnegan termed "our best overall game of the season," but poor foul shooting and continued turnovers cost it a 70-63 decision at Everett.

In losing their fifth in a row [second in the league], the Presidents out-rebounded the Mustangs, 55-34 and had three players in double figures but missed 17 foul shots [21 for 38] and threw the ball away too many times.

"We missed 16 foul shots in our previous loss to B. C. High and had about 20 turnovers, and we have to work on these two weaknesses," Finnegan said. "We shouldn't be missing 16 and 17 foul shots a game and turning the ball over to the other teams so many times."

Quincy jumped away to 17-13 lead but Everett tied it at 36-36 at the half. The teams remained tied, 52-52, going into the final period. In the finale Everett sank 10 foul shots to five for Quincy and this made the big difference.

Marty said he was again pleased with the play in the forecourt but felt the backcourt needs a little picking up. He lauded the performance of Mike Donahue, playing in his first game of the season after being sidelined with back and ankle injuries. Mike had nine points and seven rebounds.

George Davey scored 16 points, Bob pike 14 and Billy Maver 11. Maver also had 15 rebounds, Davey 12 and Pike 11.

Quincy's hockey team faces its biggest test of the year Friday night when it faces Greater Boston League leader Everett at 8:30 at Boston Arena.

North Quincy, still looking for its first win, meets Chelsea at 9:15. Everett walloped Quincy, 7-2 on opening night.

Monday at Ridge Arena Quincy will play Chelsea at 5:30 and North will meet Everett at 6:30.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team rolled over North, 8-0, Monday at Ridge to make its record 5-2 and keep it in the running for the league crown and a tourney invite. Everett and Malden rule the roost with 6-1 marks.

Chuck Peterson had his first hat trick [three goals] for the Presidents, with Harry Bertoni and Wayne Milford scoring two each and Chuck Condos the other.

"The boys played fine team hockey and their unselfish attitude was shown when Milford, bearing down on the North goalie refused to shoot when he was all alone," Sylvia said. "Instead, he went into the corner and passed out to Bertoni. Although the pass went astray, it showed the fine sportsmanship and unselfish attitude of our boys."

Bob used his junior varsity lines for much of the third period. He praised Bob Laing's hustling but luckless young Raiders for their constant hustle and clean play.

Last week Quincy's four-game league winning streak was snapped by Medford, 4-2, while North suffered its sixth straight loss, being shellacked by Malden, 11-0.

Despite the Presidents' second loss, first in the league since opening night, Sylvia was delighted with his club's showing.

"We didn't lose out there, we just ran out of time," Bob said. "That was a truly great game. No one likes to lose but we went down in style. We were still coming back at the very end and that third period was the best period of hockey I've seen in years. We wanted a goal in one of our first three lines and I told them if they got one, they'd get more."

Quincy fell behind, 3-0, but bounced back with two goals in the final period as Russ Barry, a defenseman, scored at 2:14 on a fine pass from Harry Bertoni, and four minutes later Phil Rugg, playing wing on a power play, banged home his own rebound and after a rush by him and Chuck Condos.

"Medford played a fine game against us, especially [Jack] Lee in goal," Sylvia added. "Naturally, I'm disappointed in the loss but we failed to finish off on plenty of chances and it cost us the game.

"But the comeback pleased me and because of it, the boys still believe in themselves. They know that with the type of hockey they played in this game, they're going to win games. This league is wide open and we'll be back for sure."

Quincy went all out to score the equalizer in the final period but Medford clinched the win when Ed Hanlon scored his third goal into an open net as goalie Art Boyle went off for an extra skater.

"I was extremely pleased with the performances of Kevin Grogan and Russ Barry on defense," the Quincy coach said. "They have played outstanding hockey all season and both went about 32 minutes and didn't let up for a second. Art Boyle, only a sophomore, gave us some fine goal tending in the last period."

Laing had little to smile about as his North team skated well but was overwhelmed by Malden, which had won the Met League title the past two years.

The young Raiders, tiring visibly, gave up five goals in the final period to the high-powered Golden Tornado.

Earlier in the week Quincy tied Boston College High, 2-2, in a non-league game at Weymouth Skating Club as Boyle, following a fine performance in a 4-0 win for the junior varsity team over Everett, made his first varsity start and did a fine job as he shared the duties with Mark Erickson.

Quincy outplayed the Eaglets all the way but Jim Covelluzzi was brilliant in the B. C. goal as he made 30 saves, including 18, many of the sensational variety, in the opening period. Quincy took 55 shots while B. C. took only 13.

Bertoni scored after only 23 seconds of play on a pass from Chuck Peterson but B. C. took a 2-1 lead before Bertoni scored his second goal with six minutes left, Peterson again assisting.

"We weren't up mentally for this game so we didn't convert despite the number of shots we had," Sylvia said. "However, this was an excellent warmup for the Medford game.

"I want to thank Ed Dalton of the Skating Club for giving us this prime ice time as he has so many times before. It is great to be able to get in a good, solid game instead of having to practice somewhere else much later at night.

Hoping For Pick-Up

North After No. 4 At Everett Friday

North Quincy's basketball team, probably suffering a letdown after its tough game with Medford, barely squeezed by Chelsea, the perennial Greater Boston League doormat, 62-59, Tuesday night at Chelsea.

Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock North will be home to Brookline in a non-league game. The Raiders pulled out a 59-57 decision at Brookline in the opening game of the season.

"Chelsea really played a fine ball game," Nolan said. "Every team seems to have one team it points for and they always point for us. They gave us plenty of trouble but I'm pleased with the way our boys stayed in there and didn't quit. Early fouls hurt us tremendously."

North had a 19-11 first period lead and still had an eight-point bulge, 35-27, at halftime. But the Red Devils sliced the margin to 51-46 in the third quarter and cut it to three in the finale.

Jim Small led the scorers with 15 points and, coming off a bad ankle, played an excellent game according to Nolan, who also hailed the performances of Dan McKay [10 points] and Ken Baker. "We had plenty of chance to pull away in the final period but we just couldn't put the ball in the basket," the North coach explained.

North has a 3-1 league mark and 4-2 overall record and is tied with Medford for second place in the league, following Medford's first loss Tuesday to unbeaten Somerville.

Joe Amorosino's North junior varsity romped to its fourth win in five games, 45-18, with Steve Sullivan and Bob Flaherty scoring 10 points apiece.

Every time Nolan passes by Boston Garden he must wince.

Three times he has taken his North teams into the Garden for the Tech Tourney and each time the Raiders were eliminated in the first round.

Last week North met Medford at the Garden in a preliminary to the Celtics-Baltimore game and, after leading by a 41-37 score after three periods, bowed, 58-53, for its first league defeat. The loss gave the Raiders a 2-1 league record and overall 3-2 mark.

"Our defense was great but we missed far too many shots," Nolan said sadly. "If we had scored when we had the chances, we could have broken the game open."

North led throughout the game until midway in the final period. From that time the lead changed hands several times before Medford pulled it out in the final seconds.

The big difference in that last quarter was 6-6 Reggie Graham, who scored 11 of his 20 points, blocked several shots, intimidated the North shooters and dominated the boards.

North, despite a big height deficit, rebounded well for the first three periods and, parlaying good defense with eagle-eyed shooting, built up a 14-point lead midway in the third period. Nolan used a full-court press throughout the game and it bothered Medford until the third period.

The Raiders could have been tiring from their aggressive defensive tactics and began to foul. This cost the Raiders the game as Medford hit on 12 foul shots in the period to only three for North.

Medford tied it at 41-41 in the final period on four successive foul shots but Brian Donahue, a fine ball handler who had sparkled in the previous game against Revere, kept North in the game with two baskets and a foul shot but the Mustangs took advantage of several North turnovers, began to penetrate inside to Graham and dominated the boards.

After Donahue tied the game at 49-49 with a foul shot, Medford scored three straight hoops to clinch the win.

"We must have missed four layups in the last minute and a half and just couldn't put it in," lamented Nolan. "Our poor shooting both from the floor and foul line in the late going killed us.

Quincy, North Trackmen In Return To Action Saturday

The Quincy and North Quincy track teams return to Met League action Saturday at Harvard's cage as the Presidents seek their first win against Somerville and the Raiders, hoping to snap a three-meet losing streak, go after win number three against Milton.

The meets get underway at noon.

The Met League and others took a day off last week as most teams had entries in the annual BAA meet at Boston Garden.

The only local to score was Paul Affsa of North, who took fourth place in the 600.

Despite five straight losses, Quincy has been receiving some fine individual efforts as Bob Ciano remains unbeaten in the 300, Pete Laing has lost only once in the two-mile and Larry Finneran, John Dempsey, Jim Buccianeri and Pete Daley have scored well.

North has received some outstanding efforts from Affsa, while Paul Salamaa, Chris Kennedy, Richie Yee, Pete Davis, John Panarelli and Bill McCall also have been scoring well.

Girls Clash Friday In New Quincy-North Hoop Rivalry

The intense Quincy-North Quincy athletic rivalry will present a 'first' Friday afternoon at the North gym when the girls' basketball teams of the two schools meet for the first time in history. Game time is 3 o'clock.

North has its first girls' interscholastic team this year with Marjie Bollen, who attended Quincy High, the coach. She has five games lined up with hopes of adding more.

A year ago Quincy had its first girls' interscholastic team which, under coach Mary Lou Thimas, now at Marshfield, had a 3-2 record.

Gail Palmer has taken over as coach this season.

"I am having trouble getting games and so far Quincy and Braintree are the only public schools we are playing," Miss Bollen said.

1969 'The Most Successful' For Dist. Atty. Burke

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. George G. Burke reports the year 1969 was "the most successful" his office has had in prosecution, drugs education and general progress.

The Quincy resident and county's chief law enforcement official detailed his office's activities in the following report:

"This past year was the most successful year that we have had in the District Attorney's Office. A total of eight murder trials were held in the Norfolk Superior Court and all eight resulted in incarcerations or confinements.

"In addition, many serious felony cases were tried or pleaded with guilty findings in over 95% of the cases. A number of serious bookie cases were tried with nearly 100% of them resulting in guilty findings.

"There were also over 1300 active felony cases disposed of with only 908 new indictments. Consequently, the backlog of felony cases was reduced by approximately 400 cases. In misdemeanor cases, this office continues to try misdemeanor cases practically on a current basis and anyone who desires a speedy trial on a misdemeanor case can have one during any of the regular misdemeanor sessions.

"The student legal internship program that has been working in conjunction with Boston College Law School, Boston University Law School and Suffolk Law School has continued to be most successful and a great many aspiring lawyers have received excellent training to become trial lawyers under this program.

"The new default and capias section of the District Attorney's Office has been operating on a very efficient basis. As a result, the number of defaults has been substantially reduced and of those people that have defaulted in court nearly all of them have been picked up on a capias and arrested for failure to appear in court.

"In all cases where defaults have been lodged in civil suit to recover the bail money has been instituted against every defendant and the surety on the bond and the money received from the bonding companies has been placed in the treasury of Norfolk County.

"The durg education and investigation unit has met with tremendous success. The trained experts in this office are being deluged with requests to speak to various groups and also with requests for information and help for drug users and addicts. The telephones in the District Attorney's Office are continuously ringing with requests for help from various unfortunate individuals that are seeking information.

"For the third year in a row during this administration more cases have been disposed of than have been entered in Norfolk County Superior Court and consequently for a third year there has been a reduction in the backlog of cases pending. This has been the result of dedicated work by my administrative staff, by the assistant district attorneys in this office and by the State Police on my investigative staff.

"In closing out this report I would also like to thank all of the various departments that have continuously worked in close cooperation with this office and have contributed to the success of the year 1969."

O'Connell Praises Nixon For Support Of Arts,

William A. O'Connell, executive vice-president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, has written a letter of commendation to President Nixon for his support of the arts and humanities.

"Your special message to the United States Congress," wrote O'Connell, "requesting $40 million in new funds for the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities in fiscal 1971 is an extremely important piece of legislation.

"There is an urgent need for providing additional financial support for the arts and humanities in the United States. Community art programs play an important part in the development of our youth, as well as improving the overall quality of living.

"The Quincy-South Shore area has several art institutions, such as symphony orchestras, choral societies, visual arts associations, some groups in the performing arts, and major school art programs.

"We commend your efforts and hope that Congress will follow your recommendations."

The "Little Professor" learned something about welding this week

You know his type. The one that has all the answers on everything from sports to the price of peanuts. He thought he knew every trick in the trade of welding. Then, he saw what we're doing at Quincy.

As he puts it: "When I came into the trade, we had to learn welding the hard way . . . grubbing a little know-how here and there from the pro's. Today, Quincy has a school that graduates or qualifies more than 40 welders a week in low hydrogen and mild steel procedures. Wow!"

The "Little Professor" isn't the only one that's learned something new at Quincy. Here, no matter what your trade, you can really learn it to its peak. Why? Because you won't be confined to run-of-the-mill, assembly-line work. Each day brings new problems to solve. And, you'll find a boss who's willing to let you tackle them personally. If your trade means something to you, it can mean a lot more at Quincy.

We have immediate openings for:

Marine Electricians
Pipefitters
Shipfitters
Painters
Welders and Pipe Welders
Sheet Metal Workers
Sandblasters
Watch Firemen
Chippers
Carpenters

Environmental Control Sought

Action Vowed On Floods, Air, Water Pollution

The newly created City Council Committee on Envionmental Control will hold its first meeting within 10 days and its chairman, Councillor Clifford H. Marshall, promises action, not studies, on the problems of air and water pollution.

"We have 26 miles of waterfront in Quincy," he told the Quincy Sun last night. "We have 28 or 30 assistant harbormasters. And we have a constantly growing number of complaints of undesirable things, just plain filth, in the water.

"One of the first things we are going to do is see if we can redraw the city ordinances governing assistant harbormasters giving them constable powers to prosecute people who dump wastes from their boats into our waters.

"We are going to knock off the constant study, study, study and provide some action on the problem."

"The people are getting the feeling that they are being snowed. They view studies as something the pols do to keep them off their backs.

"I intend to go to the various state agencies and ask them what they are doing and what they can do for us to help us to control our environment. I intend to go to Congressman Burke to see what federal money is available now to fight pollution.

"If the federal and state governments are as sincere as they appear to be in their plans to fight pollution then when the time comes we will be in good shape to achieve this goal. We will be the leader in the state on it."

"We are going to see if we can work more closely with other communities around us in regard to water pollution, air pollution and flood control.

"Braintree Dam in Braintree, for instance, has a lot to do with flooding in South Quincy. Cunningham Park in Milton contributes to the drainage problems in West Quincy.

"We know now that the Southeast Expressway was built without proper drainage lines. Should the state be responsible for it? Perhaps we should get the state to float a bond issue, with matching funds from the towns, to correct the problem."

Other members of the committee appointed by Council President Arthur H. Tobin are: Edward S. Graham, vice chairman, Walter J. Hannon, George B. McDonald, John J. Quinn and J. Vincent Smyth. Marshall and Hannon are also state representatives and McDonald is a Norfolk County commissioner.

Mayor Slashes $1 Million From City Budget Requests

Mayor James R. McIntyre has already slashed nearly $1 million from the proposed 1970 municipal budget and expects to make more heavy cuts this weekend.

Exactly $997,475.27 was trimmed in an 18-hour marathon budget session last weekend from expenditure requests of one-third of the city's municipal departments.

This represents an estimated $5 saving on the 1970 tax rate.

"We are going to cut as much as we can before submitting the budget to the City Council Feb. 16," McIntyre declared. "Non-essentials will have to go–we just cannot afford them."

Despite wielding a sharp economy axe, McIntyre gloomily predicted:

"This year's budget will be a record high one and we are in for a substantial tax increase."

The 1969 budget was a record one-$34,594,682–despite the fact McIntyre slashed $2.6 million from original requests and the City Council trimmed another $286,594.

The 1969 tax rate is $116.40–up $17.50 over that of 1968.

"They are difficult to estimate at this time," he said. "There are unknown factors right now including the amount of state aid we will receive and the final figure on the city's assessed valuation.

"As for the total budget, we still have –approximately two-thirds of department head requests to look over."

Major cuts so far have been from the budgets of the fire, police, cemetery and library departments. "Mainly because," notes the Mayor, "that they are large budgets."

Other department budgets already pruned include those of the assessors, treasurer, plumbing, gas and building inspectors, city clerk, city council, election department, civil defense, engineering and planning.

This weekend, the Mayor, executive secretary James J. Ricciuti and Auditor Alexander Smith, will have a close look at the city hospital, park and recreation and public works departments in addition to several smaller departments.

"We expect to make some substantial cuts from these budgets," McIntyre said. "With escalating municipal costs we have got to cut non-essential items."

Quincy Police May Soon Patrol In Jeep Vehicles

Quincy police may be patrolling in jeep type vehicles in the near future.

Mayor James R. McIntyre said last night he will ask City Council approval to trade in six present scooters toward the purchase of 10 jeep-type vehicles.

"The jeeps are more durable, can be operated both day and night and are more practicable in winter weather," the Mayor said. "Scooters are not designed for heavy duty work."

He said the jeeps would give the Quincy police department a "new sophisticated patrol system and double the level of patrol without increasing manpower."

Present scooter men and footmen would be assigned to the jeep vehicles.

"This would bring the police footman into a more mobile status without losing contact with people on his beat," the Mayor said.

McIntyre also said he is trying to interest MIT in designing a new type police patrol vehicle "with the maneuverability of a scooter and the durability and speed of a jeep."

The Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce reports latest available figures show that average family income in Quincy increased $3,000 in the five-year period between 1963 and 1968. In 1963, it was $8,000.

Average income per family in Weymouth is the same as that in Quincy and had the same $3,000 increase between 1963 and 1968.

Braintree, however, has a higher average income per family–$12,000, according to Chamber figures.

More Parking Needed

Retail Business 'UP' In Downtown Quincy For 1969

Retail business in downtown Quincy was generally better in 1969 than it was in the preceding year and most stores are projecting a good year ahead in 1970.

- 24 of 29 store owners interviewed reported an average 5 to 10 percent increase in sales volume over 1968.
- 26 of 29 store owners reported their Christmas sales up over those of the previous year.

The main reasons for the increase in sales were given as:

- Inflation. Just about everything went up in price in 1969 compared to 1968.
- Additional parking facilities. The temporary parking areas at Grossmans and the MBTA provided about 400 extra spaces.
- Better merchandising.
- Better advertising and promotional efforts.

But despite the bright picture, Bernard C. Moore, executive secretary of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce sees dark clouds approaching in the future unless parking and traffic problems are tackled.

Additional permanent off-street parking is a "must", he says.

"We are faced with the problem of losing a total 740 parking spaces in the Quincy Center area. "We must find alternatives for permanent parking spaces for both customers and employees in order to maintain healthy downtown business conditions.

"And, this would only even the parking picture of 1969. We still need considerably more new parking spaces if Quincy stores

DIMES ON PARADE
By
Margaret DeAngelo

A little dime rolled down the hill-
It stopped, do you know where?
By the bedside of a little boy,
Who was too ill to care.

The little dime looked up at him
And tried to make him smile,
He wanted so to help this lad-
And tried for a long, long while.

But the little dime was so alone,
He felt so meek and small.
He knew he needed lots of help
To do anything at all.

With a helpless sigh, the little dime
Sat right down and cried-
How could he help this tiny child So ill by his side?

All at once he heard it-
Like little feet on Parade,
The Little dime looked up to see
Who was coming to his aid.

Down the street came marching
Thousands of silver dimes-
With Arms out-stretched, they got there
Just in the 'nick of time.

They joined hands 'round the bedside-
An with all the strength hey had-
Worked together as a team,
And saved this little lad.

Sunbeams

He hasn't even hinted that he is interested, but Mayor-Sen. James R. McIntyre has support sprouting on Beacon Hill for the senate presidency.

President Maurice Donahue, one of his closest friends, has said he will bow out of the Senate this year. No doubt he'll run for Governor and McIntyre will be one of his staunch supporters.

Whether he's really interested in the senate presidency, no one but he himself really knows.

But it would be quite an honor for him and for Quincy to take over Donahue's gavel.

THE QUINCY Fire Department may establish a collective bargaining unit. John R. Menz, Jr., president of Quincy Firefighters Local 792, disclosed at the annual dinner he plans to put the question on a membership ballot sometime in the spring.

"It's our best weapon to get improvements into the contract instead of into an ordinance," he declared.

NICE-GESTURE-DEPT: Quincy Firefighters, incidentally, turned over a $654 check to the Muscular Dystrophy organization representing proceeds from cannisters distributed by them throughout the city.

Campaign coordinators for the department were Joseph Malvesti, Richard Murphy, William Lowry, Bruno Carloni, Nick Malvesti, Frank Moriarty and Chief Edward F. Barry.

FORMER Lt. Gov. Francis X. Bellotti will have a "new look" when he kicks off his campaign for governor this year. No more crew cut. Has let his hair grow in. Quite distinguished looking.

MILESTONE: Mr. and Mrs. Fortunato Roffo of 137 Liberty St. recently observed their 50th wedding anniversary. And, among all the other best wishes, they received a unique memento.

Rep. Clifford H. Marshall had a resolution passed by the House of Representatives congratulating them. A handsome copy, signed by House Speaker David Bartley was obtained by Marshall and presented to Mr. and Mrs. Roffo.

It says, in part: "The entire membership [House] extends its very best wishes on this memorable occasion and expresses the hope for continued good fortune."

Petrocelli said, and sounded very sincere, that it was the best such time he had ever attended.

But Rico is quite a guy as the following observation from Joe Gildea, program chairman, will attest:

"Rico contributed a first in the 19-year history of the awards dinner when over 50 youngsters jammed the doorway seeking his autograph. This never happened before and we have had quite a few top names honored.

"Petrocelli graciously acceded to their requests.

"One boy who got there a few minutes after Rico had signed the last autograph sat on the front steps until he was discovered shivering in the cold at 9:30 [p.m.].

"Needless to state, we ushered him in to meet Petrocelli and he went home a very happy kid."

OOPS: Last week we had Bob Dee, general manager of the Quincy Giants, quitting cigarets. Only his name appeared as "Bee". Sorry, Bob. But as general manager, you've been as busy as a bee.

SMILE DEPT: Donnamae D'Angelo is eight and the daughter of Mae D'Angelo, the traffic supervisor at the Wollaston School, Newport Ave. and Beale St. intersection.

The other day Donnamae was helping her mother set the table for dinner and was asked to get the candles.

"Aw," she replied, not very enthused.

"What's the matter, don't you like to eat by candlelight?" her mother asked.

"No," said Donnamae. "It means we're going to have second hand food." [Left overs]

Need For More Parking Cited

are to continue to meet the demands made upon them by the population and business growth of the Quincy-South Shore area."

Since November, 1967, Moore noted, downtown stores enjoyed the benefit of an additional 460 spaces provided temporarily off Granite St. by the MBTA during construction of the rapid transit extension line.

"This temporary space will be lost in the next few months as construction of the MBTA line nears completion," he said.

Moore also pointed out that between 50 and 60 spaces have already been lost in the Lt. Walter Della Chiesa parking area due to the widening of Granite St. and Upland Rd.

Another 20 to 30 spaces in the Ross parking area will vanish permanently because of MBTA construction and the new Granite St. over-pass, he added.

"On top of all this," Moore continued, "the new Quincy District Courthouse at Chestnut St. and McGrath Highway will displace 200 present all-day parking spaces."

Those stores that reported better Christmas sales gave as the reasons the increased holiday shopping volume in November and the extra Saturday and night hours that many stores remained open.

Some individual stores reported business increases as high as 10 to 30 per cent due to remodelling, modernization or expansion programs.

For the year ahead, the downtown merchants listed several factors that possibly will affect the generally promising retail picture for 1970. They included:

● The national economy. The Nixon administration appears to be embarking on an anti-inflationary program. The cutbacks in government spending, such as the closing of the NASA facility in Cambridge, is bound to affect the economy of eastern Massachusetts and the South Shore.

● The coming of the MBTA. The opening date of the MBTA's South Shore line is still up in the air. When it does open will parking facilities be adequate for both commuters and shoppers? And will it help Quincy retailers by bringing people out from Boston or hurt them by making it easier for shoppers to go to Boston?

● Traffic and parking in Quincy Center. These longtime problems can be expected to be aggravated in 1970 unless immediate action is taken to obtain more parking facilities. Several areas will be lost to parking in the next few months, including the Granite St. MBTA area, the former City Hall annex lot, and the 200 spaces off Chestnut St. that will be occupied by the District Court.

● Industrial and commercial development on the South Shore. The 2,000 more workers being sought by General Dynamics and the possibilities of new industries moving into Braintree, Randolph and other nearby towns will mean more people with more money to spend.

"The really big prospects in new development," said Bernard C. Moore, executive secretary, Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, "is still a couple of years away." Projects such as the Jordan Marsh development, Hazeltines in South Quincy, State Street South in North Quincy, the Ledgewood Park development and the Quarry Street apartment project won't show in the economic picture until 1971."

Trends in retailing that are expected to brighten the economic picture in downtown Quincy include longer night hours and more Saturday night openings of stores. Some 15 or 20 are now open five nights a week as a convenience to customers.

The average per capita and per family incomes also are increasing, the Chamber noted, meaning that more people will soon have more money to spend.

League Of Women Voters Back Black's Creek Acquisition

The Quincy League of Women Voters strongly supports the Quincy Conservation Commission recommendation that the entire Black's Creek area be acquired by the city for conservation of open space and recreation, according to a consensus vote of its membership.

The vote followed a League study of open space and land use in Quincy, concentrating on the Black's Creek area.

"We have sacrificed most of our marshland in Quincy to industrial development," Mrs. David Coletti, president, declared.

"It is important that we do not sacrifice this area which is in the geographical center of our city and can be an area of pride and natural beauty for all to enjoy."

While the League feels that the cost of land acquisition should not be a deciding factor, it should be properly assessed. Quincy is now entitled to a HUD grant and a state grant which should reduce the cost of acquiring the land by 50 to 75 per cent.

The League urges that the city act to qualify for HUD funds before its latest extension expires in April. Failure to act will mean a loss of over $57,000 in state and federal funds, it was noted.

The League urges also that the ultimate cost to the taxpayer be considered. That is, the cost to the taxpayer of acquiring the Fenno St. land versus real estate development of the site.

The League said a lower tax rate is possible through savings in the cost of municipal services [school cost per pupil, sewers, utilities, flood damages, etc.] if the land is preserved as open space. Also through increase in property value of land surrounding the open space, tax revenue will be increased, it was argued.

In Minneapolis, increase in property values credited to parks is several times the cost of the entire park system, League statistics show.

In Lexington, a planning firm found that if $1 million were paid for about 2,000 acres of undeveloped land, it would gain a net savings over the cost of providing municipal services for the same area of $250,000 annually.

"The portion of land available for building in the Black's Creek area, if developed, would ultimately cost the taxpayer more money, would spoil a natural beauty spot in our city, and would undoubtedly contribute to further encroachment on and further pollution of one of the few valuable marshes remaining in our city," Mrs. Coletti said.

Special Collection For Biafran Relief Sunday At First Parish Church

A special appeal for emergency funds for the Unitarian Biafran Relief and Reconstruction Project will be made on Sunday at the 10:45 a.m. worship at United First Parish Church, Quincy, by Dr. Bradford E. Gale, minister.

The Quincy church is joining all other churches of the United States and Canada in this drive.

The Unitarian Universalists have been in Biafra since 1958 and have built there three well-baby clinics, a modern 75-bed hospital, a new school, a post office and an unpolluted public water system.

Now that the war is over, funds are desperately needed to help wipe out the effects of human degeneration which has taken place there during the past year, Dr. Gale stated.

All of the special collection taken at Sunday's service will be sent to Biafran Relief. Others wishing to contribute may mail their contributions to the Church Office at 1306 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mayor Asks Traffic Supervisor For St. Ann's School Crossing

Mayor James R. McIntyre at the Feb. 2 City Council meeting will ask for funds to assign a permanent woman traffic supervisor to St. Ann's School.

The supervisor would be stationed at the Newport Avenue pedestrian tunnel. The Mayor said there have been many complaints from parents because the crossing is often unprotected since police officers assigned there sometimes are sent elsewhere on emergency calls.

The Mayor said he believes for the safety of the youngsters at all times, a permanent supervisor should be on duty at the crossing.

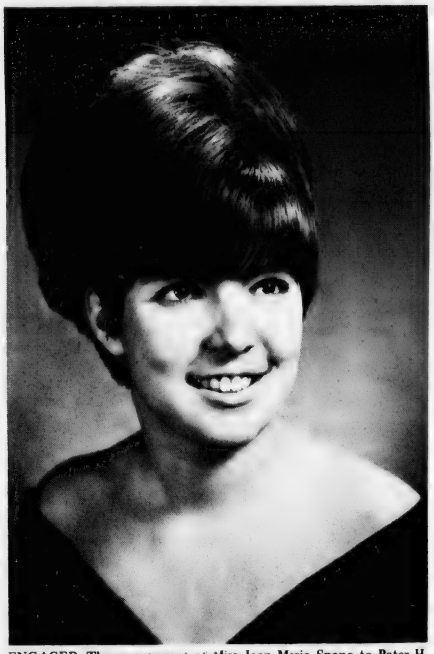
HN Community Council Names Bus Problems Committee

A five-member committee to look into busing problems has been set up by the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Stating that both the Quincy School Committee and the Quincy City Council had said they could "do nothin" about complaints on MBTA service for students, John B. Powers, president, named a committee to study transportation problems for both students and adults.

Mrs. Dorothy Laing, Mrs. Mary Forrester, Frederick Kussman and Howard Back will serve with Mr. Powers on the committee.

The group plans to attend the Feb. 9 meeting of the Parents Advisory Committee at Broad Meadows Junior High School when Manuel Repoza of the MBTA will discuss the situation.



Harrington GOP Club President

James F. Harrington has been elected first president of the newly organized Quincy Young Republican Club.

Other charter officers elected were Michael Collins, vice-president; Gerard Farly, treasurer and Harry Resell, secretary.

The constitution and bylaws of the new organization were unanimously adopted.

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

BRIDES ATTENDANTS DUTIES

Oddly enough many bridesmaids think their only duty is to appear at the wedding looking their best.

The most important thing a bridesmaid can do is to try her utmost to make the wedding day the happiest she can for the bride. She begins from the moment she is asked by showing her appreciation and enthusiasm.

She helps the bride in every way she can. One of the major ways she can help the bride is by being agreeable when selecting gowns. As I have written before, too many brides' days have been ruined by the selfishness and jealousy of one or two girls.

When they should be going along with the majority they are thinking only of themselves. I can hear many a bride and her mother saying "AMEN" to this.

It is up to the attendants to entertain the bride at showers and luncheons.

She should be at the bride's home, on the wedding day at the time designated by the bride. This usually means one hour before the ceremony unless the bride wants all the attendants to dress at her home. If this is the case than an hour and a half is the minimum time to arrive. Of course you must arrange your own transportation to the house.

The honor attendant assists with the bride's bouquet, veil, and train during the ceremony, signs the marriage certificate, and helps her change from her wedding gown. All attendants, including the men, should be with-in easy calling distance of the bride, groom and their parents to assist them in any way possible.

CLEANING YOUR HUMAN HAIR WIG

Keeping your wig or hairpiece looking lively and lovely takes a little know-how, especially in the area of cleaning. Hairpieces of human hair must never be shampooed. They should always be dry-cleaned. Water will loosen the hair from the foundation of handmade wigs or hairpieces, causing gradual "fallout". Even the hairs of machine-made pieces will loosen in water.

How often your wig needs cleaning depends upon the care you give it, how often you wear it, and the atmosphere. High humidity makes hair prone to pick up floating grime and soot. Air pollution is hard on human hair regardless of whether it is growing from or sitting on your head.

Normally, a wig should be cleaned at least once a month or after a dozen or so wearings, if worn constantly. Frankly, it is most advisable to leave the cleaning to a specialist who can clean, trim and set it properly.

'Well Done. . .Father Ed'

FAREWELL--Fire Department Honor Guard gives solemn farewell salute as casket of Rev. Edward S. Sullivan, is borne from Star of The Sea Church, Squantum, following concelebrated Mass for the famed "Circus Priest". Fr. Sullivan was also Catholic Fire Department chaplain. [Quincy Sun Photo By Robert Leo Eng]

The late Rev. Edward S. Sullivan, famed "Circus Priest" and pastor of Star of the Sea Church, Squantum, last week received a reverent "Well Done" for an "unusual life--an unusual apostolate".

The eulogy was by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Richard J. Hawko, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, and Fr. Sullivan's predecessor at Star of the Sea.

Msgr. Hawko participated last Friday in a concelebrated Mass with Most Rev. Daniel A. Cronin, auxiliary bishop of Boston and five other priests.

The Mass was attended by approximately 1,000 persons, including clergy of all denominations, parishioners, city officials and long-time friends of Fr. Sullivan's.

Fr. Sullivan died suddenly Jan. 11 in Venice, Fla., while making his annual visit to the winter headquarters of Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey circus. He was 71.

The text of Msgr. Hawko's eulogy follows:

Our text, from the Prophet Isaias, seem to apply this morning as, at the lintel of its Silver Jubilee the pall of sorrow and mourning hangs heavy before the Star of the Sea Parish, widowed for its first time by the sudden death of its shepherd, Father Sullivan.

Coffined before us lie his motionless mortal remains still facing his people--but still. The plaintive tones of the Church's liturgy sound in this holy house as we gather in our valedictory of respect and the Church pronounces its final blessing over the esteemed Father Sullivan.

It is oft said that only God can properly evaluate a priest! This is certainly true of Father Sullivan, for his was an unusual life--an unusual apostolate. Almost 72 years ago this native of Charlestown was Christened and advanced in the spirit of prayer which was so outstanding in the life of the Patron of his native Parish St. Francis de Sales in Charlestown.

His years in the parish grammar school prepared him for entrance to Boston College High School, and later to Boston College and Saint John Seminary in Brighton, where he was trained in discipline, austerity and learning for six years. In May 1924, prostrate before the altar of Holy Cross Cathedral he was ordained a priest, another Christ.

His assignments at Abington, Bethany at Framingham, Newburyport, Chelmsford, Cambridge and Roxbury saw a zealous priest of God devoting his talents to the care of souls and, in voluntary addition, extending himself to caring for what he called his "Circus Parish". Because of this he quickly became referred to in the priesthood as "Circus Ed Sullivan"--and this not without cause. Well could he be called "Edward the Confessor".

In 1947 he was appointed to the pastorate in the Lanesville section of Gloucester. After four years he returned to All Saints Parish, Roxbury, truly having served in the archdiocese in the north, south, east and west. First as Administrator, then as Pastor, he served in the inner city parish for 16 years. Only three years ago, come April, he succeeded his eulogist as Shepherd of the Star of the Sea Parish.

During all this time he developed his interest in and friendship with his circus friends. Never in quest of material kudos, he functioned faithfully as friend, physician, counselor and confidant. The passing years began to sound a siren, to take their toll, and though his spirit was willing his flesh was frail--never robust--and he knew that his heart was wearing, wearing out.

Yet, with dogged determination and admirable attachment he insisted on devoting his time to those he loved, seeing in them morally healthy people whose lives were dedicated to giving morally healthy entertainment to people.

You know what happened last Sunday! He had celebrated Mass earlier in the day and at even-tide he was blessing the circus trains, their human and animal content. With a couple of his "circus family" he drove his car to the end of the train and, suddenly, he stopped his car, turned off the ignition and remarked "there goes another one".

This other one was his last other one for his big priestly heart thumped its last beat and his priestly soul fled its prison house of clay as he slumped over the wheel of his automobile, to keep his rendezvous, to surrender his priestly soul to God for audit.

I rather fancy him musing, "Sceptre and crown shall tumble down and into the dust be equal made with the crooked scythe and spade"!

While his death was sudden, it did not find him unprepared. Even though his flight from this planet was in the winter time and on the sabbath, he died as he would have liked to die--surrounded by his circus-friends. IF - IF - IF he had a chance to utter even a wee word, I feel certain that he would have said: "Thanks, dear God. This is JUST the way I would want it done"!

While Shakespear's Mark Antony tells us that the good that men do is oft interred with their bones, let not this be said of Father Sullivan. We recall the apocalyptic words of the Patriarch of Patmos: "Blessed are they who die in the Lord--they shall rest from their labors, for their works follow them".

We express our condolence to his bereaving brothers and sisters. In the name of the Archdiocese of Boston we thank the family for their gift to us in Father Sullivan. Shortly we shall consign his earthly remains to the grave's dark womb to mingle with the dust whence they sprang--in the silent city of the silent dead, where there is exact equation between Pope and President, Between Prelate and Priest, between Prince and Peasant! As we reverently do so, we exclaim: "Well done"! Who can question or challenge that of Father Ed! Who could say more!

Even in the cradle days of our Church, St. Paul could tell us: "the law appoints as high priests men who are weak". These words in the Epistle to the Hebrews remind us too well that the priest is human, very human, weak by himself but strong in Christ who strengthens him.

The words of our native poet, Longfellow, tell us so clearly: "Life is real! Life is earnest! And the grave is not the goal! Dust thou art to dust returnest was not spoken of the soul".

Since Father Sullivan's tongue is forever muted by Death, as his ineloquent eulogist I plead not for your tears but for your prayers--that the hand of God's Justice rest but lightly upon him who, while he was living, was sealed with the indelible sign of the Eternal Priesthood of Jesus Christ! Wherefore, I beg you pray:

His soul that winged its flight
From its earthly prison of loam
May the angels bear it upward
To its heavenly Home Sweet Home.

"Peace be his lot...easy let him rest". May the angels lead him into paradise and may he, like the once poor Lazarus, have rest everlasting. May he join and enjoy the company of the Eternal High Priest and the Star of the Sea!

"Peace be his lot...easy let him rest".

McIntyre Urges 'Second Look' At Cambridge NASA Closing

Mayor-Sen. James R. McIntyre, has written Governor Francis W. Sargent asking him to contact President Richard M. Nixon to urge "a second look" as the proposed closing of NASA in Cambridge.

"It is difficult, indeed, to understand why only a short time ago dozens of successful businesses and homes were uprooted and construction of the NASA facilities undertaken," McIntyre said.

"It is hard to justify an expenditure of several millions of dollars for a facility not yet completed and yet designated to cease operations within six months."

McIntyre pointed out that the economic and unemployment problems to be faced will be tremendous, and lodged a strong protest to the NASA closing.

A letter was enclosed from S. Gunnar Myrbeck & Co., Inc., listing that firm's employment of 30 persons on its NASA contract, representing a volume of services over the past two years at close to $1 million.

The Earache

One of the most frequent distressing pains of childhood is an earache. While it is true that a fracture may be set, or a laceration sutured without pain killers, the earache, in its intensity, demands some form of alleviation - as unsuccessful as it may be. The agonizing screams of a baby almost certainly makes the diagnosis of an earache.

There are essentially three forms of trouble involving the ear. The treatment differs for each so that a visit to the doctor's office is important unless previous experience makes treatment possible by telephone conversation. Follow-up is also necessary for reasons which will become obvious as we continue.

Most often the ear problem follows what may seem an insignificant "headcold". The infection in the throat and nose backs up a tube connecting the nose and sinus area with the middle ear. This tube is called the Eustachian tube. Inflamation of this tube can occur with the symptoms being referred to the ear - this is called Tubo-Tympanites.

Involvement of the spread to the middle ear is called otites media. When examined, the ear drum appears red, swollen and has lost its natural shiny appearance and a land-mark known as the "light reflex".

In the old days, prior to antibiotics, relief of pain required an incision to drain the pus or serum and was a common exercise in the office. It may still be done, but not with the commoness of old. The ear drum often burst itself, allowing the tell tale blood or pus to drain and stain the pillow case. The drainage could formerly exist for months to years, and often resulted in spread to the mastoid bone - a very serious and dangerous complication. This bone is the rough prominence behind the ear. When mastoiditis occurs, usually the tissues over the bone swell and push the ear forward. Touching this area is usually exquisitely tender.

The nearness of the mastoid wall to the lining of the brain could result in spread of inflammation or infection to the brain area resulting in a brain abscess, but we still have to be alert for them. An occasional annual case still creeps in. Remember this [sounds like the navy] - an ear draining for over three weeks must be seriously considered as a probable mastoid.

If the middle ear heals, a complication, like scarring, may be a retracted drum. It is now funnel-shaped with its concavity inward instead of a convexity outward. Thus you can understand why impaired hearing may ensue.

This sensation of a retracted drum is one you may have experienced when you have come down a fast moving elevator or an airplane and is due to the difference of air pressures outside the ear and within the head. If you hold your nostrils and keep your mouth closed and force breathing out, this maneuver may open up the tube and push out the drum This can be done mechanically by the Doctor using a rubber bulb. You may recall when you have heard you own voice with resonance. This also points to the areas discussed. Decongestants and nose drops may also help.

Permanent loss of hearing can definitely be a complication of a severe [and certainly after repeated] middle ear infections, as late as 30 - 40 years later.

The third painful ear illness is otites externa [inflammation of the ear canal]. Often seen in the summer and called "swimmers ear". The canal becomes swollen, red and terribly painful. Moisture and irritation in the canal makes an ideal place for bacteria and fungi to grow - resulting in this nuisance. Ointments or drops of many kinds are tried with only fair success - one really suffers! Antibiotics are of very little help here. Hair washing may lead to this also.

Deafness is not a sequel to this inflammation and it is the least serious of the ones we have discussed, but it is equally as uncomfortable. The trouble is, however, that it can recur.

It is quite clear, then, that the child with an earache should be checked and that antibiotics such as penicillin are not necessarily panaceas for all ear troubles.

Citizens Association Favors Black's Creek Acquisition

Immediate acquisition of the Black's Creek Marsh from Fenno St. to Furnace Brook Parkway is favored by the Quincy Citizens Association's executive board, according to a letter received by Mayor James R. McIntyre from Miss Dorothy C. Kelly, secretary.

The City of Quincy has already received approval of a $47,000 federal grant.

The letter states:

"We compliment you for making this open space acquisition the first order of business in your inaugural address, and trust that you will follow through with the City Council on the landtaking orders.

"The ecology of our environment is a subject just coming to public notice in conjunction with pollution and flooding problems as well as value of our marshlands for providing food for the life cycle of shell and fin fish. We, in Quincy, are indeed fortunate to have such a valuable natural resource for ecological purposes within our borders, and we must protect it from destruction.

"The Quincy Citizens Association feels that it is also important for Quincy to show the Federal Government our good faith in following through with the Black's Creek acquisition, inasmuch as this was the first project for which Federal funds were requested and the Federal Government, too, recognized the value of the Black's Creek Marsh for open space.

"By copy of this letter to Council President Arthur Tobin we are requesting that the Council be advised of the above, with the hope the Council will immediately pass the landtaking orders.

Constables Association Praises Tobin Election

Arthur H. Tobin, recently elected president of the City Council, has received a letter of congratulations from the South Shore Constables Association for his "unanimous" election.

Ronald N. Halter, president, wrote:

"The City of Quincy has awaited many years for such a 'bright', young, devoted and enthusiastic man as you are, to hold the reins of City Council President.

"We praise you for your untiring effort and dedication in 'Bringing the city and state government closer to the citizens of the great City of Presidents - Quincy.'"

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. How do I compute the Massachusetts gasoline tax paid in 1969?

A. Determine what your total non business mileage was for the year. Then refer to the back of Schedule A in your tax assembly where a State Gasoline Tax Table is provided.

Q. I have moved since last year. My tax form has been forwarded to my new address but it has my old address imprinted on it. What should I do?

A. Draw a line through the old address and insert the new address on the label. Also, write the old address on the first line below the name and address block. This block should also be used to report any change of name, or filing status from the previous year.

Q. Is the cost of seeking employment deductible?

A. No. Job hunting expenses are not deductible. However, amounts actually paid to employment agencies for having secured you employment, are deductible.

Q. I am under a court order to make child support payments. There seems to be some confusion among my fellow workers and myself as to whether they are deductible. Could you please clarify this for me?

A. Child support payments are not deductible by you nor taxable to your wife. If you provide more than one half of the child's total support, you may claim his $600 personal exemption on your return.

Q. We purchased a new television and stove in 1969. Can the sales tax paid on the items be added to the amount listed in the sales tax table?

A. No. Only the sales tax paid on the purchase of a car can be added to the amount listed in the sales tax table. However, if you are able to establish that you paid an amount larger than that shown in the table, you may deduct the larger amount.

Q. I am a working widow with two small children and I pay someone to look after them while I work. I have been told that these payments are deductible? Is this true?

A. Yes, you may deduct up to $900 of child care expenses, where the expense was incurred for two or more children under the age of 13, in order for you to work or seek employment. The deduction is limited to $600 for one child or to the amount actually spent if less than $600.

Q. Last year I made an error in my tax form due to a misunderstanding on my part as to how to handle medical insurance premiums. Could you help me out?

A. One half of the premiums paid for medical insurance up to a maximum of $150 may be deducted when you itemize your deductions on Schedule A. This maximum is not subject to the 3% limitation that applies to other medical expenses. The balance of the premiums should be added to the other medical deductions.

Q. How do I report reimbursement received in 1969 for a medical deduction claimed in 1968?

A. If you have deducted a medical expense in one year and receive reimbursement for that expense in a subsequent year, you must include the reimbursement in your gross income in the year that you receive it.

Q. I have saved my old tax returns for the last twenty years. Now my wife is cleaning out the attic and she wants to throw them out. How long must I keep them?

A. You should keep your records for as long as their contents may be material to your tax obligations. Usually, records which support income and deductions should be kept for a period of three years from the due date of the return. Records pertaining to property transactions should be kept for a much longer period as they may be important if the property is sold or otherwise disposed of.

Q. As a salesman, I am required to use my car for business and am not reimbursed for any of the expenses I incur. I have been a little lax in saving gas receipts this year so I have decided to claim the standard 10c a mile rate. What expenses are included?

A. If you have kept an accurate record of your business mileage in 1969, you may use the Standard Mileage Rate. This method allows 10 cents a mile for the first 15,000 business miles and [illegible] cents a mile for business mileage exceeding 15,000. The allowance includes gasoline, oil, lubrication, washing, repairs, supplies, tires, insurance, licenses, depreciation, excise tax and interest incurred on purchase of the car. Items such as tolls and parking can be claimed in addition to the standard rates.

Quincy YMCA In 78th Year, Mayor In Special Tribute

Sunday, Jan. 25, through Feb. 1 has been proclaimed "Y.M.C.A. Week" by Mayor James R. McIntyre.

This is in keeping with National YMCA Week observances throughout the U. S. and Canada, to bring public recognition to the unique and varied programs provided for the family and youth throughout the world.

The Quincy YMCA is entering its 78th year of continuous service to youth and adults of the South Shore. Membership has now reached 7828 members; 2,261 boys; 2,144 girls; 1,309 women and 2,114 men.

In his official proclamation, Mayor McIntyre cited the Quincy YMCA as a "co-worker in common enterprises with churches of all faiths, seeking to produce among all men a more conscious identification of personal religion as the basis for understanding that the sacredness of humankind is the foundation stone of the American Democracy."

The first YMCA in North America was founded in Montreal in 1851 and a few weeks later the first YMCA in the United States was started in Boston. The Quincy YMCA first opened in 1892 in the Adams Building, today is one of 1,961 YMCA's with a membership of 5,650,610 throughout U. S. and Canada.

The Quincy "Y" moved from the Adams Building to the Street Railway Building at 2 Washington St., then to the Court House Building next to the cemetery, and later to 61 Washington St. Membership then averaged 500 men and boys.

Fourteen years ago the Coddington Street building opened. Its million and a quarter dollar plant provides group meeting places, and activities for persons of all ages throughout Quincy and the South Shore.

The 75-foot swimming pool provides opportunities for more than 8,000 Boy and Girl Scouts, churches and civic groups to swim once a week. More than 23,000 men and women who are not "Y" members have attended functions in the auditorium and club rooms during the past season.

During YMCA Week most of the class activities may be visited by the public. Schedules and program information may be secured by telephone at the YMCA office.

Morrisette Distributes Good American '10 Commandments'

The origin of the actual ten commandments is not known. They were first heard by Commander Campitelli at a Quincy City Council meeting.

They were recited to the Protestors for Peace Group by J. Vincent Smyth, then council president. The teenage group had come to the Council meeting seeking endorsement of a petition protesting President Richard M. Nixon's actions in Vietnam.

Permission to distribute the pamphlets, which is being done as a public service by Morrisette Post, has been given by Dr. Lawrence Creedon, Superintendent of Quincy Schools.

The Ten Commandments are listed as:

1. Love and Honor the United States of America.
2. Obey its Laws and Uphold its Constitution.
3. Respect its Flag and oppose all its enemies.
4. Reverence and support the national Motto, "In God We Trust".
5. Cherish and defend, "Liberty and Justice for All".
6. Oppose discrimination and practice "Brotherhood".
7. Exercise the right to vote and preserve freedom.
8. Oppose and expose crime, political corruption and indecency.
9. Increase the American Stature through education.
10. Strive for Peace and a Free World.

Mount Vernon will be the fifth Navy ship to bear the name. Previous Mount Vernon's were a wooden screw steamer [1859], a sidewheeler steamer [1861], a captured German steamer [1917], and a passenger liner converted into a World War II transport.

Atty. George M. Tull New Hospital Board Chairman

Atty. George M. Tull of 338 Highland Ave., Wollaston, has been elected chairman of the Board of Managers of Quincy City Hospital.

'Stand On Your Hind Legs'

Children who get everything they want may be headed for trouble. It isn't their fault...the adult world is doing this to our children. I know several college students who won't eat in the school dining hall because..."I don't like the food." Hundreds of students eat there...the food isn't that bad. The problem with these few is that they were pampered by their mothers at home.

One of these student's fathers sends his daughter additional money each month so that she can "eat out".

A second father told his son..."It's costing me $4,800 for your tuition, room and board...if you want more than that, get a job and earn it."

The third father doesn't know whether or not to yield to his son's mother's demands to send money because she worries that "the boy will get sick if he has to eat what he doesn't like."

Perhaps the time to face such problems is while the children are still growing up at home. It may not be good for children's future to "get everything they want." It may be added that I am seeing the several college students mentioned above...not concerning their diet...but because of general emotional instability because now they can't get everything they want. Their homes failed to put strength into their souls.

Masses of young people have not been "spoiled" by their homes...great numbers have cut loose from the holds parents held on them...great numbers have brought pride to the homes that reared them. But the adult problems of most people today stem directly from childhood.

Now why won't a boy eat in the college cafeteria? There are three valid reasons for adult maladjustments which make relating to other people next to impossible. First...our affluent society. It's difficult for parents who have money to say "NO" to the child's requests. The free-flowing money of our times was not so free-flowing a few years ago. Many parents remembering the lean days when they grew up, take the attitude "I don't want my children to have to be deprived as I was"...which is tantamount to saying..."I'll give you everything I possibley can and require nothing in return." The result is that many fathers are "giving them everything they want"...unwisely I think. That's the first reason...money is flowing freely.

Secondly...permissive mothers create many areas of maladjustment. In eating...catering to the child with sweets... snacks...and the uneducated tastes of children. Many kitchens are cafeterias...mothers, short order cooks and chambermaids for overindulged children. Children tell mother what they will and won't do. Some mothers try to bargain with their children but the child soon learns that mother will give in...so he "gets what he wants"...without bargaining.

The real problem, however, is not society...it is not mothers. It is MILK-TOAST MEN...men who have abdicated their roles as heads of families...men who have allowed themselves to be emasculated by domineering mothers and wives...so they can't take a stand in their own homes.

We now have a whole crop of men who are "milk toast"...afraid of their wives...their children...their own judgment. By default, these men's wives are forced to administer the family budget...fix the porch step...shovel the snow...care for the grounds...raise the children...even control the sex department. These men bring home a pay check...watch a little TV if the children don't want a program at that time...have a couple of beers and crawl off to bed...to get up the next morning for another day of this second-rate citizenship. Little wonder boys do not respect their fathers. Little wonder girls do not learn how to relate to a man...when they have not seen a real man in their fathers.

We dislike the bully...the selfish tyrannical male who throws his weight around to show his manhood...but God deliver us from these "milk-toast mama boys" who fail to put steel into their children because they themselves only know how to "knuckle under."

If this is your present home pattern, you can change it...a lot of wives would like it changed very much. The first step is to see what it is doing to the wife...to the children...and to the man.

Secondly...argue it out...not by name calling but by plainly and specifically facing up to where a wife is too permissive and where the husband is too weak.

Thirdly...change the pattern. Stop blaming the earlier life. Get squared away on what is needed in your home to bring order and happiness. And then, men...stand up on your hind legs and say, "Thus it shall be."

Paul Bunyan & Babe Leave The Moon

Paul and Babe are on the moon. I wonder what they are doing. They hardly fit in the rocket but they managed to. Now they are up there fixing it for us. It will be an exciting day when they come back. Paul will tell us everything they did to the moon when they come back to earth.

In A Spooky Place

One spooky night I and some of my friends were going trick-or-treating. We were separated and then I did not know where I was. I scared myself to death when I thought a banch was a ghost. I was a wicked old witch. When I saw that wicked old witch up in the sky I was imagining things. I was so scared I ran and ran until I was in the woods.

Then I saw a werewolf. When I rolled over I was glad to lay on my soft pillow. It was just a spooky dream.

Paul Bunyan Goes To The Moon

A scientist was waiting many years for Paul Bunyan to grow up so that he could go to the moon. Everybody built a big, big spaceship for Paul. Paul wanted to take his last walk in the woods, but when he got there he saw an ox. He wanted to take it with him to the moon so that he could have someone to talk to up in space.

He named the ox, Babe, and he went to the moon. Days and days passed by. Paul was finally at the moon. Every day the moon got lower in the sky, because Paul and Babe were too heavy for the moon. Paul and Babe found some rocks to make food to eat. They had a lot of room to run around and they lived happily ever after on the moon.

The MBTA Board of Directors has approved two contract awards, totaling $6,793,996, for construction of the North Quincy Station and the Quincy Center Station and parking garage for the South Shore rapid transit extension.

Both contract awards are subject to approval by the U. S. Department of Transportation.

The J. F. White Contracting Company of Needham in a joint venture with New England Equipment Rental Company, lowest of two bidders, was awarded a $2,121,494 contract for the North Quincy Station.

The White firm in a joint venture with New England Equipment Rental and White Building Corporation, the only bidder, was awarded the Quincy Station and four-level parking garage contract for a negotiated price of $4,672,502.

The Quincy Station contract provides an option for a fifth level of parking at an additional cost of $428,000. The City of Quincy, which would use and pay for the fifth level and related costs, has 90 days to make its decision.

The four-level garage will have spaces for 681 cars; a five-level garage, 875 spaces.

In addition to the garage spaces, there will be 85 spaces outside the station for "Kiss 'N' Ride" passengers or short-term parking.

A busway from Hancock St., will be built. The busway will alleviate traffic congestion in this area where buses now park to load and unload passengers.

Pedestrian entrances to the station will be from both Upland Rd on the west side of the transit line and from Hancock St. on the east side.

Automobiles will enter the station area from Hancock St. and leave via Upland Rd.

The station will have reversible escalators to the platform area, one level below, and the garage will have elevators.

Inside the station, there will be 7,000 square feet of rental space in the vicinity of the fare collection area.

Outside, the entire station and garage site will be landscaped.

J. F. White's original bid for this contract, the only bid received, was $4,884,802. However, through negotiations the Authority was able to reduce the cost for a "savings" of $212,300 on the contract.

At North Quincy, which will be the first stop outbound from Boston on the South Shore extension, the station will have two lobbies. One will be on the south end which will be used by pedestrians and bus riders and the other on the north end which will be used by park-and-ride passengers.

When bids were opened last August for the North Quincy Station Project, the lone bid was for $4.1 million and was rejected as too high.

Subsequently, a $400,000 item for drainage and removal of surcharge was awarded through negotiations to a contractor already working in the area. This contractor was M & C Corporation of Boston, in a joint venture with Verrochi Realty Trust, Brendan Engineering Corporation, and Brendan Construction Corporation.

Still to be awarded is a contract for the parking area and landscaping of the site. This is estimated to cost $600,000.

The total of the station contract, the drainage contract and the forthcoming parking and landscaping contract will amount to an estimated $3.1 million for a "savings" of $1 million dollars under the original bid for the North Quincy station project.

The J. F. White firm was previously awarded a $4,093,433 contract for roadwork and structures on the southern-most end of the extension in Quincy.

Nuclear Expert Named Engineering Director At General Dynamics

Marshall E. Turnbaugh, 53, who played a significant role in the birth of the nuclear Navy, has been named director of engineering at the Quincy Shipbuilding division of General Dynamics.

His appointment was announced by Lloyd Bergeson, corporate vice-president and general manager of the shipyard.

Beginning in 1948, as a Navy officer, Turnbaugh served as senior technical officer for the Navy and Atomic Energy Commission in the pioneering stages of feasibility studies, conceptual and final design and production of the world's first nuclear-powered ship, the Navy submarine USS Nautilus.

Built by General Dynamics, the Nautilus was launched by the corporation's Electric Boat division in Groton, Conn., Jan. 21, 1954.

Later, as nuclear power superintendent, he planned and implemented procedures and facilities for nuclear work at the Portsmouth, N.H., Naval Shipyard. There, he supervised construction of two nuclear submarines and the first overhaul of Nautilus.

His Navy career ranged from sea duty aboard destroyers, through supervision of ship construction and repair, to more than 10 years in the nuclear program. After retiring with the rank of captain in 1959, Turnbaugh was appointed to a senior executive position with a major company in the field of designing and producing nuclear components.

He was later an executive for seven years with a leading engineering firm specializing in new ship concepts for both U. S. and international vessels. During this period he also was president of an engineering and manufacturing company engaged in producing ship components and steam plants and conducting research projects.

Turnbaugh entered the marine field after graduating from the United States Naval Academy in 1939 and earning a degree in naval architecture and marine engineering from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Born April 23, 1916, in Nebraska, Turnbaugh is married to the former Muriel Dodd of Philadelphia, Pa. They are the parents of three sons.

Mayor Appeals For March Of Dimes Aid

A stamp and a check can bring new hope to a child penalized by a crippling birth defect, Mayor-Sen. James McIntyre 1970 March of Dimes campaign director, said today.

"Our mail appeals are on their way into homes throughout the community," he said. "Please take those five minutes to fill out a check and place a stamp on the return envelope."

McIntyre, who represents March of Dimes volunteers throughout Quincy, noted that contributions aid the progress in research, education, patient care and community services conducted throughout a nationwide network of 111 Birth Defects Centers.

"The March of Dimes is fulfilling a twofold purpose at these centers," he explained. "Research into the causes, cures and prevention of birth defects is going forward at an accelerated pace; comprehensive care for those who need it is provided by the most competent health professionals.

"Only an enthusiastic public response can continue these gains," McIntyre said. "The future is in your hands–and your checkbook."

Send Federal Tax Return To Andover--Not Boston

Federal income tax returns should no longer be filed with the Internal Revenue Service district office at Boston, but with the IRS Service Center, 310 Lowell Street, Andover., officials announce.

This applies to all returns and not only to those claiming refunds.

The IRS North-Atlantic Region, which includes Massachusetts, is the latest to require direct filing of all income tax returns with IRS regional service centers, under a law enacted Nov. 2, 1966, said William E. Williams, District Director of Internal Revenue.

Direct filing of returns eliminates the delay caused by initial handling at the district office, where returns had to be packaged and shipped to Andover for processing.

Mr. Williams emphasized that direct filing will in no way curtail services taxpayers have been accustomed to receiving from the IRS district office.

"By relieving the district office of the burden of receiving returns and preparing them from transshipment, we will have a greater opportunity to render services to taxpayers," he said.

EXPERT TAILORING, the sign says, and you can be sure of it at Elite Cleaners and Tailoring, 526-A Washington St., Quincy. This is the second shop of owner Izzy Libeskind, shown here.

"My father was a tailor. I was born into tailoring in the old country. I indentured myself for three years to learn more tailoring. I'm a tailor!" This pride and skill of Mr. Izzy Libeskind, proprietor of ELITE CLEANERS AND TAILORS, 526A Washington St., Quincy Point, is carried over to his quality dry-cleaning, laundering, waterproofing and mothproofing.

A fifteen-year veteran in the dry-cleaning business, Mr. Libeskind handles complete men's and women's tailoring with ease, as well as invisible mending and re-weaving. He continues to specialize in wedding gowns.

In addition, ELITE CLEANERS AND TAILORS offers bonded storage of any garment, including furs and woolens.

The atmosphere in ELITE is unusually warm and friendly. Mr. Libeskind admits that he constantly looks forward to meeting his customers and having a few relaxed words with each one. He thrives on that.

"When I came to this country 20 years ago, I could barely talk in English with people. So I went to night school for three years. I liked people and knew I couldn't speak with them unless I became educated," he says.

Now with two married daughters and a son in high school, Izzy Libeskind can look back on his early years as a tailor. "I indentured myself to another tailor for three years in order to learn as much as I could. He did not have to pay me. I even had to give him my tips from deliveries. But I had to learn tailoring."

Fifteen years ago, he decided to combine dry-cleaning with tailoring, and has owned and operated his present Quincy Ave. establishment for the past seven years. Recently he opened up the new branch, featuring all the same services, on 526A Washington St., Quincy Point.

North Faces Test Against Somerville

North Quincy's basketball team, fresh from a surprisingly easy 75-55 non-league win over Brookline Tuesday, faces its biggest Greater Boston League test Friday night when it hosts Somerville's undefeated league leaders. The Raiders are also at home Tuesday night, facing Malden.

In the opening game of the season North had to battle all the way for a 59-57 win at Brookline but Tuesday, thanks to another excellent press, led from the start and outclassed the Wealthy Towners in the first and third periods, while playing on even terms in the second and fourth.

The Raiders led, 20-11, after one period. It was 32-23 at the half and Bob Nolan's defending league champs exploded in the third quarter to take a 55-36 lead into the finale.

"It was nice to get a win like this," Nolan said. "Our press killed them, the boys were shooting and rebounding well and it was another fine team effort. This had to be Rich Sanderson's best game of the year, as he shot well, rebounded strongly and played a fine all-around game.

"Dan McKay and Jim Small also had their shooting eyes and Ken Baker played another excellent game. I was a bit disappointed that we couldn't hold their big scorer, Hankins, a little better, but he is averaging 30 points a game." [He scored 32 Tuesday.]

Nolan said he was pleased that his team committed only 14 fouls, far less than in most games. He was not satisfied, however, with the foul shooting, the Raiders hitting on only 13 of 28. "This could have cost us in a close game," he said.

McKay had 19 points, Small 18 and Sanderson 14.

Last week North beat a tough Everett club, 71-62, to up its league record to 4-1, thanks mainly to the play of two juniors and the foul shooting of Bobby DeRosa.

North had a 17-12 lead after one period, a 30-23 advantage at the half and a 51-39 bulge going into the final period.

Juniors Brian Donahue and Ken Baker played excellent games and DeRosa, who paced the scorers with 18 points, had 10 of 14 foul shots. Donahue had 13 points and Baker added 12.

Everett had the edge in shooting percentage, especially from the foul line. The Big Red hit on 30 of 40 free throws while North hit for 27 of 40. From the floor had a slight advantage, although North had a 22-16 basket edge.

"It was another good effort," Nolan said. "Donahue, Baker and DeRosa were outstanding. This is a real tough Everett team."

Presidents Hope To Rebound At Revere Friday Night

Quincy's basketball team, hoping to rebound from a 92-53 walloping at the hands of Somerville's unbeaten Greater Boston League leaders, plays at Revere Friday night and goes to Chelsea Tuesday night for league games.

The Presidents fell behind 49-18, at halftime in Tuesday's game at Somerville and, although perking up and playing better ball in the third period, they never were in the running as Somerville ran its league record to 7-0.

"They were just too much for us in every department and this is another really good Somerville team," said Quincy coach Marty Finnegan. "They out-rebounded us, 54-30, which was an important factor."

Bob Pike scored 17 points and Jim Furfari 14 to pace Quincy's attack. Somerville ace Bill Endicott had 21.

Quincy shot 20 for 52 from the floor and 11 for 20 from the foul line, while Somerville was 31 for 71 from the floor and an impressive 30 for 38 from the line.

Last week Quincy turned in one of its finest efforts of the year, jumped away to a surprising 10-0 lead but lost to once-beaten Medford, 66-52, at the Presidents' gym.

"We played our best offensive game shooting wise," Finnegan said. "We out rebounded them and didn't expect to because of their height and all of the kids gave everything they had. The thing that hurt us was turning the ball over to them 21 times. When you play a team as good as Medford, you can't make that many mistakes and expect to win.

"The big thing was our ability to keep the ball away from their big scorer, Billy Deehan, in the first half and hold him to 10 points. In the second half he came up with 22 points and eight were rebounds off the offensive board. I'm very proud of our boys' effort against one of the best teams in the league."

Quincy held a 13-10 first period lead and the score was tied at 25-25 at the half. Medford moved ahead, 43-36, in the third period and pulled away in the final quarter.

Quincy's zone defense was effective in the first half but Finnegan shifted into a man-man defense in the final period in an effort to cut the gap and it paid off with four quick points. However, Medford's superior height enabled it to pull away again.

Quincy's junior varsity won again, 38-36, to make its record 5-2, as Jimmy Walker scored 13 points and Bobby Malvesti 10.

Munroe MacLean, Veterans Memorial Tribute Feb. 8

Memorial plaques will be dedicated Feb. 8 in honor of the late Munroe MacLean and Quincy High-Vocational Technical students who have given their lives for their country from the Civil to Vietnam Wars.

Kenneth Rickson, coordinator of physical and health education for the Quincy public schools, announced the dedication ceremonies will be held at the new Vocational-Technical School gymnasium at 2 p.m.

Mr. MacLean, long-time popular Quincy High School football and basketball coach and director of athletics and physical education in the school system, died last year.

The plaques will honor the memory of "Munroe MacLean and The Young Men of Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational-Technical School Who Since 1861 Have Given Their Lives in the Service of Our Country."

Following the ceremonies, there will be a guided tour of the gymnasium complex and a demonstration of gymnastics by Quincy school students.

Refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

Quincy's Tourney Hopes Alive, Raiders Still Chase Win No. 1

Quincy's hockey team survived a terrific scare Monday, finally exploding in the final period for a 4-1 victory over Chelsea to keep its hopes for a state tourney berth alive, and tonight [Thursday] faces Somerville at 8:30 at Boston Arena.

Meanwhile, North Quincy, walloped by runnerup Everett, 8-1, makes another attempt at win number one tonight against Revere at 6:45 at Boston and Monday at 6:30 at Ridge takes on Medford.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy club, running its Greater Boston League record to 6-2-1, trailed surprising Chelsea, 1-0, after two periods but finally clicked for four third period goals.

"They were really out there fighting and their defense and goalie stymied us through two periods," Sylvia said. "But we finally snapped out of it in the third period and played like we are capable of playing."

Chelsea scored in the first period and that is the way it stood until the finale.

Chuck Condos scored the equalizer with assists by Harry Bertoni and Chuck Peterson. The game winner was scored by Bertoni, with Peterson assisting, and the third came off the stick of Bill Blake on a pass from Dave Mariano. The final Quincy goal was tallied by Condos with Bertoni and Kevin Grogan assisting.

North's young and inexperienced team played well in the opening period and trailed only 3-1, but the Crimson Tide erupted for four goals in the middle period and added one in the final session.

The only goal for Bob Laing's Raiders was scored by Neil Cronin with assists by Billy Gardner and Tom O'Malley which at the time gave North a short-lived 1-1 tie.

Last week Quincy appeared on its way to a revenge win over league leading Everett but two late goals by sophomore Craig Brickley gave the Crimson Tide a 5-5 tie. The tie dropped Everett into second place with a 6-1-1 record behind Malden [7-1], and dropped the Presidents into fourth place with a 5-2-1 record behind Medford [6-2].

"We are still very much in the title race, but, to say the least, we have our work cut out for us from here on," Sylvia said. "I'm not at all happy about this tie. Our forwards were not pressing their defensemen enough in their end and Everett moved the puck out on us much to easily to suit me.

"There was one positive aspect, however. Artie Boyle, our goalie, is only a sophomore and came up with an excellent game. He faced some real iron in Everett and held his own. He came out of that game a much better goalie than when he went into it and had 23 saves. We are all very proud of him."

Sylvia had high praise for Brickley, who had four goals and tied the game three times. He also said Everett proved it is no fluke and deserves to be at the top of the league. This is its first real good season.

Harry Bertoni had two goals, including the game's opener. Wayne Milford, Phil Rugg and Dave Mariano had the other goals. Mariano's was the prettiest of the game. After Boyle had made a sensational stop of a partially screened shot, Bill Blake sent Mariano in one on-one with a Crimson defenseman.

Mariano stopped just inside the blue line, let the defenseman get between him and the goalie, and fired on the ice. The goalie never saw the puck as it put Quincy ahead, 5-3.

Quincy assists were made by Mariano [two], Blake [two], Chuck Peterson, Milford, Chuck Condos and Russ Barry.

North continued to run into hard luck and began the second round of the schedule with a 6-0 loss, its third straight shutout, at the hands of Chelsea.

Candlepin Tourney Underway Jan. 25

The 17th Annual Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tourney will begin Sunday Jan. 25, at 1:00 p.m. at The Merrymount Daylight Alleys on Broad St., Quincy, announces Tourney Director Dick Koch.

Any organized men's candlepin bowling league may enter a team. The top five men bowlers in the league as of Jan. 15, are entered in competition with the sixth and seventh bowlers in the standings registered as alternates.

Bowlers entered, said Koch, must have bowled half the season thus far with their respective leagues. Any violations of the above listed rules will forfeit the teams' participation or continuance in tourney competition.

All matches will be decided on total pinfall, and a team must win to continue in this elimination tourney.

Sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy for the 17th year, the Tourney started in 1954 with eight teams in competition, and expanded to 26 teams last year, representing the best of 1300 bowlers in 26 bowling leagues.

Last years winning team was the Quincy Church League who defeated the Wollaston Men's Entry 1638-1632 in the finals.

Records in tourney competition include high team three, Quincy Center 1838 in 1968 with the team single of 647. Individual honors are held by Roger Delgiacco 441, high three, and Ralph Devito 167, high single.

Trackmen In State Trials

The North Quincy and Quincy track teams will not compete again in Met League competition until Feb. 7, the final day of the season.

North, which last week snapped a three-meet losing streak with a 47-39 win over Milton, will face Rindge Tech in the finale, while Quincy, winless in six meets following a 62-24 walloping at the hands of Somerville, will take on Randolph. The meets are expected to take place at Harvard or Northeastern beginning at 10 a.m.

Several competitors from both local teams will take part in Saturday's state trials in hopes of qualifying for the state meet Jan. 31 at Boston Garden.

Paul Affsa continued an outstanding season by winning the 1000, Paul Salamaa won the 600, Kevin Henry the two-mile, John Panarelli, also having a great year, the shot put and Pete Davis the dash.

Quincy coach Gene Macomber shifted Bob Ciano, unbeaten in the 300, to the two-mile and he won again, while Pete Laing, beaten only once in the two-mile, moved to the mile and won. John Dempsey won the hurdles for the Presidents.

New Rivalry Born

Quincy Lassies Win First, 26-14

Quincy has its first victory over North Quincy.

This may seem like a strange statement but it is true.

In the first game ever played between the Quincy and North girls' basketball teams, Quincy won, 26-14, last week as a new chapter was written into the long intra-city rivalry.

Quincy had its first girls' team a year ago and, under Mary Lou Thimas, now at Marshfield, the lady Presidents had a 3-2 season.

North has its first girls' team this season and the first game in history attracted a large crowd to the North gym

Sparks in the Quincy win were Co-Capt. Jane LaFavre and Lois MacLean, who led the scorers; Doreen Goguen and Barbara Sadlier, who played fine all-around games. Quincy's junior varsity also won, 10-0.

"We have a good group of girls who are showing much enthusiasm," Miss Palmer said. "They all want to improve on last year's record and they really wanted to win the North Quincy game. It helped at least a little to get even for the boys' basketball defeat."

Four varsity players were on last year's winning squad, Co-Capts. LaFavre and Janet Little, Regina Pestilli and Pat Thomas. The other varsity players are Marcia Coleman, Karen Fruzzetti, Donna Giudici, Cathy Glennon, Miss MacLean, Miss Sadlier and Miss Goguen.

The junior varsity roster includes Capt. Sue Curley, Gail Corella, Gerry Dailey, Sharon Davenport, Sheena Giggey, Marsha Ingegneri, Priscilla Lee, Debbie Randall, Sandy and Donna Sacchetti, Carol Sadlier and Kim Seitz. Miss Lee and Sally Sacchetti played last year.

Quincy opened its season at Hingham and dropped a 36-31 decision to the Old Colony League club.

Other games are scheduled with Cohasset, Marshfield, Hull and return games with Hingham and North.

The girls play at Cohasset Friday and will be home to Marshfield, where Miss Thimas is the junior varsity coach, Monday. Next Thursday they will be host to Hingham.

Miss Palmer attended Hingham High school and Sterling College in Kansas. She has coached at Hingham on the junior high level.

Judging from the hustle shown by both squads last week, it appears the Quincy-North girls' basketball rivalry will be every bit as intense as in other sports.

Raiderettes Coach Pleased With Debut

Something new has been added to the North Quincy athletic program.

For the first time in history the girls' have an interscholastic basketball program which got underway Friday against rival Quincy and the Raiderettes, under coach Marjorie Bollen, have eight games definitely scheduled and one which will be played later with the date as yet undecided.

Miss Bollen, who attended Quincy High and majored in physical education at Bridgewater State College, is a teacher of anthropology, a course she introduced at North and which is growing all the time.

She had a fine turnout for North's first girls' team and was pleased with the team's performance in the opener against Quincy, won by Quincy, 26-14. The Quincy junior varsity also won, 10-0.

Lisa Kowilcik, little sophomore star, hustled all over the floor and excelled in a losing cause, as did Co-Captains Sheila Varney and Maura Jordan.

"While this was the first girls' game in North's history, Quincy already had played a game and they had a team last year," Miss Bollen said. "The girls were understandably nervous but no more so than I was. They will come along and win some games."

Friday the North girls will play the South Boston Chips at the South Boston Municipal Building. This team is a member of a Boston girls' league. Last night they played the Union Congregational Church team of Wollaston.

Co-Captains are Miss Varney, sister of North's all-time great, Pete, and Miss Jordan. Other varsity players are Bobbie Crandall, Sheila Eaton, Danielle Paulson, Chris Eramo, Marcia Chartier and Miss Kowilcik.

The junior varsity squad included Loretta Andini, Nancy Cohen, Terry Ellis, Joan Granahan, Irene Hamilton, Nancy Kelleher, Diane Mollica, Jean Riccuiti, Denise and Leslie Runge, Linda Smith, Debbie Thomley, Shelly Winters, Pat Wilson, Jeannie Riley and Teddy Bourikas.

The team manager is Elizabeth Perkins.

"There is considerable interest among the girls, who have been waiting for an interscholastic program," the North coach added.

Miss Bollen, incidentally, was coach of the North girls' first tennis team last year and expects big things in tennis this year.

Home and home games have been scheduled with Quincy and single contests with Sacred Heart of Weymouth, Braintree, Thayer Academy, Aop Williams and South Boston Chip.. Cohasset High will be played at a date to be announced.

Quincy's Biff Bacher No. 1 Draft Choice Of Seattle Pilots

North Quincy's Ron Frongello, area scout for the Seattle Pilots, and Cohasset's Billy Enos, the Pilots' scouting supervisor in New England, caused many raised eyebrows at last week end's major league baseball winter draft meetings.

Seattle had third choice, following Cleveland and San Diego and the number one draft choice was, to just about everyone's surprise, Quincy's George [Biff] Bacher, a former Abp. Williams star who went to University of Connecticut and transferred to Quincy Jr. College, where he is now a student.

"I don't think anyone expected us to make him our first choice in the entire country," said Frongello, former North Quincy High pitching star now living in Hingham, whom Enos rates "an ideal bird dog."

"And it was quite a thrill for me to recommend a boy and then have him first draft choice. I saw him play at U. of Connecticut and was amazed with his batting power."

Last fall Frongello and Enos signed Gary McGrath of North Quincy to a contract and he, like Bacher, will report to Tempe, Arizona, in March to work out with Portland, the Pilots' Class AAA team.

At Williams Bacher batted .490 in his senior year and was rated by his coach, Armond Colombo, as "One of the best hitters I had." Echoing these sentiments was Connie Carlozzi, former Morrisette Legion coach, for whom Bacher hit .390 two years ago and sparked the team to the state finals. He hit eight home runs that year.

The six-foot, 200-pounder, was signed to a contract Sunday night for what Frongello called "a very good bonus."

He is an outfielder-third baseman who, through necessity, played shortstop at Abp. Williams.

"I was very happily surprised that I was picked first," Bacher said. "I had an idea I would be drafted, but not first. Bill Enos and Ron Frongello had been talking to me, so I felt I would be drafted eventually. Naturally, I've always wanted to play in the big leagues. I've always wanted a chance to try it."

Another local product, Richie Wanless of North Quincy, was drafted by the Pittsburgh Pirates. A former North Quincy High star, he had been drafted before but never signed.

Peckham, Hennessy Team Pace Little Loop

Paul Peckham and the Hennessy Plumbing Supply team continue to pace the Quincy Bowling Little Loop.

Peckham, only 14, holds the high average with a 100.19. The Hennessy team is in first place with a 37-15 mark for a slim two-point lead over the Mayor McIntyre club.

Atlantic Fuel Oil is in third place just three points out and Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome in fourth, only four points behind the leader.

Mike Conroy, captain of Dist. Atty. George Burke's team holds the high three string of 325 and Tom Joyce, captain of the Wollaston Lobster club, has the high single of 134.

Conroy, 98.30; Joyce, 97.18; John Repoff, 96.21; Lorman, 96.10; Dick Hirtle, 96.7; Steve Levine, 95.15; Frank Alibrandi, 95.13; Dick Magnarelli, 94.26 and Anthony Kovalski, 93.31.

Rangers 1-0 In Pee-Wee Hockey Action

Bruins and Canadiens skated to a 2-2 tie. Bruins' goals were produced by Jim Fitzpatrick with an assist by David Lewis, and by Jerry Cronin, assisted by Leonard Deveau and Paul Tempesta.

The two outstanding goalies were Jim McHugh and Matthew Schaefer.

On Jan. 26 the Blackhawks meet the Canadiens and the Rangers play the Bruins.

DARYL JOHNSON, Boston Patriots star, has been appointed to the executive sales staff of Weymouth Colonial Motors, Inc., North Weymouth, oldest Toyota dealership in New England. Johnson's appointment is announced by Vincent W. Bertsch, owner of Weymouth Colonial Motors.

North Gymnastics Team At Arlington

The North Quincy High school gymnastics team, with a 3-2 record in its first five meets, will meet Arlington at Arlington Tuesday afternoon.

George Golding's Raiders won their first three meets against Milton, Dennis-Yarmouth and Norwood, but dropped the next two to Newton and Winthrop.

North has had outstanding gymnastics teams for several years and this season's club includes some excellent competitors.

Competing in the floor exercise event are Steve Jakub, Gary Calhoun, Lee Davis, Dave Merrill and Dom Strazzulla.

Side horse entrants are George Bourikas, Mike Jacques, John McGilvary, Gerry Veronneau and Mike Chartier.

Entered in the long horse vaulting are Mike Martin, Morgan, Davis and Jim McEachern.

Following the regular season, which ends on Feb. 10, North will enter its top competitors in the state individual championships at Framingham South Feb. 28 and hopes to qualify for the state team championships at Natick on March 7.

Bradley Pacing Eastern Nazarene

When North Quincy High basketball coach Bob Nolan said Ron Bradley, his co-captain two years ago, could play for any college, he apparently wasn't kidding.

The 6-3 guard presently is leading the Eastern Nazarene College team in scoring and last week hit for 35 points in an 87-77 win over Eastern Baptist.

Bradley was joined by last year's North co-captain, Don Constantine, who scored 20 for his finest output of the year.

"Bradley definitely could play for any team in the country," said ENC assistant coach Tom Tracy, who was handling the club for the ill Carroll Bradley.

"He's the complete basketball player. He's one of the finest shots I've ever seen, but he also does everything else well. He is a fine passer, he rebounds and he goes all out at all times."

"I wish Ron went to a bigger school so he could receive more notice, as he deserves it," Nolan said. "But he wanted to stay around here and he certainly is giving the fans an eyefull. He is one of the best players and finest boys I have coached."

Constantine's performance was a pleasant surprise to ENC coaches and fans.

"Don's big problem has been lack of confidence," Tracy explained. "This was his best game of the season. He got some points and also played real tough defense. He had some key steals late in the game when we needed them and he played his man so tight on defense that Baptist wasn't even throwing him the ball."

His performance doesn't surprise Nolan, who also had great praise for him.

Houghs Neck Meeting Told

Expo '76 'Dead' Without U.S. Funds

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

Unless federal funds are forthcoming, Expo '76 for Boston is dead.

This is the consensus of Nick Greer, planning coordinator of Expo '76, Rep. Michael Flaherty of South Boston and Quincy Reps. Walter J. Hannon and Joseph E. Brett, members of the Boston Harbor Commission.

Their opinions were voiced Tuesday night at a Houghs Neck Community Council forum at the Houghs Neck Legion Hall. John B. Powers, council president, was moderator.

Greer and Flaherty were the main speakers. Greer spoke in favor of Expo and Flaherty in opposition.

Expo '76, "U. S. Bicentennial 1976," a world exposition to celebrate the country's 200th birthday, could be built at a cost of $1.4 billion. Of this $235 million would be necessary from federal funds; $165 million from the state and $71 million from the city of Boston.

The exposition has been planned for Columbia Point, South Boston, and a portion of Thompson's Island adjacent to the site of Thompson's Academy. Platforms on piles would be used for a part of the construction.

Slides of the proposed exposition, and of previous world expositions dating back to 1851, were shown by Mr. Greer.

Greer emphasized that buildings planned for Expo '76 could at the end of the event, be converted into housing and other uses. This is in contrast to the waste and extravagance of previous world fair buildings where "white elephants" still remain standing and serve no useful purpose, Greer said.

A "new city in the Harbor" for 65,000 people is visioned. Of the converted housing, 10% would be for low income families, 80% for those of moderate incomes, and 10% for high incomes, Greer stated.

Flaherty, opposing the fair, blamed "lack of information and lack of opportunity to oppose the plan. If the money is granted, there is nothing that anyone can say," he said.

Flaherty attacked the plan which he said would create a tidal flow problem, and cause water pollution by overloading the eight small conduits to Deer Island now in use in Boston Harbor, despite a proposed $20 million temporary pollution control conduit which would be added.

He deplored the computer-recommended MIT line through South Boston to provide transportation to the fair, stating that the recommendation had been reached after eight months of study at a cost of $200,000.

"The only thing we know with certainty is that no exposition has ever made a profit," Flaherty said. "We don't need a new city in the Harbor of 65,000 people. The real answer is to provide money to build up our urban plight–not to build a new city."

Rep. Brett, speaking briefly in opposition, urged support of his bill in the Legislature seeking to have the State acquire all the islands in Boston Harbor for conservation and recreational purposes.

Rep. Hannon, also against the proposal, said he felt that federal funds could better be used to relieve flooding conditions, for new schools, and to solve other problems.

Greer, in closing stated, "If the federal government is going to spend the money, why not see if Boston can have it and leave it with something worthwhile."

A city-wide beautification program has been made possible by the grant of $71,085 by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, according to Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board.

This is the third consecutive year in which Quincy has received grants as a result of proposals submitted to the government agency.

"This will mean the greatest number of major improvements in the park system of the City in the past three decades, back to WPA days," Koch said of the grants. "Everyone throughout the city will receive some benefit from it."

The 1970 proposal calls for a $20,000 allocation for renovation of the entire field area at Broad Meadows Junior High School. This will mean initially a larger baseball field, and when completed, the resodding and regrading of the entire field.

At Columbia Street Playground, South Quincy, $5,000 will be used to renovate the playground.

Kendall Park, North Quincy, known as "The Kettle Hole," will have an allocation of $12,000. The Park Department expects to fill in the hole area, which will eliminate the use of that area for rubbish and trash disposal by residents. It will also provide a larger playground area. Grading problems are expected here as the playground backs up to Quincy Shore Drive.

Stony Brae playground at Wollaston will have $7,000 spent for renovating and resodding.

At Fore River field in Quincy Point, a $10,000 allotment will include renovation of both baseball and softball diamonds.

'Good Chance' For Fifth Floor On Center MBTA Parking Garage

Mayor James R. McIntyre believes there "is a good chance" that a fifth floor will be added to the planned Quincy Center station MBTA parking garage.

The additional floor would mean 200 extra parking spaces, bringing the garage's total accomodation capacity to 1,000 cars.

"I am negotiating now with the MBTA and it looks like the requested fifth floor will become a reality," the Mayor said.

"This would give us 200 extra parking spaces which would greatly benefit the Quincy downtown area."

'A Disastrous Blow'

Nixon Veto Costs Quincy $1.2 Million

President Nixon's veto of the Health, Education and Welfare budget is a "disastrous blow" that will cost Quincy an estimated $1.2 million and a $6 rise in the tax rate.

The words and estimate are those of School Committeeman Paul C. Kelly, who has asked Superintendent Lawrence P. Creedon to fire off telegrams to Massachusetts congressmen urging that they vote to override the veto.

Several Quincy programs would be killed, he said.

"People are just not yet aware of how hard the city of Quincy is going to be smashed by Nixon's act," said Kelly. "And it's going to happen overnight, too.

"If the Congress does not override the veto, Quincy will lose $1.2 million from the $14-4 we have already budgeted for our schools. The taxpayers of Quincy will have to make that up in new taxes.

"Figuring on a basis of $1 for every $200,000 in the budget, that's a tax increase of $6 on the rate.

"In addition, the veto will wipe out our Head Start program, the federally funded breakfast programs at the Quincy Point and Hancock schools, and the programs supported by the National Defense Education Act.

"I think a barrage of telegrams and letters to our congressmen may help influence them to override the veto. Many of them, like Conte, Keith and Heckler, are on the fence."

Meanwhile, Dr. William H. Hebert, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Teachers Association, has estimated that Quincy will lose $276,000 in impacted area funds alone because of the veto.

Impacted areas are communities which have children attending its schools whose parents are employed in defense and other governmental work. In Quincy, it's General Dynamics shipyard.

In letters to the Massachusetts Congressional delegation, Dr. Hebert called the educational funds "an absolute necessity," and he added:

"Dollars spent on education return greater value to the economy than any funds used by the Defense Department for experimental and frequently wasteful projects."

According to Dr. Hebert's figures, more than 200 Massachusetts communities will lose $13,611,689 in impacted area funds unless the Congress overrides the President's expected veto.

Other cities and towns in Rep. James A. Burke's 11th District which will lose money are Braintree $85,000, Brockton $81,000, Dedham $52,000, and Randolph $52,000.

Barilaro Wants Incinerator Behind Public Works Garage

Ward 4 Councillor Albert R. Barilaro said he will push for a Quincy incinerator built on land in back of the Public Works garages off Sea St.

"The whole Public Works complex is down there," Barilaro said. "The incinerator can be put down there because of the small amount of residue that comes from an incinerator. It is all solid fill.

"In Connecticut, a whole new airport was made with ashes from an incinerator. I am going to continue pushing for the incinerator to be put behind the highway garage."

Barilaro, referring to West Quincy quarry sites suggested, said:

"There is a good possibility the land will be developed and the prospective buyer says he does not want an incinerator here if he buys the land.

"The people of West Quincy would be happy to see this. There are 400 acres up here with a good chance of development which would bring good taxes into the City and God only knows we need the revenue because of the way taxes are going up."

"The streets in the West Quincy area are not made to handle the heavy trucks used to bring refuse up here," Barilaro said. The streets in Quincy near the area of the Highway Department are made to handle the heavy trucks which are necessary."

Referring to his discussion with James J. Ricciuti, executive secretary to Mayor McIntyre at Monday's City Council meeting, Barilaro said that aerial photos of Pike's Peak and other areas considered for dumping were already available.

He said pictures of this type had been taken by the Gas Company and given by him to the assistant City Solicitor. Another set was available from the airport authority appointed by the Mayor.

Miss Scanlan Endorses Fee Plan For Driver Education Program

School Committeewoman Miss Ruth E. Scanlan at last night's meeting of the Quincy School Committee endorsed a plan for driver education in the schools.

This program was tabled at the last budget meeting.

The program proposed would cost $30,000 which would have to be approved for the budget. However, a student fee of $42. is contemplated, which would bring a return of $39,000 or $9,000 over the amount of money to be appropriated, Miss Scanlan said.

Classroom sessions would be given within the school during the day. Behind-the-Wheel drive would take place after school hours. This would be for either a full year or four-tenths of a year. It would involve some shifting of school personnel, Miss Scanlan said, but the cost of the teacher is included in the estimated expense, and those previously involved are still available with the school system.

This is one of four alternative suggestions made by Arthur Woodward, a member of the instructional planning team for the entire school curriculum.

The driver education program was originally tabled because Quincy is spending $50,000 per year on driver education and receiving no return from fees.

Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth Firms Combat Oil Pollution

A cooperative battle plan to combat oil pollution on the Town and Fore rivers has been developed jointly by eight companies fronting the waterways.

Their voluntary program, unique in this area's industrial history, calls for pooling resources and personnel to prevent and fight oil spills.

The eight firms, united as the Tri-City Industrial Oil Pollution Committee, are:

Cities Service Oil Co., Proctor and Gamble Manufacturing Co., Mobil Oil Corporation, Quincy Oil Co., Boston Edison Co., C. H. Sprague and Son Co., East Coast Services and the Quincy Shipbuilding Division of General Dynamics.

They formed the pollution committee last October on the suggestion of Weymouth Selectman William G. Rennie, Jr., chairman of his town's emergency oil spill committee.

In a written report to Rennie this week, members of the industrial committee said they have agreed in principal to a pollution-fighting program and they will finalize the plan at their next meeting, Feb. 6.

The battle plan is the first phase of the committee's two-part program. It calls for developing a cooperative strategy to combat oil pollution and then to cooperate to prevent pollution.

A committee spokesman said the group's initial objective is to protect public and private properties from accidental oil spills in the rivers.

"But our primary objective," he said, "is to prevent the spills from occurring at all."

In their report to Rennie, the committeemen noted that the prevention phase of their program will be more difficult to accomplish.

They said the prevention program will involve local, state and federal agencies, including the naval services, merchant ship operators and the eight member firms.

At their next meeting, they plan to launch the prevention phase of their program.

Use Labels To Correct Name, Address Changes On Tax Forms

If your name or address has changed, the Internal Revenue Department has asked that the necessary corrections be made on the pre-addressed label on forms received in the mail.

Many income tax errors, particularly those that delay refunds, can be eliminated by use of this label, according to William E. Williams, District Director of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts. These labels can be quickly identified and processed since they contain necessary identifying information.

Taxpayers should also verify that their correct social security number is entered on their return.

The filing deadline for 1969 tax returns is April 15, of this year.

Sunbeams

Most political observers think this will definitely be Mayor James R. McIntyre's 'Last Hurrah' at the city level.

They're convinced he will step down after completing this--his third--term.

But sources very close to His Honor aren't that sure. Right now they wouldn't be surprised to see him do an FDR--seek a fourth term in 1971.

WHAT'S Joe Namath really like? Well, Quincy's Jim Colclough, former Boston Patriot, now a partner with Namath in "Bachelor's Three" of Boston was asked about him as guest speaker at the recent South Shore Mothers of Twins Fathers' Night. Namath, said Jim, is an "honest, lovable and dedicated athlete."

And, added Jim: "Believe [only] half the stories you hear about him and don't be misled by some news-hungry journalists."

As for youngsters playing football, Colclough had these words: "Football is basically a contact sport and parents must not push their youngsters into such a physical enterprise. On the otherhand parents should "not discourage their children from participating in any sport."

Noting the size and speed of present professional football players, Colclough noted: "I would find it very difficult to break into the leagues today."

HAVE YOU had your photo taken for your new driver's license yet? If you smiled, you shouldn't have, says the Automobile Legal Association.

"But we wonder how many drivers are smiling when they're stopped by a police officer and asked to show their driver's license.

"Perhaps drivers ought to be photographed frowning."

In other words, a frown would be a truer identification. So, watch the birdie and--frown!

Arts Foundation Continuation Is Urged By Mayor McIntyre

Continuation of the National Foundation of the Arts and Humanities has been urged by Mayor James R. McIntyre in a letter to President Richard R. Nixon.

"Though science plays an important role in our nation's development, neglect of the arts and ignorance of historical origins cut heavily into to spiritual unity of our nation," Mayor McIntyre wrote.

"We have achieved a high technical level but the humanism necessary to guide this technology must also be given the same opportunity to emerge."

Copies of the letter were sent to John R. Watts, Senators Edward M. Kennedy and Edward W. Brooke and Congressman James A. Burke.

FIRST DELIVERY of 1970 for General Dynamics Quincy Division will be the U. S. Navy submarine tender L. Y. Spear shown here passing through Fore River Bridge for at-sea trials. The trials earned a "hearty well done" for the Quincy yard and the Spear, which is scheduled to be delivered to the Navy at Norfolk, Va., about Feb. 6.

Quincy Submarine Tender Gets 'Well Built' Verdict

The submarine tender USS L. Y. Spear has earned the Navy's praise as "a well-built ship" after her preliminary acceptance trials in Massachusetts Bay.

"There's a lot of quality in that ship and you [the Quincy yard] deserve a hearty 'well done,'" said Rear Adm. John D. Bulkeley, head of the Navy's Board of Inspection and Survey.

She will "surpass any capability the Navy's submarine force now has," said another member of the board after the two days of at-sea trials and two days of dockside inspections.

The board said that the 644-foot Spear will be ready for delivery to the Navy in Norfolk, Va., on or about Feb. 6. She will operate out of Norfolk, servicing the Atlantic fleet.

O'Connell Says Rent Control 'Rental Destroyer'

O'Connell said the chief cause of widespread rent increase from 1967 to 1969 has been "skyrocketing real estate taxes."

He said that school and welfare costs--not rent control--are the logical places to start to reduce spiraling costs.

O'Connell, in a prepared statement declared:

Rent control is one of those beguiling rhetorical expressions, like "snob Zoning" and "soak the rich" that actually hurts those it is intended to help.

Elected officials, whether they represent a super ghetto, a stable industrial or commercial area, or a middle-class suburban residential community, seem to feel that rent control is the solution to high rents, and any citizen or organization that speaks out in protest is labeled "enemy of the poor and the elderly."

Rent control usually starts with foot-in-the-door type legislation, and ultimately spreads to include commercial and retail real estate. Rent control is usually passed just before an election. Sometimes it is an innocuous-like start in public housing.

Rent gouging is a heinous social crime that should be prevented by appropriate legislation, because public good must be put ahead of private interest. Rent control, however, is equally condemnatory. It affects every property owner – the slum lord who represents, fortunately, a small minority in number, and the lawful landlord.

Rent control dries up bank mortgage money.

New apartment construction usually falls off about 20 per cent a year with the advent of rent control. In addition, rent control has a devastating blighting effect on rental property.

It creates a paralyzing housing shortage.

The chief cause of widespread rent increases in the 1967-1968-1969 period has been skyrocketing real estate taxes.

Most of these tax increases are beyond the control of municipalities, and, unless some financial aid is forthcoming soon, there is no end in sight.

Either municipalities must broaden their tax bases through new building construction, or the Federal Government must assume a larger share of the cost of municipal governments.

School costs and welfare costs seem the two most logical places to start.

Rent control is not the answer.

Basiliere, president of the Quincy Education Association, has returned from Washington, D.C. where he conferred with educators and the Massachusetts Congressional delegation this week seeking support to override President Richard M. Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

Q. When is the white carpet put in position?

A. The white carpet is actually canvas and usually starts where the wedding is to take place. It is hired from the florist if the church does not have one. Be sure to measure the church aisle and include stairs to altar if there are stairs. It should extend to the entrance door of the church. It is folded in pleats.

After the bride's mother has been seated and just before the processional two ushers walk down the aisle and with their outside hand pick up the corner of the canvas turn, and walk back up the aisle, holding firmly to carpet corner.

Upon reaching the back of the church they should pull it tightly to remove any wrinkles. If the aisle is particularly long it would be wise to check it about midway.

Q. I am being married for the first time. However, I am marrying a widower, can I wear the traditional white gown and veil?

A. By all means wear a bridal gown and veil. The bride may wear white when it is the first marriage and be as traditional as her heart desires. The bride who is married for the second time though, should never wear white or a veil. Her wedding should be a very conservative and quiet affair.

Q. I have very large arms although I wear a size twelve dress. What is the best sleeve style for me?

A. The new bishop sleeve is ideal for girls with your problem. This is a full sleeve to the wrist with a narrow band at the bottom. If only the upper part of the arm is your problem then a juliet sleeve will do equally as well. This is a sleeve with a puff from the shoulder to just above the elbow.

Now that the bridal season is again coming up fast there must be hundreds of questions going through the minds of brides and mothers. Please don't hesitate to write me your problems in care of the Quincy Sun. I will be happy to answer them in this column.

Wig Tips FOR THE LADIES

By Sabina

AFTER YOU'VE BOUGHT YOUR WIG

Once you've purchased your wig, it must be taken to a hairdresser to be styled, trimmed and set before you can wear it properly. That is, unless you've purchased it at a wig botique or beauty salon where this can all be done at the same time. This step is necessary, so don't try to cut corners here. No matter how carefully a wig is made, it is going to hang differently on each wearer according to the contours of her head and the angle in which she wears the wig.

Don't expect a wig to look perfect the first time you wear it. Usually, it has to be thinned in certain places or cut again or restyled before it's 100% right for you.

Synthetic wigs especially will usually need some custom cutting and thinning around the hairline.

Necessary Changes To Be Subject At First Parish Dinner Feb. 4

Dr. Josiah R. Bartlett of The Wright Institute, Berkeley, Calif., will speak Feb. 4 at a 6:30 p.m. formal parish dinner at United First Parish Church [Unitarian].

Dr. Bartlett's subject will be "Moment of Truth," which is the title of his latest book dealing with changes necessary today in institutional religion if it is to remain relevant to the times.

Dr. Bartlett is a former president of Starr King Theological School in Berkeley, a training school for Unitarian Universalist ministers.

The program has been planned as a part of proposed change and development as a "Modern Church With Deep Roots," by United First Parish Church, according to Dr. Bradford E. Gale, minister.

Dr. Gale points out that the Quincy church has been in existence for a "third of a millenium" as the original parish church of Quincy, and that it is a national shrine as the burial place of two presidents of the United States. Due to the coming of rapid transit and the development of a government center opposite the church, the congregation has started plans for its own change.

The dinner is under the direction of the churchmanship and adult education committees of the parish as well as the governing Board of Assessors. Dr. and Mrs. Gale, Dr. Joseph E. McDermott, Bryan L. Donovan, Charles F. Park and Robert Offenbach are leaders of the committees.

Interested youth of the parish will be special guests, together with Richard A. Steckel, Director of International Programs of the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee.

The musical program will consist of cello solos by Mrs. John E. Krasinski, accompanied by Mrs. Graton G. Howland. The Friendship Team will be hostesses, and the Merrymount Team will conduct a food sale.

Come. Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'When I Jog'

I jog a mile each morning...rain or shine...snow or clouds...6 degrees or 60 degrees...about 15 minutes...good for me I think... muscles...heart...lungs...and especially my disposition.

Our handsome red Irish Setter, Princess, runs by my side. You already know that she's the recent mother of five of the cutest, most affectionate little red pups...three are sold...two remain to be sold...only to "good" homes who will love them as we have. She's regaining her figure and acquaintances...and I too. I talk to her as we run. She touches my left hand with her cold wet nose. It's fun...and healthy...and we see and hear interesting things.

As we approach one corner we hear music...I like it...we slow the pace. It's an outside speaker and I imagine the happy atmosphere inside that house...a man singing in the shower...a warm, loving wife still in lingerie preparing the breakfast for her respected husband and well-adjusted children...soon they'll all be kissing and hugging each other as they say goodbye and head for school and work. I like that corner...we always slow down as we go by...because just going by the happy place makes me happier.

When we go by another house..[I'll omit the address]..we have heard quarreling...a woman screaming...children crying...the loud hostile threatening voice of a man punctuated with the common three- and four-letter words not used to create warm sexual stimulation as some people use them...but used in anger to hurt...to degrade. one morning we heard dishes crashing...and Princess looked up at me with mixed fear and disgust. We don't slow down in that block now. It's a depressing strip...so we run a little faster.

Now these are the two extremes we have encountered on our morning run...and I'm sure that in every home we pass there are varying degrees of these two contrasting home situations...in my neighborhood...in yours...in big houses...in little houses...poor houses and rich houses. What really makes the difference which attitude prevails...the one with the music or the one with dishes crashing?

The difference is the preparation for marriage...for adult life...for relationship in family life. The dish-crashing people have not learned how to communicate...they yell and resort to emotional explosions rather than rational conversation. The same topics likely arise in every home. The persons in the home from which music pours out have learned to talk and listen and feel with each other. Communication is very necessary in any relationship. Where the dishes crash, the conflicts remain unresolved. Where the music plays, they resolve conflicts and get on with life.

Many quarrels in homes have something to do with the sex life...refusals...rejections...resentments...bargaining...punishing ...one feeling cheap...or used...or guilty. Clearly these " people aren't adequately prepared for marriage. But isn't that just the problem? WHO PREPARES US FOR SEX IN MARRIAGE? I don't believe one father in 100 tells his son the truth about how to form a good relationship with a girl...how to treat her...how to make love with her. I don't mean superficial talk...I mean real truth.

I don't believe one mother in 100 tells her daughter the truth about how to form a good relationship with a man...how to treat him...how to make love with him. Why not? Fear of pregnancy? Fear of the truth? Lack of good relationship? Many parents are still quarreling over their sexual relationships...too hung up...to embarrassed to help their young people!

There can be little happiness in a home until the man and woman get the male-female relationship squared away...know who they are...and their roles.

As Princess and I run along and see things...and hear sounds...I admire people who have made adjustments in the family relationship so that music issues forth from their home...I feel sorry for people who are still crashing dishes.

Quincy Man Sheds Light On Hereditary Genes

Professor John L. Howland, a Quincy native, is one of two Bowdoin College scientists whose research has shed new light on the mysterious and vitally important process of DNA reproduction.

DNA is the molecule that makes up genes which determine hereditary characteristics.

Prof. Howland of the Department of Biology and Prof. William T. Hughes of the Department of Physics and Astronomy have concentrated on the function of the membrane of the bacterial cell in the process of making more DNA molecules.

Results of their work have been published in the international journal, "Biochemical and Biophysical Research Communications."

Prof. Howland is currently conducting research on energy metabolism at Cornell with Dr. Ephraim Racker, Einstein Professor of Biochemistry there. Dr. Howland is a Phi Beta Kappa and cum laude graduate of Bowdoin '57. He received his Ph.D. degree at Harvard and joined the Bowdoin faculty in 1963.

Quincy Receives $7,675 In Copper Piping Case

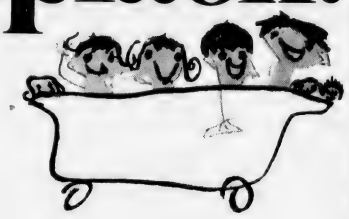
Quincy city officials have received a check for $7,675 from Attorney General Robert H. Quinn's office, representing a portion of the $500,000 settlement recovered in the favorable settlement of an anti-trust case against 10 copper piping companies accused of price-fixing.

The payment constitutes two-thirds of a total $11,500 which will eventually be returned to Quincy, Quinn said.

Approximately 85 towns and cities and 35 housing authorities in the state share in the $500,000 settlement.

The anti-trust suit against the copper and brass producing companies was brought by Massachusetts and various other states and public agencies in 1967 at the United States District Court in Philadelphia.

Among the 10 defendant corporations were Anaconda, American Brass Company, Calumet and Hecla, and Phelps Dodge Company.



In announcing the settlement, Quinn said:

"It is the average taxpayer who suffers most from violations of our anti-trust laws. My office will act to preserve free competition in this state against those who would illegally price-fix or attempt to monopolize."

Social Security, Medicare Senior Forum Subject

"Social Security and Medicare" will be the subject of the first in a series of Senior Forums Feb. 4 sponsored by the Quincy Council on Aging.

The forums will be held at the Senior Citizens Drop-In Center at 24 High School Ave., starting at 2 p.m. All persons 60 years and older from Quincy and vicinity are invited, according to Donald Strong, director of the Quincy Council on Aging.

Frank Culkin, manager of the Quincy Social Security Office, and Miss Betty Duffley, field representative from Social Security, will speak at the first forum.

They will discuss changes in Social Security legislation, benefits available under Medicare, and the way senior citizens can receive all the services to which they are entitled. Questions will be welcomed.

Subsequent forums will be held on the first Wednesday of each month. Subjects to be discussed include: Old Age Assistance, Pending Legislation on the Interest of Senior Citizens; Employment Opportunities, Housing, and Health.

Medicare Patients Must Pay $52 For First 60 Hospital Days

People covered by Medicare entering a hospital in 1970 will have to pay $52. of the bill for the first 60 days of inpatient care, according to Frank G. Culkin, manager of the Quincy Social Security Office.

From 61 to 90 days the patient's share has risen to $13. of daily costs, and over 90 days the patient will pay $26. per day.

If after at least three days of hospitalization, and skilled care is required in an approved extended care facility, the complete cost for the first 20 days will be paid for by a patient's hospital insurance. For the 21st through the 100th day of services in the facility, providing the patient still requires skilled extensive care, he will be responsible for $6.50 a day.

This increase in deductibles payable by Medicare beneficiaries is due to the annual review required by law of hospital insurance costs under Medicare. The new $52. deductible is the average national cost of one day of hospitalization.

Culkin added that in a year nearly six million of the 20 million Medicare beneficiaries are admitted or readmitted to a hospital. The average Medicare hospital stay now costs $700.

A Reliable Directory Of Goods And Services

Well, if you go in circles around the Fore River traffic rotary, you soon find the place to stop your wandering...CHUCK WAGON Roast Beef, Inc., Washington St., Quincy Point.

When you walk to the window of CHUCK WAGON you'll see a modern electronic spit, slowly turning a dripping chunk of roast beef, and the smell of expertly cooked meat will remind you that winter certainly doesn't last all year long.

Owned and managed by Dave Chew, CHUCK WAGON specializes in roast beef sandwiches, "per pound" sales of roast beef, chicken and turkey, and Dave Chew's favorite, the Party Platter...a giant platter of fresh-sliced roast beef, rolled and speared and garnished.

According to Dave, one Party Platter can serve up to a dozen or more people, and can be ordered months in advance. Most people want Party Platters for get-togethers, but occasionally someone will order Party Platters simply for the convenience and the good eating.

In addition to the popular Party Platter, CHUCK WAGON Roast Beef has quick window service which features the South Shore's first 1/4 lb. Roast Beef sandwich; chicken dishes; turkey combinations; beverages and ice-cream.

The 1/4 lb roast beef sandwich, an "original" with CHUCK WAGON, is a part of its legend. "We always weigh the roast beef for each sandwich. We must always see the needle go past the 1/4 lb. mark before we can make it into a sandwich," affirms Chew.

CHUCK WAGON Roast Beef, all the way from its catered Party Platters to its 1/4 lb. sandwiches, will keep you free from going in circles. Make a bee-line for the CHUCK WAGON.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. Where can I get one of those books published by the Federal Government which explain the income tax rules?

A. The booklet entitled "Your Federal Income Tax", may be obtained from your local I.R.S. office at the cost of 60 cents.

Q. We sold our home in 1969. I had to pay the bank $200 as a penalty for paying off the mortgage early. Is this deductible?

A. Yes. The amount charged by the bank would be deductible by you as interest on Schedule A of Form 1040 if you itemize deductions.

Q. During 1969, I contributed about four hours a week of my own time teaching Sunday school for my church. Is this deductible?

A. No. The value of time or services that you contribute to a qualified organization is not deductible.

Q. Perhaps you could help me with a tax question that I have. We spent over $800 to repair damages caused by termites which infested our home. Do I have a legitimate casualty loss?

A. No. Under the law, a casualty is defined as the complete or partial destruction of property resulting from an identifiable event of a sudden, unexpected or unusual nature. A casualty loss for termite damage is not allowed because the "suddeness" test is not met. Damage from termites usually does not occur until after two years following the original infestation of the property.

Q. My husband died in October. I have completed a joint return but am not sure about signing his name. What should I do.?

A. If an executor or administrator has been appointed, the return must be signed by him and the surviving spouse. If no executor or administrator has been appointed, the surviving spouse may either: [1] sign his or her own name, and in the space provided for the other spouse's signature, sign his or her name again, followed by "Surviving Spouse," or [2] sign his or her name only once, followed by, "Taxpayer and Surviving Spouse."

Q. My wife and I attended a dinner sponsored by our church. The proceeds were used for the church's mortgage reduction fund. Is the amount I paid for the tickets deductible?

A. If the dinner was sponsored by a qualified charitable organization, then a portion of the ticket price may be deductible. For instance, if the tickets to the dinner cost you $25 and the dinner provided would normally cost $10, then your charitable contribution would be $15.

Q. I won a trip to Las Vegas from an oil company. The trip was valued at $700. Do I have to report this on my tax return?

A. Yes. Prizes and awards, whether in cash, goods or services are taxable.

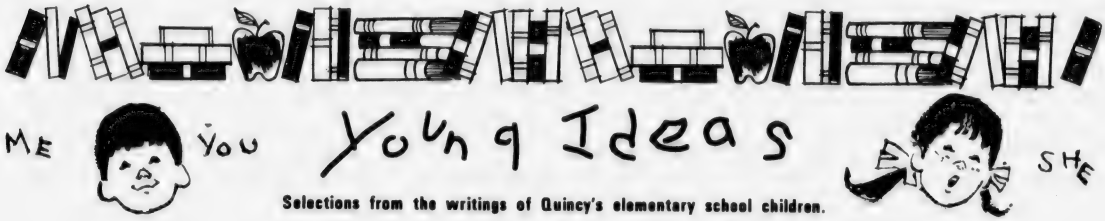
Q. I got married in 1969 and my wife and I wish to file a joint return. Should I use the forms I received in the mail imprinted with my name only?

A. Yes, but add your wife's first name and Social Security number to the mailing label.

Q. We are expecting a baby next August. When can my husband start claiming an additional withholding exemption?

A. Your husband can change his withholding exemptions any time after the baby is born. Form W-4 is used for this purpose.

Q. I had ten shares of a certain stock. Last year the stock split two for one. I now have twenty shares. How do I report the gain on the stock split?



A. There is no gain on the stock split itself. Gain is reported only when the shares are sold or exchanged. To compute the gain, you must first distribute your original cost over the twenty shares you now own as a result of the split. For example: If the original ten shares cost you $80, you must reallocate the cost to the twenty shares. This will result in a basis of $4 per share. If you then sold 8 shares at $6 per share, your gain would be $16 [$48-$32].

Q. My son attends parochial school. Since I am paying his tuition to the church, can I deduct this amount as a charitable contribution?

A. No. A contribution is deductible only if made without any consideration or benefit coming to the donor. Since in your situation, you son is receiving an education, the amount paid is not deductible as a charitable contribution.

Q. I borrowed my brother's car to go to the beach one day last summer. While driving home, I was involved in an accident. My brother did not have insurance and it cost $500 to have the car repaired which I paid. Can I take this as a casualty deduction on my 1969 return?

A. No. A casualty deduction can only be claimed by the owner of the property involved. In this case, it was your brother who suffered the casualty but since he was reimbursed by you, he does not have a deduction either.

Blue

Blue is the color of the sky,
When all the birds decide to fly.

The color I like is really Blue,
Like the clouds are stuck with glue.

Blue is a color that really is true
Like the time when God Loves you.

Blue is the color of this day,
When the whole flowers come out in May.

The Mixed Up Feet

Once there was a boy who had a mixed up pair of shoes. On his right foot there was a desert boot and on his left foot there was a sneaker. The desert boot was used for the desert. The sneaker was used for gym and recreation and sports too. One day he went to the desert and the sneaker did not hold but the desert boot held. One day he went to recreation and could not get in because of rubber soles. The next day he threw them away and then he got a brand new pair of desert boots and sneakers.

Paul Bunyan And The Moon Man

In Main there was a man named Paul Bunyan and he had an ox named Babe. They both wanted to know what the moon man looked like. Two months passed. It was the night before Christmas and Paul's friend found out what Paul and his ox wanted to do. When it was Christmas, Paul's friend brought him a space ship as big as the State of Maine. Paul was in his space ship with his ox. Three days passed. They were on the moon. They looked on every crater on the moon. They found the Man on the Moon and took him to Earth and lived there for good.

We were studying about the human body.

One day Captain Shea and Chief Barry from the fire department came to Room 6. They brought a dummy named Annie.

They were showing the class how to do rescue breathing. We all tried to do it. Then my teacher did it. Now I would know if someone stopped breathing how to help them.

Another day a boy in my room's mother came and showed us how we see and hear. Her name was Mrs. Francis. She is a nurse and works in the Boston City Hospital. We enjoyed having visitors come to our room to show us things.

Paul Bunyan On The Moon

Once their was a man named Paul Bunyan. Once he roped the gasses around Saturn and swung to the moon. When he got on the moon he dived into a crater and came, out the other side caught the rope, and went back to earth. Then he took lumber, swung back and made as many houses as he could.

Paul Bunyan Takes A Moon Trip

One fine evening Paul Bunyan, said to Babe "Lets go to the moon." For a week everyone in town was talking about Paul and Babe going to the moon. At last they decided to go. They didn't take a spaceship. Alls they did was to take one giant step. When Paul Bunyan took a deep breath there was gravity on the moon. When they got to the moon they found little rubber men. They took all the rubber men and made houses out of them. After a week everyone in the U.S.A. lived on the moon.

Paul Bunyan On The Moon

One day there was a man who was forty-six feet tall. His name was Paul Bunyan. Paul wanted to see what it was like on the moon. So one day he went out to the country and asked some farmers if he could have their old shovels from their tractors. Then Paul took the shovels and banged them together. After that was done Paul took a walk and came upon an ox that was all blue. He made friends with the ox and they pushed Paul's ship until they were on the moon. They got out and walked around but when they stepped on the moon, it shook! The monsters on the moon got scared and Paul got scared too. So Paul and the ox ran away and they never came back again.

Furry Shoe

The Space Shoe

Once I was a space shoe and a man put my brother and myself on. Then he put on other things. Then he went into a rocket. My friend space shoe told me that the man that put my brother and myself on is going to go on the moon. In a little while we blasted off and it was very hot. My feet didn't hurt because the man was floating in the air when we reached outer space. We were coming to the moon. The man walked into a funny room that was another rocket which is going to go on the moon. The two rockets unhitched. We were going down on the moon and in a little while he opened the door and climbed down the ladder and slowly he stepped on the moon. The dirt felt very soft and it wasn't hard as a rock. Then he walked around, and picked up some dirt and put it in a bag. Then he went up the ladder and went inside. Then we blasted off and hitched up with the other rocket. The man got into the other rocket. The rocket that landed on the moon just stayed there. On the way home I felt very light in the rocket. When we splashed down I felt a big bump. It felt like I was rocking in a rocking chair. A ship came to take us home. When I got home they put me and my brother with our friends.

HOUSE CALL

By Dr. Charles Djerf
Pediatrician

Yeah Man! Ban The Pill

Ban the pill! Go ahead, ban the pill! Another fertile cause on which to take a stand. Another slogan for the zealot. Why ban the pill? Cuz that's where the money is, man - I mean, like...less kids, then less need for the pediatrician. So, y'see, I have my reasons. Yeah, I have my reasons, and so does just about everyone else who takes a stand on this issue. So let's march on Washington.

First, a little bit about "the pill". The "pill" comes in various shapes and sizes, and colors. Each drug manufacturer has his own drug, by its own name. I can't keep up with them all. Much of the early work was done on this line of drugs in the Boston area by Dr. John Rock.

Dr. Rock was not trying to develop an oral contraceptive, but was interested in a drug that would help regulate menstrual periods in women otherwise very irregular [menstrually speaking, that is]. The usefulness of this drug as an oral contraceptive was soon noted, and the rush was on.

The pills were well tested on a large number of women in Puerto Rico. Some complications were noted, but these seemed insignificant, and the drugs were approved.

Their usefulness in regulating periods is unquestioned, and their effectiveness at regulating family size is notable. They are not 100% effective, but their 99 44/100% effectiveness at least is higher than the next highest, the IUD [intra uterine device], which is slightly over 95%. Abstinence is 100% effective.

Recently there has been a lot of noise made about the pill, and our news media has carried SOME of the information. The physician that received most of the coverage was a Doctor Davis, from John's Hopkins University. He was "agin the pill". What he had to say has frightened many women. Isn't it interesting to note that this man, that thinks "the Pill" is so dangerous, is also a developer of a new type of IUD [the coil].

What are your chances for serious complications if you take oral contraceptives? About 3-4 per 100,000. Serious complications from pregnancy or about 25-30 times that frequent, and serious complications from abortion, especially the kind not done in the hospital, and usually sought by the unfortunate young mother or teenager, is many, many times higher still.

Everything that happens to a person on the pill isn't because of the pill. Yet the question is still asked - "What will happen if I take the pill?" I chuckle when I think of the young mother who gets in her car, drives down the Southeast Expressway to visit her obstetrician, smokes three cigarettes in the waiting room then asks "what are the dangers in taking the pill?" But they do it every day.

Some others, who take pro and con stands on the "pill" also have reasons other than pure science. Take, for example, the planned parenthood zealot. Also, some tend to get morals and their religion mixed in with their science. This is all right, as I do this some myself, but you have to remember to take us in context.

The decision is a personal one. You have to decide, after considering all available facts. But being as "honest" as all the others, I say "Yeah man, ban the pill". If enough mothers stop taking it, there will be more babies, more work, and I'll be able to send my kids to college. Ridiculous, ain't it?

Marshall Appeals For Passage Of Two Strike Benefit Bills

Rep. Clifford H. Marshall of Quincy has made a personal appeal to Rep. Anthony Scalli [D-Charlestown], Chairman of the Committee on Commerce and Labor, in behalf of two strike benefit proposals filed this year by the Massachusetts State Labor Council AFL-CIO.

Marshall spoke in favor of Bill S-186 calling for payment of unemployment benefits after six weeks of dispute if the employer refuses to arbitrate.

The second bill, S-262, provides for payment of unemployment benefits immediately to all employees who become unemployed if the employer engages in a lock-up.

Marshall said unemployment benefits which would be payable under either bill would be 50% of an individual's average weekly wage up to a weekly maximum of 52½% of the state-wide average weekly wage [now about $62.] plus six dollars per week for each dependent.

Commenting on the two strike proposals, Marshall told chairman Scalli that the only question is how these proposals should be administered.

"Should we continue to provide these payments through public welfare [some of the GE striking workers have applied for welfare] paid by all the taxpayers of the State," Marshall asked.

"Or will we at long last insist that these payments be made through the unemployment compensation system paid for collectively by the industrial and business structure itself?"

Adoption of the two bills was termed by Marshall the only "fair and responsible alternative."

Marshall urged immediate approval by Chairman Scalli's committee and asked that the committee consider these proposals of utmost importance to workers of the Commonwealth.

The two bills later in the day were favorably reported out of the Committee on Commerce and Labor and referred to the Senate Ways and Means Committee for action this week.

Against:

Chamber Of Commerce Delegation Opposes Strike Benefit Bills

A delegation from the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce appeared before the Commerce and Labor Committee of the Massachusetts General Court last week to testify against certain strike benefit bills.

The delegation was composed of representatives from Armstrong Cork Company; Howard Johnson Company; Mathewson Machine Works; Boston Gear Works; Coca-Cola Company; Walworth Company; Procter & Gamble and the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

The Senate Bills were S186, dealing with unemployment compensation benefits in labor dispute after six weeks arbitration has been refused and S262 regarding lock-out unemployment compensation benefits.

The Commerce and Labor Committee has traditionally voted in favor of strike benefits legislation.

During this election year, the Chamber said it hopes that the legislators will consider the overall effects to the economy of Massachusetts and what passage of legislation, unfavorable to the business climate will bring about.

The Chamber offered as examples:

During 1969 52 plants closed their doors due to economic problems experienced in Massachusetts, and 9,500 people lost their jobs. There are another four firms employing 1,000 on the verge of going out of business. Already in 1970, at least 300 people are out of jobs due to closings.

While many factors contributed to these closings, excessively high manufacturing tax, unemployment compensation and other laws and proposed laws are threatening minimal profit margins, the Chamber said. Prospective new industry is waiting to see what will happen on the strike benefits bills, while existing industry is becoming more apprehensive about increasing investments in the area, the Chamber said.

The Chamber said it and other business organizations are urging businessmen to contact their legislators and point out the danger of the strike benefits bills.

GEORGE GEIGER

FRANK HORAN

Former shipbuilding apprentice George Geiger, credited with doing the "impossible" last year by building a shipyard in less than nine months and having it fully operational within the year, has been named assistant director of operations at the Quincy Shipbuilding division of General Dynamics.

His appointment was announced by Lloyd Bergeson, corporate vice president and general manager of the Quincy Shipbuilding division.

In his newly created position, Geiger will help direct the shipyard's 6000-man production force in construction of naval and merchant ships.

He joined General Dynamics from Litton Industries Erie Marine Inc. shipbuilding facility in Erie, Pa., where he had been president and general manager the past two and one-half years.

Since launching his shipbuilding career in 1951 as an apprentice shipfitter at the Pudget Sound Naval Shipyard, Bremerton, Wash., Geiger has worked in nearly all phases of the industry, from tradesman to senior executive.

Geiger joined Litton Industries in 1966 after have ascended through a variety of trade and supervisory roles, at Bremerton and the Todd Shipyard in Los Angeles, Calif.

For Litton, Geiger was assigned to develop, construct and organize an automated shipyard at Erie, Pa., to build 1000-foot ore-carrying ships. He placed that shipyard in operation Jan. 2, 1969 -- less than nine months after ground breaking -- and had it in full and successful operation within the year.

Geiger was born April 3, 1934, at Dalles, Ore. His advanced education was received at several colleges, including Olympic College in Washington and the University of California at Los Angeles.

Frank Horan, a General Dynamics shipbuilder since 1940, has been named director of operations at the Quincy Shipbuilding division of the corporation, General Manager Lloyd Bergeson has announced.

For the past several months, Horan has been a special assistant to the general manager. Earlier, he was director of the General Dynamics DD963 destroyer proposal program.

Horan joined the Electric Boat division of General Dynamics, Groton, Conn., in 1940. Among his responsibilities there were direction of all division design activities during development of the first nuclear submarine, Nautilus, and direction of all shipyard activities during development of various classes of nuclear submarines, including those in the Polaris Program.

Later, as special assistant to the president of the division, he directed capital equipment and long range facility planning.

Horan transferred to the Quincy Shipbuilding division in November, 1966. He was acting design manager before being named to key assignments on three major shipbuilding contract proposal teams.

Horan is a graduate of Tri State College, Indiana, and has participated in the senior executive development program at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

O'Connell Praises Burke For Shipbuilding Progress

Rep. James A. Burke [D-Milton] has won the praise of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce for his record in Congress, particularly his work in revitalizing the shipbuilding industry on the South Shore.

William A. O'Connell, executive vice president of the chamber, said in a letter to Burke:

"The shipbuilding industry, the dominant generator of the economy of the Quincy-South Shore area, has recently shown signs of revitalization.

"There appears to be plans to build up the American Merchant Marine which languishes in sixth position in world standing. The prospective naval construction program also bodes well for the South Shore.

"We recognize that you have always been an ardent supporter of the U. S. Navy and a modern U. S. Merchant Marine fleet capable of carrying U. S. and foreign commerce.

"Due to your leadership, the Fore River-Town River channels project, which involves a total expenditure of over $16 million, will get underway this year."

The occasion for the letter was the recent announcement that Burke had a 100 per cent roll-call record in Congress, which, O'Connell said, "is an indication of your attention to the needs of everyone in the 11th Congressional District."

Quincy Icemen Must Win Two Out Of Three

The Quincy hockey team's chances of winning at least a share of the Greater Boston League title were just about shattered Monday night when it bowed to league-leader Malden, 6-2, at Ridge Arena, but the Presidents will try to keep their state tourney hopes alive Friday night when they face Revere in an 8:30 game at Boston Arena.

Winless North Quincy, defeated by Medford, 7-0, will take on Somerville at 6:45 at the Arena.

Quincy had previously handed Malden its only loss of the year and its first in three years, but in the return match Malden's John Coleman was a one-man game as he had a hand in all six goals, scoring three of them and assisting on the other three.

Malden took a 3-1 lead in the opening period and, after a scoreless middle period, outscored the Presidents again, 3-1, in the finale.

Quincy's third period goal was scored by Chuck Condos with an assist from Don Burke.

Bob Laing's young North team dropped its 11th game in a row as Medford, tied with Quincy for third place, scored twice in each of the first two periods and three times in the final session.

Quincy still has Medford and North Quincy to play after Revere and must win two of them to make the tournament.

Last week Quincy's attack was extremely disappointing for the second game in a row but the Presidents squeezed by Somerville, 1-10.

North turned in one of its finest efforts of a frustrating season but again bowed, 5-0, to Revere.

"This was the second straight game in which we had problems trying to score," Sylvia said. [Quincy scored four times in the final period to top weak Chelsea, 4-1, in its previous game.] "I'm at a loss to explain it. We played like this at the start of the year and if we play like this against one of the stronger clubs, we're going to be skated right out of the place.

"We are not sick or tired. We just had too many chances we didn't take advantage of."

During the game Quincy had 33 shots 'on net' but took an incredible total of 114 shots during the 36 minutes of play.

"All that shooting is meaningless unless you can at least put the puck towards the opponents' net," Sylvia went on.

"Our defensemen have been the worst offenders and are shooting way off target. But there was one bright spot tonight and that was the play of our sophomore goalie, Art Boyle. He stopped their big man [Steve Burlmachi] twice while we were struggling in that third period. It isn't easy for a kid to go out and not be tested much and then have someone like Burlmachi come flying up the ice with his hard shot.

"Artie came up with the big saves for us and he has been doing very well since moving in as the starting goalie. This was his first shutout and I don't expect it to be his last."

[Incidentally, Burlmachi is the number two scorer in the league and going into the Quincy game had 21 points, being first in the league in goals with 15 and adding six assists. His team, with only two wins, had only 27 goals after that game."

The game's only goal was scored by Wayne Milford at 2:59 of the last period as he tipped in a Bill Blake shot from left point.

"This was one of our best efforts despite the score," said a disappointed Laing following North's 5-0 loss. "We played one of our finest periods of the season in the first.

"But then we had our usual letdown in the second period. The second period has been killing us all season."

The first period was scoreless as North goalie Bob Colleran was out-standing, but Revere scored three second period goals and added two in the finale.

"We seem to get 'scared' or something when we have something going for us," Bob continued. "After the good skating first period, we started to bunch up and get caught in the second. We were moving the puck as well as we have all year in the first and third periods and show considerable improvement on clearing our own zone.

"We can get the puck out now but we are going offside too much at the other end. It is breaking up any offense we get going."

Laing hailed the play of Pat McCormick and gave him a lot of the credit for the improved clearing. Pat moved from wing to defense at his coach's request. "Pat has played well this season," Laing said. "I only wish the rest of the kids had played as well. He scored well for us up front and now is helping us on defense."

Laing also lauded Colleran, whom he rates as "probably the most improved player on the team. He had 31 saves and our record is no fault of his."

Defeat Malden

Raiders Seek 6th Win Against Quincy

North Quincy's basketball team, following its finest defensive game of the season, will seek its sixth Greater Boston League win and eighth win overall Friday night when it hosts Quincy.

Tuesday night the Raiders will play at Revere.

Bob Nolan's North team came from behind to defeat Malden, 61-42, Tuesday to make its league record 5-2 and overall mark 7-3 as it strives to qualify once again for the Tech Tournament.

After taking a 14-7 first period lead, the Raiders faltered in the second quarter with only seven points and trailed at halftime, 26-21.

North exploded in the third period to regain the lead, 45-40, and in the final period held the Golden Tornado without a single field goal. Two foul shots were all Malden could tally while North wound up with 16.

"This was an outstanding defensive effort," Nolan said. "Tom Cairnes, our 6-6 sophomore center, played his finest game, scoring 15 points and doing a good job on the boards. Ken Baker [17 points] and Dan McKay [15] also were tremendous as they excelled on defense. McKay committed only one foul in this game and that was late in the game."

Joe Amorosino's North junior varsity topped Malden, 67-48, to make its record 7-2, as Dave Nelson scored 15 points and Leo Papile 10. Bob Flaherty, one of the team's top defensive players, was playing one of his best games until forced out with an injury in the second period.

North's sophomore-studded jayvees had gained its biggest win in its previous game against Somerville, 49-41, with Nelson scoring 13 points and Tony Kelly 10, while Bob McKay and Flaherty stood out on defense.

In the game before that North had won over Brookline, 51-44 to avenge an earlier loss, with Nelson scoring 15 and Papile 12.

Last week North turned in another outstanding performance but two successive three-point plays in the final minutes gave Somerville's powerhouse a 61-56 decision, running its league mark to 6-0 and overall record to 8-1.

A win for the Raiders would have put them into a top tie with the Highlanders but the loss greatly dims North's chances of a second straight league title.

"It was a real tough one for the boys to lose and they played an excellent game," Nolan said. "They led for most of the game but those two three-point plays near the end ruined their efforts." These winning six points were scored by John Olson and Bill Endicott.

The Raiders took a 15-12 first period lead but Somerville moved into a 29-26 advantage at the half. North again took the lead, 42-41, going into the final eight minutes.

For North Rich Sanderson and Bob DeRosa had 16 points apiece and Dan McKay scored 11. North had a 22-[illegible] from the floor.

Kenneth Ames, David Walsh Selected As Quincy YMCA 'Boys Of Month'

Kenneth Ames, 18 Sumner St., Quincy and David Walsh, 15 Talbot Ave., Braintree, were selected as the Quincy YMCA Boys of the Month for November and December.

Over 1000 boys are eligible to receive the award which is not easily achieved. A YMCA boy is chosen each month from October thru May by Paul Harvey, Youth Director and Bruce Knowles, Associate Youth Director. From the eight, one boy is chosen as the YMCA Boy of the Year, and presented a trophy at the Boys' Division Awards Banquet in June.

The award is based on the following qualifications:

Regular attendance in all aspects of YMCA programs; physical, aquatic and club activities.

Cooperation and attitude.

Overall improvement during the month.

The boy who best exemplifies the YMCA code of Spirit, Mind and Body.

Quincy Wins Second, 67-57

Quincy's basketball team, following its second win of the year, goes to North Quincy Friday night for the city Rivals' second Greater Boston League meeting, and Tuesday night will be home to Somerville's powerhouse, undefeated league leader.

In the opening league game, Quincy was nipped by North by a single point but was bombed at Somerville.

Tuesday the Presidents, who are better than their 2-8 record indicates, played their best half of the year at Chelsea and won, 67-57.

Quincy had a 16-11 first period lead and widened it to 37-24 at the half. The Red Devils had a slight edge in the last two periods but it was much too little and too late.

"We had 16 turnovers, not good, but far better than in other games, and only six came in the first half," Coach Marty Finnegan said. "Jim Furfari had 15 points in the first half, Mike Donahue came off the bench and scored four big baskets in the second period, and Richie DiCristofaro, game captain for the first time, scored six points in the second period and led the team, controlling play and holding his man scoreless. It was another fine effort by him."

Quincy actually won the game at the foul line. The Presidents were 23 for 50 from the floor while Chelsea was 23 for 47. But Quincy hit on 21 of 34 foul shots to only 11 of 28 for Chelsea. The Presidents out-rebounded the Devils, 39-30.

Last week the Presidents were again plagued by turnovers, which have hurt them all season. The many turnovers ruined a good shooting night for Quincy as it lost to Revere, 73-55.

"These turnovers have killed us this season," said a disappointed Finnegan. "The boys keep hustling and giving me 100 percent but we just hand the ball over to the other teams too often."

Quincy led, 16-15, after a period but fell behind, 32-28, in the second period and Revere had a big third quarter to open up a 60-43 margin going into the final session.

Quincy shot 20 for 40 from the floor while Revere had 25 for 56. Revere, with a decided height advantage, out-rebounded the Presidents, 42-30.

Quincy Junior High Skates Over North, 6-1

The Quincy Junior High hockey team won its third Greater Boston League game Sunday, topping North Quincy, 6-1. The young Raiders are still looking for their first win.

This is the first season the junior high schools have had an organized league and the makeup of the loop is the same as the GBL varsity league except for Chelsea, which doesn't have a team. B. C. High is filling in for that school. Joining Quincy and North are Malden, Everett, Medford, Somerville and Revere.

Ted Weiderman and Jack Black had two goals in Sunday's win, with Austin Norton and Pete McNally scoring the others. Chipping in with assists were McNally, Norton, Paul Campbell and Jim Prescott.

Mike Flaherty had North's only goal with Mike O'Connell assisting.

Quincy coach Ray Brown has a wider field to choose his players from, selecting them from Central, Sterling, Point and Broad Meadows, while Ken Hayes, North coach, has only Atlantic-North and part of Central to choose from.

North Quincy's Paul Affsa and Quincy's Bob Ciano qualified last week for Saturday's state schoolboy track championships at Boston Garden, while North's John Panarelli finished fifth in the finals of the shot put.

The shot put was the only event which was finished, as there are no facilities for the event at the Garden.

Affsa placed second in the Class A 600, while Ciano qualified in the 'A' mile. Both boys are having outstanding seasons in the Met League.

The Met League's final meets, originally scheduled for Feb. 7, have been moved ahead one day and will be run at Northeastern University. No available track could be found for the 7th.

Ron Bradley, former North Quincy High co-captain, set an Eastern Nazarene College scoring record last week with 45 points in a 98-91 win over Gordon College at North Quincy High gym.

The previous record was 44 scored by Ray Blatz six years ago. Bradley, playing both at forward and guard, hit on an amazing 20 of 25 shots from the floor and added five foul shots.

Both Ron's present coach, Carroll Bradley, and his high school coach, Bob Nolan, agree that Bradley could be playing with any college team in the country. The 6-2, 175-pounder is leading ENC in scoring.

Junior College Hockey Team Showing Steady Improvement

Quincy Junior College's first hockey team has been coming along of late and in its last six games has a 2-1-3 record and an overall mark of 3-5-3 in the Mass. Jr. College league.

In the latest game Quincy blew a 4-0 lead and had to score late in the game to pull out a 5-5 tie with Worcester Junior at Boston Arena.

Rick Jakub, one of the Collejun's standouts, was put out of the game for having an illegal stick as the officials invoked a new and highly controversial rule. With him sidelined, Quincy seemed to fall apart as Worcester, taking advantage of many Quincy penalties, rallied from a 4-0 deficit to lead, 5-4, before Abbotte's tying goal.

Mike Bruno had three goals, Ed Gills and Abbotte one apiece for QJC. Gerry Connelly turned in a good game in the Quincy goal as he was peppered with shots.

In its previous game QJC topped Burdette, 8-5, as Bruno had four goals, Jakub a goal and five assists, Gillis two goals and two assists, Pat Breen one goal, and Abbotte four assists. Connelly returned to goal after being sidelined with a knee injury.

With Connelly out of the lineup, QJC was clobbered by Bryant and Stratton, 12-4, as inexperience in the nets was noticeable. Jakub had three goals and Gillis the other.

HN Post Organizing 'Major' League Team

A "major" league team of boys 15 to 19 years old will be organized by the Houghs Neck Legion Post, according to John J. McNally, athletic director.

The Post has sponsored for eight years a Babe Ruth baseball team, and for two years, a Little League team. The addition of the older group will allow the teams to select a boy when he is eight years old and have him in the organization until he reaches 19.

Francis "Shorty" Donovan will coach the new major league team.

"Our instructors and coaches are the best men in their field," so that the boys not only learn baseball, they also learn sportsmanship and how to be good citizens," McNally said.

St. Moritz Assn. Approves Enclosing Of Shea Rink

The St. Moritz Association will support Reps. Walter Hannon and Arthur H. Tobin in their efforts to have the Shea Rink on Willard St. enclosed by the Metropolitan District Commission.

The bill, filed in the Legislature last week, was given support at the association's recent meeting at which She Rink problems were discussed.

The group decided also to request that Rep. Joseph E. Brett withhold his bill in the legislature to have a swimming pool built by the MDC at the Shea Rink site until the St. Moritz Association can notify its membership by mail and take a vote at the next meeting.

A survey poll indicated that area residents, by 10 to 1, did not support building of a pool in the area.

The association will seek better police protection by the MDC, both inside and outside the rink and especially during evening hours of public skating.

Members will ask also the MDC to plow the St. Moritz Pond behind the Shea Rink for public skating to alleviate over-crowding at the rink during peak skating time. It would also provide an opportunity for children to skate during afternoon hours now assigned to hockey practice.

Edison MacLeod, Willard School PTA president, protested the assignment of after school hours and Tuesday afternoon to hockey practice. Many children who walk the distance from the school to the Rink arrive for only 15 minutes of skating, he said.

The St. Moritz Association will ask the City of Quincy to plow the sidewalks along Willard and West Streets. Residents and small children during snow must now walk on the heavily traveled and dangerous roadways to reach bus stops and school. Councillor Albert R. Barilaro said he would look into this request.

Barilaro announced that pedestrian lights will be installed at the Shea Rink in the spring as soon as the ground is thawed.

Wollaston Federal Savings Elects Milton B. Wiggins Board Chairman

Milton B. Wiggin of 36 Narragansett Rd., Merrymount, was elected Chairman of the Board at the recent organizational meeting of the Board of Directors of Wollaston Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Active in community affairs over many years, he is a past Commodore of Quincy Yacht Club, a member of several Masonic bodies, a 32nd Degree Mason, a member of the American Legion, and has been cited on numerous occasions for community and civic service.

Elected President of the Association was Philip J. Lawrence, who has served the Bank as Executive Vice-President since 1967. Mr. Lawrence, a resident of Groveland, Mass., is a Colonel in the U. S. Army Reserve, a member of the Massachusetts and Federal Bar Association, a director of the Massachusetts Title Insurance Company, a member of Quincy Rotary Club, Taleb Grotto of Quincy, and a long-time amateur radio operator.

Officers re-elected include a former President, Frank A. Marston, President Emeritus; Stanley H. Richards, Vice-President; Mary L. Reilly, Treasurer and Assistant Secretary; George A. McIntire, Comptroller and Assistant Treasurer, John H. Fredrickson, Mortgage Officer and Assistant Secretary; Warren L. Eldridge, Assistant Comptroller; Roy L. Sidelinger, Secretary; and Dr. John M. 'One More Year'

CITY CLERK John M. Gillis lights up cigar for Tupper G. Miller, 87, after the latter was voted another year's extension as a Sewer Department foreman by the City Council. The vote has been an annual ritual since 1952 when Tupper reached age 70. [Quincy Sun Photo by Robert Leo Eng]

Tupper Plans To Retire--At 88

This will be Tupper Miller's last 'one more year'.

Tupper, who at a spry 87, is probably the oldest municipal employee in the nation, again this week requested and was granted a "one more year" extension as a Quincy Sewer Department foreman.

The request--and approval--has been an annual ritual with Tupper and the City Council since 1952 when he reached what for most is mandatory retirement age of 70.

But Tupper, who will be 88 April 14 likes to work.

And because when he went to work for the city in 1937 he came under a special category excluding him from the retirement law, he has been able to stay on the job--with City Council permission.

He got it again this week, for the 18th consecutive year.

Tupper later confided to the Quincy Sun: "This will be my last year."

The cigar-smoking, proud and surprisingly agile shop foreman says he has no intentions of asking for "one more year" in 1971.

But there's little doubt he would still be able to put in a good day's work a year or five years from now. He's still got as much energy as a bottle of vitamin pills.

Times have changed during his marathon tenure. So has the value of the dollar.

And that's another reason for Tupper to keep out of a rocking chair.

Had he retired at 70, he would have received an annual pension of approximately $330 – or about $6.35 a week.

While he works, the pension is deducted from his salary. But it's a good deal for Tupper. Foremen now earn $8,589 a year. For him--less the pension--that runs about $159 a week.

Miller was born in 1882 when Chester Arthur was President.

He is the son of late Quincy Mayor John L. Miller who died in 1914--the only Quincy mayor to succumb in office.

Tupper, blessed with good health, a young outlook on life and an enthusiasm that belies his age, has no litany "do's and don'ts" to attain longevity.

His response to inquiries is simple and direct.

"I like to work," he says.

Next year he'll finally get around to retirement. Eighty-eight isn't a bad age for it.

Ward-By-Ward Hearings On Zoning Is Urged

Ward-by-ward public hearings on the proposed Quincy zoning changes is urged by City Councillor J. Vincent Smyth.

As Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board set Feb. 26 for a general public hearing at the Quincy High School auditorium, the Ward 6 councillor and former council president told the Quincy Sun:

"We have waited 27 years for this," Smythe said. "It is a very important study and it behooves not only members of the Planning Board but members of the City Council to look at each and every individual ward closely, not only for our benefit but for the benefit of the citizens and taxpayers of the area.

"They should have a chance to express their opinions without any haste, and without people from other sections of the City at the same meeting."

Smyth said that he hoped the Planning Board would consider his request favorably. He has already had several calls from people who think this a good idea, he said.

The proposed changes--including density and low-rise and high-rise apartment construction zoning--were released this week in a report by a special Zoning Study Committee.

Mayor James R. McIntyre said he is in the process of studying the report and had no elaborate comment.

"The suggested changes are in the embryo stage," he noted. "These are only proposed changes. They have to go through a very detailed filtering process-hearings by the Planning Board and City Council-before they get to my desk."

Meanwhile, William A. O'Connell, executive vice-president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, said he feels that the committee's recommendations are "based upon sound planning principles."

He said he hoped the proposals would be reviewed carefully and acted on "as soon as possible."

Councillor Smyth, calling for individual ward hearings on the proposals, commented:

"There is some ground for concern. But it is simply a case of the Planning Board and members of the City Council communicating with the taxpayers and home owners. I will keep urging that this be done. It will not take any more time to have hearings for each

Asks Return Of Land

Mayor Seeks Broad Meadows For Community College Site

Mayor James R. McIntyre will seek the return of 117 acres of Broad Meadows land to the city as the site for the proposed $15 million South Shore Community College.

Mayor McIntyre said he will ask the present owner--Massachusetts Electric Co.--to consider returning the land to the city as the proposed college site.

He is writing to John J. Ahern, president of Massachusetts Electric Co., to arrange a meeting to discuss the possibility.

"This would be an ideal site," the Mayor said. "It would also, save the city a considerable amount of money."

He noted that the originally proposed site--an approximate 100-acre tract at Echo Lake near the Braintree line--would cost the city a minimum $1.25 million to acquire.

He said that if the city provides a site, the state will construct and staff the $15 million two-year college which would accomodate between 3,500 and 5,000 South Shore students.

"The Broad Meadows land has been idle since it was purchased," he noted. "I have heard of no plans by Massachusetts Electric to develop it, in the near future. Perhaps it is no longer needed by the company.

"If the electric company would be willing to return the land to Quincy, it would be contributing immeasurably to

Atlantic Church 'Task Force' To Study Impact Of MBTA

A "small task force" to investigate the impact of the MBTA on Quincy has been formed at Atlantic United Methodist Church, according to Rev. Robert E. Bossdorf, pastor.

Burton Millham, trustee chairman, will head the group established at the first meeting of the new church Administrative Board on Monday night.

"There is a feeling that our church is more or less in a critical area," Rev. Bossdorf said, "because it is within a few hundred yards of the North Quincy MBTA Station."

The church is at 65 East Squantum St., near North Quincy High School.

The group will attend a Feb. 24 meeting at Quincy High School when a report will be made by the students of Harvard Business School who have studied the MBTA's possible impact on the City of Quincy.

To encourage church members to become more active in community efforts, the Administrative Board decided also on further aid to the newly formed North Quincy Senior Citizens group which is using the church as a meeting place. Transportation, and help in other ways, was discussed.

The board voted also to offer church facilities to the Quincy Deaf Club, if schedules can be arranged. The Deaf Club building at 25 School St. is being considered as a site for the relocation of the Welfare Department, and the Club has been asked to vacate by June 1.

An Adult Current Events Seminar was planned to start the first Sunday in March, with weekly sessions to be held from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

The Board will schedule also a series of five Family Night programs for church members during the coming year.

HAIR, YE! HAIR, YE! Long hair for men appears to be on its way out, flashes Eddio Scolamiero, the West Quincy tonsorial artist. Regulation and crew-cuts are definitely making a comeback.

Since Christmas, says Eddie, he's been shearing at least two or three long-hair customers a week.

"I cut enough hair off one young fellow the other day to stuff a pillow with," he says. "And you know what he said? He said, "It feels good".

Eddie thinks Beatle John Lennon may have started it with his world-famed haircut. And he noticed that Old Stoneface--Ed Sullivan--has trimmed his somewhat.

Cusick is now confiding to friends that on Christmas Day he received a call from an unidentified person, probably a Quincy resident. The caller demanded that he resign.

Report Based On 'Sound Principles' O'Connell Says

William A. O'Connell, executive vice-president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, sees the recommendations of the Quincy Zoning Study Committee as "based upon sound planning principles."

O'Connell said that he hopes the City Council and Quincy residents will review the report carefully "and act on it as soon as possible."

In a prepared statement, O'Connell declared:

"Quincy is about to make a serious effort to modernize its present Zoning Ordinance. At the time the present ordinance was adopted by the City Council in 1943, zoning was considered a radical movement in land regulatory powers.

"Although many of the existing business intrusions into residential areas, together with residential "inelegants" and an assortment of "eyesores" were legally locked-in, the Ordinance did stop further building of neighborhood mixtures. It provided some degree of guidance for further development, and respected to a considerable degree the principles inherent in a democratic society.

"For example, it divided the city into districts, each with a designed use, heights, and area limits. In the ensuing years the Ordinance has been amended several times.

"In the last few years, as a result of the population explosion and the increasing cost of residential construction - especially single-family homes - and prospects of a new rapid transit service to Quincy, there have been increasing social and economic pressures to rewrite the Zoning Ordinance. At the present time the Courts and the Zoning Appeal Board are confronted with increasing litigation.

"Land values have substantially increased -- in many cases quadrupled.

"Low-rise and high-rise apartments seem to be the only economical means to provide adequate housing to meet the demands of the increasing population.

"Although Boston's population has decreased by about 200,000, conforming to the trend of major eastern cities, Quincy's population has held its own.

"Costs of municipal government are skyrocketing, and every effort must be exerted to broaden the tax base without adversely affecting the quality of living.

"The best method to effect these changes is up-dating Quincy's Zoning Ordinance. Unless this is done, not only by Quincy but by every municipality in the Commonwealth, corrective legislation on a State level can be expected. Witness the recent enactment of the "Snob Zoning" law by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"In June 1967 Mayor James McIntyre appointed a Zoning Review Committee to study new zoning laws and land uses for the city of Quincy. The study has now been completed. We believe that the recommendations in the report are based upon sound planning principles, and upon a carefully evolved development policy that will encourage and guide the future direction of Quincy.

"We hope that the City Council and the citizens of Quincy will review it carefully and act on it as quickly as possible.

There apparently will be no shake-up in Mayor James R. McIntyre's "official family" in 1970.

So far, McIntyre has re-appointed all of his department heads as their terms expire.

Black's Creek Dredging Sought

Dredging of Black's Creek as a flood preventative will be sought "at the earliest possible date" by Mayor James R. McIntyre.

"I am asking MDC Commissioner Howard Whitmore to separate the dredging from a total proposed flood control plan so that it can be done as soon as possible," the Mayor said.

He said the dredging would provide a storage basin in Black's Creek for the swollen Furnace Brook when the tide gates are closed.

The Mayor said the over-flowing Furnace Brook has caused heavy flooding along Armory St. and in West Quincy.

Black's Creek, once dredged, would store the overflow from Furnace Brook and reduce flooding, he said.

New Traffic Woes Seen At Neponset

Neponset Bridge traffic conditions may become a serious problem to Quincy in the very near future, according to Mayor James R. McIntyre.

McIntyre has requested a meeting with MDC Commissioner Howard D. Whitmore, Jr., to discuss the situation.

"I, along with members of my staff, are concerned that as the new bridge is being constructed and the available lanes for vehicular use are decreased in number, the traffic congestion in that area will become acute, particularly in commuter hours," the Mayor wrote.

He is asking Quincy's traffic engineers to consider ways of alleviating the problems before his meeting with Whitmore.

and every individual ward."

The recommendations were made by an 18-member committee, appointed by the Mayor. They represent all sections of Quincy, including civic organizations in their areas.

The greatest and potentially most controversial provisions relate to zoning for apartment houses. Apartment construction in the past five years has outnumbered single family homes by more than 50 to 1, according to Rev. Baharian.

Since land suitable for building is becoming scarce in Quincy, the zoning committee would like to have what remains developed in a manner to bring in the most tax revenue, he said.

The committee considered most seriously the 1,500-foot radius around the MBTA where great changes may be expected.

the education of youngsters in the Quincy and South Shore area. It would also save the city a huge sum of money by eliminating the Echo Lake area, "as a site".

He said that Quincy youngsters now pay approximately $600 per year at Quincy Junior College.

At the proposed Community College, he said, tuition would run about $200 a year.

According to City Hall records, a total of 124.95 acres were sold to Quincy Electric Co. at a cost of $80,800.

Since then some seven acres closest to Sea St. were re-sold leaving a present tract of 117.16 acres.

Wig Tips FOR THE LADIES

By Sabina

ON WIGLETS

A wiglet is a kind of a petite wig set on a flat base shaped in an oval, triangle, or circle. You can attach it with a comb, using some of your own hair for shape or background. Wiglets vary in length and amount of hair, and what you choose will depend on the looks you have in mind.

Wiglets are generally quite versatile, and the best length for styling is from three to six inches. Like wigs, they can be hand-made or machine-made; real hair or synthetic; and they are priced accordingly.

A real hair wiglet has the advantage of being more manageable, more adaptable and more durable. It doesn't have to be hand-made. Machine-made wiglets work equally as well and cost much less.

Just be sure that the base is flexible, comfortable and easy to attach. If your budget won't stretch to real hair, a synthetic cluster will look pretty even if it won't last as long.

Miss Mary S. Monahan Selected For 'Outstanding Young Women' Honors

Miss Mary S. Monahan, daughter of Quincy Post Office Supt. and Mrs. William P. Monahan, has been selected to be listed in the 1969 edition of "Outstanding Young Women of America."

Miss Monahan, now teaching junior high language arts at St. Jerome's School, North Weymouth, is one of six Merrimack College alumnae selected as Outstanding Young Women.

Miss Monahan, who graduated in 1968, majored in English at Merrimack and received her Masters degree in education from Boston State Graduate School in August, 1969.

At Merrimack, she was on the Dean's List and Orientation Committee and was president of Young Republicans.

She was also co-chairman of the Junior Week Committee and of the Junior-Senior Dinner Dance Committee and a member of the Choral Society.

Miss Monahan and the other five Merrimack graduates were honored for their outstanding accomplishments in community service, in religious and political activities and in professional endeavors.

Outstanding Young Women of America is a program designed to recognize the abilities of young women between the ages of 21 and 35 throughout the country who have contributed unselfishly to the betterment of their cummunities, professions, and country.

Each year over 5,000 young women are nominated as Outstanding Young Women of America by leading women's organizations and college alumnae associations across the the country. These young women's complete biographical sketches are featured in the annual compilation, OUTSTANDING YOUNG WOMEN OF AMERICA.

The organization was conceived by leaders of the nation's women's clubs who felt that young women who give their time for community projects should be recognized. They felt that recognition of these young women can serve to inspire others to give their time to additional civic responsibilities. Guidelines for selection include unselfish service to others, charitable activities, community service, professional excellence, business advancement, and civic and professional recognition.

STATE OF THE STATE

by Governor Francis W. Sargent

A MONTHLY REPORT TO THE PEOPLE OF THE COMMONWEALTH

February 25 is a day of great importance to every citizen of Massachusetts.

On that day is scheduled a Joint Constitutional Convention, meaning a gathering of both the Massachusetts House of Representatives and the Massachusetts Senate, to debate and ultimately vote on the question of whether certain matters should be placed before the people of this state as referenda questions on the 1970 election ballot in November.

I have particular reference to the question of whether the voters should have the chance to express their opinion on the question of reducing the size of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

I hold the view the House should be reduced----and I will explain why.

But regardless of that view, I hold the over-riding view that the people of this Commonwealth, should be given the right to express their view in this matter.

Some would deny them that right.

"...I hold the over-riding view that the people of this Commonwealth should be given the right to express THEIR view..."

I can understand disagreement with my view that the House should be cut. I cannot understand disagreement with my view that the people have a right to be heard.

The facts, of course, are that there are some who fear the final judgement of the voters, fear, that is, that the voters will approve reduction of the size of the House, and therefore want no part of an expression by the citizenry by a referendum question.

I believe the people must have the right to be heard and anyone who fears what they say fears the Democratic process itself because, ultimately, he fears the expression of the people.

If those who share my view prevail, and if the question of reducing the size of the House goes on the ballot this Fall, I believe the voters should favor reduction of the House.

I see this as no partisan issue----for, indeed, should the House be reduced, members of both parties will be ultimately removed from office by that reduction.

I see it instead as a simple case of making the government of this Commonwealth more efficient, more responsive, more effective.

Massachusetts has the second largest House of Representatives in America, exceeded only by New Hampshire. California, with triple our population, has only 80 members of its lower House compared to 240 here in Massachusetts. New York, also with a population more than triple our own, has a lower House of 150. Illinois has 177, Connecticut 177, Vermont, 150.

I support the plan to reduce our present 240 membership House to one comprised of 160----a cut of 80 members.

Our present House costs us more than $8-1/2 million, about a third of what we're spending to run all 11 of our State Colleges. That price-tag includes over $1 million for doorkeepers, assistant doorkeepers, general court officers, and pages----more than 90 permanent positions.

A smaller House could liberate money for professional staffing of the remaining lawmakers.

Skilled, specialized, professional men and women could be hired by individual legislators to provide them with the kind of research and study material they should have to do their jobs effectively.

A smaller House will, in my view, attract better candidates for the House. Further, it is my belief that fewer legislators will result in an electorate better informed on the identity of their elected representatives----as is certainly not the case today. And that, in turn, will bring greater public confidence to the Legislature as a whole, for the voters will more favorably regard men and women they know than a faceless group of men and women they do not know.

A smaller House will be a more effective House, one more able to respond quickly to the need of the people, one more efficient in handling the public's business.

I think it axiomatic that if 160 rather than 240 people are involved in a process, that process moves more efficiently.

I say again: Watch the vote February 25 and urge your legislator to vote in favor of permitting you to speak out on the House cut question this November.

Urinary Tract Obstruction

This morning we examined the lower urinary tract of a small boy He was admitted for having passed bright blood in his urine. Although passing blood, even once, may be significant, it had occurred more than once. The mother had observed that he complained of pain along with the blood.

When examined, no masses [suggesting a tumor of the kidneys] were found in the abdomen, nor was his bladder filled, which may have indicated a retention or damming back of his urine.

The penis was inspected for ulcerations - so commonly found in circumcized boys. The opening of his urethra - the opening at the tip of his penis which extrudes the urine was narrow and almost pin-point. This is known as meatal stenosis and is seen predominantly in circumcized males. My preachment against the popular operation continues to fall on deaf ears or dulled minds.

Doctors are as guilty in their profligacy concerning circumcision as is the average parent who has been misguided in the presumed virtues of this needless operation and who could not possibly consider the unnecessary character or the defilement because he would then be unlike the Jones' next door. Heaven forbid!

Well, anyhow, having expostulated and disseminated my antipathies to the winds, as usual, lets get back to the obstruction.

In addition to blocking the normal flow of urine due to the narrowing of the opening, the canal, or uretha, had a mild stricture which was dilated by sounds.

An X-ray, called an I.V.P., in which a dye is put into a vein and periodic X-rays of the kidneys and the entire urinary tract were taken as the dye is excreted by the body, the various collecting and extruding parts are detailed, often showing abnormalities of the kidneys, ureters, bladder, uretha then out. Abnormal valves of the bladder neck may thus be detected.

In this boy's case, the urethra, or penile canal, showed dilatation, indicating the blockage at the very tip.

The Urologist performing the cystoscopy - a procedure in which he visualizes the various parts, also looked for valves in the penis and at the bladder neck.

Examination of the bladder lining or mycosa will often show bleeding points in a condition called Hemorrhagic Cystitis, which is often associated with colds, tonsillitis, and particularly strep infections. This is more common, in our experience, in girls. This condition can recur indicating sensitivity. It is not as alarming as one might expect, but then piddling blood is never a pleasant experience.

Neglect of frequent or repeated urinary tract infection may be a factor in future tragedy - such as pyelonephritis [chronic kidney disease]. Blockage even as far as the outlet may dam back, causing the bladder to lose its tone and even ruin the ureters and kidneys.

Every child with repeated urinary tract infection should at some time have X-rays of their entire urinary system, either as an out-patient or as an in-patient. The latter method has the advantage, at one fell swoop, of determining all the relevant tests.

Lesson - respect blood in the urine unless that unmitigated operation alluded to has also ulcerated the tip of the penis which every unfortunate male gets from ammonia in the urine - of course this condition is benign - but did it have to be?

Paul Bunyan

Once there was a man named Paul Bunyan. He was 80 feet 11 inches tall. Paul had a blue ox called Babe. Babe was a big help to Paul. One day Paul said, "I wish they would stop building freeways in my fingernails". Babe drank rivers dry. Paul ate iron and steel bridges. Paul used trees for tooth picks. One day Paul had to go to the North Pole to get rid of some Polar bears. That is simple. Paul took a big breath and blew the bears to AFRICA.

Peace

Peace is really love, truth and giving. To have peace you should hold these qualities dear. People must realize that everyone is equal - no matter what his name, color, creed or race. When someone has an openheart he will love his neighbor and this love will be returned. We, meaning the people of the world, should unite to make the world a better place in which to live. If we can make our lives really "open" using our heart hands and minds we could create a peaceable world.

Paul Bunyan And Babe On The Moon

Paul Bunyan and his pet Babe were taking off for the moon. The rocket was 93 miles high and 99 miles wide. Paul Bunyan and Babe saw space creatures on the moon. They saw some bicycles and started to ride them. Paul fell into a hole in the moon and the moon cracked open, when Babe went around the corner. When they came back to earth, the whole moon fell down. So Paul and Babe pasted it together again. I only took a half hour to mend it. They filled the holes with mud, dirt and sand. They saw some clouds when they were coming down. Paul and Babe got the clouds and brought them back to earth.

Paul Bunyan And Babe On The Moon

Paul was sixty feet tall and the blue ox was eight feet tall. They decided to go to the moon one day. They built a spaceship that was much bigger than Paul. It was the biggest in the world. It took up one hundred cities. It took one minute to get to the moon. They saw animals and people on the moon. Some were green, yellow and red and blue too. They were made of clouds. They could talk in our way. Paul and Babe lived there for ever and made friends with them.

Safety Patrol

Wollaston School is the best school I have ever been to. We have many jobs for many people. They are clean-up, flag, traffic, and safety patrol. We have others, too.

I worked for two jobs. Now I work for the safety patrol. We try our best to prevent accidents. We help people when they fall and cut themselves. We hold doors so other children can get to their rooms. We keep pupils in line and down to a whisper. I think Wollaston School shows good citizenship.

Clean Up

Clean up plays a very important role at Wollaston School for safety on the playground. If we didn't have clean up there would be a considerable amount of injuries on the playground.

What Does Peace Mean To Me?

Peace is a word, a very special word, especially in the world today. Some people seem to think that it's just putting up two fingers to signify the word to be with the "crowd".

Peace to me means being kind and helpful to one another, not having prejudice, and being truthful and honest. If we did all these things, we'd have a better world and we'd be free to do whatever we wanted. I hope that by the time I grow up that there will be peace in the world. If there isn't, I intend to try to help in some way to make it so.

Paul Bunyan On The Moon

One day Paul Bunyan was on the moon. He was digging up the moon. His ox was talking to the moon man. When Babe was talking, Paul Bunyan called Babe his blue ox. Babe worked all the time on the moon. But he never saw the moon man again. Paul and Babe slept on the moon. They had no water or food. So they ate the moon up. Paul Bunyan went back to earth and Babe did too. So they could have food and water.

Paul Bunyan Going To The Moon

When Paul was a baby, he was sent to the moon in a hundred and 5-foot rocket. It took 5 minutes to go to the moon. His ox slept on the way there.

Peace

What is Peace? Openmindedness? People having no prejudiced feelings against one another? Perhaps or maybe the word is "Openheartedness"...Loving each other and working together without war. Or could it be "Openhandedness"....Helping the world with time and money. Some people think it is just plain "Openness". Giving yourself up to the world, to help others in anyway necessary. There aren't too many people who would do this.

God sacrificed himself. He tried to make peace for us. Now, it is our turn to make some sacrifice for a peaceful world.

School Helpers

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!

We are the sixth graders from Wollaston School. We help the kindergarten teachers and assist the nurse. Some girls work in the library, and put the kettle on each day for the teachers' coffee. We have Safety Patrols that watch the little children, and fourth grade clean-up squads that keep the playground clean, and free from litter. We bring around notices, raise the flag, and boys deliver milk to children that take lunch. Who says we're not helping?

The Snow

The snow is fluffy white and soft. It looks like diamonds from the sky. It is so nice and fluffy too. It feels like a cushion and a pillow too.

My Snow Man

I made a snow man with a carrot nose and two eyes made out of snow. I gave him my scarf to keep him warm. Then I called my friends to help me make a lady, boy, and girl. When we were finished, we went into the house for a hot cup of hot chocolate. Then they went home, and I jumped into bed.

The next day it was hot. I saw our snow lady, snow boy and girl melt. I called my friends, and we started to cry. Then, the sun went down. We were so happy that the sun went down, that we jumped all around. We made angels instead. Then it was night time. Then we went to bed.

Snow

Snow is a wonderful thing. Snow is like a blanket all around the world. Snowflakes falling softly. They're like bread crumbs falling from the sky.

Peace Is:

OPENMINDEDNESS

Peace to me is unity of people regardless of race, religion, color, language or sex.

OPENHEARTEDNESS

Peace to me is care for the other guy. Give him a chance. He may not be another genius but try to be nice.

OPENHANDEDNESS

Peace to me is giving to one another - don't be a Scrooge. Help your fellow man.

OPENNESS

Peace to me is not Vietnam or Biafra. If we inspired those people as well as ourselves we would have world peace.

Come, Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Too Close To In-Laws'

"My wife's parents live upstairs"...the man was saying to me..."the children are always up there...my wife never goes out except her mother goes along...the children like the grandparents...they give them everything...they won't let me be their father...what I say is no good if it conflicts with what their grandparents say...and what really gets to me is when my wife says...'We can't go or do certain things because mommy and daddy wouldn't like it.'"

The man was 37...his wife, 35...the children, 10, 8 and 3. They purchased the duplex house four years ago because they needed more room for the third child. Her parents gave the down payment...in exchange they were to have the upstairs suite. It was a nice place...good neighborhood...everything seemed so agreeable when the arrangement was made...and so much better than "the cramped quarters we had before."

"The only trouble is...we're too close to our in-laws...and now our marriage is in jeopardy." "I'm in a bind"...the man was saying..."I'm indebted."

This is a very common dilemma...in-laws upstairs...downstairs...next door...across the street...separate little house on the same grounds. Reasons..."We can look after them when they grow feeble"..."They've done so much for me"..."I can't turn them out into the street" [as though that were the only alternative] and besides "we couldn't have this nice a place if it weren't for my folks." So go the justifications. The underlying problem is not geographical closeness by psychological closeness...adults not free of childhood.

There are exceptions to every rule...some parents can live with or close to their married children and grandchildren and everybody be happy. Some can enjoy peace and security...stay out of each other's way...for some the arrangement works smoothly. If this is your situation...just keep on enjoying it.

But in many instances this is not the way it's working out. Elderly parents get thrown at each other..."What would we do without my parents to baby-sit?...to buy the children's clothes?...to care for the property while we're away?" The rational answer, of course, is..."just what other people do whose parents are not 'too close'." Resentments rise...quarrels ensue...re-criminations fly...and the problem grows worse.

The whole arrangement may have been based on human weakness...the daughter just couldn't be happy away from her parents...she's the mamma's girl. The young husband was weak in not putting his foot down and saying..."We must have our own home...our own privacy...be able to stand on our own feet...even make our own mistakes...solve our own life problems." But...he was too weak. The parents were weak in allowing themselves in their late years to become a football in their children's marriage conflict.

How do you change such a situation? Money is not necessarily the answer...it's a matter of maturity...as the Bible says "leaving father and mother and cleaving to one's wife/husband." You can't remain a child clinging to parents and still be an adult wife/husband.

What...who gets priority? A husband/wife must come first with each other...in their hearts...in their plans...in their home. Parents who remain "too close"...who place their children under obligation by money and "goodness" may be a source of severe conflict for their married children...may even jeopardize their marriage.

If you have this problem, deal with it gently...rationally but firmly. There is no one right way. The real test is...how is the arrangement working out?

Feb. 14 Application Deadline For Elks National Scholarships

Rep. Joseph E. Brett, president of the Massachusetts Elks Association, announces that Feb. 14 is the closing date for applications for Elks National Foundation college scholarships.

He urged students who need financial help to go to college to consult their school advisors or obtain further information and application blanks at the Elks Lodge nearest their homes.

The Quincy Lodge is located at 1220 Hancock St.

The Elks National Foundation is offering 538 college scholarships totaling $397,600. Included are 200 awards ranging from $700 to $2,500 offered in nation-wide competition. Supplementing these are 338 scholarships of $600 each. These will be awarded on the basis of a quota for each state, 17 of the $600 scholarships being allocated to Massachusetts. In addition, scores of Emergency Educational Fund Grants are made each year to qualified students in need of financial assistance.

Boys and girls compete separately for identical awards. High school and prep school seniors and college students below the senior class are eligible if they are citizens of the United States and reside in the jurisdiction of the Order. In addition to scholastic attainment, applicants are judged on citizenship, personality, leadership, perseverance, resourcefulness, patriotism, and financial need.

The Elks National Foundation scholarship competition, now in its 36th year, is approved by the National Association of Secondary School Principals. Winners will be announced in the Spring in ample time to assist them to complete their college plans.

Raiders V.S. Malden

Quincy Icemen Meet Medford Friday

Quincy's hockey team, which has been skating circles around the opposition but hasn't been scoring, meets Medford at 8:30 Friday night in a big Greater Boston League game as the Presidents continue their quest for a state tourney berth.

In another Boston Arena game winless North Quincy goes against powerful Malden's league leaders at 6:45.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team had a wide territorial edge over Revere last week, but, despite out-shooting the Patriots, 31-9, could score only three times for a 3-0 win which put it in sole possession of third place as Medford was bowing to Malden. Medford upset Quincy, 4-2, in their last meeting.

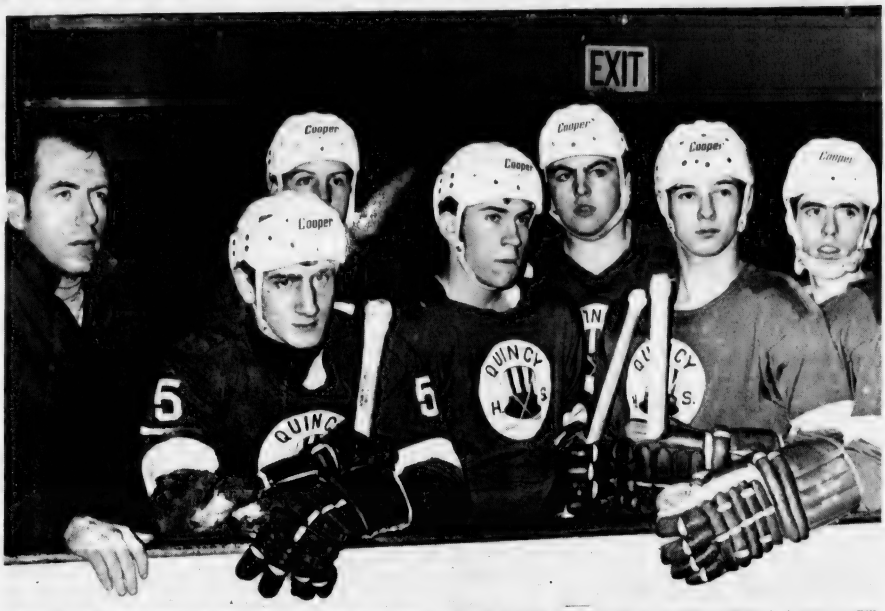
"I can't explain it," Sylvia said. "In most of our games this year we have completely outplayed the other team but haven't been able to finish off our plays. I know we play good hockey and pass very well but we just can't score."

Phil Rugg scored twice to spark the Revere win, which gave the Presidents an 8-3-1 record, while Chuck Condos scored the other.

Rugg scored the first two goals in the opening period, Kevin Grogan assisting on the first and Dave Mariano and Wayne Milford on the other. Condos' goal in the final period was unassisted.

If Quincy makes the tournament, its hopes of making a good showing will be boosted by the return of Bob Lindbloom, who returned earlier last week against Malden after sitting out the season with a shattered cheekbone. Sylvia has been bringing him along slowly but he should be ready for tournament play.

Lindbloom is wearing a mask made by teammate Mark Erickson, one of Quincy's goalies, who has a sideline mask business. He made one for himself and has made more than 25, which were approved by Tony Esposito, standout goalie for the Chicago Black Hawks and brother of the Bruins' Phil. He saw and approved of Mark's masks last summer at the Weymouth Skating Club.



One of Erickson's masks is being worn this year by his brother, Pete, a former Quincy standout and now the U. of Mass. freshman goalie. Mark, who started out as the Presidents' number one goalie but now shares the duties with sophomore Art Boyle, will enter Massassoit Community College next fall and, naturally, will be a hockey candidate.

According to Sylvia, Erickson "tries to perfect anything he tries. He achieved his goal of becoming a goalie, wants his masks to be perfect and also learned to play the bass fiddle well enough to form his own band."

Meanwhile, Bob Laing's young North Quincy squad continues to improve but still hasn't won a game as it bowed to Somerville, 5-1, last week, its 11th successive defeat.

"The boys have been skating much better and playing better hockey but they continue to falter after good starts," Laing said. Against Somerville the Raiders out-shot the winners, 37-25, but couldn't stop the Highlanders' scoring ace, big Steve Buralamachi, who has scored 26 of his team's 33 goals.

Quincy succeeded in shutting him out two weeks ago and won, 1-0, but against North he exploded for four goals and assisted on the other.

Raiders At Medford

North Quincy Eyes Tech Tourney Bid

North Quincy's basketball team, with a 9-3 overall record and a 7-2 Greater Boston League mark, will try to keep its Tech Tourney hopes alive Friday night when it plays at Medford. Tuesday night the Raiders will be host to Chelsea.

Bob Nolan's North team, which can lose two more games and still qualify for its fifth Tech invite under his leadership, took another big step in that direction Tuesday with a 77-67 win at Revere.

The Raiders had only a 23-21 lead after a period but widened their edge to 43-34 at halftime and led for the remainder of the game.

Dan McKay had 23 points, Bob DeRosa 19 and Tom Cairnes, tall sophomore, 10. Jim Small came back after being injured in the previous game and played well.

North had its best shooting night with a 45 percent average from the floor. The foul shots were identical for both teams, each hitting on 19 or 24. North out-rebounded the Patriots, 31-22.

"The boys did another fine job and it was a good team effort," Nolan said. "Revere has come a long way and is a very good club.

"I hope we have a good crowd at Friday's game at Medford, because this will be one of our biggest tests and backing from our home fans will certainly help. Boosters' buses will leave the school at 10 minutes of six and everyone, young and old, is invited to follow us to Medford. The more the merrier."

Joe Amorosino's classy North junior varsity romped, 69-48, to make its record 9-2. Dave Mahoney scored 22 points, followed by Jack Walker and Dave Nelson with 12 apiece.

Last week the Raiders had to go all-out again to nip Quincy, 49-47, in a game which was almost a repeat of the league opener for both clubs, won by North, 49-48.

"You know it has been said many times about Quincy-North games but tonight proved again records don't count," Nolan said. "We went into the game with a 7-3 record and they were only 2-8, but you'd never know it. They were just as tough tonight as they were in our first game."

Brian Donahue, who came off the bench to sub for Jim Small, injured early in the game, was one of North's heroes. He scored 12 points and scored some big ones near the end when Quincy threatened to take the lead.

"Brian is that kind of player," said Nolan. "We use him at guard as well as forward. When Small got hurt we had to use him at forward. When Small is playing, we have them both on the same side of the court which puts a lot of pressure on the other team. The loss of Small hurt us but we again played good defense. This has carried us along all year."

With 1:15 left in the game and North ahead, 49-47, Nolan called time and told his players to hold the ball as long as they could. North succeeded in holding it the rest of the way.

"It was like our first game at Quincy," the Raider coach said. "We won that one by one point. I told the kids to hold it as long as they could and Rich Sanderson was the key man and he played it real good."

Ken Baker had another good night and scored 13 points and Sanderson had 20.

North's classy junior varisty team won a close one, 45-41, led by Leo Papile's 14 points and 11 by Jim Walker and Dave Nelson. The win gave the Raider jayvees an 8-2 mark.

Presidents Host Everett

The Quincy basketball team will try to shake off the effects of another bombing at the hands of Somerville's undefeated Greater Boston League powerhouse when it is host to Everett Friday night. Tuesday night the Presidents will play at Malden.

Marty Finnegan's Quincy club stayed with Somerville, now 9-0 in league play and 11-1 overall, for most of the first period, then poor shooting and another batch of costly turnovers ruined it as the Highlanders pulled away for an 83-54 victory.

"Again turnovers hurt us immensely as we had 22 of them," Finnegan said. "Also, we hit on only 16 of 55 shots from the floor, one of our poorest nights, while Somerville had 35 for 72."

Somerville hit on 13 of 22 from the foul line while the Presidents had 22 for 29, and Quincy out-rebounded the rangy visitors, 45-40.

Bob Pike had 23 points to spark the Quincy quintet and was the only player to hit double figures.

"Richie DiCristofaro played another fine floor game and Billy Maver was outstanding on the boards," the Quincy coach said. "And two sophomores, Bob McDermott and Bobby Sacchetti, looked good in the second half. With Rich Menchi and Dick Raymond missing, I moved the two sophs up and they did very well."

Fran Conroy's Quincy junior varsity handed Somerville only its second defeat, 37-35, to avenge a one-point loss at Somerville.

Jim Walker with 15 points and Bobby Malvesti with 10 paced the jayvees to their eighth win in 12 games.

Last week the Presidents, for the second time, turned in a brilliant defensive effort but were nipped by North Quincy, 49-47, at the packed North gym.

In the league opener for both clubs, North had squeezed by Quincy, 49-48.

North succeeded in freezing the ball for the final minute and 15 seconds, which gave the Raiders a hard-earned win.

"We just didn't perform against the freeze right," said a disappointed Finnegan. "But we made a lot of mistakes with too many turnovers and other errors. This was a game which could have gone either way, just as our first game was. I'm very proud of the way the boys performed as they never gave up. North is a great team and proved it again."

No one would have believed that North was 7-3 and Quincy 2-8 going into the game.

North led at the half, 27-24, and widened it to 39-33 in the third period. Quincy just missed catching the Raiders in the final period.

Jim Furfari had another good night for the Presidents, scoring 16 points and playing an excellent all-around game.

Quincy's junior varsity also dropped a close one, 45-41, as Bob Malvesti led the attack with nine points. The loss dropped Quincy's record to 7-4.

Affsa State Star

Quincy, North Trackmen Return To Action Friday

The North Quincy and Quincy track teams return to action Friday at Northeastern as the Met League stages its final set of meets.

The finales had to be moved ahead one day as no site was available Saturday.

In the final meets North goes for win number four against Rindge Tech while winless Quincy has its last chance to pick up a victory against Randolph.

In last week's state meet at Boston Garden North's Paul Affsa, who has had an outstanding season in the league, turned in one of the day's top performances in winning the Class A 600 and missing the record by only two-tenths of a second and upsetting heavily favored Charlie Duckworth of Waltham.

Affsa previously had been defeated by Ducksworth in the BAA meet and also in the state trials two weeks ago.

Paul, captain of the North team, has run the 300, mile, 1000 and relay and also has high jumped indoors and last year placed third in the state Class B 300. His time last week of 1:14.2 was a North Quincy record. In the spring he competes in the broad jump, 220, 440 and 880, and last fall lost only once in cross country.

Conroy, Mullen Pace Burke Club To Upset

Capt. Mike Conroy's 309 and Glen Mullen's weekly high single of 129 led Dist. Atty. George G. Burke's team to an upset 3-1 win over Hennessy Plumbing Supply in Quincy Bowling Little Loop action.

The win by the last-place Burke club ousted the Hennessy team from first place.

Mayor McIntyre's team moved in the league lead by a one-point margin with a four-point victory over Atlantic Fuel Oil.

Paul Peckham, captain of Rep. Joseph Brett's fourth-place entry, continued his hot streak with strings of 126, 109, and 108 for a three-string 343 total, second highest of the season.

Young Peckham now has the top average with 101.34. His sizzling streak includes 300-plus pin falls for 10 out of 13 weeks and a single strings of 100 or better in 25 out of his last 39.

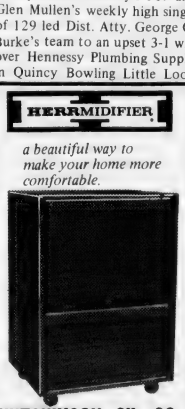
Mike Conroy, 98.36; Tom Joyce, 96.35; Dick Hirtle, 96.28; Mike Lorman, 96.26; John Repoff, 95.19; Steve Levine, 95.10; Frank Alibrandi, 95.4; Dick Magnarelli, 95.3 and Charles McCarthy, 93.34.

The McIntyre team rolled the weekly high team three of 1,383 and the Brett club the weekly high single of 494.

Blackhawks Oust Bruins, 3-1

A 3 to 1 defeat by the Blackhawks knocked the Bruins out of first place in the Quincy Pee Wee Youth Hockey Association intramural games Monday night at Weymouth Skating Club.



The defeat placed the Canadiens in sole possession of first place, after their 3 to 0 win over the Rangers.

James Ahola scored the lone Bruins' goal unassisted. The Blackhawks' goals were scored by John Cooney [two], assisted by William Connolly [two] and John Cronin [one]. Michael McGrath scored the third goal, with another assist by Cronin.

After putting together a pair of tie games, the Canadiens finally broke into the win column. Goals were scored by John Tronia, Richard Dorney and John Furey. Assists were made by David Peters, Richard Carnali and Frank LaPierre with all three lines each scoring a goal.

Next week will put the Blackhawks against the Rangers and the first-place Canadiens against the Bruins. The latter is tied for second place. Faceoff time is 6:30 p.m.

WHAT'S NEW?--Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn catches up on Quincy news in visit to the Quincy Sun's office at 1601 Hancock St. Looking over The Sun with him is Publisher and Editor Henry W. 'Don't Blow Mind On Drugs' Quinn Tells QHS Students

[Following is the text of Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn's address to Quincy High School students in visit there last week.]

As your Attorney General, I would like to speak with you today about some of the problems facing not only our state of Massachusetts but our society as a whole. Many of these problems will have to be solved during the 70's.

And, in many cases, the solutions will be offered by you young persons who reached maturity during the 1960's – a period the writer Richard Rovere recently termed as "A Slum of a Decade."

You saw, during these past 10 years, the assassinations of three American Leaders: John F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy.

We saw the country torn by dissent over the Vietnam War. We saw riots in our cities, crime in our streets, poverty in the midst of plenty.

We saw our air and our waterways become so polluted that scientists have warned us our planet may not be able to support human life just one generation from now.

It is little wonder, then, that so many of you question the values of a society that has seemingly been sowing the seeds of its own destruction.

But, as the American philosopher Alfred North Whitehead once wrote: "It is the first step in wisdom to recognize that the major advances in civilization are processes which all but wreck the society in which they occur."

Perhaps, in recognizing the problems that are so threatening as we begin a new decade, we have taken that first step, and will be able to make those major advances without wrecking what is good in our society. Perhaps it required the shocks of the 60's to awaken us, and to stimulate the changes that I think are beginning to happen.

The responsibility for change is mine, and it is yours. Aristotle said that man is a political animal who cannot exist apart from the rest of mankind. You cannot escape the world you live in. Nor do you want to.

You are activists and will, as young persons before you have done, join Vista, The Peace Corps, the "Movement". Hundreds of young people achieved successes in Senator Eugene McCarthy's presidential campaign that no one could have predicted.

I am sure that many of you will be involved in future political campaigns. Some of you already are campaigning for the "18 by 72" movement, which seeks to give 18-year olders the right to vote by the next presidential election.

This activism on your part is a requisite if we are to achieve a life of quality for all Americans.

There is one aspect, however, to your search for fuller, richer lives that gives me great concern. This is the belief that drugs can be an aid to a full appreciation of life. Some youthful drug-users are seeking a feeling of well-being: some an escape: others an increased perception of life.

I ask you to treasure your minds and your senses. There is too much that must be accomplished in the "70's and 80's". You can not profess to want to change the world, and at the same time risk destroying your minds or your bodies with drugs.

There are an estimated 4,000 heroin addicts in the City of Boston with little or no hope of cure.

Heroin formerly was the drug of the poor people in cities, but statistics show that Heroin use is increasing among student populations. In the Brighton-Allston area, which has a very high student population there were as many Heroin arrests in the first five months of this past year as there were in Roxbury and the South End in the whole of 1965.

Hallucinogens such as LSD and Mescaline and Amphetamines like SPEED are more normally associated with student and hippy use. The dangers of Heroin are well-documented, but the effects of these drugs are not. No matter how many times you hear of beautiful, mind-expanding trips, how do you justify to yourself the risk that this trip might be so mind-expanding as to permanently blow your mind or to you, a girl, that your future children may be born genetically deformed.

There has been little pressure to legalize Heroin, Hallucinogens or Amphetiamines, but a different case has been made for Marijuana.

The simple truth is that we do not really know what the effects of Marijuana are, and, until we do, I cannot support legislation to legalize Marijuana.

As Attorney General I have given permission to the Boston University Medical School to use Marijuana in tests upon human subjects. These tests are part of a research project approved by the Federal Government designed to determine just what are the effects of Marijuana upon users.

I also sponsored Massachusetts' new drug rehabilitation act, which allows the courts to provide treatment instead of criminal prosecution for persons arrested for drug violations.

Many of you may not care that a conviction for drug abuse can pose a threat to your ability to get a job in the future, but I think you do care that drug abuse can diminish considerably your ability to derive genuine fulfillment from life.

You will seek fulfillment in many different ways. As artists, as parents, as conservationists, as tradesmen, as politicians, as businessmen, as community workers.

You will be creating a new establishment--an establishment in which the emphasis will not be on financial success, but, to paraphrase President Kennedy, on making your country a better one.

I urge you to join me in government--the greatest vehicle for making these changes. I urge you to share with me, and others like me in government, your ideas on improving our society.

How can we remove the sooty smoke stacks that blight our landscape and belch pollutants into the air we breath?

How can we clean our waterways, provide open spaces in our crowded urban area, build housing for those now living in slums, insure that our elderly can live out their lives in peace and dignity?

How can we make the phrase "equal opportunity" a reality?

I ask you, I think that you will have the answers. We have--all of us--been through a trying 10 years. They were violent: they were at times revolutionary. They were, above all, swift.

The next ten years will go by just as quickly. And, when we come to the end of the 70's, some of you will be here where I am now. Some of you will be making the laws and administering them. I am certain that you are up to the challenge. I am certain that you will succeed where others have failed. I am certain that the society you create will be one we can live in happily, peacefully and proudly. Thank you.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. My savings bank pays dividends instead of interest. How do I report this?

A. Dividends on a savings account should be reported under interest income on Schedule B of your Form 1040.

Q. In 1969, I sold some stock which was inherited from my grandmother several years ago. What should I use as the cost figure to determine the gain on the sale?

A. The basis of the stock to you is the fair market value of the stock on the date of your grandmother's death. Unless your grandmother's estate was over $60,000 whereby a Federal Estate Tax Return would have been involved, in which case the basis of your inherited stock would be the value used for estate tax purposes. If an Estate Tax Return was involved, this information would be available from the executor or administrator of the estate.

Q. During the past year, I held two jobs simultaneously. I went directly from work each afternoon to my second job. One of the fellows in work tells me that this travel is deductible. Is this true?

A. Yes, you may deduct the cost of going from your first job to your second job. You may either deduct ten or seven cents per mile by using the Standard Mileage Rate or deduct the applicable business percentage of the actual expenses incurred.

Q. We had a child that was born in 1969 but died a few minutes after birth. Can we claim a full $600 exemption for the child?

A. Yes, so long as your child was born alive, you may claim the full $600 exemption for the year 1969. This is true even though the child may have only lived momentarily. However, an exemption may not be claimed for a stillborn child.

Q. How much can a person earn and still be claimed as a dependent?

A. Generally, a person cannot be claimed as a dependent if his gross income is $600 or more. The only exception is that your child or stepchild who is under the age of 19, or is a full time student may be claimed as a dependent regardless of his earnings as long as you provided more than one-half of his total support for 1969.

Q. Last Spring, I put a $500 deposit on a house. Later on, I decided not to buy the house but the real estate agent refused to give me back my $500. Can I deduct this as a bad debt?

A. No. This is a personal loss incurred by you because you failed to comply with the terms of an agreement you entered into and such a loss is not deductible on your return.

Q. I turned 65 in 1969 but have continued to work. My employer insists on deducting Social Security taxes from my salary. Will I get a refund at the end of the year?

A. No. The law requires that employers deduct Social Security taxes on the first $7800 of wages paid each employee during 1969 regardless of age.

Q. I am 73 years old and have been claiming the Retirement Income Credit for the past 8 years. The form for figuring the credit has always been on the back of the Schedule B. This year when I looked at the back of the Schedule B all I found were instructions concerning dividends and interest. How am I going to compute my Retirement Income Credit?

A. Retirement Income Credit is now computed on Schedule R in your new 1040 assembly. The new Schedule R is the same as the form that previously was on the back of the Schedule B.

Q. I have a problem concerning whether or not I am entitled to claim my son as an exemption on my 1969 return. He attended Boston University and received a $2000 scholarship. I provided the rest of his support which came to approximately $1000. Can I still claim him as a dependent?

A. Yes. The amount received as a scholarship for study at an institution which normally maintains a regular faculty and curriculum and has a regularly organized body of students in attendance is not taken into account in determining total support.

Q. Can I deduct Medicare expenses?

A. Yes. The additional amounts paid under "Medicare" as premiums for supplementary medical insurance for the aged are deductible if you itemize deductions.

Q. I am a divorced woman receiving child care from my ex-husband. He paid about $700 in 1969 towards the support of our son. Who gets to claim our son as a dependent?

A. Usually, the parent who has custody of the child for the greater part of the year is entitled to the dependency deduction. However, if the other parent contributes at least $600 during the year to the support of the child, he or she may be entitled to the exemption. A more detailed explanation can be found in Publication 501 entitled: "Your Exemptions and Exemptions for Dependents."

Mayor To Discuss DPW Projects

Mayor James R. McIntyre plans a meeting tomorrow with state Public Works Commissioner Edward J. Ribbs to discuss various Quincy projects under the DPW.

A key matter will be the completion date of the Atlantic Street bridge now under construction over the MBTA rapid transit extension in Wollaston.

Mayor McIntyre said that the bridge should be completed this May to enable the rapid transit to go into service later this year.

Other projects to be discussed include the yet-to-be-started School Street bridge and the developments of a proposed access road off the Southeast Expressway to the site of the first railroad in the West Quincy area.

The access road would make the historic site available to tourists annually. A possible rest area also may be planned at the site.

Art Awards Winners Announced

Awards for works of art on display at the Thomas Crane Public Library by Quincy Art Association members have been announced.

Mrs. Annette Paglierani received first place for her landscape; Mrs. Dorothy Wiltshire, second, also for a landscape; Mrs. Humberto Neves, third, a seascape; and Mrs. Madeline Cohen, honorable mention, for her sculpture.

Judges were James Hooley of Milton and Miss Mary C. Laughlin of Dorchester.

The exhibit will continue at the Library during the month of February and is open to the public.

The event opened with a well-attended tea at which Mrs. James R. McIntyre was honorary pourer.

Republican Senate Contender To Speak Feb. 11

Josiah A. [Si] Spaulding of Manchester, candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senate, will speak at an 8 p.m. meeting of the Quincy Republican City Committee Feb. 11 at Quincy Legion Post, Mechanic St.

Rep. Walter Hannon is expected to be among those attending. Spaulding, a lawyer and former chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee, will discuss issues of the 70's. His wife, the former Helen Hamilton Bowdoin, will accompany him.

Spaulding announced his candidacy on Jan. 13. He has offered to debate the fundamental issues of the campaign "face-to-face" with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Democratic incumbent.

Mayor Speaker At Taxpayers Meeting Feb. 10

Mayor James R. McIntyre will be the speaker at a meeting of the Quincy Taxpayers Association's Board of Directors Feb. 10.

Assn. President Richard L. Darr said the Mayor will discuss 'Current City Government and Future Plans" at the 6:15 p.m. dinner meeting at Ships Haven restaurant, Quincy Sq.

Touch Of Quincy At N. Carolina Reunion

There will be a touch of Quincy to the 25th anniversary reunion of a North Carolina High School.

Mrs. Nova Frances Richardson, R.N., president of the West End High School Class of 1945 wrote to the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce:

"Since Quincy, Massachusetts is the birthplace of the second President of our beloved America, it would be most appropriate to have a token in his memory which would be distributed as a prize to a member of our class. This will make our class reunion more successful."

The reunion is to be held May 29.

On their way from the Chamber to the class already are:

--A supply of brochures about Quincy.

--A number of wooden nickels issued in 1955 during the Historic Quincy Pageant sponsored by the city of Quincy and the Chamber of Commerce.

--A commemorative stamp sheet.

The Brochures, incidentally, note that John Quincy Adams, sixth President, was also born in Quincy.

Wollaston's 'Mr. Wonderful'

Danny Delivered More Than Mail For 31 Years

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

Daniel D. Fabrizio walked eight miles a day delivering mail on his Wollaston route.

Always on the job, for 31 years and six months, "Danny" still had 30 days vacation due him this week when he retired from the Post Office.

A man like "Danny" can make a lot of friends in 31 years and six months.

Sunday, "Danny" found out how many as men, women and children filled Fellowship Hall at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston at an open house honoring him on his retirement.

Tweny-five years ago he was given the key to the First Baptist Church by vote of the church trustees. When he could not return to the Wollaston Post Office for lunch and to dry out on rainy days, he could use the church facilities.

"I used to dry off in the boiler room, and eat here," Danny said, adding, "I have adopted the church. I have been treated royally here."

Sunday, Rev. Charles L. McEachern thanked him for "the many windows you have closed, the running faucets shut off, radiators kicked to repair them, lights turned off, and the many other things you have done to watch over our property. Keep the key, Danny," he said.

Some years ago a merit award for "excellence of service" was awarded Fabrizio by the Post Office Department. Sunday, Fred Langa superintendent of mail in Wollaston, added his personal commendation to a certificate of excellence from Postmaster General Winton M. Blount.

"Not only are you losing Danny, but I'm losing Danny, and it's going to hurt me more than it does you," he told Danny's friends.

Mayor James R. McIntyre, who lived on Danny's route as a youngster, praised him for "dedicated service, devoted service to the people of Quincy," and for the "very high degree of friendship which you have brought to everyone in the past 30 years."

Mayor McIntyre presented him with a new mail bag filled with "mail" [gifts] from his Wollaston friends. He had previously given him the traditional key to the City of Quincy.

Danny set a number of other records during his years of duty.

He never received a complaint from patrons, nor a demerit or penalty of any kind from his superiors at the Post Office.

He was bitten by dogs only three times --

"The same dog bit me twice, a month apart," Danny said, "and I don't know why -- he never bit me while I was delivering mail to his house."

Bounded on one side by South Central Ave., the Wollaston route included the high hills of Prospect and Highland Avenues, and one house on Newport Ave. had 65 steps to be climbed daily.

Sometimes patrons forgot to cancel milk and newspaper deliveries when on vacation. Danny put them out of sight so they were not an invitation to thieves. He retrieved trash barrels.

Youngsters called him by his first name - he stopped their fights. No hard feelings. "Thanks, Danny!"

Danny had a few things to say, too, at his retirement party:

"Retirement is not something reached by service or accomplishment, but it is a point that you reach by the passing of time. That time has come for me now."

One of 10 children, Danny said he had learned two lessons from his parents: "Respect of elders" and "obedience." These applied on the job, too.

He reminisced a little. Some were sad memories, some were happy. The woman who knitted him a too-long scarf, another who presented him with too-bulky gloves, both designed to keep him warm in winter.

The little girl he saw first as a week-old baby, who followed him on his route when she went to school, whose wedding he attended -- and who sent him last a picture of her four children.

Daniel Fabrizio joined the U. S. Post Office Department 42 years ago when he was placed on the temporary substitute list in 1928. He became a permanent substitute by May 10, 1937. He started his present route soon after that, and was permanently assigned there Aug. 1, 1940.

He married the former Adelaide Pagnani Nov. 14, 1931. They live in Braintree. She was with him at his party, along with children and grandchildren. They are parents of Daniel Fabrizio, Jr., of Braintree and Mrs. John Ricciuti of Quincy [John is the brother of James Ricciuti, executive secretary of Mayor McIntyre]. There are seven grandchildren.

Danny Fabrizio is past president of the John Quincy Adams Club, and is still an officer, as he has been for 25 years. He is also a board member of the Italian Mutual Relief Society.

Future plans call for a three-weeks vacation in Florida for Danny and his wife. When they return, he may look for some light work to keep busy. He wife has not yet retired.

The committee planning the retirement party included Mrs. Fabian Wells, chairman; Mrs. John Mason, Mrs. George MacKinnon, Mrs. Charles O'Connell, Mrs. Bruce Randall, Mrs. William Stewart, Mrs. Vernon Whitman and Mrs. Walter Wrigley. Their husbands served as greeters, with Mr. Randall introducing Mayor McIntyre.

Among those wishing Danny luck was Norfolk County Dist. Atty. George G. Burke, a long-time patron on his route. There were also a few present who had been with Danny the full 31 years and six months.

Wollaston will never be quite the same without Danny.

Special Night Sessions

Finance Committee To Tackle $40 Million Budget Feb. 25

The Quincy City Council's Finance Committee will meet evenings in extraordinary session beginning Feb. 25 in an attempt to make further cuts in the anticipated $40 million municipal budget.

Mayor James R. McIntyre has already slashed more than $3 million from the proposed budget, but indications are that it will still be the highest in Quincy's history.

Council President Arthur H. Tobin and Councillor J. Vincent Smyth, chairman of the Finance Committee which comprises the full council membership announced that the 7:30 p.m. meetings in the Council Chambers will be open to the public.

They urged citizens and taxpayers to attend so that they may learn at first hand the City government's problems and expected expenditures for 1970.

"This is the greatest amount that I have ever been able to trim from the budget," said the Mayor. "But it still looks like a substantial increase in the tax rate is coming.

"It's impossible to figure the rate right now. We don't know the exact valuation of the city. And we don't know what we'll get from the state, although we can anticipate less state aid this year."

The current Quincy tax rate is $116.40.

The precise total slashed from the amount requested by department heads was $3,071,325.56, lowering the proposed budget to $40,780,356.72. The proposed budget for 1969 was $35,554,139.43.

Both the Council President and the Chairman of Finance have been briefed by Mayor McIntyre on the bleak financial picture of the City.

They were told by the chief executive to expect a substantial tax hike due largely to increases in the school budget, increases in Fire and Police Department budgets, the Quincy City Hospital budget and the Public Works budget.

Based upon this information Tobin requested Smyth, to call evening sessions of the Finance Committee so that "the people of Quincy may be given an opportunity to come to City Hall chambers and observe the Council members ascertaining from the department heads the needs to run the City for fiscal year 1970."

According to Tobin, this will be another "first" in bringing municipal government closer to the people.

Heretofore the budget sessions have been held on weekends for the most part, with just the councillors and the department heads present.

This will provide an opportunity for citizens of Quincy to sit in and listen to the department heads explain the operations of their departments, the needs of the departments, the services being performed by the respective departments and the estimated cost to the taxpayers, he and Smyth said.

"It is a wonderful opportunity for the people to

'Chronic Lateness'

Ired Parents Hit Pupil Bus Service In HN, Germantown

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

Insufficient equipment and problems in the MBTA maintenance department are blamed for chronic student bus service complaints in the Houghs Neck and Germantown areas.

Ired parents of an estimated 550 students affected, protested at a fact-finding meeting this week that:

- Scheduled buses are late.
- Bus stops are unmarked.
- Drivers refused to pick up students at designated stops.
- Buses are over-crowded.
- School bus tickets are "double punched".
- There are not enough buses at rush hours.

The complaints were aired at a meeting of the Parents Advisory Board at Broad Meadows Junior High School Monday night.

Manuel Repoza, assistant district supervisor for the MBTA and his assistant, Clifford Bowen, attended the meeting to present the MBTA's side of the problem and said the situation would be improved.

During the meeting, however, a number of women walked out, remarking that they were "getting no where" and that they were "batting their heads against a stone wall."

Repoza, introduced by Mrs. John F. Morrissey, interim chairman, disclosed:

"The MBTA has had a problem in the maintenance department." Repoza said, "Mechanics would not work one minute overtime, and there was not sufficient equipment. There has been an improvement. Eight new buses are just arriving. The maintenance people are now working overtime."

School Committeeman Paul Kelly outlined criticisms of MBTA service compiled at a Jan. 12 meeting which Repoza was expected to attend. He did not appear because of a confusion in dates.

In addition to a "chronic lateness" of scheduled buses, complaints were made that bus stops were unmarked, drivers refused to pick up students at designated stops, there was overcrowding, "double punching" of school bus tickets, not enough buses at rush periods.

Joseph Long, assistant principal at Broad Meadows Junior High School, estimated that about 250 students from Germantown and 300 from Houghs Neck were dependent on bus transportation to reach the school.

Mrs. Robert Denvir, of 111 Spring St., pointed out that students waiting at Sea St. bus stops from Winthrop St. [at 1000 Sea St.] to The Willows were being "by-passed" by

McIntyre Orders Crackdown On 'Excessive' Absenteeism

Mayor James R. McIntyre, conscious of rising costs of city government, has directed department heads to cut down on what he called "excessive" absenteeism among city employees.

"Employee man hours of work lost and the cost of absenteeism in city departments over the past year have reached an excessive level," he said in a memo to department heads.

"In these days of rising costs of city government it is imperative that all department heads cooperate with me in my attempt to render to the taxpayers of Quincy all of the necessary services at a minimum cost."

He urged the department heads to adhere strictly to the terms of sections B and C of the city's sick leave policy.

Section B of the sick leave policy requires a physician's statement to cover prolonged sickness and "for repeated absences of short duration."

Section C denies sick leave to a city employee unless notification of the illness is given on the first day of his or her absence or until notification is given.

"Our absenteeism can and must be lowered," said the Mayor.

Ribbs Agrees To Study Proposed Access To Historic 'First Railway'

Commissioner Edward J. Ribbs of the State Department of Public Works has agreed to make a study of the feasibility of an access from the Southeast Expressway to the site in West Quincy of the nation's first railroad.

The department will see if such access can be made without taking homes and with a great deal of expense and also if a state operated rest area can be built near the site.

Mayor McIntyre met with representatives of the DPW last Friday to discuss the report of the State Council on Arts and Humanities' plan to restore the railroad as a historical site.

John R. Watts, chairman of the Council, sent a letter to Mayor McIntyre thanking him for his letter to President Nixon in support of the work of the National Endowment for the Arts.

"It is one of the best letters I have seen," wrote Watts, "and, I am sure, will be a great help in the effort to continue the work of the Endowment."

The city hopes to restore the site of the railway built in 1826 to haul famed Quincy granite for construction of the Bunker Hill monument.

The site, under private ownership, deteriorated into ruins. It has been taken over by the city for planned restoration.

Guidelines Clarify Child Exemptions For Divorced, Parents

Divorced or separated parents planning to claim a child as a dependent on Federal income tax returns can avoid tax controversy by carefully reading the guidelines, notes William E. Williams, District Director of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts.

Generally, the parent with custody of the child for the greater part of the year is entitled to the dependency deduction. There may be exceptions to this rule, depending on the terms of the decree and the amount contributed to the child's support by the parent who does not have custody, Williams said.

The special rule does not apply if someone other than the parents provides over half of the child's support for the year, Williams said.

Quincy taxpayers can get a free copy of the guidelines by sending a post card to the district office. Ask for Publication 501. "Your Exemptions and Exemptions for Dependents."

Zoning Proposals To Be Aired

The new rezoning proposed for the City of Quincy will be discussed by a representative of the Quincy Planning Department at a Feb. 17 meeting of the Houghs Neck Community Council at 8 p.m. at Houghs Neck Legion Hall, 1116 Sea St.

John B. Powers will preside at the business meeting when plans will be announced for a March 7 covered dish supper.

'The Good Old Days'

By Ida F. Kelley
17 Edgeworth Rd.
North Quincy

What happened to the good old days,
The days of yesteryear
When all our different peoples
Used to spread a little cheer?

Depression was a sad word then
We knew what hardship meant
But folks sat on their sidewalks
Content without a cent.

The world has changed so much since then to this, you will agree
The time flies by so rapidly
As you can plainly see.

The Generation gap has hit us
Our men went to the moon
The jets are speeding by us
Before you can hum a tune

It's true there's lots of progress
A lot of money spent
But are we really happy to see where it all went?

The Boy's are still in Vietnam
They're fighting every day
When will the troops come back to us
Seems to be the word today

Peace is what we're seeking
It's what we'd like to see
But yet, it seems so far away
Like a lost island on a sea.

We probably sit and wonder
What lays behind it all
But I think I have the answer
It's written on the wall.

Jesus said before he died
He said it to us all he said "Love one another"
do you see it on the wall?

These are my innermost feelings
the way I feel inside
So if this poem displeases you just kindly put it aside.

Grandmother Revisited

Well, boys and girls, when we left off in our last episode, the princess had just kissed the frog, and he became a handsome prince.

Today our story revolves around the beautiful girl, Rapunzel, who was locked in a tall tower by her wicked stepmother. Her salvation was obtained when her hair grew long enough to reach the ground when it was let down out of the small window at the top of the tower, which allowed the handsome prince [our friend froggy, again?] to climb up the hair and rescue her, all of which gave her a tremendous headache. After escape from the tower, the next problem for the prince was to treat the headache. I'm sure he rushed to his nearest pharmacy to buy aspirin, probably the kind that is "pure aspirin", with a "name you can trust."

The prince used a logical approach, as aspirin is good for most headaches, as well as many other aches and pains. But some misconceptions are in the wind concerning aspirin, of the "old wives tales" variety, the "myths" we discussed a few weeks ago.

Aspirin is a great drug, with many uses. Most physicians, if sent to the proverbial desert isle with a choice of only five medicines to take along, would choose aspirin as one of them. It has use in treating headaches of princesses and paupers as well as fever, muscular aches and pains, and a major use in such severe diseases as Rheumatic Fever and Rheumatoid Arthritis. Perhaps its only curative effects are in these latter diseases, the inflamatory diseases.

Aspirin will NOT, however, cure the common cold. Every day we hear from someone, who has a child with a "cold" or "flu", who is taking aspirin but not getting better - I'm not surprised. In such conditions, aspirin is certainly helpful for relieving symptoms. [fever, pain, etc.] but has never been shown to treat the disease per se. Some even feel that aspirin can treat such things as diarrhea. Another mistake.

Just as wrong as the feeling that aspirin is a cure-all, is the idea that it is worthless. Some patients are insulted when one suggests that they take aspirin, alone, for their symptoms. Cudos to the man who developed aspirins in different sizes, shapes and colors. One can thusly use aspirin in a variety of ways, and not get any argument nor results.

While contemplating "myths" and discussing the current flu season, I can't escape the spectre of antibiotics, especially penicillin. Influenza is an infectious disease, caused by viral agents [not in the employ of a foreign government, as their names would have you believe]. There is no known cure for these viruses, nor for that matter most viruses, although work is being done along these lines, especially with the smallpox virus.

Thus, Virginia, there is no CURE for the "flu". One only can go "cold turkey" and let the disease run its course. Antibiotics have absolutely no place in the treatment of "flu", although they certainly do have a place in the treatment of complications, such as pneumonia and strep. The idea that one can treat the "flu" with penicillin is as ludicrous as the idea of a computerized boxing match between Wally Cox and Truman Capote.

Yet people call every day and demand penicillin for themselves and their children. It is difficult to imagine their wanting to take the chance of an allergic response [serious, though rare] or wanting to spend money needlessly. I could probably vacation in the Bahamas for the rest of the month on money needlessly spent on antibiotics during this flu epidemic.

Flu can and should be prevented in the elderly and chronically ill by simple immunization, in the proper way & season.

Before I leave for Nassau, I must take care of my runny nose. I'll get some Excedrin [that aspirin just ain't strong enough] and have Shirley give me a shot of good ole penicillin [just to be safe, y'see].

DWARFED TUGS escort submarine tender L. Y. Spear through Fore River Bridge from General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard for voyage to Portsmouth, Va., and delivery to Navy.

Submarine Tender Spear Leaves For Portsmouth

The submarine tender L. Y. Spear, one of the largest and most complex non-combat ships ever built, sailed this week from the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard for Portsmouth, Va., and delivery to the U. S. Navy.

The 644-foot long ship, which will displace 22,640 tons fully loaded, was scheduled to arrive Wednesday at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard.

She will undergo final outfitting in the shipyard and then be assigned to the Submarine Forces, U. S. Atlantic Fleet.

A crew from the Quincy Shipbuilding Division of General Dynamics, builder of the ship, is operating the L. Y. Spear during her 48-hour trip to Virginia.

L. Y. Spear is the first ship of her kind, designed and built specifically to supply and service Navy nuclear attack submarines.

Within her 12 decks, she has nearly 100 work shops and supply rooms that will allow her to repair and maintain submarine components and to perform almost any maintenance operation.

She will carry dry provisions, refrigerated foodstuffs and other supplies necessary for the crews of the submarines she services as well as for her own crew of 1350.

Her shops, laboratories and facilities provide for all test, overhaul and repair work on nuclear attack submarines not requiring drydocking.

The facilities, among the most sophisticated available ashore or afloat, range from a blacksmith shop to laboratories for servicing and repairing nuclear components.

The L. Y. Spear was christened Sept. 7, 1967, by Mrs. Rebecca Fiske Schade, of the Norfolk, Virginia, Naval Station. She is the wife of Vice Admiral Arnold F. Schade, commander of submarine forces, U. S. Atlantic Fleet.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., he is a graduate of Central Methodist College at Fayette. He received his STB degree from Boston University School of Theology, and his master's degree from the Boston University School of Social Work.

From 1968 until his present appointment, Rev. McGuire was director of the Multi Service Center for Senior Citizens in Cambridge. Teenagers and senior citizens are his primary concerns.

Rev. McGuire will continue to live in Wellesley with his wife, Judith, and son, Scott, 2.

Fontana Bowing Out As City Assessor

Alfred L. Fontana, a Quincy city assessor for the past six years, has requested "with considerable regret" that Mayor McIntyre withdraw his name from consideration for reappointment to the post.

He wants to take it easy, he told the Mayor in a letter.

"Thank you for making possible an exciting and challenging experience which has given me great satisfaction and pleasure," he wrote.

Said Mayor McIntyre:

"I wish to commend Mr. Fontana for doing a conscientious and diligent job as assessor of the city of Quincy. During these trying days when there is so much pressure on government he exemplified the highest standards of dedicated service."

17-Year Old Artist Of Month At Crane Library

The new program to present one outstanding painting by a non-professional artist each month is attracting considerable attention.

GOP 'Party Of The People' Says Spaulding In Quincy Visit

Josiah A. [Si] Spaulding of Manchester, candidate for the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate, told Quincy Republicans last night they must make voters realize that "the party of Lincoln is the party of the people."

Spaulding, who served three years as Republican State Chairman, said at a meeting of the Quincy Republican City Committee at the Quincy Legion Post Home he believes voters want the control of government returned to them.

He charged that Democrat Senator Edward M. Kennedy does not really represent the voters of Massachusetts.

Spaulding said that while some reforms enacted by the Democratic party during the 1930's were useful, they laid the foundation for "big government" over which residents have little control.

Paraphrasing a statement of Abraham Lincoln, Spaulding said, "The Republican party is the party of the people, by the people and for the people."

He urged committee members to help do away with the "Myth" that the Republican party is the rich man's party."

He said 90 per cent of the contributions raised by the Republican party in Massachusetts during his tenure as State Chairman were in the form of $5, $10, and $15 donations. He indicated that the average Democratic contribution was much larger and from fewer people, "usually big business lobbists, big unions, and big city machines."

Spaulding warned that if control of government were not returned to the people, "not just militant students but others will be thinking of tearing down our society, brick by brick."

He said Sargent is "in good shape" politically to defeat whoever might run against him in next year's gobernatorial election.

He attributed the Governor's position to "A superb staff, a people's program, a lot of personal courage" and to numerous "good appointments" made by the Governor since he took office last year.

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

Q. Many of the wedding guests would like to see the wedding gifts. However, with the gifts on display we do not have the room to entertain them all at one time. What do you suggest?

A. The bride may have a tea to show the gifts. Perhaps one for the parents' friends and one for the couple's own. Very close friends could see them after the wedding reception.

You would hold the tea early in the week of the wedding. [Most of the gifts should have arrived]. Serve light refreshments and allow about two hours time out of a busy week.

An informal coffee hour in the morning for the neighbors would be fine too.

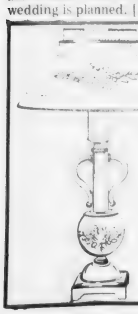
Q. Please settle an argument...Who pays for the flowers?

A. Generally speaking the groom is responsible for his bride's bouquet, the mothers' and grandmothers' corsages, and boutonnieres for the men in the bridal party.

In a very large formal wedding all the flowers are considered part of the wedding expense and the parents of the bride assume the responsibility.

Q. I am having both a maid of honor and a matron of honor. Where is their position in the processional and recessional?

A. The matron of honor walks down the aisle just before the bride. The maid of honor may precede her or walk beside her. This is up to the bride and the minister to decide.



In the recessional the matron of honor and best man follow the bride and groom. The maid of honor and head usher are next, followed by the remaining bridal party.

Please don't hesitate to write me your problems in care of the Quincy Sun. I will be happy to answer them in this column.

SHOULD YOU COLOR YOUR HAIRPIECE?

My only advice in regard to home-coloring of your hairpiece is ... don't. Unless, that is, the manufacturer gives specific instruction. Synthetic and human wigs and hairpieces react differently to hair coloring products than your own hair does.

Synthetics are now color-stable, which means they will resist fading and remain their original shade or color - which also makes them a problem when it comes to home-coloring. In fact, very few salons will attempt to color your synthetic wig or piece.

Human hair pieces, on the other hand, can be colored, dyed, or rinsed to match your own hair. That's one of their great advantages. However, my advice is to take it to a specialist where it can be done professionally rather than experiment at home and break your heart if you goof.

Combat Inflation With Imagination Says Rockwell

Exercise imagination as a weapon to combat inflation, a prominent banker has urged Quincy-South Shore businessmen.

George B. Rockwell, executive vice-president of the State Street Bank and Trust Company described inflation as one of the "certainties" of life–like death and taxes.

Rockwell made the plea as keynote speaker at the winter membership meeting of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

Inflation, Rockwell said, "poses the most persistent financial problem" in the U.S. since the government first began printing money.

He said "just about anyone"--businessmen, consumers, wage earners, the government, bankers–all are being blamed for causing or helping inflation.

But, he said, "everybody agrees...that the government should take the major step to control inflation with its available tools because the basic cause of inflation is the federal government living beyond its means.

"Long term efforts limiting expenditures in federal programs, continuous balanced or surplus budgets and a moderate Federal Reserve Policy should help to reduce inflation and it looks like we're on the right track," Rockwell noted.

Rockwell said rising costs affect business in three principal categories–labor, materials and financing. And, he added, the businessman can offset cost increases by greater efficiency or pass the added costs along to the customer in the form of higher prices.

During 1970, the State Street Bank official said, "we will be faced with a sluggish economy and it will be difficult to increase prices." As to increasing efficiency, Rockwell suggested these ways:

●Employee training for persons with little or no skills as well as for supervisory personnel so they can help increase the productivity of the existing work force.

●Involve the work force in management problems such as profits and productivity including a profit sharing plan as incentive to improve productivity.

●Automate wherever possible or purchase labor-saving equipment to increase labor force productivity.

●Re-evaluate hiring requirements which may set hiring standards for certain types of jobs unnecessarily high. "Educational and experience restrictions prevent many potentially productive workers from being hired."

He urged "efficient use of funds...imaginative use of short-term financing and debt capital as well. In addition, the truly imaginative entrepreneur will be able to develop new sources of funds."

Rockwell said the consumer can help battle inflation by exercising "their political right both by letter and ballot." Hardest hit, he said, are people living on a fixed income.

Rockwell said "an effective cost control system" involving tight inventory and distribution control is "the only way to prevent rising materials costs from getting out of hand."

As to financing, it "may present our most serious problem during the 1970's," the bank official said. He said he saw no return "to the easy money and low interest rate conditions of the early 1960's."

Rockwell also noted that as the country turns, finally and "almost too late" to ecology and as it gears to combat air and water pollution, that inflation stands as a serious deterrent to the kind of effort which will have to be made. "Our environmental struggle will not fare well so long as inflation is a major factor in our economy for it's going to take capital to solve these problems," he added.

He expressed sympathy for government officials trying to provide solutions to the complex problems facing the nation.

But, he added, "government officials would do well to adopt a more business like approach in matters affecting inflation. They should develop a long range plan, establish various goals and assign priorities necessary to attain these various goals."

Until the government does curb inflation, Rockwell asked, "does your company have the imagination to succeed in this economic environment?"

Charles A. Pearce, president of the Quincy Savings Bank and a Chamber director, was committee chairman. Members of the committee were:

Albert J. Allen, Jr., D.D.S., Danile J. Barry, Lloyd Bergeson, John W. Bettes, H. Arthur Blessington, Henry W. Bosworth, Thomas A. Christopher, Mrs. Dorothy Delano, Berk Eckblom, George C. Fay, Joseph Gaides, Arthur Gillis.

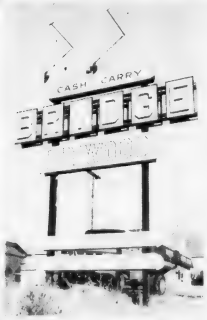
McIntyre, Tobin Seek P.A. Systems To Prevent Panic In MBTA Stations

Mayor-Sen. James R. McIntyre and Rep. Arthur H. Tobin will seek the installation of loud speaker systems in MBTA underground stations to aid passengers to safely exit in the event of derailments.

"Delays and derailments are becoming increasingly frequent on the rapid transit lines of the MBTA and I am gravely concerned about the safety of our citizens in such situations," McIntyre said.

"If there is no person who is able to take control immediately to explain the nature and duration of the delay, to direct people safely to exits and other means of transportation, crowds can easily panic.

"I believe it is the responsibility of the employees of the MBTA at the scene of the emergency to assume the leadership in these matters."



McIntyre cited the recent derailment on the Harvard-Ashmont line during which, he said, "thousands of rush-hour commuters were left helpless in an underground station."

"Being caught in a situation such as that is extremely frightening, but particularly so when no passenger is told how or where he may safely leave the station," McIntyre said.

McIntyre said that both he and Tobin who have filed legislation calling for installation of loud speaker systems in all underground stations of the MBTA "realize full well that often the causes for delay in the underground subway system are unknown or unavoidable."

He said the loud speakers should be placed in areas easily accessible to all MBTA employees at all hours of the days. Employees at the scene of a delay then could broadcast to passengers "pertinent information they need to exit quickly and safely."

"This is perhaps only a small step, but extremely useful in improving the rapid transit service of the MBTA," McIntyre said.

Monday Is Girls' Night At Grenham Youth Center

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

Monday night is Girls' Night at the Grenham Youth Center.

And [you better believe it!] no boys are allowed.

There is gabbing, and sewing, and gabbing, and knitting and crocheting, and gabbing, and games, and gabbing, and gabbing, and.....

This is a long way from the all-boys' club started several years ago in the Houghs Neck Legion Post's games room with David MacMillan as leader.

However, girls are not a new ingredient at the Center. When the abandoned Davis White Front Bakery at 1213 Sea St. was secured in 1968 as boys' club headquarters and renovated, it was decided that a limited number of girls would be admitted as members. The Center is named as a memorial for Sgt. Lawrence T. Grenham, first Houghs Neck youth to die in Vietnam.

Girls could come to the Center on certain nights when a woman supervisor was present, to join in activities. This did not prove entirely successful.

"The girls need 'gab' time -- to talk about boys, homework and school," Mrs. Ruth Barra, girls' director, explained. "We have activities, but if any girl doesn't want to take part in anything, she doesn't have to. But most of them want to."

Reluctantly, the boys agreed to set aside Monday night for girls only. One of their first activities was a white elephant and a cake sale at the first anniversary of the Youth Center in November, 1969, to help with improvements at the Center.

The Center is supported by fund-raising projects of the youngsters themselves, through community-minded businesses and organizations which pledge monthly or annual contributions, and by residents who have joined their "Dollar-A-Month" Club.

Instructors for handcraft projects as well as supervisors are drawn from Houghs Neck women who contribute one night a month, or a week, or perhaps only an hour a month to be with the girls at their "home away from home."

Some are recruited by Mrs. Barra, a Nut Island Ave. resident, who is a member of the Grenham Youth Center's Advisory Board along with Dave MacMillan, Ted Johnson, Leo Kelly, Jack Nigro and Dave Stetler.

The first volunteer instructor was Mrs. Avis Haskell of 68 Sea Ave., who teaches liquid embroidery in both Braintree and Milton public school evening classes. She brought her time, talent and materials to help the girls learn the art.

This led to another handcraft project suggested by Mrs. Carol Hallett of 125 Sea Ave. She is working with Mrs. Haskell and the girls to make stuffed toy animals, on the basis, "Take one home -- make one for another." In this case, "another" means a retarded child at Wrentham State Hospital.

The girls learned of the need for toys there from Valerie Haskell, who works there as part of her cooperative course at Northeastern's School of Education.

This week there is a large bag nearly ready for delivery, made through cooperative efforts of instructors and girls: Linda Beagan, Susan Hennessey, Madelyn and Jeanine Flynn, Susan Conine, Dottie, Cindy and Terri Clark, Kim Hartshorn, Terri Brownell, Theresa Iacovino and Luann Price.

Mrs. Anna Back of 260 Winthrop St., assisted by Mrs. Lois Murphy of 135 Sea Ave., are teaching the Seniors, girls of 13 and older, to make the crocheted vests which are now in vogue.

Along this line, a time is to be arranged soon for knitting instructions by Mrs. Freda Lyons of Macy St., mother of nine children, who can somehow spare the time.

This week, Virginia Farnham of 352 Rock Island Rd., began a new venture into the world of charm and fashion. A former model and present manager of a Cohasset dress shop, Mrs. Farnham abandoned winter with a display of summer fashions for teenagers, starting with the "wet look" bikini.

Two teenage models, Gina Guarniere and Dina Farnham, gave the girls an idea of what fashions from "maxi" to "mini" would look on girls their own age.

Mrs. Farnham will come once a month with programs on "charm" and fashion to help build up confidence in personal appearance.

Supervisors who help where and when needed are Mrs. Dorothy Laing of 65 Darrow St., Mrs. Eleanor LeBel of 86 Mears Ave., and Mrs. Elizabeth Amyouny of 801 Sea St.

The urgent need now is for supervisors able to help out from 6 to 7:30 p.m., understandably a difficult time for most women. These are hours when girls ages 12 and under attend -- they are expected to leave by 8:30 p.m. Girls of 13 and older may remain until 10 p.m.

Girls active in the various Center projects include Rain Ann Drohan and Theresa Iacovino, who will be working on a monthly newsletter; Paula Hirtle, Patricia Scorzia, Diane Dineen, Janice O'Neil, Janice Blowers, Betty Jo Schindler, Mary Picard, Janet Kusser, Dolores Petito.

Also Judy Doyle, Lorraine Dunn, Mary Bondarick, Karen DeMarco, Patricia Healey.

Cheri and Bonnie Hennebury, Ann Howard, Patti and Ruth Ann Luggelle, Cindy Price, Yvette Shaw, Cindy Steen, Vicky Sheldon, Debby and Kathy Walker.

Come Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Old Barney And Bel'

"My wife and I have been miles apart ever since we got married"...the man was saying..."the goals I had in life were so different from hers...we have no children...can't agree when to start a family."

A wife was saying..."My desire when I married was to be a good lover...a good wife...a good mother...to have a happy home...but my husband had other ideas. He's a workolic. Money and things are his goal so my goals are thwarted. Our marriage is just a pretense and I'm terribly unhappy."

This is one of the things wrong in American marriage...lack of values...lack of goals...lack of objectives. Too many couples have not teamed up together.

I remember my college days while working on the Kansas farms. One team of horses which I drove in the corn fields was old Barney and Bel. Barney was a big horse...but lazy. Bel was more spirited. Bel always moved out first. She always walked a little ahead as they pulled the load. I was always saying, "Get in there Barney...Barney...get up... get up"...and frequently snapped the rain on Barney's backside. He'd move up even with Bel for a moment and then fall behind. They just didn't pull together. Old Barney didn't even try. Many marriages are like old Barney and Bel.

Consider the following marriage goals:

First goal...A husband and wife come first with each other...in sickness and health...in crisis and calm...you find pleasure in working and playing together...in their minds first before children...in-laws...-job...you pull together. You reach agreements...on trip plans...a child's request...clothes budget. You pull together in money matters...in discipline of the children...in doing things for fun together...not as old Barney and Bel...but a "pull-together team." Coming first with each other. Worthy goal?

Second goal...An understanding of male responsibility and an understanding of female responsibility. The switching of roles usually does not work out too well. A husband needs to aim at being a man all the way...a wife needs to aim at being a woman all the way. Equality need not blur the difference. When boys are not taught to take pride in their maleness...when girls are not taught to take pride in their femaleness, they are not prepared for marriage. Instead you have an old Barney and Bel team. Responsible manhood and womanhood. Worthy goal?

Third goal...A good sexual adjustment. The struggle in this area of marriage is devastating. The loss of self-worth because of sexual ignorance is unbelievable. Seldom does a couple with a good sexual adjustment go into divorce court. Sex is both a cause and a symptom of marriage conflict. The problem is hidden by silence...fear...anxiety. Yes, of course I am for more sex education...why shouldn't I be when I see the tragedies this ignorance is causing. Too many old Barneys...not enough Bels. Worthy goal?

Fourth goal...Personal development. You must not stay as you were. You both grow or one of you lags behind...like old Barney. Personal growth...more sensitivity...less negativism...more decisiveness...less code following...more responsible freedom...less phoniness...more zest for life...less holding back [Barney and Bel]. Worthy goal?

Barney and Bel didn't make it...I don't think they communicated with each other the nature of their problem. But...of course they were only a couple of Kansas horses.

United Remodeling Opens New Quarters

The United Remodeling Company recently opened its new headquarters at 24 Billings Rd., North Quincy. The company was founded in 1950 by Marshall S. Bacherman of 36 Grenwold Road, Quincy.

The company is one of the oldest remodeling firms in Quincy, specializing in complete home remodeling including aluminum siding, gutter systems, kitchens, bathrooms, room additions and porches. It holds the franchise dealership also for above ground and below surface swimming pools.

Albert F. [Chick] Maher of 45 Oval Road, Quincy, is associated with Mr. Bacherman in the firm.

Citizens Assn. Outlines Plan To Prevent Future Flooding

Preventative measures for flooding in Quincy are outlined by the Quincy Citizens Association in a recent letter from Laurence J. Curtin, president, to Mayor James R. McIntyre.

A four-point plan was recommended for action by the City to "assure that even much worse flooding does not occur in the future.:

--Additional fill should not be added to the Montclair Marsh until definite engineering plans are approved to take care of flood waters that will accumulate when the Neponset River is at flood tide and rains pour down from the Blue Hills and Third Hill.

--Acquisition of Black's Creek marsh for open space and flood plain use. Marsh channels should be widened and deepened with some of the new fill removed to provide adequate flood plain use during storms and flooding periods and to prevent damage to nearby residences.

Culverts in the West Quincy and Furnace Brook area should be increased in size to carry flood waters rapidly and adequately from that area. Engineering and design precautions should be taken for future building projects to prevent worsening of flood conditions in that area.

--No additional filling of the Neponset River should be permitted, and areas abutting the river should be carefully designed for proper drainage before new construction is permitted that will worsen flooding of homes in Montclair and North Quincy.

The Association also asked that the Mayor halt the dumping of rubbish in the Montclair Marsh where only "clean fill" was to be permitted. They reminded the Mayor that assurances had been given by the City of Quincy, the Department of Natural Resources and the State Street Bank that drainage problems would be resolved before construction started.

Attention of the City Engineers, Army Corps of Engineers and Mass. Dept. of Natural Resources to these problems was requested by the group.

Commissioner Approves Merger Of Shipbuilders, Milton Banks

The planned merger of the Shipbuilders Co-operative Bank of Quincy and the Milton Co-operative Bank has been approved by Mrs. Freyda P. Koplow, Massachusetts Commissioner of Banks.

The merger proposal, unanimously approved by the directors of both banks, will be presented to the shareholders of both institutions March 17.

Officials said the new bank, originally to be known as the First County Co-operative Bank, will be named Presidential Co-operative Bank instead.

The shareholders' meetings on March 17 will be held at the Shipbuilders Co-operative Bank, 1 Granite St., Quincy Sq., and at the office of the Milton Co-operative Bank, 420 Granite Ave., East Milton.

Total assets of the merged banks will be an estimated $14 million to $14.5 million.

Francis X. McCauley, president-treasurer of the Shipbuilders Co-operative Bank is the proposed president and executive officer of the new bank. Other proposed officers are:

Leo F. Gallagher, Milton Co-operative Bank, vice-president and chairman of the Security Committee.

William J. Martin, Sr., Shipbuilders Co-operative, second vice-president.

William P. Melley, treasurer.

Shipbuilders Co-operative Bank, chartered in January, 1920, is observing its 50th anniversary. Assets totalled more than $7,100,000 as of Jan. 1.

Milton Co-operative Bank was chartered in July 1919 and moved to its present modern facility at 420 Granite Ave., in September 1967. Total assets as of Jan. 1 were $6,400,000.

The merger, it was noted, will improve efficiency in operations and provide South Shore area residents with greater lending and deposit service.

The 60's And The 70's

During the 60's there have been many new developments, discoveries and also many tragedies. One of the worst tragedies was the death of John F. Kennedy in 1963. Five years later in 1968 his brother, Bobby was assassinated. Martin Luther King, Jr., was also assassinated the same year. In the 60's we had the first two Americans to walk on the moon. We also had the peace demonstration when people all over the country marched demanding peace. Many of our U. S. troops were withdrawn from the war in Vietnam while many others went into the war.

In the 70's I hope the U. S. will explore other planets and also land astronauts on planets such as Mars. I would like to see poverty come to an end throughout the country. We should also invent new machines that will be useful to us, such as robots. I think we should stop air and water pollution and also bring an end to the war in Viet Nam. I would like to go to college and study to be a scientist to accomplish these things.

Paul Bunyan And His Ox On The Moon

Once there was a man named Paul Bunyan. He lost his dog and decided to look for it. He went all around the country in three days. But then he met a blue ox and decided to keep him for a pet. He named him Babe. He took Babe home and gave him something to eat. He was so hungry that he ate the plate.

They wanted to go to the moon and build houses and other things. Paul thought that if he's so big and the ox is so big they could jump to the moon so off they jumped with some wood to build houses for people. Then after they built houses they went back and got the people.

If I were a golf ball I'd be hit by a club, I'd go a long way and I might even hit a tree.

If I were a house I'd be big and fat. People would be in me, furniture would also be in me.

Paul Bunyan And Babe Leave For The Moon

Paul Bunyan wanted to go to the moon, so he made a space ship and tried it out. But it didn't work so he made a great big one. This one he made in five minutes and he tried it out. It worked this time so he got on all his heaviest clothes and he got Babe and took off. It was very exciting. It only took 30 minutes. He is on the moon now. He brought some logs to make houses so we can live there.

Paul Bunyan And His Parents

Once there lived a big giant. It was a baby boy. He lived on the moon with his mother and father. When Paul Bunyan was a baby boy he grew bigger until he was as big as the sky. Paul Bunyan wanted to be a wood cutter who would cut down wood in the big woods. So his mother and father said that he could be a wood cutter. When Paul Bunyan went out to cut down wood, he found a cow and took him home. Paul Bunyan asked his mother and father if he can keep the cow and the mother and father said that he can keep the cow, because they needed the cow so Paul Bunyan will have a friend with him when he goes to cut down wood.

Clean Up

The Clean up squad is a group of children that go around the school yard every morning and clean it up. A few of them do the school yard and the rest do the front of the school and the sides. We are proud of them.

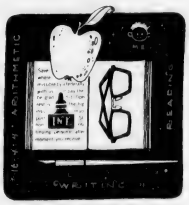
A Book Chore



Some people like to do book chores. A book chore is a matter of fixing books when they are out of order. When you fix or set up books, it makes the room or library look presentable. So now, we at Wollaston School, are going to have a clean, presentable room. And whoever visits will see that we fix the books when necessary.

$40 Million City Budget Seen

better understand the cost of municipal government," Tobin noted.

The taxpayers have been asking the elected officials to hold the line in municipal spending, he said. Now they will have a chance to listen to the needs of the administration to run this City.

The City Council still has a crack at making further cuts in the budget when the Mayor submits it at the Feb. 16 meeting. Last year, the council pruned $262,055.35 that it deemed expendable.

Adding appropriation orders made outside the budget totalling $1,079,038.63 and subtracting previous appropriations of $876,634.03, the budget appears to be $40,982,761.33 before the Council lays hands on it.

Last year the figure, including the cuts made by the City Council, stood at $37,305,947.83, meaning an increase of $3,676,813.50 in the projected total appropriation this year.

"Actually," said Mayor McIntyre, "it represents a net decrease in the items over which I have control."

Increases in items outside the Mayor's control are $1,466,432.96 for schools, $1,177,693.00 for the hospital [self-amortizing through higher rates], $522,609.92 for police, $607,895.17 for fire department, and $189,937.56 for retirement programs, a total of $3,964,568.61.

The increases in the police budget covers 10 new policemen added last December and the pay raise of about 6 per cent that will go into effect next April.

The boost in the fire department budget reflects the new 42 hour work week, the additions of 38 new men and the pay raise of about 6 per cent also effective in April.

Retirement program increases represent higher pensions.

Quincy Vietnam Clothing Shipment Stalled In Norfolk

Two tons of clothing collected in Quincy for shipment last November to the needy in Vietnam is bogged down in Norfolk, Va.

Mayor James R. McIntyre, in disclosing the fact, said he has asked Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to intercede to expedite the shipment.

"It is a shame," McIntyre said, "that so many people in Quincy made a special effort to collect the clothing for unfortunate adults and children in Vietnam who desperately need it, to discover that in nearly three months the clothing has travelled only 650 miles."

McIntyre said the clothing was trucked by the Quincy Park Department to the South Weymouth Naval Air Station in November.

"It was our understanding that the clothing would be flown to the West Coast and from there to Vietnam," McIntyre said.

"Now we find that it is still in a building at Norfolk and has been re-packed for shipment. I understand it is now supposed to go to Vietnam by ship instead of by plane."

McIntyre said that under those plans, the clothing could take another six months to finally reach Vietnam.

"I have asked Sen Kennedy to intercede to have the shipment expedited," he said.

The Mayor noted that two Quincy soldiers serving in Vietnam--Pfc. Raymond D. Crombie and SP-5 Francis X. Moran--had asked Quincy residents to collect the clothing.

"Ironically," said McIntyre, "these two men who also made a special effort to help the unfortunate in Vietnam are due to be discharged in two or three months. They could be home before the clothing arrives there."

Ired HN, Germantown Parents Protest Student Bus Service

morning buses. She suggested an additional bus to travel down Babcock St. to the Fire Station where it would turn onto Sea St. and pick up all students overlooked by the present buses.

Repoza and Bowen both said that surveys on bus travel on the Germantown and Houghs Neck routes indicated there was no overcrowding of buses. If it can be proved that another bus is needed, it will be added, Repoza said. "If we can get the vehicles, we will make the adjustments."

"Double punching" occurs when students board the bus after 5 p.m., the deadline set for student travel by the former Eastern Mass Street Railway, Repoza said. He suggested that parents write Leo J. Cusick, MBTA general manager, if they wished the deadline extended to 7 p.m., to conform to student deadlines in Boston.

Admitting that vandalism by students in the past had led to the decision not to have buses go directly to the school, parents claimed that the present group of students were being "persecuted" because of past acts of others. There is a walk of several blocks from the school to the Sea St. bus stop. Repoza was unwilling to have buses go to the school.

The State Law requiring free bus tickets for students under 17 years of age living more than two miles from the school they attended was brought up. Kelly suggested that those interested attend this week's [last night] School Committee meeting when he would bring up the subject.

The boundaries of the two-mile radius from Broad Meadows was also questioned.

"I think we at least identified many of the problems," Kelly said of the meeting. "Repoza was very forthright. He has been helpful to the School Department in the past. He has a difficult job."

I have a feeling that as a result of the meeting he will make a very vigorous effort to zero in on the problems affecting Bowes St., Baker Beach, Manet Ave. and Babcock St."

Kelly said that he intended to ask the School Committee to write the MBTA requesting a time extension from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. for use of school bus tickets by students remaining for school activities.

He expects also to make a study of the lengthy history of the two-mile boundary set for Broad Meadows, and the matter of free bus tickets.

Regarding sending buses to Broad Meadows during inclement weather, Kelly said, "Unless a request comes from the students, with appropriate remarks, no action will be taken."

168 Students To Leave On Germany Ski Trip

Some 168 Quincy and North Quincy High School students leave Saturday night for a week's skiing trip to--Munich, Germany.

The trip will be led by John R. Pierce, 27-year-old social studies teacher at North Quincy High and an active member of the Quincy Education Association.

Making the journey with them will be 10 other teachers from the association and the parents of 40 students.

The party will depart from Logan Airport at 11 p.m. aboard a special TWA jet for Munich.

"It will be an incorporation of education and pleasure," said Pierce who two years ago was instrumental in founding the "Cultural Club" at the two high schools. The students making the trip are members of the fast-growing club.

Pierce, who holds a Masters degree also teaches two nights a week at Boston State College which he attended.

"On Sunday," he said, "it will be sight-seeing time in Munich and for the rest of the week skiing at famous Innsbruk, scene of the 1968 Winter Olympics."

One parent commented enthusiastically:

"This is something the students will never forget. In addition to seeing Germany, they will have the opportunity to learn from European ski instructors and to get acquainted with students of Germany and other countries."

The trip costs $295 each. Many of the students worked at various jobs and saved their money to finance this one-in-a-lifetime adventure.

While in Germany, the girls will be quartered in one hotel and the boys in another.

The party is scheduled to arrive back at Logan Airport Feb. 22.

"Then it will be back to the books," said Pierce. "But what fond memories they will have to cherish."

St. John's Baseball Registration Sunday

Spring is just around the corner.

Registration for St. John's Boys Baseball League will be held Feb. 15 and 22 in St. John's Parish Hall in the rectory from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Eight year old boys of the parish may register for the junior division. Boys nine years old through 12 years may register for the senior league. The parish also plans to sponsor a cadet team in the CYO league this year for boys ages 13 through 15.

All boys including those who played last season must register on either of those two Sundays. A registration fee of $2 must be paid for each boy at the time for signing up for the league.

Last year more than 200 boys played in the American and National senior division. There were more than 50 boys in the four team eight year old division.

Any men of the parish who would be willing to assist as managers, coaches or umpires for the coming season are asked to contact Anthony Constantino on registration days.

Next to the city and little leagues, St. John's Boys Baseball League is the largest league of its kind along the South Shore.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. I am retired and receive two pensions from two different former employers. Both of these pensions are partially taxable. Where do I enter this information on my tax return?

A. Income from pensions and annuities should be entered in Part I of Schedule E, Form 1040. If you have more than one pension, you must use a separate Schedule E for each pension. The taxable portion of your pensions would then be combined with Parts I, II & III of Schedule E and entered on line 14, Form 1040.

Q. I quit my job in 1969. At that time, I received what had been built up in my pension fund to which both myself and my employer had contributed. Is the amount I received taxable?

A. The excess over the amount you contributed is taxable. However, if you received the funds all in one year because you left the company, then this excess could qualify as a capital gain. Otherwise, it is taxed as ordinary income.

Q. Due to personal reasons, I will not be able to file my tax return until several months after the normal filing deadline of April 15, 1970. How can I file for an extension of time?

A. You may apply for an extension to file by submitting Form 2688, "Application for Extension of Time to File U. S. Individual Income Tax Return," with the Internal Revenue Service where your return will be filed, or you may send your application in a letter. Your application must include the following information:

[1] Your reasons for requesting the extension.
[2] Whether you filed timely income tax returns for the three preceding years; and
[3] Whether you were required to file an estimated return for the year and if so, whether you did file and have paid the estimated tax payments on or before the due dates.

Any failure to file timely returns or make estimated tax payments when due must be fully explained. Extensions of time to file returns are only granted under unusual circumstances. The reasons for your request must be substantial. If you should make any request, make it early so that if it is refused your return may still be filed on time.

Q. We have a problem which I hope you can settle. Our daughter was married last October. I say that my wife and I can claim her as a dependent on our return since we supported her entirely until her marriage. My son-in-law says that since they were married before the end of the year, he can file jointly with his new wife. Who is right?

A. Your son-in-law is correct. He is entitled to file jointly with his new wife as long as they were married before December 31, 1969. You could claim your daughter only if she did not file a joint return with her new husband. He would then have to file a separate return and not claim an exemption for his wife.

Q. Are lump-sum Social Security payments taxable?

A. No. All Social Security benefits are tax exempt.

Q. I am figuring my sick pay exclusion and am not sure whether or not to count a paid holiday as a sick day. What should I do?

A. If you are absent from work on a legal holiday occuring within a period of absence caused by a personal injury or sickness, the pay you receive for the holiday qualifies as sick pay. However, if the first or last day of a period of absence is a nonworking legal holiday, the pay you receive for the holiday does not qualify as sick pay.

Q. My wife's mother lives with us and I claim her as a dependent on my tax return. Where do I list her on the new Form 1040?

A. List her on the front of Form 1040 under the section titles "Your Exemptions". The subsection for Other Dependents provides space for listing the claimed dependent's name and for answering questions to determine if the dependent meets the required support tests.

Q. I have been divorced for five years and receive $2,500 in alimony yearly. Where do I report this amount on the new Form 1040?

A. Alimony income should be reported in Part III of Schedule E of the new Form 1040. This amount will be added to any other income shown on Schedule E [Taxable pensions, rent & royalty income, partnerships, estates or trusts, small business corporations & miscellaneous income] and the total will be entered on line 14, Form 1040.

Q. I am itemizing my deductions and I was wondering which taxes are deductible?

A. Deductible taxes include real property taxes, state income taxes, personal property taxes, state and local excise taxes and state and local gasoline taxes. Some non-deductible taxes include federal income, social security, excise, estate, gift or inheritance taxes, cigarette and meals taxes and also auto licenses and toys.

Koch Club Vietnam Project Will Continue To Feb. 16

The Koch Club of Quincy's Vietnam project to collect learning materials for the youngsters of that war-torn land will end Monday, Feb. 16, Richard J. Koch, the club's executive director, has announced.

The response to the project, which began shortly before Christmas, has been excellent, according to Koch, who requested a final weekend effort to gather still more materials.

Student volunteers from the Cranch School and other groups have collected crayons, pencils, paper, coloring books and story books to be sent to the orphanages and schools in the poorer hamlets of Vietnam.

Clarence Smith of 35 Spear St., recently discharged after a tour of Army duty in Vietnam, is chairman of the project and Sgt. Steve Hartford, 38 Woodward Ave., is handling things on the Vietnam end.

Sgt. Hartford recently wrote to Smith requesting soap, toothpaste and used children's clothing for distribution to two Buddhist and a catholic orphanages where the number of children increase each day.

The articles may be left at 241 Newbury St., North Quincy for packaging and shipment to the office of the installation chaplain in Vietnam where Sgt. Hartford will assist with distribution.

POWER Security Sentry Systems control boxes are part of the anti-burglar protection offered by the firm, located at 63 Mullin Ave., West Quincy. Pointing to the boxes is company executive Francis D. Powers.

The interviewer was shown into a room. According to Francis D. Powers, president of POWERS SENTRY SECURITY SYSTEMS [Alarm Distributor Service], the room was burglar-proof.

As the interviewer walked into the room, things happened.

Four triggers in the door were disturbed. A disguised electronic eye device was set off. A pressure-sensitive device buried in the floor was triggered. An ultra-sonic transmitter-receiver was aware of movement within the room...movement down to two inches.

As a result, bells clanged and rang, buzzers buzzed, horns blared; an automatic dialing device rang the police department and alerted them, then alerted three other people at three different locations; camera lights flooded the room and an automatic camera filmed everything in the room on video-tape.

The interviewer, as a potential burglar, never had a chance.

POWERS SENTRY SECURITY SYSTEMS, 63 Mullin Ave., Quincy, 773-7300, offers all these alarm systems and more...for both offices and homes.

"Although the traditional picture of alarm systems is associated with businesses," says Powers, "the majority of burglaries today are committed in homes. The thieves, professional and amateur alike, know that the average homeowner is too lackadaisical to protect his home. They walk in and out like they owned the place."

As a former Boston police detective, Powers knows his business. "In order to prevent or discourage vandalism, stealing, or breaking and entering, we must know how the criminal thinks...and how to design electronic systems to beat that thinking."

POWERS ENTRY SECURITY SYSTEMS has done that job.

Raiders Host Everett

'2' Magic Number For North Tech Berth

North Quincy's basketball team, needing two wins in its last three games to gain another Tech Tourney berth, is home to Everett Friday night, then faces its biggest assignment of the year Tuesday night when it travels to Somerville's lion's den to meet the Greater Boston League leaders who have an 11-0 league mark.

Bob Nolan's Raiders moved to within two wins of qualifying for the fourth time in his five-year coaching tenure with an easy 71-33 win Tuesday over Chelsea. The win gave North an 8-3 league mark good for third place and a 10-4 overall record.

"It was nice to have a game like this for a change," Nolan said. "Everything went well, our defense was really outstanding as we held them to 20 points in the first half and only 13 in the second, and the overall performance was excellent."

Nolan used 11 players and 10 of them scored.

The Raiders opened up a 17-10 first period lead and widened their margin to 35-20 at the half with the effective use of a half-court press. They outscored the losers, 36-13 in the final two periods.

North shot 46 percent from the floor, 43 in the first half and 49 in the second, and hit on 80 per cent of its foul shots, 17 for 21. The Raiders out-rebounded the Red Devils, 39-18, with Dan Zink and Ken Baker especially outstanding on the boards. Chelsea had 22 turnovers and North converted nearly all into scores.

"Jim Small [17 points] and Baker [12] shot well and they, along with Brian Donahue and Rich Sanderson sparked the offense," Nolan said.

Donahue scored six of his eight points in the second period and Small had 11 of his points in the third period.

Joe Amorosino's North junior varsity also romped, 64-33, to make its record 10-3.

North Quincy's Tech Tourney hopes were given a slight jolt last week but the Raiders hoped to regain the win trail Tuesday against Chelsea.

Friday night North which, including the Chelsea game, needed three wins in four remaining games to make the Tech, is home to Everett and Tuesday night goes to Somerville to play the Greater Boston League's undefeated leader.

Last week North Quincy dropped a 72-58 decision at Medford but Coach Bob Nolan was pleased with a fine third period comeback. "It was heartening the way the boys bounced back despite a 19-point deficit and it is this sort of attitude that may get us into the Tech. However, we still have a very rough road."

Fouls killed the Raiders as they outscored the Mustangs by two field goals but hit on eight of 15 foul shots while Medford converted 26 of 38 for the win, its second this season over North.

Down by 19 points midway in the third period, the Raiders got together to break Medford's hold and cut the gap to six points at the end of the period. A missed breakaway on the first play of the final period gave Medford the chance it needed and it quickly pulled away by 12 points.

Jim Small paced the North attack with 17 points, followed by Ken Baker with 11 and Brian Donahue with 10.

North's fine junior varsity team dropped a 48-47 squeaker, its third loss of the season. Tom Kelly had 13 points and Bob McKay 12 for the North quintet.

McIntyre Team Setting Pace In Bowling Little Loop

Mayor James R. McIntyre's team has a two-point first place lead as the Quincy Bowling Little Loop enters its last nine weeks of action.

The McIntyre team is 46-18 for the season with the Hennessy Plumbing Supply team in second place, 44-20.

Still very much in contention are Wollaston Bowladrome, 43-21, Rep. Joseph E. Brett team, 40-24 and Atlantic Fuel Oil, 39-25.

Wollaston Bowladrome is the hottest team in the league right now winning 13 out of a possible 16 points over the last four weeks.

Paul Peckham, captain of the Brett team, rolled a 317 last week to up his average to 102.--highest in the league.

In the top 10 besides Peckham and Magnarelli are:

Father's Club Presents Awards

Picarski won the coveted Primavera Trophy as the Presidents' Most Valuable Player, and Ryan was awarded the Jack Granville Memorial award as the outstanding Quincy player of the Quincy-North Quincy game.

Other award winners were Cliff Mattson, Kennedy Award, outstanding offensive lineman; Steve Shapiro, President Trophy, outstanding defensive lineman; Rick Pettiti, George Underwood Award, outstanding linebacker; Tom Daley, Moscardelli Award, outstanding offensive back, and Paul Hand, Paul Grasso Award, unsung hero, presented by seniors of the 1965 team.

Coach Hank Conroy received the handsome Greater Boston League championship trophy.

Special achievement awards, game footballs, went to Joe Maguire, Bill Contino, Mike Paluzzi and Lance Peterson, and Manager Jack Weir also received a special team appreciation award.

The Fathers Club Trophy went to the high school and another to the 1969 Football Queen, jackets went to seniors, juniors and coaches, trophies to sophomores and awards to the cheerleaders.

ENC Girls Hoop Team Rolling

In its last two games the team romped Gordon, 51-31, and Berkshire Christian, 75-15.

Mrs. Detwiler is the former girls' coach and physical education teacher at Norwell High school and she has an outstanding team at ENC.

Sparkplugs are Jan Brooks who scored 33 points against Berkshire and 26 against Gordon, and Sue Calhoun, who had 16 against Berkshire and 11 against Gordon. Ann Alverson had 10 against Gordon.

In their latest outing the ENC girls clobbered Boston State, 63-30, as Miss Brooks scored 31 points and Miss Calhoun added 13. The win gave ENC a 6-0 record.

Quincy To Try Again Friday At Medford

Quincy's basketball team will travel to Medford Friday night to meet the Greater Boston League runner-up and Tuesday night will return home against Revere.

Tuesday, Marty Finnegan's Quincy club was walloped at Malden, 63-42, as the Presidents had a poor shooting night and too many turnovers.

"We shot only 15 for 55 from the floor while they had 27 for 61," Finnegan said. "And we turned the ball over 18 times, which hurt us tremendously. Each team had 27 rebounds but our shooting was just bad."

Bob Pike had an outstanding night as he hit for 25 points, having nine for 18 from the floor and seven for 10 from the foul line and he also grabbed 13 rebounds. George Davey had 10 rebounds.

Malden, beaten in overtime at Quincy earlier, had a 13-9 first period edge, widened it to 32-19 at halftime and took a 44-28 bulge into the final period.

Fran Conroy's Quincy junior varsity won, 42-25, for its 10th win in 14 games and held Malden scoreless from the floor from the one-minute mark of the second period until the final six seconds of the third period. Bobby Malvesti had 10 points.

Last week Quincy had a big final period to upset Everett, 56-51, for win number three.

Quincy started slowly and trailed, 19-9, after the first period but the Presidents rebounded to cut the gap to 23-20 at the half, with a strong defense. Everett exploded again in the third period for 18 points and carried a 41-33 lead into the final session.

Here Quincy's zone defense paid off and the Presidents continually stole the ball and intercepted passes and Everett was forced into many fouls as Quincy hit on 11 free throws. A 23-10 margin in the period gave Quincy the win.

"We were grateful for this win," Coach Marty Finnegan said, "as we lost Billy Maver with the flu and he had been playing fine ball. Although it doesn't show up in the scoring column, Richie DiCristofaro played another excellent floor game and was exceptional on defense."

Junior forward Bob Pike was outstanding as he scored 22 points and grabbed off 15 rebounds. George Davey had 17 points and 10 rebounds.

Usually it is Quincy which has numerous turnovers but in this game Everett had 21 and Quincy hit on 26 foul shots. The Presidents were outscored, 44 to 30 from the floor. Quincy's superior rebounding played a major role in the win.

Bradley Hitting For 30 Points Per Game

Sophomore Ron Bradley, former North Quincy High Captain, has been setting all sorts of scoring records for the Eastern Nazarene College basketball team and last week was Bradley Week as far as the team was concerned.

In his last three games Bradley, whose father, Carroll, is the ENC coach, upped his scoring average to 30 points a game with splurges of 45, 38 and 31 points.

Ron hit on 20 of 25 field goal attempts and five of nine foul shots for a school record-breaking 45 points in a 98-91 win over Gordon. The old record of 44 was set by Ray Baltz, also against Gordon, in 1964.

Despite his son's scoring binges, Coach Bradley considered the 104-97 victory over Babson the most important event of the week.

"Babson is a very good team and we hadn't beaten them in three years," Carroll said. "After our young team [ENC doesn't have a single senior] beat Babson they felt they had beaten a good team and you could see them gaining confidence from it. That win was a factor in our next game [97-82 win over U. of Maine [Portland], because even though we played poorly, the boys had enough confidence to win."

Bradley, a 6-2, 170-pound guard, has hit on 51 percent of his shots from the floor and 74 percent from the foul line.

Another former North Quincy captain, freshman Don Constantine, has been scoring well and has a 9.3 average but has some high scoring games. He has hit on 43 percent of his floor shots and 65 percent of his free throws.

One of the most pleasant surprises of the season has been the play of Bob Henning, a 6-2, 200-pound freshman from Hilton, N.Y., who is hitting on 57 per cent of his field goal tries and averaging 12.6 points a game. In his last three games he scored 28, 12 and 22 points.

Sox Visit Rotarians

Another 'Impossible Dream'?

If optimism and confidence among Red Sox officials and players mean anything, the Boston team should win another pennant in 1970.

Tuesday the Quincy Rotary Club was host to a group of Sox front office personnel and two rookie pitchers at the annual Red Sox Day at the Neighborhood Club and everyone oozed optimism about the coming season.

Rotarian Ken Fallon, program chairman, was toastmaster, and introduced Bill Crowley, Sox director of public relations, who spoke briefly and introduced the other members of the Sox group.

Joining Crowley were Vice-President Haywood Sullivan, Director of Minor League Operations Ed Kenney of Braintree, special scouts Sam Mele of Quincy and Frank Malzone and Rookie Pitchers Dick Mills of Weymouth and Ed Phillips of Portland, Me.

Crowley said the Sox have the best personnel going to spring training in the 10 years he has been director of public relations and he feels the Sox have an excellent chance of winning another American League championship.

Other quotes from the Red Sox family:

SULLIVAN-: "I am most optimistic and feel we have the best personnel in years. We made some trades which will help and the competition is going to be tremendous. This is good because every veteran will be pushed and, looking over his shoulder, will see someone coming along to take his place if he slips up.

"We still don't know about Jose Santiago, as he is still having arm troubles, but other players who didn't live up to expectations last year, should come back strong this year."

KENNEY-: "We have some wonderful talent in our farm system and I feel Dick Mills and Ed Phillips have the potential to pitch for the Red Sox. Last year I honestly felt Mike Nagy, although he had the potential, wasn't quite ready for the Sox but he went on to become the American League's Rookie of the Year. Things look bright for this year and for the future of the Red Sox."

MILLS-: "This is my second time at spring training and, despite tougher competition, I feel Ed [Phillips] and I can make it tough on some of the veterans. My arm feels good and I did well in the instructional league."

PHILLIPS-: "I've been on winning teams since Little League and I hope I will be pitching for a winning Red Sox team. I've played for Eddie Kasko, the new Sox manager, and he is a wonderful person.

"I've played with a number of minor league teams but would trade all my past experiences for one game in the big leagues. I hope I can make Boston a permanent home."

MELE-: "I've seen many of the Sox minor leagues and am particularly high on Ben Ogelvie of New York, who is a great outfielder with speed, a good arm and he is a fine hitter. I also like Ben Barr, who reminds me of Sandy Koufax, Dwight Evans, another outstanding outfielder, and Mike Garman, a fine pitcher who came up at the end of last season.

"I expect Tony Conigliaro to have a fine season. Last winter I worked with him after he had come back partially from his eye injury and he told me he would hit at least 20 home runs and hit .250, and he did just that. This winter he told me he will hit 30 home runs and hit about .280 and, with his determination and fighting spirit, who am I to disagree? Eddie Kasko is a good, sound manager who is fair but tough."

MALZONE-: "I have scouted most of the other teams and it looks like our division will be strong again. Baltimore, Detroit, Cleveland, New York, Washington and our own team all look strong. Minnesota and Oakland look like the best in the west. I told Ed Phillips not to be discouraged, it took me eight years to make the majors."

Malzone, given much of the credit for the Sox wins over the Twins on the last two days of the 1967 season to win the pennant, thanks to his scouting of the Twins with Tommy Thompson, was recently chosen by the fans as the outstanding all-time Red Sox third baseman.

In closing, Crowley said that when the Red Sox open in New York in April, they could have a starting lineup made up entirely of home grown talent, something few other clubs can boast of.

It was announced that Jim Lonborg has been throwing hard in winter ball, Sonny Siebert has never thrown harder and that Billy Conigliaro and Joe Lahoud will be given a real shot to oust one of the regular outfielders.

Quincy J.V.'s Perfect Record

The team blanked Everett, 4-0; Chelsea, 11-0, and Malden 5-0. Artie Boyle, now the varsity starter, was in goal for the Everett and Chelsea games and Pete Rugg was the netminder in the Malden contest.

Don [Bomber] Burke scored for the Presidents.

QJC Hockey Team In Hot Victory Streak

After its first five games of the season, Quincy Junior College's first hockey team had a 1-4 record.

In its last seven games QJC has lost only once with a 3-1-3 mark and takes a 4-5-3 record into its next game Monday, Feb. 23 against Grahm Jr. College [9:30 p.m. at Boston Arena].

QJC, due to injuries and other factors, was shorthanded Monday against Massassoit but freshman Ed Gillis took good care of things with four goals as the Quincy club, coached by Don Salvucci, former Quincy High and Northeastern star, romped, 6-2, in a Mass. Small College League game at the Arena.

The center from Weymouth scored two first period goals, added one in the middle period and another in the finale. Linemate Charlie Abbotte assisted on three of them and also scored once himself and the other goal was scored by Pat Breen. Gillis also had an assist, and other assists went to Mike Bruno and Mike Cocci.

Tom Doherty, a newcomer playing his first game in goal, was outstanding as he had 38 saves, including many of the spectacular variety.

W. Quincy Development Would Cause Floods Says Barilaro

An air survey over West Quincy has convinced Ward 4 Councillor Albert R. Barilaro that theproposeddevelopment of 400 acres there will cause major flooding if precautions are not taken.

"If something isn't done to prevent it, we will have more flooding in West Quincy than we have ever had before," Barilaro declared.

One thing that will have to be done, he said, is to widen and deepen Furnace Brook.

"Before any developing can be done in the quarry section off the Southeast Expressway, Furnace Brook should be widened and deepened along its full length," he said.

Barilaro and Ward 3 Councillor John F. Koegler got a "bird's eye" view of Quincy's flooding and air pollution problems Saturday.

They took a two-hour flight survey in a plane owned and piloted by City Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonald.

They first flew over the Blue Hills checking streams that feed into the Braintree Dam and the West Quincy area which when swollen cause flooding in West and South Quincy.

"It gave us a better idea of the number of streams than we could ever get from the ground," Koegler said.

Barilaro recalled that the Planning Board recently in a meeting with the City Council pointed to 400 acres of "prime land" in the quarry area for future development.

Barilaro said at that meeting he raised the question of proper drainage if the area is developed.

He said he was informed that the flow of water would go into the Furnace Brook.

"I said a development there would be like putting an umbrella over the whole area–that buildings and blacktop would foul up natural drainage," he said.

"By flying over the area and taking several close looks I am now convinced I was right about the drainage problems.

"Water is now seeping into the earth which serves as a sponge. But once buildings are constructed and areas are blacktopped, this water will have no natural runoff. Furnace Brook just isn't big enough to take care of it.

Barilaro said he will advise the Planning Board of his findings and recommendations.

The two councillors agreed it was an eye-opening flight.

"It may have been a clear day on the ground but it wasn't up there," said Koegler. "There was a lot of smog–especially from the Weymouth area.

"And you'd be amazed," added Barilaro, "at how dirty the water is below you. The water in the ocean–including Quincy Bay."

New Zoning Wins First Public Test

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

The proposed re-zoning of Quincy has passed its first public test--unofficially.

Reaction to the recommended new zoning at an open meeting Tuesday night of the Houghs Neck Community Council was "mostly favorable."

The meeting, a forerunner of official public hearings to be held by both the City Planning Board and City Council, drew a large but orderly crowd to Houghs Neck Legion Hall.

Theodore Gerber, principal planner of the Quincy Planning Department, told the audience that the new zoning is needed to:

- Make best use of the "very little raw land left" in the city.
- Eliminate 'pyramid zoning'.
- End 'strip commercial zoning'.
- Provide for the influx from Boston of apartment dwellers.

The zoning changes, recommended by a special committee appointed by Mayor James R. McIntyre, will be given their first official public hearing by the Planning Board Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at Quincy High School auditorium.

Samuel I. Tuttle, Jr., vice president of the Houghs Neck Community Council, and a member of the Mayor's rezoning committee, introduced Gerber.

"One of the chief differences is that the new zoning ends the practice of pyramid zoning," Gerber said. "Also, strip commercial zoning is eliminated."

"Density control" limiting the number of people living in a particular area, and "bulk control" providing for open spaces about apartments are a necessity," Gerber said.

"We have regarded Houghs Neck like any part of Quincy," Gerber said, "with regard to

$250,000 For N.Q. Code Program

The U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved a grant increase of $250,000 for the North Quincy Improvement Program, a code enforcement project.

The money will go for loans and grants to people for the improvement of their housing in the project area.

"I am delighted that we were able to get an increase in our original grant," said Mayor James R. McIntyre. "The grant is now $400,000, the highest in the state.

"And, best of all, we don't have to match the funds."

CD Alert To Be Planned Friday

City department heads and civil defense officials will meet Friday at 10 a.m., in the City Council chambers to plan an alert exercise sometime next spring.

City Civil Defense Director Edward Roberts and Area Director Lou Saba will explain in detail the function of city personnel during the mock exercise.

City officials will run the city during the alert from the new Civil Defense center on Sea St.

Comer Named Quincy City Assessor

John P. Comer of 45 Lancaster St., Quincy Point has been appointed to the Quincy City Board of Assessors by Mayor James R. McIntyre.

Comer, a licensed real estate dealer and active in veterans affairs, has been an assistant assessor for the past year.

He succeeds Alfred L. Fontana, who after serving six years, declined reappointment "with considerable regret."

The appointment will become effective March 2 and will continue through the first Monday in February, 1973.

The post pays $10,360 annually.

Do You Know Who Quincy Is Named For?

Everybody knows George Washington was born on Feb. 22.

But do you know that Quincy was born on that date, too?

"Not many people do," notes City Historian William C. Edwards.

And, he says, many natives--like most tourists--think Quincy was named for Quincy born John Quincy Adams, sixth President.

Actually, that honor goes to Col. John Quincy, his great grandfather, after whom the President was also named.

"Many are also unaware," adds Edwards, "that they could have been living in the city of Hancock today instead of Quincy."

Back there, 178 years ago, there were a lot of people who wanted the then new town named after native-son John Hancock instead of Boston-born Colonel Quincy.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

Hancock, who was born in the North Precinct, was governor at the time and signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

Opponents argued that Hancock was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished--but deceased--person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished--and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741--12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77--two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Thus, this Feb. 22, Quincy will mark its 178th birthday as Quincy instead of as Hancock.

But a lot of people--residents and tourists alike--will go right on thinking that Quincy was named after John Quincy Adams.

Unfortunately, Colonel Quincy seems to be better known as a brand of blended whiskey.

Where There Is Help, There Is Hope . . .

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

"Hope" is the key word for the 20 or so men who each month leave the alcoholic rehabilitation center at Long Island Hospital, off Squantum.

"Help!" is the call to Quincy residents across the Bay from Rev. Bruce Noyes, their chaplain, who has a special talent for working with alcoholics.

"Father Bruce," the first full-time Protestant chaplain at the hospital, went to Long Island from St. Chrysostom's Episcopalian Church in Wollaston where he was interim minister. His experience included 12 years in the Army, eight years as chaplain at Children's Hospital and at the Lemuel Shattuck rehabilitation unit, plus a pastorate at Hopkinton.

His original salary of $104. per week has been raised to $121. The Episcopal Diocese helps to subsidize him. Two regular and one part-time seminarian assist him at the hospital.

Fr. Noyes is asking for help in the Tobin Building, where some 300 men are recovering from the disease of alcoholism. Ten or 15 volunteers are needed in the "issue room," open six hours a week to dispense clothing to patients. The hours are 10 to 12 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays.

"What I would like is to have people give any two hours in a month, or up to six hours a week if they want," Fr. Noyes explained. "Pick their own time and work directly under the chaplain."

A problem at Long Island is that alcoholics do not have the same "allowances" as patients in other hospital wards, all of whom have neither money nor health. Clothing must be donated, or bought with funds contributed by charitable groups who know the need.

Last year Fr. Noyes provided $350. himself just to buy underwear for patients. In his first year, he received $100. in gifts to buy clothing – this year gifts totaled $585. The Episcopal Men's Club voted $400. for work there.

Instead of cigars or cigarettes at Christmas, Fr. Noyes answered a more urgent plea from the patients – he gave each a pair of warm socks, 700 pairs in all bought for $173.

Further outlining his plan, Fr. Noyes said, "I want women and men to come in to furnish a very simple needed service. I want people in the community to some and see how wonderful these men are. Some are unreasonable, some have high spirits. They are like people everywhere.

"There is less drinking among these men than in any community in Massachusetts. You may find one man drinking. That is a much smaller percentage than in any community!

"Also, it would give us another chance to spread knowledge in the community of our need for clothing. –

REV. BRUCE NOYES

Just to know you know us and you know our need."

Among the men who come to Long Island Hospital are former lawyers, geologists, professionals. Because they became alcoholics, they have now no family relationships, no friends, no religion, no money.

"They choose to come," Fr. Noyes said. "They feel it is about time they did something with their lives."

Of those who have left, one is now a secretary of a college. Another is running a Halfway House. A Sioux Indian will return to South Dakota this summer to work with youth.

"They may work out of here for a year," explained Fr. Noyes. "A man may go to a Halfway House, or we even get a room for him. Whenever he is ready to go, I'm ready."

"Worship is the least important part of my work here in dealing with people," Fr. Noyes said. "These men have been suffering from a disease which caused them to withdraw from everything.

"Religion is no longer a habit. Everything here is 100% on a personal basis. There may be 10 to 12 in chapel a week. Of the 60 men who are my personal project, I am lucky to find two or three of them in chapel. For those who come, we make it as meaningful as possible. It is a direct approach, maybe reciting a verse of Scripture and asking, 'What does this mean to you?' They may try to pull away; we would like to pull them back."

Patients attend meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous at Long Island on Mondays and Wednesdays, go to meetings in Quincy on Friday nights. There are no women alcoholics at Long Island. They go to Mattapan, first rehabilitation center in the area for women.

Among the Negro alcoholics, a course in Black Studies is being conducted for those who want it, to give them a sense of their lineage.

On Friday [March 6] Fr. Noyes will bring his story of "Hope" and pleas for "Help" to Church Women United of Quincy at their annual World Day of Prayer in Bethany Congregational Church Chapel at 2 p.m.

As 'Father Bruce' notes, where there is help – there is hope.

New Zoning Passes First Test

what exists in this neighborhood-predominantly single family homes, a few apartment houses and commercial areas."

"We expanded Residential "A" zoning in Houghs Neck, reduced the size of the commercial district; there is a small area at the foot of Great Hill, near this area, and at Palmer St. Where apartments have already been built, it is Residential "C". This is the only multi-family zone in this part of the city."

"Every line on the map is subject to change," Gerber said. "It is subject to the Quincy Council's consent."

Flood plain and wetland areas were questioned by those attending. These are areas prone to flooding from streams or coastal waters, Gerber said, and are marked on the new zoning maps.

"Someone desiring to develop in that area has to show the Board of Appeals that its plan will not adversely affect safety or health within that area before they can build," Gerber said. "In effect, it requires a special permit."

A petition was circulated at the meeting objecting to the proposed rezoning from "A" to "B" of the marsh area abutted by Lenox St., Newton St., Stoughton St. and Winthrop St.

Mrs. William T. O'Connor of 146 Stoughton St., in charge of the petition, pointed out that the particular area at the request of residents had been rezoned to "A" only last year. On the new rezoning map, the area is again designated "B".

Yesterday Gerber told the Quincy Sun that the particular area will be designated "flood plain" in later editions of the map.

"The 'flood plain' designation applies regardless of zoning," Gerber said. "Maximum protection is afforded not by the residence designation ["B"], but by the actual placing of a flood plain designation there. This takes precedence over any other designation."

Tuttle, who said the rezoning committee spent more than 100 hours of work on the proposals, agreed that specific plans on drainage would have to be submitted before any kind of building could be erected in that area.

He estimated that $28,000. had been spent by the city to alleviate flooding there caused by the construction of two single family homes.

"The City will take many years to recoup that money," he said.

State Rep. Joseph E. Brett and Gerber agreed that it will be necessary for a number of hearings on the proposals.

A show of hands at the close of the meeting indicated that most of the 50 or so persons present favored the new zoning. Most apprehension was voiced regarding possible "variances" which might be granted by the Board of Appeals.

"I felt there was a good reception," Gerber said of the meeting. "I hope that residents of the Houghs Neck area and also the rest of the City will give it all their support when it comes up for Council consideration."

Bill Would Triple Aid For Street Improvements

State highway aid to the city of Quincy would more than triple if a current bill goes through to increase the allocation of funds to cities and towns for local highway improvements.

The bill, House No. 3203, would increase from $16 million to $24 million the amount given to cities and towns. Quincy's share would go from $78,000 to $261,335.

The bill has the unanimous endorsement of the Senate Committee on Transportation.

"This money will come from the Highway Fund and the Highway Fund Debt Service Account," said Sen. James R. McIntyr, chairman of the committee. "No new taxes will be necessary because of this bill.

"This bill also increases the areas in which this money may be used by the cities and towns to include such things as snow removal, lighting, policing, maintenance of roadside areas and litter removal."

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

WEDDING PARTY ATTIRE

Today, let's direct our discussion toward what the well dressed bridal party will wear in this area. I say "this area" because customs vary in different sections of the country.

For example, in certain parts of the south afternoon weddings are unheard of because of the extreme heat. Also, there are areas where formality is so strict that you or I would be absolutely lost.

The degree of formality is determined by the number of guests and the style of the wedding gown.

The hour of formal weddings is decided by your religion.

A formal evening wedding is after 6 p.m. with a guest list of over one hundred. The bride wears a full length gown with train, long veil and elaborate headdress. The groom and his men wear a black dinner jacket, black trousers with satin stripe and white shirt with turned down collar, black bow tie and black cummerbund. Brides maids wear floor length gowns, short veils with headdress. Mothers wear floor length gowns or very dressy short dresses.

A formal daytime wedding is in the morning. The variation is in the men's wear. They would wear oxford gray stroller or sack coat, striped trousers and gray vest. The four-in-hand tie and white shirt with turned down collar go with it.

A semi-formal wedding is usually less then one hundred guests. Day or evening the bride may wear a short gown, a floor length gown, or a gown with a sweep. Her veil is never longer then elbow length. The men in the party wear dark business suits with white shirt and four-in-hand ties. Seldom does she have more than one attendant with her honor attendant. These girls must wear short gowns if the bride wears a short one. With this exception they may wear whatever length the bride decides. Mothers wear dressy street length dresses.

For an informal wedding the bride wears a street length dress or suit. Her one attendant is similarly gowned. The men dress as for a semi-formal wedding.

Please don't hesitate to write me your problems in care of the Quincy Sun. I will be happy to answer them in this column.

Beauty Ideas By Sabina

Weatherproof Your Hairdo

It's easy to outwit bad weather and keep your hairdo looking its prettiest. All it takes is a few plan-ahead tactics.

If the weatherman predicts rain and you must go out, put off your shampoo. When hair has a moderate amount of natural oil, it has more body and better discipline.

On damp, gusty days, tuck bobby pins into the lower layers of hair to bolster the style lines and reduce the effect of powerful winds. Use extra hairspray, but let it dry thoroughly before stepping outside. Carry a miniature container of hairspray in your handbag for midday repairs.

When selecting a rain-day hat, put practicality first. A wise choice is one with a wide brim to shelter side hair from a downpour; one with a chin-tie to hold it on securely. The color - as sunny as possible to brighten the gray days.

Best hairstyle for blustery weather is long or short hair with smooth contours. This shaping stays put longer than perky, loose curls.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By Charles H. Wickens

The late John Wannamaker once said, "Half the money I spend in advertising is wasted. But I have never been able to figure out just which half."

Maybe he was jesting. Maybe not. We don't know. But we do know there are problems in even attempting to do any funeral home advertising. Almost all funeral homes can and do say the same things. The ads usually stress quiet, dignified service; reverent care; sympathetic understanding; reputation for attention to detail - and so on. Actually however, when funeral home services are needed, the selection is nearly always made for reasons of reputation.

Through the years, our firm has earned a deservingly good reputation. Many families already know this. Even so, to better acquaint everyone with who we are, what we stand for, how and what we think - this new column will appear every week in this paper. Watch for it. Read it. You will find it interesting.

Come, Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'What Am I Getting Out Of This Marriage?'

One day the disciples of Jesus said to him..."We've left everything to follow you...what are we to get out of it?" Some people have thought this was crass and selfish. I don't think so. I don't even think it's crass and selfish for a husband or a wife to ask..."What am I getting out of this marriage?" Or better still..."What is my partner getting out of this marriage?"

A priest in a Pre-Cana conference began his lecture some time ago with..."Men, you're about to be married...I want to tell you what you have a right to expect from that paycheck you will bring home each week." Frankly and openly he proceeded to discuss what each had a right to expect in their marriage relationship.

It is difficult to prepare a person for marriage in ten easy lessons. Marriage is a way of thinking...a way of relating...a way of life...where individual needs are met...or where two people feel trapped...thwarted...emotionally sick.

Some women insist on giving to the marriage what they think are important...meals...laundry...housekeeping...hostessing. Any man who takes these for granted is a selfish clod. But any man who is satisfied with these alone is more of a vegetable than a man. These he can get outside...cheaper and often better.

Some men give to the marriage what they think is important...a paycheck...a car...perhaps a little prestige. Any woman who accepts these things without appreciation ought to have to roll out in the morning...fight the traffic to work...wrestle with the problems of business all day so she could appreciate how her man provides for his family. But any woman who is willing to settle merely for a meal ticket is a clinging vine...not a real woman.

What a real man/woman wants from a partner is companionship...affection...understanding...acceptance...fulfillment of themselves as persons. Is that what you're getting out of your marriage?

If you're feeling loneliness...rebuke...rejection...lack of fulfillment as a man/woman you may be justified in feeling that you're getting the short end of your marriage deal...unless you're creating your own problem.

Why is marriage so disappointing to many? One reason is ignorance...just not knowing how to treat a man/woman. One man said..."If my wife swings open the door while I'm fumbling for the key, I'm happier the rest of the evening." Rather simple desire isn't it? It says he wants that affectionate "welcome home" from his wife. Communicate...find out what your partner likes and doesn't like. Then, do it.

Another problem is hang-ups...trying to be true to childhood conceptions rather than trying to please each other...feeling guilty when you please your partner because you feel untrue to your mother or father. That can prevent getting out of the marriage what you each need.

A big problem is alcohol. No man/woman can be a fulfilling marriage partner who's a heavy drinker. You cheat yourself and your partner when you're under the influence of alcohol. If that's your problem...quit defending it...get help.

Finally...living or reliving an earlier stage of your development. If you as a wife keep running back home to mother or have to report to father every day, your husband has a "little girl" for a wife...not a grown woman. Men...your wife doesn't want a teen-age boy who has to hang out at the drinking club night after night...she wants a man who will enjoy her companionship not wishing he were somewhere else.

A marriage should be at such a level that in times of basement flooding...child sickness...anxiety over job...or when you're planning a trip around the world you can both say "Thank God we're married...it's worth it in every way."

"What am I getting out of it?"...It isn't a crass question...ask it...or are you afraid of the answer?

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. I am 68 years old and receive Social Security. However, I also worked during the year and earned approximately $750.00. Do I have to file a tax return for 1969?

A. If a taxpayer is 65 or over on the last day of 1969, no return is required unless he had gross income of $1200.00 or more. However, if tax was withheld from your wages, the only way that you can get your refund is to file a return.

Q. I started a new job in July and after adding up everything, I have discovered that one employer withheld $250.00 for social security and the other $300. I know that the maximum amount of social security that I am liable for in 1969 is $374.40, but how do I get credit for the extra $175.60?

A. The excess social security [F.I.C.A.] should be entered on line 20 of your Form 1040. It is treated in the same way as withholding and will serve to reduce the amount of tax due or increase the refund as the case may be. However, if one employer deducted more than $374.40 from your wages, you must get the difference from him and your tax return will not be affected.

Q. My husband wants to file a separate return and itemize his deductions. Can I take the 10% standard deduction or minimum standard deduction?

A. No! If one spouse itemizes deductions, the other one must also itemize.

Q. What are some examples of taxable income?

A. Taxable income includes but is not limited to:

Wages, salaries, bonuses, commissions, tips - Dividend and interest income - Rents and royalties - Pensions and Annuities - Capital Gains and Losses - Alimony - Partnership Estate and Trust Income - Prizes and Awards.

Q. I retired from my job with an insurance company last July. During the years that I worked there, money was withheld from my pay to be put into my retirement fund. Is the pension which I receive taxable?

A. Generally, the taxability of pensions is treated as follows. Find out how much you contributed to the pension fund and how much you will receive each year. If you will recover your entire contribution within three years, the amount you receive will be tax free until your contribution has been fully recovered. Thereafter, all amounts you receive are included in your income. If it will take longer than three years for you to recover your contribution, then you must check an annuity table to determine the expected return based on your life expectancy. This information can usually be obtained from your personnel office.

Q. I am single and maintain my own apartment. Can I claim the special Head of Household tax rates?

A. No. To be eligible for Head of Household rates, you must provide over half of the cost of maintaining a household for at least one relative. Your relationship to the person for whom you maintain the household determines whether he must qualify as your dependent and whether he must actually live in your household. Please refer to the instructions included with your Form 1040 for additional details on this subject.

Q. My wife's mother lives with us and her only income is from Social Security. She received approximately $700.00 in 1969. Does this disqualify me from claiming her as an exemption since she earned more than the allowable $600?

A. No. The $600 gross income test applies only to taxable income. Social Security benefits are not taxable. You would be entitled to claim your mother-in-law as an exemption on your 1969 return if you provided more than half of her total support.

Q. What can I do to speed up my refund?

A. If you have not yet filed your return, there are several things you can do. The main thing is to thoroughly check over your return before sending it in. A return that is unsigned, which lacks a social security number, or is minus a W-2 form will have to be completed before it can be processed causing a delay in the refund. If you have already filed your return, the best thing to do is to wait patiently.

Q. My son earned $350 this summer. Do I have to include his income on my return?

A. No. Only income earned by you or your wife has to be reported on your joint return. Your son should file his own return for 1969 to get a refund on the taxes that were withheld from his pay.

Q. Several months ago, I had an automobile accident. I did not have any collision insurance and had to pay $450 to have the car repaired. Is this deductible?

A. The portion of a non-business casualty loss which exceeds $100 is deductible. In your case, the allowable deduction is $350 assuming that this is not more than the fair market value of your car at the time of the accident. A casualty loss would be deducted on Schedule A under Miscellaneous Deductions.

COMMENDATION--MDC Patrolmen Robert P. Stevens of Bourne and John J. Roche of Quincy, receive citations for outstanding work in capturing two men in a Quincy holdup. They are flanked here by MDC Police Supt. William J. McCarthy and MDC Commissioner Howard Whitmore, Jr., who presented the commendations.

Two MDC Officers Commended For Capture In Quincy Holdup

Two MDC police officers, one a Quincy resident, have been cited for outstanding performance of duty in the pursuit and prompt capture of two holdup men here.

MDC Commissioner Howard Whitmore, Jr., awarded official departmental commendations to Patrolman John E. Roche, 32, of 191 Marlboro St., Quincy, and Patrolman Robert P. Stevens, 36, of Quamhasset Rd., Bourne. Both are stationed at the Old Colony Division.

The commendations were presented in a ceremony at MDC Headquarters in Boston on recommendation of Police Superintendent William J. McCarthy and Captain Peter D. Bille, commanding officer of the Old Colony District.

Stevens and Roche were on patrol duty on the Southeast Expressway last Nov. 25 when they heard a radio report that two men had just held up a service station in Quincy. A short time later they observed the holdup car heading north on the Expressway, pursued the vehicle, forced it to the side of the road and placed the two men under arrest.

The citations commended the officers for alertness, personal courage and devotion to duty.

Hanson Quincy Easter Seal Chairman

Kenneth O. Hanson, Senior Vice President, South Shore National Bank, Quincy, will serve as chairman in the Quincy area for the 1970 Easter Seal Society mail campaign for crippled children and adults which opens Feb. 23. The area goal is $7,000.

Bill Veeck, president of Suffolk Downs and chairman of the $510,000 statewide drive, made the announcement.

Mr. Hanson urged generous support of the appeal which continues until Easter, March 29. He said that last year Easter Seal programs provided direct help to 2,498 of the state's physically disabled.

This included services taken by four traveling rehabilitation teams to 1,759 patients of nine community hospitals, 50 Visiting Nurse associations, related home health care agencies and extended care facilities; information, counseling and referral help to 360; summer camping for 168 boys and girls and school-year swim programs for 211 children.

Locally the Easter Seal Society provides traveling rehabilitation team services to patients of the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association in a cooperative program.

Quincy Transit Impact To Be Shown Feb. 24 By Harvard Students

The impact of mass transportation facilities on the city of Quincy will be presented at an audio-visual program in the cafeteria of the Vocational-Technical School Tuesday [Feb. 24] at 8 p.m.

The program is based on an in-depth study made by 22 Harvard Business School graduate students of the effects of the coming transit extension on Quincy.

The students devoted more than 800 hours of research last fall on Quincy and other communities where transit extensions have been made or are being contemplated.

The students also made several recommendations for the citizens of Quincy in regard to their transit problems.

"While you might not agree with some of the recommendations," said Mayor James R. McIntyre, "I know that you will be deeply impressed, as I was, in the in-depth analysis and projections which these highly qualified graduate students have made for our community."

War And Peace

War is violent as a Hawk
But, Peace is gentle as a Dove.
In war we lose many lives.
War is mostly hatefulness.
In fact there isn't any love
Involved in any War I see.
And Peace is love.

Peace Is:

love or openheartedness toward others.

to forgive and forget to live together and judge people for what they are instead of how they look or dress to be open with friends

to share and help solve each others problems to not only give money but to give of yourself to try to talk things over instead of having war

to share with others our worldly goods

If we could do all these things we would not only have peace in our hearts but peace in the world.

My Wollaston School

I have been in Wollaston School for a month and a half. I like it very much, though I still have to get used to some things. One thing I like is that we have safety patrol boys and girls who help keep the children in line. We also have a clean-up crew. Some of the girls that are on patrol hold the swinging doors open so they won't hurt anybody. I think Wollaston School is a very good school.

The Littlest Snowflake

Once upon a time when all the snowflakes were falling, there was one snowflake that didn't touch the ground. He was the littlest snowflake. He didn't like being the littlest snowflake. On Christmas all the snowflakes were going to a party but the littlest snowflake wasn't invited. Then, the littlest snowflake decided to go. When he got there he stayed behind a bush so nobody would see him. Then when they were having a prize for the best snowflake, the littlest snowflake came out from where he was hiding - right with all the other snowflakes! The judges knew who he was. They knew that the snowflakes didn't invite him. The judges decided to give him the prize.

Colors

Colors, colors all so bright.
There's even colors in the night.
The colors red, white, and blue,
Represent our flag, they do.
Colors green for the grass,
Colors green for the trees, but,
No colors represent the coolness of the breeze,
Mostly everything has a color of it's own.
Everyone knows our colorful home the earth.

Wintertime

Wintertime is a happy time. Children love the snow. They like to go ice skating and coasting. Animals don't like the winter. It's hard for them to find food. Some go south. The winter is beautiful. The trees are all covered with snow. The ground is all white, not a spot of bare ground.

Paul Bunyan On The Moon

Paul Bunyan and Babe did not have to take a space ship to the moon. They just had to take five steps and they would be there. They met the Man on the Moon. He was a giant too. Then they met the Moon People. The Moon People were giants too. They liked each other. The moon was collapsing and they did not know it. The gravity could not hold them down. Down they went to the earth. You would never see them again.

Clean-Up Squad

In Wollaston School we do many things but I feel one of the most important is the Clean-Up Squad. The squad is manned by four 4th grade students and is strictly volunteer. They clean up glass, paper and everything else that clutters up the school yard and the front lawn. This is very good because it cleans up the playground and makes it safer to play on.

Library Helpers

At Wollaston School we have some girls that help Miss Chisholm, with the books by putting them back, carding them, and shelving them. These girls go to the library before and after school. These girls help the librarian get the films in order. They check to be sure the films are not ripped or badly destroyed. These girls have done a lot for our library and we are proud of them.

A Wonderful World

The first step in peace is stopping the war.

The next step in peace is to fight no more.

But the most important step of all,

Is for people to work together - that's all.

So many men are killed every day

"What's this world coming to?" people say.

Oh, what a wonderful world this would be

If people lived together in harmony!

When It Started To Snow

I started to go when it started to snow. It looked like stars from the sky. I had a long way so I stopped to play on the blanket of snow. I had to go. And, I left the snow but there was more snow to walk through. Down down I go through, the white, white snow. I've come a long way so I'll go in to play out of the white, white snow.

The Littlest Snowflake

Early one morning I looked out the window. I saw a little snowflake. The snowflake fell on the ground. Then I got my clothes on and went outside and felt the fluffy snow. I looked at the little snowflake. While it was starting to melt, I got some ice and put it around the little snowflake. And then it stopped melting and I got some more ice and I saved it's life.

Snow Is Fun

The snow is like the sky in the winter. The snow is like Christmas. And it is like white mice, and little Christmas trees. I had some hot cocoa. And after that I went out. And then the snow looked like rice. And I went skating. And I went coasting. Snow is fun for everyone.

Letters To Servicemen

In Miss Johnson's room we had a Christmas project. We wrote to servicemen in Vietnam. We looked in the paper for addresses. We wrote little funny things in our letters to make them happy. We also put in Christmas cards that we made.

The servicemen must have liked our letters because some wrote back thanking us. Martha Clancy got a letter back from one serviceman. I, Linda Hoffstein, got a letter, a Christmas card, and a Children's Literature book from the serviceman I wrote too. I wrote to Robert D. Kelsey. We read all the letters to the class.

Once my friend and I were coloring. I looked out the window and I saw snow coming down from the sky. So my friend and I got the coloring books and put them away with the crayons. HOUSE CALL

By Dr. Charles Djerf
Pediatrician

Bzzz! Bzzz!

Some years ago my son and I visited Lapland - a bleak and lonely land, mind you, in July. The rainy season was on, adding to the discomfort - not a monsoon, but steady daily rain. We had been forewarned of these conditions along with advice to take insect repellents - such as old-fashioned Citrinella, a remedy well tried for years.

The mosquitos were so abundant - obnoxious and relentless that we had to keep well clothed leaving only the hands and face exposed - bathed with Citrinella.

It would be no exaggeration that as two Lapps approached me, I thought that they were swarthy or unclean until I realized that they were completely covered with mosquitos. Yet they didn't seem annoyed by them. Good that the Northland is free from yellow fever.

The Atlantic Monthly sometime in the past had an interesting article about the migration of the Moose - with the interesting hypothesis that the mosquito and perhaps other insects were the irritant for the constant motion of these huge Northland animals seasonally.

This introduction leads to the discussion of an article in the New England Journal of Medicine about mosquitos - titled "Why the Mosquito Bites - a Tale of Blood, Sweat and Tears".

The researchers working with the yellow-fever mosquito, [the one that killed so many people during the Panama Canal construction] discovered that emanations - odors - from the sweat traveling with air currents attract the insect to man. Just plain sweat and the more of it beckons our enemy. Those with very dry skin or conditions like psoriasis are less maligned.

The article states that when we can identify the material in sweat we may be able to use repellents to neutralize these chemicals. One authority suspects Lactic Acid and Carbon Dioxide as the agents in sweat.

The most effective repellent today - Meta-diethyltaluamide [DEET] is effective but is easily washed off - even by sweating. A pill, not the one recently publicized, will be the eventual answer.

There are two repellents on the market - one is Off by the Johnson Wax people - which is a taluamide. The other, known as 612, is of another chemical structure, but is effective.

In the West Coast, during the war, I learned that fleas [the sand-flea] could be kept away by using Vitamin B1 - because the chemistry of the sweat altered by B1 was unattractive to the flea. B1 is not effective against the mosquito.

These New England Journal editorials have been very prophetic in the past and I feel, with you, that any research which will keep the Summertime Marauder from us will be a blessing. But then again, what will become of us if all annoyances and obnoxious irritants are removed?

What can we complain about? - the weather?, and eventually that will be controlled. What an unhappy future the coming generations will have with only perfections to harp about.

Hancock Bank Installs $350,000 Computer System

Hancock Bank & Trust Co., of Quincy, announces the installation of a Burroughs B500 computer system valued at approximately $350,000.

"With the B500, which is used for standard banking operations, we now can offer a much wider range of services to our customers," said William E. Kelley, bank president.

Hancock Bank & Trust Co. was chartered Jan. 1, 1968, after the merger of Quincy Trust Co. and Dedham Trust Co., both in Norfolk County.

In a 1969 year-end statement, Hancock Bank & Trust Co., reported assets in excess of $64 million; a 29.2 percent increase in net income, and eight percent increase in deposits and a nine percent increase in total resources over 1968.

The bank has 13 offices in Norfolk County and employs nearly 200 persons. The main office is located at 1486 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The bank recently acquired the four-story Sheridan Building, also on Hancock St., and is presently remodeling it into an ultra-modern home office building.

The B500 system is installed in the bank's 5,000-square-foot computer facility at 19 Cottage Ave.

North Better Than Record

Quincy Icemen Continue Drive For E. Mass Tourney

Quincy's hockey team, which finished in third place during the Greater Boston League's regular season, continued its drive for an Eastern Mass. tourney berth yesterday when it met Somerville in the opening round of the league playoffs. Winless North Quincy faced Everett's first place powerhouse.

If it won yesterday, Bob Sylvia's Quincy team is expected to face runnerup Malden Friday night at Boston Arena. The playoffs, which count toward tournament qualification, will conclude Tuesday night at the Arena. Tuesday is the cutoff date for the tourney, which gets underway March 2.

Quincy finished the regular season with a 3-0 win over fired-up North Quincy last week as Bob Laing's Raiders, who wound up with a 0-14 record, turned in one of their better performances of the year. The win gave the Presidents a fine 10-3-1 record.

Sylvia, whose team bopped the Raiders, 8-0, earlier, wasn't surprised at the closeness of the game.

"It was the type of game I knew it would be," he said. "North is always up for us and, with it being the last game of the regular season, took on more meaning. My hat is off to the entire North team and I really mean it. They had a frustrating season and yet they played like it was a championship game. They played some good hockey this year despite their winless record."

Laing agreed with Sylvia's analysis and had high praise for all his players.

"We went out there with one thought in mind and I think the way we played show it," he said. "But Quincy has a real solid team. They know hockey and they are thinking every minute they are on the ice. We gave them a time of it tonight, though, and my young players did a great job."

Both teams were hitting hard and 18 penalties were called, mostly on over-eager hitting calls.

"We were doing a bit of hitting out there," said Sylvia. "But they are bigger than us and were belting us back and taking the edge off our game. We just couldn't get going. They wouldn't let us."

North played tenacious defense in the first period and neither team could score.

"We planned to play back and wait for the breaks and I think this worked for us," Laing said. "We held them as well as anyone this year. Pat McCormack and Tom O'Malley gave us excellent games and it was Tom's best game of the year. And Bob Colleran di ' a fine job in goal [26 saves]. If he had just made good on a couple of scoring chances, it might have been different."

Quincy broke the scoring ice at the 4:29 mark of the second period when Chuck Condos converted Harry Bertoni's pass and Bertoni made it 2-0 six minutes later with Condos and Russ Barry assisting.

Phil Rugg scored the final goal at 4:22 of the final session with an assist for Dave Mariano. It was the 14th goal for Bertoni, the 11th for Condos and the ninth for Rugg.

Sophomore Art Boyle did another fine job in the Quincy nets but two other goalies, Mark Erickson and jayvee star Pete Rugg, also played in the final period and the trio had 12 stops, the two most spectacular being made by young Rugg.

Quincy finished the season with the best goals-against record in the league, giving up only 24 goals, two less than runnerup Malden, which was upset by Everett, 5-3, on the final night.

Wanless Signs With Pittsburgh

For the second time in three weeks, a Quincy baseball player has signed a major league contract.

Three weeks ago, after being selected first in the draft by the Seattle Pilots, Quincy's George 'Biff' Bacher, a former Abp. Williams High and Morrisette Legion star, signed with Pilots' scout Ron Frongello and scouting supervisor Bill Enos, for a healthy bonus.

Also selected in the draft was North Quincy's Richie Wanless, but the former North Quincy High pitching star did not sign until last weekend with the Pittsburgh Pirates, also for a good bonus.

Wanless, 22-year old former high school and Legion standout, was signed during telephone negotiations necessitated by the hospitalization of scout Chick Whalen.

The 6-1, 185-pounder agreed to terms with Whalen, but George Owens, former Harvard and ex-Bruins hockey star, also a Pirates' scout, went to Wanless' home and the agreement was made during the telephone talk with Whalen.

Wanless, who will report to the Pirates' training camp in Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 7, and will play for Salem, N.C., Double A team, had previously been drafted by both the Pirates and San Francisco Giants but had not signed while attending school and completing six months of active military duty.

"The Pirates gave me the best offer and showed far greater interest in me, so I felt I had to sign with them," Richie said.

Wanless had a 9-1 record in his senior year at North Quincy under former coach Bob Lewis. His ERA that year was under 2.00.

Last summer he was defeated in the strong Boston Park League, winning nine games for the Bob Woolf Club and adding two wins in the playoffs, which his team won.

"That's a real tough league," he admitted. "You can't beat it. There are kids who haven't been drafted and players from major leagues and from AA and AAA teams. It was good experience and we had a heck of a team."

Incidentally, Whalen, who last month was cited by the Boston baseball writers at their annual dinner for the Good Scout Award, was released from the hospital Saturday after treatment for a virus.

Frongello and Enos last fall signed another former North Quincy pitching star, Gary McGrath who, like Bacher, will report to the Pilots' camp in Tempe this month. Frongello is another former North Quincy High pitching ace.

13-Year Old N. Quincy Girl To Bowl On TV

Thirteen-year old Joanne Flynn of 79 Freeman St., North Quincy, a member of the Koch Club Girls Seniors, will appear on television's Channel 5 "Winning Pins" Saturday at 1 p.m.

Joanne, with a 92.3 average in the Koch Club League, qualified for the television rolloff by bowling a 196 to top other girls competing. She is an eighth grade student at Sacred Heart High School.

Joanne follows Ronnie Weir and Carol Morris of the Koch Club Girls Seniors who qualified for television appearances last year.

Mrs. Paul Nestor is director of the Girls Bowling Leagues which bowl every Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at the Wollaston Bowladrome Alleys.

Mayor Names Committee To Study Skating Rink

Mayor James R. McIntyre has appointed a committee of five to investigate the possibility of Quincy building a self-amortizing skating rink.

The chairman of the committee is Carl Leone, the city athletic director.

"It has been suggested to me by several people that there is a shortage of ice skating rinks in Quincy, particularly for the youngsters who play in organized hockey leagues," said the mayor.

"It has been tremendously difficult for our high school teams to get good ice time this year in the MDC rinks on the South Shore.

"I have appointed the committee to look into the feasibility of the city of Quincy building a rink and using the revenues from it to pay expenses and amortize the bond issue.

"The information I have is that this is possible."

The committee also would try to find a location for the rink as close to the center of the city as possible.

While no cost was mentioned the current going rate for roofed rinks that can be used from October through March is about $600,000.

Other members of the committee are James F. McCormick, Sr., chairman of the Park-Recreation Board and vice chairman of the school committee; City Council President Arthur Tobin, Quincy High Hockey Coach Robert Sylvia, and City Auditor Alexander Smith.

Tom Coleman Bowls 279 In Classic League Action

Coleman came up with 11 strikes. A stubborn seven-pin in the sixth frame cost him a coveted perfect 300.

His 279 ties him with Ralph Marple of Rockland. Coleman also owns a 278 game in Classic League competition.

Holiday Magic Cosmetics regained the league lead, jumping over Boch Motors of Norwood and G. Salvucci Builders of Brighton.

Holiday has now won 124 and lost 60. Salvucci is 122-62 and Boch Motors 119-65.

Canadiens Hold Lead In Youth Hockey Loop

The Canadiens held on to first place in the Quincy Youth Hockey Intramural League by gaining a 2 to 2 tie with the Bruins in a hard fought contest.

The Bruins goals were scored by Dan Donovan and John Norton, with assists going to Brian Jolly and David Lewis.

In the other game played at the Weymouth Skating Club, Monday night, the Blackhawks held onto a tie for second place with the Bruins coming from behind to tie the Rangers 2 to 2.

Rangers goals were scored by David Hurley unassisted and Steve Bell assisted by Mark Assard. Scoring for the Blackhawks was John Cooney unassisted and Robert Dunn assisted by Richard Meehan.

Goalie Matt Schaefer turned in outstanding play in the nets as did the other goalie, 8-year-old Jim McHugh.

Next week games put the Blackhawks against the Canadiens and the Rangers against the Bruins.

Raiders In MUST Game At Malden

All the chips will be on the line Friday night when North Quincy's basketball team plays at Malden in the final Greater Boston League game of the season.

Bob Nolan's Raiders, who lost to Somerville's unbeaten league champs, 75-57, Tuesday at Somerville, must win at Malden to make the Tech Tourney for the fourth time in five years under Nolan. A loss will knock the Raiders out.

"The pressure will be on the boys, but I'm confident, knowing the importance of the game, they will come through," Nolan said. "We had no trouble beating them at North Quincy but they have one high scorer back who was missing in that game and right now they have a real tough ball club."

North trailed Somerville's powerhouse by only a 37-31 score but the Highlanders pulled away in the last two periods.

"We had to play catchup and you just can do that at Somerville," the Raider boss said.

Jim Small had 17 points, Rick Sanderson 12 and Bob DeRosa 10 to spark the Raiders. "Every one of them played his heart out and gave me 100 percent," Nolan stated.

"We will have Boosters Club buses going to Malden and I hope every North fan will be with us to fill the Malden gym. We'll need all the support we can get. Buses will leave at 6 and tickets are one dollar."

Joe Amorisino's classy North junior varsity came from behind to edge Somerville, 56-50, its 12th win in 15 games.

Dave Mahoney scored 16 points, Leo Papile 13 and Dave Nelson 10.

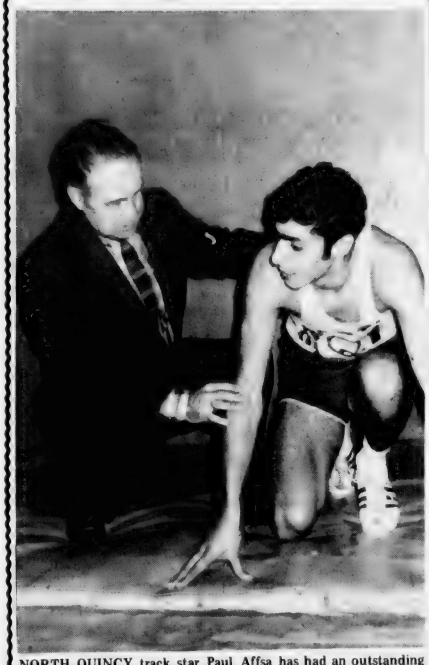
Last week the Raiders made One their magic number with their best offense of the year as they rolled over Everett, 84-52, to stay in third place in the GBL.

"It does a world of good to start scoring like this, especially with two strong teams like Somerville and Malden coming up," Nolan said. "The offense supplements the excellent defense we've been playing all season. You know, when it bounces for you, it helps. When things fall right for you, you end up with those important two and three-point plays."

North hit for 44.5 percent from the floor and had 32 for 40 from the foul line. "Anytime you shoot over 41 percent from the floor and 80 percent from the line, you're doing all right," the North coach added.

In the first half the Raiders hit on 18 of 20 foul shots as they took advantage of their shooting ability and tight defense.

North had a big 18-5 lead after the first period and 38-22 at the half.



At one time North had a huge 30-7 advantage and, although the Crimson Tide cut the gap a few times, they never threatened seriously.

Because of North's tight coverage, Everett had 28 turnovers, a big factor in the outcome. "Our man-to-man defense was superb," Nolan went on. "Our half-court and full-court press didn't bother them that much, but was just enough to throw them off."

North had five players in double figures, Don McKay scoring 13, Brian Donahue 12 and Jim Small, Dan Zink and Ken Baker 11 apiece.

The Raiders' junior varsity also romped, 59-28, to make its record 11-3 as Dave Mahoney, Jack Walker and Leo Papile scored eight points each.

Affsa In N.Y. Spotlight Feb. 27

Paul Affsa, versatile North Quincy trackman who has brought much honor to his school, will attempt to gain nation-wide attention when he competes in the 600-yard run in the annual national schoolboy meet in New York on Feb. 27.

"Paul is one of the most versatile trackmen I've worked with," Bob Gentry, North's winter coach and cross country coach, said. "I think he should make a fine showing in the New York meet."

Two weeks ago Paul won the state Class A 600-yard run at Boston Garden in a big upset and missed the meet record by just two-tenths of a second.

In the Met League this winter he had an outstanding season running the 600, 300, mile, 1000 and relay and also high jumping. A year ago he was third in the state Class B 300-yard run.

Affsa is also a versatile spring trackman who led Ralph Frazier's Raiders to second place in the Suburban League last spring.

He holds the school's broad jump record and also competes in the 220, 440 and 880 in spring track.

Last fall Paul lost only one race for Gentry's team in the Greater Boston Cross Country League and holds the North Quincy course record in this sport.

Affsa has been contacted by many colleges who would like him for his track and cross country prowess but he has not yet decided where to continue his education. He is a fine student and can have his pick of schools.

Edge Revere, 65-63

Quincy In Finale Friday

Quincy's basketball team, following a thrilling win over Revere Tuesday, will wind up its season at home Friday night against Chelsea, hoping to gain its fifth win of a frustrating season.

Tuesday, Marty Finnegan's Presidents came from behind to eke out a hectic 65-63 win over Revere, which has one of its best teams ever.

The win gave Quincy a 4-9 Greater Boston League record and a 4-12 overall mark. "The kids deserve a better record," Finnegan said. "Eight of our losses were by seven points or less."

In Tuesday's exciting game, Revere, which had walloped Quincy by 20 points on its home court, took a 21-16 first period lead and still held a 39-34 advantage at the half.

Quincy roared back in the third period to take a 51-50 edge and the lead changed hands many times in the wild and wooly final period.

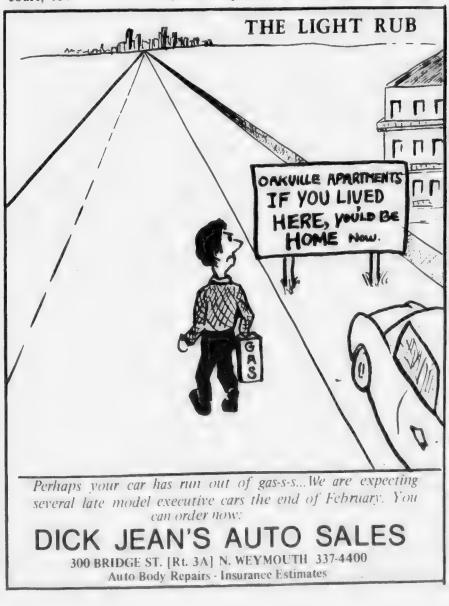
The key man in the win was little Bobby McDermott, sophomore reserve, who scored all of his 13 points in this period and hit on eight successive foul shots and, after missing one, dropped in another. His final shot came with 15 seconds left in the game.

"Bobby was tremendous," Finnegan lauded. "I put him into the lineup in the second period for defensive purposes and he held Bill Noel, who had scored 12 points in the first period, to four points. And he certainly came through offensively under terrific pressure in that last period.

"This was a real team effort. Jimmy Furfari [15 points] gave us some fine shooting, Bob Pike and Billy Maver stood out on the boards, Rick DiCristofaro again ran the team well and Rich Menchi did very well in a reserve role."

Fran Conroy's Quincy junior varsity romped, 76-50, to make its record 10-6. Bobby Malvesti had 13 points and Dave Coull, who was strong on the boards, had 12.

Last week the Presidents just missed one of the big upsets of the year when they bowed to second place Medford [13-2], 64-59, after leading at the half by five points.



"We came very close to one of the biggest upsets in the league," Finnegan said. "This was our best effort against a contender this season."

Gentry To Return As N.Q. Spring Track Coach

Bob Gentry, successful cross country and winter track coach at North Quincy High, will return as the Raiders' spring track coach this year, succeeding Ralph Frazier, who is now the head coach of football.

Gentry formerly coached the spring team and many of his cross country and indoor track stars will be with him during the outdoor season, including standout Paul Affsa, who sparkled for Bob's harriers last fall and the winter trackmen in the Met League this winter.

Another new coaching appointment was announced, that of Steve Fishman, a social studies teacher, as head baseball coach at Sterling Junior High.

Donald Strong To Spend Month In Brazil As Housing Consultant

Donald H. Strong, Executive Director of the Quincy Council on Aging, has been invited by the government of Brazil to spend a month in that country as an advisor to the National Housing Bank.

He will take a one-month leave of absence from his Quincy position and will be accompanied to Brazil by Mrs. Strong. They plan to leave on Feb. 21.

Two years ago Columbia Point was visited by Dr. Gilberto Coufal, Brazil's national Director of Housing, who was studying the social services available there.

In Brazil Mr. Strong will visit the low-income housing which is being constructed throughout the country at a cost of several billion dollars, replacing some of the world's largest slum settlements. He will make recommendations for establishment of social, educational and recreational services. While there he will make a special study of the problems of the elderly and programs designed to aid them.

Mr. and Mrs. Strong live at 10 Bay View Ave., Hingham.

A Tree Dies. . .

VANISHING AMERICAN--Another of Quincy's stately old American elm trees is being cut down, victim of Dutch Elm disease. This familiar tree on Southern Artery at Mount Wollaston cemetery, falls to power-saw handled by Frank McLaughlin, Forestry Section foreman, shown in skyworker bucket.

212 More Quincy Elm Trees Diseased, Being Cut Down

Over 200 more of Quincy's stately old elm trees are being cut down–victims of the cancerous Dutch Elm disease.

Some 140 trees on private property are being removed by a private contractor at a cost of $8,000 to the city. The city is compelled to remove them.

Another 72 trees on city streets are being cut down by the Forestry Section of the Quincy Park Department.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Board, estimates that the 212 trees will bring to approximately 4,000 the total diseased elm trees removed in Quincy since the end of World War II.

Koch said that the vanishing elms, some of them nearly 100 years old, will be especially noticeable on Southern Artery adjacent to Mount Wollaston Cemetery and Coddington St. at Faxon Field to the rear of the Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

Koch has suggested to School Supt. Lawrence P. Creedon that "immediate action" be taken to replace the elms being removed at the school department supervised Faxon Field.

"The possible replacement of them as soon as possible would initiate immediate growth rather than waiting for several years for any action to be taken," he said.

"Immediate action would result in a more beautiful landscape and shade trees years sooner, if planting of new trees is completed as soon as possible, weather conditions permitting."

William Walden, superintendent of the Forestry Section, reports that 13 large American elms have been removed on Coddington St., between the Vocational-Technical School and Southern Artery.

He recommended that the elms be replaced with 13 Norway Maples. Maples, 10 to 12 feet in height, are available at a cost of $30. each, he said

The Maples are recommended, he said, because they would have "minimum damage from air pollution, severe drought and poor drainage and soil conditions."

Koch said that approximately 200 American Elms are found to be diseased and removed each year in Quincy. They are cut and buried in the city dump.

"As of now," he sadly noted, "no known cure has been found to eliminate this Dutch Elm disease and a considerable amount of money has been spent for research."

MBTA, Zoning Key

Quincy Seen As 'Boom Town' Of 1970's

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

Quincy could be the "boom town" of the 1970's.

Completion of the MBTA rapid transit line, and adoption of the new rezoning proposals could provide the impetus, according to Harvard Business School students.

"Selling" a New Quincy to its own residents is the task ahead, they said.

These conclusions were reached by a team of 22 first-year Harvard Business School students after a three-month, 1200-hour study of the impact of the MBTA on Quincy's future.

Their audio-visual report was made Tuesday night to more than 300 citizens at Quincy Vocational Technical School, with Mayor James R. McIntyre introducing the program.

He credited Police Chief Francis X. Finn with originating and carrying through the plan for the survey by Harvard Business School. The survey, provided free, would have cost up to $75,000 if carried out by a professional consultant.

Seven students presented the analysis and conclusion, commenting on colored slides of Quincy projected to illustrate their points.

Students included Sam Williams of Atlanta, Ga., Jim Baker of London, England; Tom Benedict, Dan Craig, John Mumford, Ed Rogas, Diana Kiarsis and Jim Schoenberger.

"Growth will depend on how Quincy is zoned," Williams said, adding that additional housing will be an important factor.

Quincy To Be Under 'Nuclear Attack' April 3

Quincy will be under nuclear attack April 3–but you won't have to run for cover.

It will be a mock three-hour attack as part of a Civil Defense Planning Clinic to be conducted at the new Emergency Operations Center at the city Public Works Department complex.

During the test, from 9 a.m. to noon, Mayor James R. McIntyre and municipal department heads will run the city from the EOC.

There will be no participation by the general public but they will be made aware of the test through local press. Observers from other cities are expected to attend.

City Civil Defense Director Edward Roberts said the test, to the best of his knowledge, is the first to be conducted in Massachusetts from an Emergency Operations Center.

"It will be entirely contained within the emergency operating unit," he said.

The Quincy EOC has been used for emergency operations during heavy floods and storms Operations, similar to the April 3 exercise, to test the efficiency of Civilian Defense units have been made in Cambridge, Worcester and Springfield, Roberts said.

During the exercise, the local Emergency Operations Center will be staffed by Mayor McIntyre, and James J. Ricciuti, his executive secretary and various department heads:

The Clinic will be conducted under the direction of Harold Perkins from the University of Massachusetts. Supervising will be Miss Grace Rockett, field officer from the Regional Office of Civilian Defense, and Louis F. Saba, supervising area director with headquarters at South Bridgewater.

Zoning Public Hearing Tonight At Quincy High

Proponents and opponents will get the opportunity tonight to voice their opinions on the proposed new zoning for Quincy.

The city Planning Board will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy High School auditorium.

The hearing is the first official one since a special citizen's study committee submitted it's recommendations three weeks ago.

Other public hearings will be held by the City Council before the proposals are finally acted on.

Opposes Zoning Changes

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Citizens of Quincy...open your eyes...protect your future...don't take too lightly, the proposed zoning changes of a small group...petition our Mayor...above all, let every voice be heard!

If we allow these modifications, a certain few will have a "field day" at our expense. What right do they have to demolish any residential building to make way for an eight story monstrosity? Since trees and flowers do not grow in cement, natures' gifts will be a thing of the past.

The heavy influx of apartment dwellers will not only commercialize our beaches, but overload our schools, burden the hospital and rubbish disposal facilities, increase budgets for men and expensive equipment resulting in double city payroll and attendant pensions, and would require millions for sewers and roads. Once the high-rise apartments are established, the historical city of Quincy would be quickly transformed into a cement jungle as in Chicago and New York.

The disadvantages far outnumber the advantages. High-rise apartments would overwhelmingly...

1. Increase taxes
2. Destroy peaceful residential accomodations
3. Increase pollution
4. Encourage crime
5. Promote additional traffic problems
6. Deteriorate neighborhoods
7. Abolish natural surroundings
8. Diminish recreational areas
9. Increase flooding damage.

A solution to the problem which might satisfy the investors, as well as the residents of Quincy, would be to develop West Quincy. Why not fill the area, eradicate the dump and transform the land into a picturesque village?

Behind the mask of progress, betterment and accomodation, lie the true endeavors of a greedy force to exploit Quincy and build their "empire" at the expense of the struggling homeowner. Don't be misled by their false promises of lower taxes and delusions of grandeur!

It is strongly urged that every citizen of Quincy preserve our peaceful way of life by petitioning Mayor McIntyre or speaking on "Party Line" WJDA at 10:30 a.m. Let each individual attend the public hearing to be held on Thursday, February 26, 1970 in the Quincy High School auditorium, Coddington St., Quincy, at 7:30 p.m., and vigorously protest scuttling of present residential zoning in or abutting virtually every section of Quincy.

If everyone does their part, the beautiful city of Quincy will remain beautiful and not be transformed into a cement jungle! PLEASE ACT NOW!

Mrs. R. Koretsky

Wollaston.

Mail Clinic In Quincy March 4

A Mail Users Clinic aimed at improving mail service will be conducted March 4, at 10 a.m., in the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., Quincy Center, announces George K. Walker, Officer-in-Charge, Boston Postal District.

The clinic for firms in the Quincy and adjacent areas will be conducted by Boston Postal management officials on all aspects of Postal operations.

Walker said the clinic will be of mutual advantage to the business community and the Post Office Department, and new programs and new equipment recently developed will be discussed in an endeavor to produce quality postal service to the South Shore area.

Mayor James R. McIntyre, Carl Schmalz, Chairman of the Board, R. H. Stearns, and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Boston Mail Users Council; and Walker will be in attendance.

Business firms interested in sending management and mail room supervisors to the two-hour clinic may do so by contacting Charles L. Cheever, Director, Administrative Services, at 223-2415 for reservations.

The program is scheduled to conclude at noon, but Postal officials will remain to discuss any individual problems.

Arthur Ciampa Re-elected Aging Council Chairman

Arthur Ciampa has been re-elected chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging.

Also re-elected were:

Charles G. McGarry, vice-chairman; Mrs. Ann M. Gaffey, secretary, and Dr. John T. Foley, clerk.

The officers will serve until February, 1971.

Sunbeams

Money may be getting tight, but bad checks aren't. They're bouncing all over the place.

Quincy Police Detective Warren Corbett, the department's efficient rubber check specialist, says he hasn't seen so many bad ones in quite sometime.

Both "insufficient funds" and forgeries.

His advice: Don't cash a check unless you are sure of who you're cashing it for.

YOU CAN NOW call Quincy residents, George C. Fay, Vernon Whitman and John Williams, "Deputy" pardner. Norfolk County Sheriff Charles Hedges has made them Honorary Deputy Sheriffs.

STORK DEPT: In the past 10 years, Mary Johnson has announced the birth of an estimated 35,000 Quincy-South Shore area babies over her popular "Stork Club" program on WJDA. In July, she'll be anxiously awaiting a special arrival--her first grandchild. Her daughter, Mrs. Donald Winquist, now of Wilmington, Del. will make her a grandmother around July 22.

And, of course, that will make her husband, Russ Johnson, a granddad. He was formerly head of the men's clothing department at Remick's and is now New England representative for Sam Hootstein of Boston.

WELL, justice should certainly do a lot of scoring in Norfolk County. Dist. Atty. George G. Burke of Quincy has named Nicholas A. Buoniconti, of Randolph, an assistant district attorney.

Burke, of course, is a former All-American basketball player and one-time Boston Celtics rookie. And Buoniconti, known as Nick, is the Miami Dolphins star via Notre Dame and the Boston Patriots.

SMALL WORLD: Among the 33 new members initiated into the Quincy Lodge of Elks Sunday were Atty. William Delahunt, William Grindlay and Atty. George Litif. All three ran against one another for the Ward 5 City Council seat last year.

* * *

PROUD MOMENT: Rev. Mr. Kevin P. Horrigan, a Quincy Point boy, now a deacon at St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, who will be ordained into the priesthood in May, officiated at his first wedding ceremony recently. He received special permission to perform the ceremony at his boyhood parish, St. Joseph's, in Quincy Point. The happy couple: Michael Cicoria of Framingham, and Rev. Mr. Horrigan's sister, Helen.

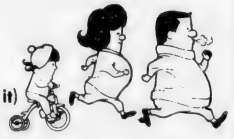
STATISTICS DEPT: The proposed 1970 city budget, in dollars, adds up to $40.7 million. The pages on which all the department figures appear, weigh four pounds. [Well, some people are interested in things like that].

* * *



ADVICE: We haven't had much snow this winter [cross your fingers] but if we do get a good storm, here's a tip from the Massachusetts Chiropractic Society. If you aren't lucky enough to own a snow blower and have to man the shovel, you can prevent strains and sprains by avoiding the habit of tossing the snow to one side only.

* * *

THE GOOD OLD DAYS: Sheriff Charles Hedges passes this along from "The Insider", published by inmates at the Norfolk County House of Correction: "When Pot was a vessel for cooking things in, and Hooked was what Grandmother's rug might have been."

School Committee 'Glad' To Talk On Budget With Council

The School Committee will "be glad" to go over the school department's $14.5 million budget with the City Council's Finance Committee, according to Vice-Chairman James F. McCormick, Sr.

McCormick, however, described the school department budget as "reasonable under the circumstances."

Earlier this week Council President Arthur H. Tobin asked members of the school board to make further cuts in the budget noting that it is up $1.16 million over last year.

The City Council, under law, cannot cut the school department budget but can request the School Committee to do so.

"The School Committee will be glad to go over the budget with the City Council," McCormick told the Quincy Sun.

"After two 1 a.m. sessions trying to cut the budget, we feel that it is a reasonable-under-the-circumstances budget. But we are willing to sit down and talk with them. We think we have done everything we can, but you never know."

Meanwhile, the council Finance Committee headed by J. Vincent Smyth, will meet Saturday at 9 a.m. in the council chamber to begin pruning the proposed $40.78 million total municipal budget.

The Finance Committee had originally planned to meet tonight but postponed the session to Saturday because of the Planning Board's zoning hearing.

Night sessions of the Finance Committee will be held beginning next week to allow as many persons as possible to attend, Smyth said.

Mayor James R. McIntyre who already has slashed $3 million from original department requests is predicting a "substantial tax increase".

Present tax rate is $116.40.

Two Girls (11) Write Book On Old Wild West

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT*

Jane Schwartz and Kathryn Wood are looking for a publisher.

The 11-year old Merrymount School students have completed "together" a 74-page book, "Events of the West." It is a saga of the people who explored and settled the early West.

The book had its start last year as a fifth grade school project inspired by Mrs. Susan Engorn, "Our favorite teacher". The book is dedicated to her.

Even after the girls went to Miss Fatima Allie's sixth grade in September the lure of the West continued. They added to the book frequently. Compiled in textbook style, typewritten by Jane and Kathryn, together, the book begins with a chapter on "Many Troubles." There are chapters devoted to Daniel Boone, hobbies, transportation; Sacajawea, the Indian princess; and the California Gold Rush.

The expanded book is profusely illustrated with hand-drawn pictures and maps, has question and answer pages, and "fun pages" with crossword puzzles.

"We did it together," Jane says. "We do everything together. The teachers get mad at us because we do everything together. They hope we will be separated next year in junior high. We have written a lot of different stories together that did not have as many pages, but we would like to have this one published."

The co-authors are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Schwartz of 13 Wampatuck Rd., and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Wood of 126 Butler Rd.

It's probably safe to say that whether or not Jane Schwartz and Kathryn Wood eventually find a publisher, they will never forget the Old West.

McIntyre Going To Washington To Seek Transportation Funds

Mayor-Sen. James R. McIntyre will go to Washington next week to support a proposed $3.2 billion dollar federal program for mass transportation purposes.

McIntyre, chairman of the State's Transportation Committee, will be accompanied by other committee members.

"We are in sad shape in the MBTA region," McIntyre said recently. "The property owners pay the cost of mass transportation and next year we will be faced with a $50 million dollar deficit."

Property taxes cannot be raised another dollar, he said. There is opposition to the sales tax and to an increase in the excise tax. A federal subsidy is the answer to guarantee balanced transportation, McIntyre contends.

On the state level, a change is necessary in the constitution to permit use of gasoline tax money for mass transportation purposes, he said.

Daniel McNally Co-Chairman Of GOP Committee

More than 150 Young Republicans will meet to discuss issues facing the state in the 1970's and adopt a platform to be presented at the State Republican Party convention in June.

Hospital Auxiliary Planning 'Life Saver' Event For May

The Quincy City Hospital Women's Auxiliary will undertake Phase Three of its "Life Saver" program in May.

Mrs. M. Edward Webby, past president of the auxiliary and chairman of the project, said plans for Phase Three will be announced later.

The project, to raise funds for the purchase of a mobile emergency cardiac unit, was inaugurated last fall with a luncheon and bridge party.

Phase Two was a "Heart Tag Day" held Feb. 17 with 35 auxiliary members stationed at advantageous areas within the hospital.

The two events received "enthusiastic support", reports Mrs. Webby. The committee assisting her includes:

Mrs. Jacob Carp, Mrs. John Kenney, Mrs. E. B. Allabough, Mrs. Chester Nelson, Mrs. Randall Wolfenden and members of the executive board.

Since its inception in 1953, the Women's Auxiliary has raised and spent over $100,000 for equipment throughout the hospital.

Sources of income for the various needs of the hospital come from the Cherry gift shop which is manned by auxiliary volunteers, a percentage of the profits from the coffee shop and television rental, as well as numerous functions held at frequent intervals throughout the years.

Women interested in becoming a member of the Auxiliary are welcomed and are asked to contact any member of the hospital auxiliary membership for information.

Beauty Ideas By Sabina

HOW TO WEAR YOUR WIG

If your hair is long enough, put it up in large pin curls. Fasten the pins in a downward direction to avoid catching the wig base.

If your hair is short, slip a nylon stocking over your crop or you can buy a special cap to wear under your wig.

Now, pull the wig on by the foundation, making sure that the ear pieces are just above - not resting on your ears. They should also be alligned with each other.

Half the battle in wearing a wig properly comes during the purchase. Above all, it should feel comfortable on your head. If the wig cap is too big, you can have the size adjusted. But if it is too tight, forget it. The cap will never stretch out. A properly fitted wig should feel secure, not snug, and it shouldn't touch your ears.

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

FOUR MONTHS BEFORE THE WEDDING

Planning a wedding can be a very terrifying experience or it can be very rewarding. It all depends upon how you approach it.

The only way is to make a list of everything that has to be done. Even the smallest items should be listed. [the small ones are usually the ones we forget]

First decide who will be at the helm, mother or bride. Then together make your list. Be sure to check off each item as it is accomplished.

This way you will avoid each thinking the other has taken care of a certain detail and to the horror of both neither has. To arrive at your day serene, calm, and beautiful start four months ahead of the wedding date.

1. Meet with your minister, rabbi, or priest and make your arrangements for the ceremony. Make the date and the hour definite. If you wait you might find the time you want taken by another happy couple. From Easter Sunday through June is the busiest time for weddings. September and October follow close behind. If you are planning your day for these months it's imperative you get an early start.

2. Decide what type of wedding you're having. Formal, semi-formal or informal. [This was discussed in last week's column] Now, select your wedding gown. You may start shopping for your gown even earlier, if you wish, but do give yourself and your bridal consultant a minimum of four months to avoid last minute rushing.

3. Contact your hall or hotel. Again give definite date and hour. Good reception areas are few on the South Shore and therefore in great demand.

4. Now is the time, too, to make arrangements with your photographer. Be sure to select a reliable one.

These pictures are your memories for ever after. A good photographer is essential. Do not depend upon amateurs or friends.

5. The bride and her fiancee' should start their guest lists now. If both are from the same area and equally popular they should invite the same number of guests.

It's up to the bride's parents to set the number of guests to be invited. The groom's parents must go along with it. Regardless of how many friends and relatives they would like to ask they must pare down that list until it meets with the number they have been allotted. Never, no never, offer to pay for the privilege of inviting more guests. This is an insult to the bride's family.

6. Now is the time to register in the various gift departments as to china, silver, and glassware patterns you have chosen.

Next week we will discuss "Three months before your wedding."

William Rizzo, District president, will make the award presentation on Sunday at a 9 a.m. televised Mass. The LeClair family and members of St. Joseph's Holy Name Society will be present. A Communion breakfast will follow at the Sheraton Motor Inn.

In the evening, united Unitarian-Universalist youth groups from Dedham, Milton and Quincy heard George Nee, representative of the Farmer's Union of America, discuss "Why The Continuing Grape Boycott?"

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By Charles H. Wickens

At times, some people confuse the distinction between courage and cowardice. Courage does not always imply an absence of fear; nor does cowardice always imply an excess of fear. Common sense linked with conscience is involved in the distinction.

For example, some people think it takes courage to speed past a car on a hill or curve. Screeching tires, shrieking voices, swerving cars, and often head-on collisions point an accusing finger toward that kind of courage. Since, common sense did not prevail, and since there was a lack of conscience for a possible tragedy, are such drivers really courageous -- or cowardly?

Courage with a conscience gives us strength to face distinctions between right and wrong, between the things we should do and should not do.

Come, Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox

'A Catholic Marries A Protestant'

As the organist played...the voice of the soloist filled the Church...the guests all arrived...everybody was ready...the wedding march started...the priest and I walked to the altar...the handsome groom and best man took their places...down the aisle came the ushers...the lovely bride's maids and maid of honor...then the beautiful bride on the arm of her father. I started reading the wedding service...beautiful words about love in marriage.

Father O'Connor took over...reading and hearing affirmed by the bride and groom...the wedding vows...about loving...comforting...honoring...for better for worse...richer or poorer...sickness and health...loving and cherishing...they each said they would. Now they are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Marston.

Only friends and loved ones knew which was Catholic and which Protestant. I was Protestant...Father O'Connor was Catholic...I wore a black pulpit gown...he a white surplice...but nobody seemed to care. I met old friends...some Protestant, some Catholic. Father O'Connor breathed happiness into the lives of people he was meeting...Catholic or Protestant...didn't seem to make any difference to him.

As we sat at the lovely reception my wife whispered to me..."everybody seems so happy"...and I whispered back..."and you can't tell which is Catholic and which is Protestant." She agreed with me...she usually does. You really couldn't see any difference in the way we ate...danced...laughed...or in the happiness of the parents of the bride and groom.

You don't need to be very old to remember when Protestants thought some kind of black magic went on in Catholic churches...and when Catholics thought Protestants wore horns. In our ignorance we really thought some ugly things about each other. That ignorance kept us separated. Now that our eyes are clearing, we find that beneath the surface of the prejudices we were taught we are just alike...needing to love and be loved...to worship the same God, who is neither Catholic nor Protestant...to marry the person one loves with no wall of religion between us. Genuine love in two hearts doesn't know who is Catholic and who is Protestant. Genuine love goes deeper than the surface...beneath the accidents of birth...for that is what determines which most of us are.

Jesus said..."By this shall all men know you are my disciples if you love one another"...not if you are Protestant...or if you are Catholic.

I know that it is difficult for some people to think so freely...because we've been conditioned to love "our kind." [Oh how I hate that term.] But true love knows nothing of narrow limits. There are signs that the gap between our technical advancement and our spiritual advancement is being closed...that the old walls of separation are breaking down. The wedding of our two young friends is one of these signs. Isn't it a great time to be alive?

Congratulations Ken and Rita...I've almost forgotten which of you is Catholic and which Protestant. We love you both just the same.

Postal Employees Donate 4,500 Eyeglass Frames

Boston Postal District employees including those from the Quincy area, contributed more than 4,500 eyeglass frames, cases, watches and other bits of jewelry in response to a plea for help from New Eyes For The Needy, a non-profit organization that helps provide better vision for the poor the world over.

New Eyes pays for glasses for patients to whom no other private or public funds are available.

George K. Walker, Officer-in-Charge of the Boston Postal District, said the unprecedented response from the Postal employees in the Boston District was typical of their spirit of cooperation and commended them for their generosity in this worthwhile project. The drive was endorsed and actively supported by all exclusive employee organizations.

Leonard F. Cronin, Regional Director, Boston Region, U. S. Civil Service Commission, accepted the contributions on behalf of the Commission, which sponsored the drive, from Officer-in-Charge Walker at ceremonies at the Federal Building Carrier Station. The materials collected will be shipped to New Eyes For The Needy in Shorthill, New Jersey.

Between Us Girls

By Pat Ridlen

A MESSY HOME IS A HAPPY HOME

When I was first married, I believed the old adage "A place for everything, and everything in its place." And there was. I mean whatever I put away in its place stayed in its place.

Then I had children. I tried the old adage on them It doesn't work, and what is worse, it never works for anything anymore. With kids, and their clothes, shoes, toys, books, animals, unknown objects etc., I defy anyone to find a place for everything and everything in its place. Oh, sure, some fanatics will. Those house cleaning nuts in whose house you can eat off the kitchen floor. [if you ate dinner off my floor, you'd get ptomaine poisoning, from the floor or the food, I couldn't say.]

Honest! I tried, I really tried to keep a neat, clean, well run home, I succeeded for two years, and two years out of 16 isn't bad. I was a nervous wreck, my husband was a nervous wreck, my kids were nervous wrecks; but we lived in a neat clean house.

Now we live in a messy home, or as I say a "Lived In Home" [it looks like King Kong lives here]. But are we nervous wrecks? Yes, but we're happy nervous wrecks.

Whenever I rush around madly blowing dust off the tables, pushing papers under the couch, vacuuming the kids, rugs and dog, stuffing things into closets, pulling the shades down so the dust in the air won't show, my children all yell "Hey Mom who's coming?" Now that really hurts. Its true, but it hurts.

I have friends that always say "Drop in anytime". Ha! They'll never get me to say that. "Be sure and call if you're coming over, in case, uh, in case we're going out," I always say. People have learned never to come unexpectedly. Because I yell out the window. "Do you have your vaccination up to date, I have smallpox", or I put shaving cream on the dog and say "If you aren't afraid of being bitten, come right in". But one awful day, Father O'Brien, the pastor of our church, rang the bell and I was in the kitchen. My little girl committed the unpardonable sin, she let him in. The house was in its usual romper room disarray. I could hear his shocked intake of breath as he surveyed our living room, and inquired where I was.

I thought of jumping out the window, but since I was on the first floor, I didn't think I'd do much damage, except to the rose bushes. I took some ketchup from the refrigerator, spread it on my forehead, and staggered into the living room, crying "Oh, Father O'Brien, I thought you were the Police, I've been robbed! And look what the beasts have done to my beautiful living room."

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q. In July of 1969, I sold some rental property at a large profit. The buyer is paying me over a ten year period. Do I have to report the whole profit in 1969?

A. If certain conditions are met, the gain on the sale may be reported on the installment method. Under this method, the gross profit is reported over the ten year period in which payments are received. To qualify, you can't receive more than 30% of the selling price in the year of sale. Further information can be obtained by referring to Publication 537, "Installment and Deferred-Payment Sales," available at any I.R.S. office.

Q. Where do I deduct for exemptions on the new 1040? There is no place to multiply $600 times the number of exemptions.

A. The number of exemptions from line 10, Form 1040, is carried to Schedule T where it is entered on line 4 and multiplied by $600.

Q. Do I attach Schedule T to Form 1040 if I itemize deductions?

A. Yes. If you itemize deductions; or if your adjusted gross income is greater than $5000; or you claim retirement income credit, foreign tax credit, or investment credit; or you are subject to self employment tax or subject to tax from recomputing prior year investment credit; then your tax must be computed on Schedule T.

Q. I filed Form 1040A last year. Will the new form be more difficult for me to prepare?

A. No. There are a few additional lines but the new form asks for just about the same information as the old 1040A. So preparing your return should not be any more difficult this year unless your financial situation has substantially changed.

Q. If I am not required to file Schedule T, how do I compute my tax?

A. If Schedule T is not required to be filed, you may use it as a worksheet to compute your tax. However, if your income is under $5000 and you do not wish to itemize deductions, go to the Tax Tables to compute your tax instead of Schedule T.

Q. If my interest income is $100 or less, must I report it?

A. Yes. All interest paid to you or credited to your account is income and should be reported on line 13 of Form 1040. If your interest income is over $100, use Schedule B, Part II, to list payers of interest.

Q. My income is over $5000 and consisted solely of earnings from which Federal income tax was withheld. What forms am I required to file?

A. If you are not claiming special credits or adjustments, you file only Form 1040. However, if you choose to itemize deductions, Schedule A must be attached. Your tax would be computed on Schedule T.

Q. What steps can I take to ensure the prompt processing of my return?

A. Here are a few steps that will ensure prompt processing:
[1] Use the pre-addressed label on the Form 1040 you file. Make corrections on the label if needed;
[2] Print or write legibly;
[3] Attach Copy B of all Forms W-2 to the back of Form 1040;
[4] Be sure that your return is complete and you have attached schedules to meet your individual situation;
[5] Check your mathematics to avoid errors;
[6] Sign the return. If you are filing jointly, both husband and wife must sign; and [7] Mail your return to the proper Internal Revenue Service Center address.

Q. Because of the nature of the illness of my child, it is necessary that we have a full time nurse with her during the day. Are we permitted to take her wages as a medical deduction on our return?

A. The amount you paid for nursing services will be deductible as a medical expense if you itemize your deductions and providing the nurse did not perform household duties. If she performed some household duties, that portion of her pay is not considered a medical expense and is not deductible.

Q. I am a salesman and have an expense account to cover the traveling I do for my company. How do I treat this when preparing my tax return?

A. Generally, reimbursements and allowances received for expenses incurred in connection with your employment must be included in income. However, if you are required to account to your employer for your expenses and your reimbursement does not exceed these expenses, then you do not have to report this on your income tax return. If you account to your employer and your reimbursment exceeds your expenses, then the excess must be reported on your return. If your allowable expenses exceed your reimbursements, report the reimbursements as income but also deduct the expenses.

ME You Young Ideas SHE

Selections from the writings of Quincy's elementary school children.

The Beatles

They look like four real shaggy dogs
But they're thought upon as gods
They're loved by each and every teenage girl
And set their heads spinning in a whirl.
Not one of them is a wit
But every song has been a hit.
They come from England and now they're here
Missing the Beatles I could not bear
Ringo is great at the drums
He does not sing but only hums
George, Paul and John are best at singing
And after that, I hear bells ringing
I'm sure the Beatles
I'll find divine
Up until I'm age ninety-nine.

My Big Toe

My big toe is a pain in the neck. It is ugly and in the summer you always stub it.

If you see a beautiful pair of shoes in a store window you want, you go in and try them on, but can't have them because your big toe aches too much. In the winter it's always getting cold, and it's the first one to poke through a pair of socks. That's why my big toe is such a pain in the neck.

Lincoln

Lincoln was a fine man.
A fine man indeed.
He needed a lot of things.
He never stole a thing
He was a great man.
A great president, too.
I bet he would have been kind to you.
Lincoln is famous.
He should be, too.
For he was a great man indeed.

Paul Bunyan Went To The Moon

Paul had the biggest spaceship you ever saw, and he had a big blue ox. When they got to the moon they landed with a big crash! Paul stepped on the moon and the moon fell a little. The ox stayed with Paul all the time. They saw a big bump. When Paul pushed it, the moon shook! Then it fell all the way down to the earth! It didn't touch the earth, but almost hit the earth.

Peace Is:

As the new year starts let us begin to work for peace.

First we must learn to have "openmindedness". We must learn to understand and accept others as we do ourselves. Prejudice is one of the walls we build against peace.

"Openheartedness" is to love and feel a need for people. Hate, is another bar to peace.

"Openhandedness" is when people needing a helping hand are given it. Selfishness keeps peace from happening.

"Openness" is everything written above. It is living in a world, all together, with peace loving people who accept and love one another.

Totter The Friendly Otter

"Hi, boys and girls. Today we are going to meet the friendly otter. He is going to tell you things about himself. Here he is, Totter the Otter."

"Hi, boys and girls, I'm Totter the Otter. I don't have to tell you how I look because you can see me."

A little boy said, "I can't see you above all these people, please tell me what you look like."

"O.K.," said Totter the Otter. "I'm bigger than a cat. My face is whiskered. My fur is a lovely shining dark brown coat. I have a long body. Hmmm, do I have a pointed tail? Yes, I have a pointed tail. I have very soft fur. I have four legs."

"I know you have four legs," the boy said.

"Any other questions?" asked Totter the Otter.

"Yes," said a little girl. How big are baby Otters?" she asked.

"When we are babies we are no bigger than squirrels," said Totter the Otter.

"What do you eat?"

"I eat crabs and break the shells on rocks. I also eat shellfish and fish."

"What are your enemies," asked Mr. White?

"Well," said Totter, "My enemies are the great horned owls, Eskimos and other people but all you people are my friends because you don't hunt for me," said Totter.

"How do you protect yourself when your enemies come after you?" asked Mrs. Jones.

"Most of the time I hold my breath and go under the water, but if there is a heavy fog I'm very quiet and hide in the fog," said Totter.

"How are you like people?" asked Susan.

"Well, I hold my baby in my arms and sing soft sounds to him. I lie on my back while I do this. My baby cries if I duck him too fast. I cry too if I get water up my nose. I never leave my baby alone."

"Say good-by to Totter the Otter he has to leave."

"Bye Totter come back soon."

"I will," said Totter. "I have to go back to the sea."

There are many saltwater and freshwater fish,
Some people like them as their favorite dish.

A sea otter has very soft fur, it is shining dark brown. It has a very long and pointed tail. The baby otter is no larger than a squirrel. The parents are much larger. The otter is a very large animal.

They eat very many crabs and break their shell on a stone. They eat shellfish that they catch.

The enemies of the otter are people because their fur is a very good fur so men hunt them. Another enemy of the otter is the great horned owl. He tries to catch baby otters that are floating.

They protect themselves by ducking under water because one of their enemies, the great horned owl, can't go under water so it is safe from them. Another way they protect themselves is by humping up their back. That is the way Bobry's father protected him.

Otters are somewhat like people because the baby otter cries real tears. The mother otter holds the baby in its arms and sings it to sleep.

A Snowflake

I am a fluffy snow flake.
One day a boy stepped on me,
But I came back to life.
Yesterday a boy stuck me with more snowflakes.
Then he made us into a snowman.
He gave us a pipe, eyes, nose, mouth. I liked being a snow man.

The Library

In the Wollaston School Library it's important that the books are shelved correctly and kept in order. Since everyone in the school uses the books and does not put them away, they are not in the right order. So, to keep them neat some sixth-grade girls organize them. To put the books away one must go about it the same way they do in public libraries. Often there is not enough room for all, there are so many books. Others are very difficult to put away. If it weren't for the girls that put the books away, using the card catalog would be impossible.

The Kindergarten Duty

In Wollaston School two girls from the sixth grade take care of the kindergarten children. The girls make sure the children get in and out of school safely.

On cold mornings they let them in the building and open doors for them. In the spring or fall they let them play games.

When the bell rings, they escort them to their room. When the teacher is not there the girls watch the kindergarten pupils till she gets back. For who knows what the little children might do?

A Snowflake

I am a snowflake.
I come from a big cloud.
Then it was thirty two degrees-just the right time for us to fall.
Then we all started to fall down to the ground.
The children made me into a snow fort, it was fun playing with the children in the snow.
They made me into a snowman with a hat and carrot nose, eyes, and mouth.
That was a lot of fun.

Out-Of-State Educators View Quincy Project ABLE

Three vocational education personnel from Philadelphia, and three from Baltimore are in Quincy to receive on-the-job training in the use of Quincy's Project ABLE Power Mechanics program.

The instructional materials were developed by the American Institutes for Research personnel in cooperation with Quincy Vocational School instructors.

Quincy is the first ES'70 school to initiate a program of cooperative dissemination and field testing of vocational curriculum materials to other ES'70 network members.

The research in the power mechanics area has been reviewed by nationally known educators and their reactions have been enthusiastic.

Typical of comments received is that of Dr. Robert Gagne, president of the American Educational Research Association, who said, "I am very impressed with the rationale, with the training materials, and with the testing procedures. I should think the acceptance of this method by teachers and students would be well-nigh universal".

According to Joseph S. Nicastro, Project ABLE Coordinator, the visitors will work with students and instructors from the Power Mechanics division of the VOTEC school in the mornings.

Afternoons will be devoted to intensive training in the instructional systems development process with the AIR staff.

Quincy school superintendent, Dr. Lawrence C. Creedon, indicates that other school systems such as Monroe, Michigan, Charlotte, N.C., and Dallas and Houston, Texas are also interested in receiving training from Project ABLE personnel.

We Have Met The Enemy

Best beloved, I have come to a sad conclusion ... mankind is basically ignorant. Ignorant persons are found among those with I.Q.'s of 140, as well as those with neither and I or a Q, let alone both together - like man, I mean, just look around you, wherever you may be.

Take for example, the man behind the wheel of the car. He may be your neighbor, or might even be you. This man knows from experience the dangers of speeding, as well as the statistics of death associated with drinking and driving.

Yet, after tossing down a couple, he walks steadily from the bar [or restaurant or home], states that he is definitely not "under the influence", and slips behind the wheel of his car, and heads home - or maybe to the next refreshment station. The dum-dum probably doesn't even fasten his seat belt. Sometimes he might even annihilate himself [small loss], first maybe he only gets a scratch, but wipes out a family out for a pleasure drive. [Fifty per cent of all auto accidents are associated with drinking]. Yeah man - ignorant.

Take for example, the man or woman who is overweight, yet continually eats what looks good, instead of eating a balance but adequate diet, and only makes feeble, infrequent attempts at dieting. His chances of killing himself, while not in as grand or spectacular a way as the drinking driver, is nevertheless just as fatal. That's the way death is, y'know. Shame you can't experience it a little at a time. But many of us eat ourselves into a premature death, or at least an existance of invalidism, which might be worse. Like, man, ignorant.

Take, for example, the smokers - yes, YOU take them. Sad they won't learn, but like I said, ignorant. I wish they all could stand by and watch a smoker with cancer or emphysema struggling for each breath, and doing so for days, weeks, or months, with all his energy and time taken up just breathing. But then, some, even those with both an I and a Q, wouldn't stop. Makes one wonder, doesn't it?

Consider the teenager [or adult] popping pills to elevate or depress the mood, or taking an LSD trip. For the most part, they, too, know the consequences, but they persist. [Now I can hear a whole chorus of voices saying "Yeah, man those crazy teens, I'll never understand them"]. But, y'know, the teens are no more "ignorant" than the adults I have already alluded to. All in the same boat, man. It seems like one never learns.

And, consider the knowledge we have that proper exercise is necessary for proper blood flow to our hearts, to prevent us from heart attacks, and to prevent massive damage if we do have a heart attack. Yet, the most exercise many of us get is running from the couch to the refrigerator for refreshments, while watching the Bruins on 38. Ridiculous, ain't it?

And, while examining this last picture, I can see Dad on the couch with a cigar in one hand, and a bottle of Bud in the other, while Mother is on the phone asking her physician about junior's thumb sucking. Makes one chuckle just to think about it.

Yeah, man, you can probably think of a whole boat-load of examples as to how we show our ignorance. We can probably all say, slightly paraphrasing that famous military man, "WE HAVE MET THE ENEMY, AND HE IS .....US."

South Shore National: when you need the money more than you need a friend.

And, fortunately, there's a South Shore National near you in Cohasset, Cohasset Village, East Weymouth, North Quincy, North Weymouth, Norwood, Needham, Quincy, Quincy Point, South Weymouth, Weymouth, Wollaston, Avon, Braintree Plaza, Canton, Holbrook, North Randolph, Randolph, South Braintree, and Stoughton so you can get it where you need it as easily as when. (And you can get and use a Master Charge card at any one of them.)

A Gallant Fight But –

Tech Jinx Still Haunts North Quincy

The Tech Tourney jinx continues to hover over Bob Nolan and his North Quincy basketball teams but no team ever put up a more gallant fight than the Raiders Tuesday night at Boston Garden.

North, which barely qualified for the tourney with a 13-5 record, met a perennial Tech powerhouse, Durfee of Fall River which, with a 15-1 record, was rated with Somerville and Cambridge Latin right behind Class A favorite Catholic Memorial.

The Raiders, falling behind early, rallied several times to scare the Fall River team but Durfee's superior shooting and aggressiveness paid off with a 62-49 victory.

This was Nolan's fourth Tech team in five years and he has yet to survive the first game.

"These kids did a great job and, with a little better shooting, it might have been a different story," Nolan said. "Although we shot 47 percent in the first half, we still missed many closeup shots and we missed numerous shots in the second half. We had our chances but couldn't capitalize. They forced us into making many fouls, which hurt us. They had only two more field goals but nine more foul shots."

Bob paid tribute to his seniors, who he called "the core of our team this year." They are Co-Capts. Bob DeRosa and Dan McKay, Rick Sanderson, Jim Small, Joe Orlando and Craig Bogosian.

North fell behind, 7-0, but battled back and trailed by only 12-10 after a period. Durfee again pulled away, 19-10, the Raiders rallied again but trailed at halftime, 28-21.

The Raiders narrowed the gap to three points in the third period but Durfee took a 41-34 lead into the final period.

"When you play catchup, you have to gamble and when we did, we fouled, and their foul shots enabled them to pull away at the end," the North coach said.

Three starters, DeRosa, McKay and Sanderson, fouled out in the final period.

McKay scored 13 points, Sanderson 11 and Dan Zink 10.

"Our juniors are coming along and we will be back next year," Nolan vowed. "I just wish we had Tom Cairns [6-5 sophomore] in there as a senior tonight, we would have shown them something."

Mike Fleming, whose brother Ernie was a former Tech standout, scored 20 points for Durfee, including some fantastic shots. Al Herren had 19.

The Raiders qualified for Tech on the final night of the season last week when another outstanding defensive job sparked a 53-40 'must' win at Malden.

"I'm extremely pleased for the kids," Nolan said following the traditional shower with all his clothes on. "They have done a fine job all year and deserved to make the Tech. This was a great defensive effort by the entire team.

"It was a hard fought game eventually won at the foul line. We made only two more field goals but out-scored them from the foul line, 25-16, and that made the difference."

Nolan wasn't happy at the Raiders' offense but praised Rich Sanderson and Dan McKay for the way they put the pressure on Malden.

North trailed, 13-11, after a period but took a 24-20 halftime edge and increased its margin to 39-26 going into the final period.

McKay scored 16 points and Sanderson 12, the only two in double figures as eight of North's nine players scored.

Close guarding hampered the shooting of both clubs as the Raiders hit on 33 per cent of its shots and Malden was just slightly better. North was 25 for 35 from the foul line and Malden only 16 of 32.

Joe Amorosino's classy North junior varsity squad walloped Malden, 63-39, for a final record of 11-2 and the GBL championship.

Dave Nelson had 14 points, Dave Mahoney 13 and Bob McKay 12. These three sophomores give North's future a bright hue.

Gold Team Leads St. Joseph's Hockey League Standings

St. Joseph's Hockey League enters its final three games before the March 14 championship playoff.

The Gold team leads the league, needing only one win to clinch first place, while Red and Green teams will fight for second place.

Spectators are invited to the games, played at the Neponset MDC Rink on Saturdays starting at 5:15 p.m. Now in its first year, hockey players are largely "older men" unable to devote a great deal of time to the game. While the league originated at St. Joseph's parish, the only restriction on eligibility is that of age-not younger than 17.

Top 10 scorers are led by Don Chiasson with 10 goals and seven assists, followed by Peter Leo with eight goals and five assists; John Burrows, nine goals and three assists.

The next games are scheduled for Saturday [Feb. 28].

Good Scholars, Good Bowlers, Teacher's Aim

Foster, a Quincy teacher for 16 years, for a number of years has taken boys and girls from the two sixth grade classes each Thursday for a "bowling afternoon."

The present groups, which includes 95% of both classes, pay 25-cents weekly dues which covers bowling, trophies and a June banquet.

"Nobody goes home empty-handed in June," said Foster. "Trophies are presented while everyone receives a souvenir."

"I find spending spare time with the youngsters is so satisfying not only to myself but in molding the student into an individual who will try to find his or her way in our society – and believe me, I hope I can do this for 50 years more," Foster said.

A Frustrating Season

For Presidents It Was 'So Near, Yet So Far'

Quincy's basketball team ended a frustrating season last week with its second straight win, a 76-46 romp over Chelsea and despite a 5-12 record [5-9 in the Greater Boston League], the Presidents were so near and yet so far from a winning season.

"The boys deserved a much better season as eight of our defeats were by seven points or less," Coach Marty Finnegan said. "Our record could have just as easily been reversed."

Among the losses were one and two-point decisions to Tech Tourney-bound North Quincy, a two-point loss to Weymouth, a five-point loss to B. C. High and two defeats by seven points.

"These kids never quit and that made me prouder than anything else," Finnegan said. "We had some seniors that could easily have said 'the heck with it' when we were going so badly, but they stuck with it and showed what good leaders they were."

Quincy's record was an improvement on last year's 2-16 season.

The only seniors are Kevin Ryan, Rich DeCristofaro, Jim Furfari, Bob Uhlar and George Davey.

Finnegan will have such fine players as Bob Pike, Billy Maver Bobby McDermott, Rich Menchi, Dick Raymond anc Bobby Sacchetti coming back.

"I understand there are a few junior high kids coming up who can help us and I hope a couple of players who were ineligible this year will be back with us. That will give us some needed height. You can't play in this league without some height and a little more depth than we had. We were one of the smallest teams in the league."

Finnegan has an intramural program now underway and will have another next fall and two teams will enter the Quincy Y spring and summer leagues.

"The spring and summer leagues are very good," Marty went on. "We are not allowed to coach the kids, but they get good experience and we can watch them as spectators.

Several high schools enter the boys who are coming back."

The Presidents ended the season with their best shooting night, hitting on 29 of 56 shots from the floor and had only 12 turnovers, low for the year. Quincy had a big 48-20 edge on rebounds, Chelsea having an even smaller club.

Quincy took a 16-8 lead in the opening session, increased it to 34-14 at halftime and widened the gap to a big 58-28 going into the final period.

Pike had 19 points and Maver 17 to spark the attack as nine players joined in the scoring.

"I was very pleased with Maver and Pike, they played outstanding basketball," Finnegan stated. McDermott, a fine sophomore who looked good in the last few games, had another fine game as did Ryan, DeCristofaro and Furfari.

Junior High Icemen Stars Of Tomorrow

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy and North Quincy junior high hockey teams this year are playing in an organized league for the first time and the future of the two high school teams should be bright as a result of the junior high program.

The two local junior high clubs are in the Greater Boston Freshman League with games at Boston College's McHugh Forum at 6 a.m. Saturday mornings. Quincy and North did play a game, however, on a Sunday afternoon at Shea Rink in West Quincy.

With the exception of Chelsea, which does not have junior high hockey, the league is made up of the same schools as the Greater Boston high school league with Quincy, North, Malden, Medford, Everett, Somerville and Revere. This year Boston College High is replacing Chelsea.

With the final games coming up Saturday, Quincy, thanks to seven straight wins, has a fine 10-4 record under Coach Ray Brown. The young Presidents handed malden its first loss, 2-1, last week. Earlier they had handed Medford its first defeat. North, under coach Ken Hayes, a former North Quincy High star goalie, had won only one game but had shown steady improvement.

John Prescott was recently elected Quincy captain and two players, Ted Weiderman and Jackie Black, were named to the league all-star team. North's Martin Flaherty also made the star team.

While Brown can select his players from Central, Sterling, Point and Broadmeadows, Hayes has only North, Atlantic and part of Central to draw from.

"The largest group of players come from Quincy's traditional hotbed of hockey, West Quincy," Brown said. Among those from Sterling is Steve Bergonzi, a burly ninth grader with a powerful shot who starts on defense. Steve had 12 shots on net in the third period of Quincy's big win over Medford, the league's top club.

At the other point is John Prescott, rated by his coach as one of the most promising young hockey players to come out of Central. "John's ability is happily matched with excellent academic standing," Brown noted.

Former Pee Wee all-star Glen Prescott, an eighth grader, is the starting goalie, and rounding out the starting club are Jack Black at center, Pete McNally and Austin Norton at wing, all from Central.

Broadmeadows' representatives include high scorer Ted Wiederman, [three goals in the 6-1 win two weeks ago over North], who centers for wings Pete Janis and Paul Campbell. Others who play regularly are Bill Speranzo [Sterling], Ed Mitchell [Central], Dave Kelmola [Sterling], Russ Corner [Sterling], Bill Carullo, Pete Lindbloom and Jack Ahola, all of Sterling. Point's only representative is Eddie MacDonald, a seventh grader with a fine future.

Rounding out the Quincy roster are Leo Kearney, Jim Murphy, Greg Aimola and Steve Thibeault, all of Sterling; Brian Mitchell and Harry Burke of Broadmeadows.

"Quincy has represented itself well in its first year of league competition and only Malden has defeated us by more than one goal," Brown said. "Quincy Junior hockey is developing as any good program develops, through the combined efforts of interested, involved parents, and a cooperative school administration."

"We have a young team with only five ninth graders, while most of the other teams have mainly ninth graders," North coach Hayes stated. "The combination of inexperience and youth have made it tough for us, but we are improving with each game and I am impressed with the amount of improvement the kids have shown in a short time. All the other teams have been in organized leagues before, while it is the first time for Quincy and us."

North's starting team has Kevin Lynch of Central, Steve McKay of North and Robert Morse of Atlantic on the line, Martin Flaherty and Ronnie Frizzell on defense and Dave Messina in goal. Flaherty and MacKay are ninth graders, the others eighth graders.

Spares include forwards Ken Graham, North ninth grader; Mike O'Connell, Atlantic 8th grade; John Murphy, North 9th grade; Ray Finn, North 9th grade; Ed Donovan, Central 7th grade; Brian MacIsaac, Atlantic 8th grade; P[illegible]ner, Central 7th, and A[illegible] Colleran, Atlantic 8th; defensemen Doug Connors, North 9th; Dave Noonan, Atlantic 8th; Jerry Christian, Central 8th, and Dennis Lynch, Central 7th, and goalie Donald Green, Central 8th.

"MacKay is one of the finest skaters in the league and Kevin Lynch is the work horse of the team, always hustling and digging in the corners," Hayes said. "Bobby Morse is another scrapper on the other wing. Flaherty and Frizzell have been playing solid defense for us and in goal Messina and Green have been sharing the duties. They are both eighth graders and are the finest goalies to come to North in many years.

"Unfortunately, Messina was hit in the ear with a flying puck and has been unable to play. These seven boys played last year in our program and all except MacKay and Flaherty will be returning next year. We have two practices and one game each week which is more than last year, and we have been able to scrimmage other schools which has helped us tremendously. I would like to thank those parents who have made certain that the boys are ready for the early morning games and for helping in other ways."

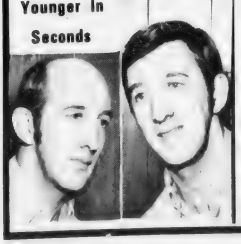
Hirtle, Desserres Pace Hennessy Team

Hennessy Plumbing Supply, paced by Capt. Dick Hirtle and Charlie Desserres, climbed into first place in the Quincy Bowling Little Loop in Saturday action.

Hirtle rolled a three-string 307 and Desserres racked up the season's high single of 141.

Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome, tied for second place with the Mayor McIntyre team, has had a 100 per cent attendance record to date with just seven more weeks to go.



The Hennessy team, scored the weekly high team three of 1,405 and the high team single of 505 in moving into the top spot.

Paul Peckham is the hottest bowler in the league with a 102.20 average. Also in the top 10 behind him are:

Quincy Icemen In Tourney, Will Face Tough Arlington

Bob Sylvia leads his fourth Quincy hockey team in five years into the Eastern Mass. tourney next week but the Presidents face the unenviable task of meeting second-seeded Arlington in first round play Thursday at 7 p.m. at Boston Arena.

Quincy was nipped by Medford, 3-2, Tuesday, ending a five-game win streak, and wound up with a 13-3-1 record and third place in the Greater Boston League. Arlington, 16-0-0, won the Suburban League title.

The loss to Medford was only Quincy's second in its last 12 games. Trailing, 3-0, the Presidents scored twice in the final period, Kevin Grogan scoring unassisted and Chuck Condos scoring on passes from Harry Bertoni and Chuck Peterson.

Bob Laing's luckless North Quincy team was walloped by Malden, 9-1, and finished winless [0-17-0]. Neil Cronin scored in the first period with Pat McCormick assisting.

After Medford had shocked first place Everett, 3-2, Quincy upset second place Malden, 3-1, for the second time this year to qualify for tourney play. In their first meeting the Presidents snapped the Golden Tornadoes' 22-game win streak but were walloped in their second contest.

"I smell upset tonight," Sylvia had said before the Friday night games. He certainly called it right and North Quincy almost joined in the upset parade as it played its best game of the year but lost to Revere,5-3, after jumping off to a 2-0 first period lead.

Sylvia explained that these extra games are not playoffs but were added to fill out the schedule in as fair a manner as possible. All games counted in the league championship race.

"These tense, crucial-type games provide an excellent warmup for the state tourney and it is much better than resting and just practicing for a week," Sylvia said.

Wayne Milford's two first period goals provided Quincy with its big win and Chuck Condos scored into an open net with three seconds left when Malden pulled its goalie in an attempt to tie the score.

Art Boyle, sophomore goalie who has been tremendous all season, had 19 stops, many spectacular including the game-saver off John Arbo right in front with 35 seconds remaining.

"I think we proved in the first period we were ready for them," the Quincy coach pointed out. "We got the jump on them and it paid off in Wayne's two goals. From that point it was a case of keeping our cool and checking and I knew we did that. The key was not to fold and we didn't."

Milford received high praise from Sylvia, who explained that "he is small but he has a good head for the game. His father spent a lot of time with him in the Pee Wees and it has paid off. As far as thinking is concerned, he's one of our best."

Russ Barry and Bob Cataneo assisted on Milford's first goal and Cataneo on the second. Bob Lindbloom, who returned only recently and will strengthen the team for the tourney, passed to Condos for the insurance goal.

North had its best skating game of a dismal season and played Revere off the ice in the first period, their best period of the season.

Al Struzik scored on a deflection of Tom O'Malley's point shot at 3:27 and passed to Bob Frizzell, who scored the second goal at 10:16 of the opening session.

"We were hot in the first period but were hurting in the second," Laing said. "However, we came back in the last period and at this stage of such a long season, it is good to see. All in all, I'm very proud of our kids. After what they've been through, they were still giving it all they had."

Revere scored three times in the second period and went ahead, 4-2, early in the third period. Frizzell scored his second goal on a solo but the Patriots clinched it with their fifth goal.

Earlier in the week, in the first set of extra games, Quincy had pulverized Somerville, 7-0, the second shutout over the Highlanders, which was surprising as their Steve Burlamchi is one of the league's top scorers and in the next set of games exploded for six goals against Chelsea.

Condos scored unassisted for the only goal Quincy needed in the first period. In the second Harry Bertoni scored on a pass from Kevin Grogan, Grogan scored with Dom Burke assisting and Condos made it 4-0 with Ted Weiderman and Chuck Peterson assisting.

The Presidents scored three more in the finale, Peterson converting passes from Condos and Weiderman, Bertoni scoring unassisted and Grogan scoring on passes from Ken Kearney and Steve Cedrone.

Bertoni's goals were his 14th and 15th of the year and marked the sixth game in which he has scored more than once.

"I was able to use three lines in this game from the very start," Sylvia said. "Peterson, Condos and Bertoni stayed together but we used second line center Dave Mariano between Russ Barry and Burke and second line wings Milford and Phil Rugg alongside Cedrone."

North Quincy was walloped by Everett, 12-1, with Struzick scoring the Raiders' goal with assists from Frizzell and Al Stracuzzi in the final period.

ENC Girls In N.Y. Tournament Saturday

The Eastern Nazarene College girls' basketball team is rolling along with a 9-1 record and will play in the Women's Christian Inter-Collegiate Tournament starting Saturday in New York.

The team, coached by Nancy Detwiler, formerly coach and physical education teacher at Norwell High, has been sparked by the high scoring of Sue Calhoun, a former North Quincy High student, and Janet Brook.

Other players are Judy Pearsall of Quincy, Capt. Linda Alverson, June Pierce, Hazel Dahl, Priscilla Fallon, Marilyn Chessa, Anne Alverson, Phyllis Viccioni and Linda Campbell.

"We have only two seniors and six girls are playing for the first time," Mrs. Detwiler said. "They still have a lot to learn but have been doing a wonderful job and I'm expecting a lot from the team in future years."

Sanger, Dwyer Sharpest Eyes In Elks Foul Shooting Contest

Eighteen seventh and eighth grade boys from Quincy schools participated this week in the Foul Shooting finals of the Quincy Lodge of Elks Youth Activities Committee city-wide program.

The program was conducted under the direction of Elk Earl E. Vermillion, basketball coach at Quincy Junior College.

Prior to the basketball game between Newbury Business School and Quincy Junior College, each boy competed by attempting 20 free throws. The first three high scorers in each grade competed in the finals during the half time period.

Seventh grader William Sanger of Atlantic Junior High won that division with 25 out of 30 shots completed. Mark Dwyer of St. Joseph's completed 24 out of 30 to win the eighth grade division. These boys will receive savings bonds at the Elks annual youth day program which will be held in May.

Second place winners who received new basketballs were Robert McMahon an eighth grader at Atlantic Junior and seventh grader Ricky Palumbo at Point Junior who scored 23 points. McMahon won a sudden death contest with Robert Petzolot of Point Junior High.

Coach Vermillion was assisted by recreation Director William F. Ryan who is chairman of the Elks youth committee and committee member Paul Higgins.

Other finalists competing were seventh graders Richard Peterson, Broad Meadows, John Flynn, Central, Frank Schuler, Sacred Heart, Michael Kenney, Stirling, George Phelan, St. Anns and Christian Alexander of St. Johns.

The eighth graders were Terry O'Day of Broad Meadows, James Timmins, Central. Gerald McGrath, Sacred Heart, Joseph Tocchio, Stirling, Paul Doherty, St. Anns, Steve Papile, St. Johns and Michael Salvario, St. Joseph's.

Berardinelli 'Holds Up' Bank In Classic Win

Quincy's John Berardinelli, bowling as anchorman, "held up" the First National Bank of Natick foursome's 6 to 2 victory over Lord & Miller Builders of Melrose, in Massachusetts Classic League action at Boston Tenpin Bowl.

Subbing for an ailing member of the Bankers, Berardinelli proved a capable replacement, rolling games of 210-213-211 for his neat 634 series, as the winners tossed two team games over 800 after dropping the first game to the Lords.

In Quincy Pee Wee Youth Hockey League action Monday the Blackhawks scored an impressive 4 to 2 win over the Bruins to take over sole possession of first place.

William Connolly scored two goals, one unassisted and one assisted by John Cronin. The other goals went to brother Charles Connolly assisted by John Cooney and an unassisted to Stephen Clinton.

Lum's Colonial, Social Club In Tourney Showdown Sunday

Only two teams remain of the 30 entered in the 17th Annual Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tourney sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy.

Lum's Colonial and the Social Club, survivors of Sunday's semi-finals at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys, will bowl the final match for the championship Sunday at 1 p.m.

The Social Club bowled high for the day, ousting the Merrymount Men's team 1654-1529. Bob DiGuisto joined the exclusive 400 Club with strings of 129, 154 and 128, piling up a 411 high total for the Social Club. George Papile was second with 334 and Steve Mariani next with 325.

Ken Hanson's 320 topped the Merrymount team, with Jack Cameron next with 319 and Paul Vickers third with 315.

Lum's Colonial rolled over the Adams Shore Hofbrau 1633-1471, taking all three strings in a lopsided battle. Sam Delsignore with 345 was leader for Lum's, while Buster Loud had 337 and Steve Sheppard 328. Pete St. Clair and Fred Connelly with 311 each tied for Adams Shore honors, with Stu Spinney next with 307.

The Tourney is sponsored annually by the Koch Club as part of its winter athletic and recreation program.

Queen Pins High Scorers In Women's Tourney First Round

The 15th annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy opened Sunday at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys with more than 300 spectators on hand to view the competition.

The champion Queen Pins bowled high for the afternoon, defeating the Alley Kats 1533-1451, although dropping the first string by 15 pins. Mal Adams was top for the Queen Pins with 325, followed by Betty Gagne, 317, Mary Powell, 314 and Bev Putnam, 295. Marilyn Riley's 302 was high for the Alley Kats, with Marie Ford bowling 298 and Joan Prezioso, 292.

The Rollerettes dropped their first two strings, but rallied in the third to defeat the Parkettes 1447-1435. Tina Lungari with 309 led the Rollerettes, while Evie Lorusso chipped in with 300 and Rose Ferris, with 284. Alice Barker's 306 topped the Parkettes, while Ann Alexander had 301 and Edna Walker, 282.

The South Shore Bowlerettes toppled the Ocean Rollers 1428-1382. Noreen Donovan with 294 was high Bowlerette. Joan O'Neill and Isabel McCabe had 291 each. Helen LaCamera bowled 301 in a losing cause for the Ocean Rollers.

The Eight O'Clock Rollers, taking two out of three strings, edged the Women Merchants 1427-1418. Ellen Piccini and Noreen Mastroianni with 298 tied for top honors for the Eight O'Clocks, while Nora Dunn had 283. Elaine Rozanski with 319 led the Women Merchants followed by Gayle Myers' 299 and Myrna Wheeler's 295.

The Lucky Strikes nosed out the host Koch Club 1375-1374 in one of the closest matches in tourney history. The Lucky Strikes racked up a 28 pin lead in the first two strings, but needed every pin as the Koch Club took the final string by 27, losing the contest by one pin. Jean Barry was high for the Lucky Strikes with 292. Simmy Koch's 303 was tops for the Koch Club.

The Pin-Ups ousted the Union Congregational team 1343-1319, taking two of the three strings. Pat Bille led the Pin-Ups with 285, while Isabel Seymore's 290 was high for Union Congregational.

Rolloffs are scheduled for March 8.

Mayor, Senate Root For Affsa

North Quincy track star Paul Affsa has some distinguished fans rooting for him in the national schoolboy meet in New York Friday.

A resolve, introduced by Sen. James R. McIntyre was passed by the Massachusetts Senate, congratulating him for winning the state Class A 600-yard run three weeks ago.

McIntyre, who is also Mayor of Quincy, also sent him a letter wishing him success in the New York competition.

QJC Icemen Red Hot

The red hot Quincy Junior College hockey team, with a 4-1-3 record in its last eight games and still hoping for a spot in the Mass. Junior College League playoffs, must win three of its last four games and Friday night meets Worcester Jr. College in a 6 p.m. game at Worcester.

Quincy's league mark is 5-5-3 and overall record 7-5-3 following a 16-3 breeze over Grahm Jr. College Monday night.

The game was close at the start and Quincy held a 5-3 lead after one period but the Collejuns romped in the second period for seven goals and a 12-3 lead. They finished up with four goals in the final session.

Mike Brown put Quincy ahead early and Mike Bruno then scored three goals in three minutes with Ed Gillis assisting on two. Mike Cocci skated the length of the rink and tapped in his own rebound.

The second period was all Quincy as Chuck Abbotte scored on a Bruno pass. Gillis converted passes from Abbotte and Bruno, Abbotte scored unassisted. Bruno scored from Gillis and Abbotte. 4 Sons Home Together First Time In 25 Years

ROGER MOSCONE

For the first time since 1945, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Moscone of 116 South St., had all four sons at home at the same time. Military duty had kept one or another away in previous years.

Their other sons, all discharged veterans, are Robert Moscone of New York who served with the Marine Corps; Richard Moscone, at home, a Navy man; and Russell Moscone of 50 Harrington Ave., Quincy, formerly with the Army.

WO1 Roger Moscone enlisted in the Navy when he was 17 years old, joining the Underwater Demolition Team 12 [UDT] in 1958. He became a member of SEAL TEAM ONE in 1964, stationed in Coronado, Calif.

In October, 1969 he was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation as a part of SEAL TEAM ONE's "exceptionally meritorious and heroic service. . .in the conduct of naval unconventional warfare operations against the Viet Cong in the Republic of Vietnam," from July, 1966 to August, 1967.

The career Naval Officer is now assistant training officer at the Underwater Swimmers School in Key West.

His father is a retired supervisor of Bethlehem Steel Corp. and General Dynamics of Quincy.

The Quincy School Committee and representatives of Quincy teachers have been holding "fact finding" meetings regarding salaries, the Quincy Sun has learned.

No information is being made available at this time as all participants have been "sworn to secrecy", a reliable source said.

$200,000 P & G Spill Program

Procter & Gamble announces a new program totalling almost $200,000 to improve spill control facilities at its Quincy plant. Construction on the new facilities is expected to begin within the next six months.

This new program will upgrade existing plant facilities to prevent materials spilled during the handling operation or as a result of a storage leak from reaching open waters adjacent to the plant.

The Quincy plant uses a number of liquid raw materials, principally fats and oils, in its manufacturing operations. These raw materials arrive at the plant in trucks, rail cars and barges. They must then be transferred to storage tanks. Inadvertent spills can occur during this transfer operation, a company spokesman said.

Present facilities include a dike designed to contain spills that occur in the storage tanks clustered near the factory. The new program makes provisions for construction of similar dikes around isolated tanks on the plant site, and the construction of a perimeter dike around almost the entire plant site that borders on open water. This perimeter dike will provide an additional margin or protection against spills in the unloading areas.

The completion of these new facilities will further minimize the possibility of accidentally-spilled materials from reaching open water. The new program also provides for new booms, a boat and portable pumps to be used in confining and controlling small spills that might get beyond the dike system. This equipment can also be used in clean-up operations or to respond to any emergency spill call in the area, the spokesman said.

Development of a North Quincy shopping area was predicted when the State Street Bank complex is completed.

Inroads on Quincy business caused by development of the 77-store South Shore Plaza was emphasized. Some 1,800 additional parking spaces are needed to counteract this, Mumford said. After the MBTA with its 700 spaces is added, there will still be a deficit of 1,100, he noted.

A renewal authority, headed by a $15,000 professional, in full charge was recommended for Quincy. Local leaders, good publicity instead of bad, and work by present planners should be updated to show the Quincy of the future, it was urged.

A possible mall for Quincy Center was suggested, with modern high rise buildings to replace the present outmoded stores.

Commuter and consumer traffic routes should be planned to avoid congestion at Quincy Center. A government center should be considered.

Broad Meadows development as an industrial area was suggested.

The search for federal and state funds to aid in redevelopment was discussed by Rogas. To qualify, Quincy must have a specific plan of action, targets and a time limit, with local leaders in charge, he said. Maintaining good relations with state and federal administrators were advised.

Passing of new zoning requirements to admit high rise apartments and industrial complexes would bring greater tax revenue to Quincy, it was pointed out, broadening the tax base and easing the tax burden on residents.

"A master plan is needed," Schoenberger said, "and the community must support developments."

Analysis and conclusions of the students will be published in a 300-page book.

"You will exit with the feeling that we all have a great challenge before us," Mayor McIntyre told the audience. "The future of Quincy really belongs to its citizens."

'A College Of Values' NU Chapter Meeting Theme

"A College of Values" will be the theme of Wednesday's meeting of Nu Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma, at Quincy Vocational Technical School.

Local members of the international honor society for women in education come from school systems of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Milton and Cohasset.

A 5:45 p.m. dinner will be served in the Three Seasons Restaurant of the school.

Miss Jane Manthonne, coordinator of Young People's Services for the Boston Public Library, will speak. She is a member of Lambda Chapter, Delta Kappa Gamma.

Miss Mable Pratt of Quincy will preside. Other officers are Miss Maude Wheeler, Miss Alice Gray and Mrs. Isabelle Mann of Quincy; Miss Shirley Cave of Milton; Miss Ethel Colby and Miss Elizabeth Dunlavy of Weymouth.

Miss Ruth Waring of Quincy is chairman of arrangements, assisted by Miss Jean Gormley, also of Quincy.

116-Block Area Designated

Quincy Point Site For $5.7 Million Renewal Project

Quincy Point has been selected for a planned potential $5.7 million Neighborhood Improvement-Code Enforcement Program, the city's second residential rehabilitation project.

The 116-block area was recommended by Geoffrey A. Davidson, director of city Planning, Programming and Development after an extensive survey, Mayor James R. McIntyre announced.

"There has been tremendous favorable response to our first project in North Quincy," the Mayor noted. "This will be a continuation of the revitalization of our residential areas."

Davidson said he plans to file application for the federal funds with the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development within eight weeks.

"We hope to have the program underway by early 1971 at which time we will be phasing out the North Quincy Improvement Program," he said.

The three-year North Quincy project, costing approximately $3.3 million, is being carried out in a 157-block area.

The designated Quincy Point project area is bounded by Elm St., Town River Bay, General Dynamics shipyard and Quincy Ave.

Davidson estimated the preliminary project cost at $2.7 million of which the federal government would provide $1.8 million and the city $900,000.

"It is further estimated that the project area would be eligible for over $3 million in home loans and grants at no cost to the city of Quincy," he said.

Davidson said some homeowners in Quincy Point would be eligible for 3 per cent interest loans up to $10,000 and others for outright grants up to $3,500.

In addition to residential rehabilitation, the project area would undergo public works improvements including new streets, sidewalks, curbing, tree planting and other area beautification.

Both McIntyre and Davidson said that reaction in Quincy Point, communicated through the Ward Two Civic Association is "positive".

Quincy Point, South Quincy and Houghs Neck were under consideration for the program.

Davidson noted that for an area to be eligible, it must be predominantly residential, have certain code violations in at least 20 per cent of the buildings in the area and be capable of substantial upgrading within a three-year program of public and home improvements.

"Based upon an analysis of these factors and extensive survey data, I recommend that the Quincy Point section be designated as our second Neighborhood Improvement Program," he said.

He listed several reasons for the recommendation, among them:

●The area best meets federal required guidelines for Concentrated Code Enforcement.

●As an area experiencing substantial growth, a concentrated effort to upgrade the environment is most appropriate at this time.

●The recent appropriation of $950,000 for improvements in the sewer system, relieves the greatest single facilities problem in Quincy Point. Improvements such as these are required in code enforcement areas even when not eligible for federal reimbursement.

●Public reaction, through communication with the Ward Two Civic Association, is positive.

"It is my impression," Davidson said, "that the residents of Quincy Point are interested in learning how they, through the assistance of local and federal funds, can improve their neighborhoods."

Under the program, homes in the area will be inspected and owners notified of sanitary code deficiencies.

Quincy Teachers Hold Classes In Dedham Jail

Tuesday and Wednesday evenings are school nights at the Norfolk County House of Correction.

There, under the direction of Edward T. Hannon, coordinator of adult education, three Quincy Public School teachers are involved in an educational program for men 16 to 65 years of age.

Paul A. Breslin, a Spanish-Latin teacher at Broad Meadows Junior High School and former president of the Quincy Education Association, is teaching literature, constitution, law and order.

William M. Jones, assistant principal at Snug Harbor School, is the mathematics and algebra teacher, while Eugene L. Ronayne, assistant principal at the Quincy School, is instructing his students in the intricacies of testing.

Breslin, who has worked with teenagers beyond his regular school schedule, says of his students at Dedham:

"You'll find that all those who attend our classes twice weekly are very attentive and eager for knowledge."

"Many of these boys are dropouts with great potential," Ronayne adds. "One boy I've had is attending Northeastern University, another Curry College, and they're doing very well."

The adult program at the jail is conducted in cooperation with the federal government and Norfolk County Sheriff Charles W. Hedges.

Last week seven of the inmates "graduated" with "high honors" from their courses, a proof of progress.

Pollution Threat Could Close Wollaston Beach

Mayor James R. McIntyre has requested a meeting with state health officials to avert a possible closing of Wollaston and Quincy Bay beaches this summer because of a pollution threat.

The Mayor said several clam beds in the area have already been closed.

In a letter to State Public Health Commissioner Alfred L. Frechette, McIntyre said:

"I know that you are aware of our problems along Wollaston Beach which came close to being closed last year because of the pollution which affected other areas in the Boston Harbor.

"I am concerned about the Wollaston Beach area for swimming this year and the pollution factors which could possibly endanger the health of the people who would be using Wollaston Beach and Quincy Bay for swimming during the 1970 season.

"Therefore, I would ask if we could have a meeting with our public health officials and your officials in your office next week on this very important matter so that we could avert the possible closing down of Quincy and MDC beaches in Quincy Bay, Town River and Neponset Bay as the result of pollution which we could possibly avoid."

McIntyre said he hoped Frechette could schedule an early meeting to work out the problems so that "the recreational programs of Quincy can move forward for our summer recreational activities."

McIntyre Heads For Washington, Florida

Mayor James R. McIntyre was scheduled to fly to Washington, D. C. and Jacksonville, Fla. Wednesday.

In Washington, McIntyre was to testify in behalf of a proposed $3.2 billion federal program for mass transportation.

He was scheduled to fly from Washington Wednesday night to Jacksonville where he has been invited to participate in a seminar on urban leadership being held by the U. S. Conference of Mayors.

The seminar will continue until Friday when he will return to Quincy.

GOP City Chairman Hits Democrats On House Vote

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Once again the Democrats have dealt a deafening blow to their own constituancy by disenfranchising them and not allowing them to vote on the issue of reducing the size of our bulging House of Representatives.

What the Democrats are really saying is the very people who put them in office haven't got the mental capacity to decide for themselves this crucial issue.

It is certainly high time the people in these communities took upon themselves their own responsibility and replace every hypocritical legislator who voted not to allow this to appear on the November ballot.

Young GOP Club President Fears Country In Danger

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I feel that the current trouble that our country is experiencing on and off her institution's of higher learning, could actually lead to our nation's downfall. I have witnessed too many so called demonstrations etc., in which it is clear to see where a great deal of our nation's youth are being led.

The enemy, [the Communists, although some people feel somehow they have mellowed] has established such a stronghold with the college community, that if a student shows even the slightest bit of love of country, [once known as Patriotism] then he is quickly cut away from the rest. It is alright to fly the Viet-Cong flag but foolish to wave Old Glory anymore.

The 400 young people who are presently on a Cuban ship bound for Fidel Castro's Cuba supposedly to help pick our enemy's sugar crop, but actually to learn guerrilla tactics to be used when the order is given from Moscow to "Hit the Streets!"

The trouble is when do we ever hear the truth of the matter, that the Communists are still out to conquer by force our country. As one famous Comrade once said; "First, we will take eastern Europe, then the masses of Asia, then we will encircle the United States which will be the last bastian of capitalism. We will not have to attack. It will fall like overripe fruit into our hands!"

This of course was the plan laid down by Lenin, before he died to dominate the world. Is it not strange to understand our current world problems when one keeps these words in mind, since everything Lenin said has either come true or is on schedule. But when ever some spokesman for the anti-Communist Conservative side speaks out he is quickly labeled some smear name until the public no longer listens to him. Now one reads in the newspaper, a columnist's prediction that after the recent trial in Chicago dealing with the seven trouble making revolutionary defendants, we can expect the youth of our country to become more radical with the outcome of the trial. The truth is they already are ultra radical and the outcome of the Chicago trial had little to make them become that way. The United States is under attack and the sooner we realize this fact, the more there will be hope for our country to come out ahead of the game, the longer it takes us to realize these facts the more dangerous it will be to nip it in the bud.

STATE OF THE STATE

by Governor Francis W. Sargent

A MONTHLY REPORT TO THE PEOPLE OF THE COMMONWEALTH

I would like to explore in depth with you this month my earlier decision, recently announced, to reverse the transportation policy of the Commonwealth.

I consider this topic of much importance to all of the citizens of Massachusetts whether city or town resident.

Questions & Answers

Last May, I announced a reappraisal of this state's policy on transportation. I asked a special task force to conduct that reappraisal and to answer some important questions.

-- Are we REALLY meeting our transportation needs by spending most of our money building roads? The answer is no.

-- Are the roads we ARE building too costly --- not merely in dollars, but in what they cost us in demolished homes, disrupted communities, dislocated lives, pollution of the air, damage to our environment? The answer is yes -- they are too costly.

-- The most important question is: What should we do?

My answer takes the form of local, state, and national decisions.

"Every state, Massachusetts included, is afflicted today by a national transportation policy that is out of date, out of touch with today's realities . . . "

The Urban Scene

Pending today is a $5.5 million study of Route 2 and the Inner Belt in the Boston metropolitan area. It is called the "Task B Study" and I have decided not to approve it. It is too expensive...would take too long...and, most important, it would consider only WHERE and how to build expressways, not WHETHER to build them at all.

Instead of the "Task B Study," I have decided on a new approach. I call it the Balanced Transportation Development Program. Its considerations will be far more relevant TO OUR REAL NEEDS than the Task B Study would have been. It will cost $2 million less, require 6 months less time.

This new program will be a first in the nation. And the plan will be based on an answer to that critical question of WHETHER an expressway should be built not WHERE.

We must, in short, plan for tomorrow, not for yesterday.

Suburbia

My new balanced transportation development program will also embrace the Southwest Expressway Corridor and Interstate Route 93.

Old plans for the Corridor call for rapid transit in this Corridor. But they fail to take into account its proper integration, or other innovative transportation alternatives now available to us. And they fail to consider the impact on the environment,on housing, on land-use, on people.

My new program will change all this and will consider all aspects of development in an integrated system.

I have decided to order the immediate completion of Interstate 93 from its present terminus in Medford to the proposed link with the Central Artery. That project makes sense and it shall go forward.

These two decisions will have far reaching meaning for all residents in the outlying areas of the Metropolitan Boston region.

Road To Change

Major federal money for highways, but only minor federal money for mass transit denies cities and towns the right to choose what kind of transportation is best for them. They are left with either building highways or building nothing.

I have decided to do something about that. I will attempt to change national transportation policy. I will go to the Congress with these plans to amend federal law.

-- First, that the Federal Highway Act of 1970 permit states to use interstate highway funds for mass transit systems of all kinds, not just highways.

-- Second, that this same act permit use of such funds for building and improving arterial streets in cities, not just for expressways.

-- Third, that that same act permit use of such funds to build houses replacing those demolished for transportation construction.

Finally, I will propose an amendment to our own state Constitution to permit broader use of our own highway money.

Today we know what our real needs are more clearly.

Today I know that the errors of the past will cost us dearly if we do not correct them immediately.

Quincy's 'Mr. Union'

Ronald Orcutt In New Labor Career, Challenge

Ronald A. Orcutt, the Quincy Shipyard's fiery but popular "Mr. Union" the past decade has embarked upon a new top level labor career.

Orcutt quietly resigned Jan. 10 as president of Local 5, AFL-CIO Shipbuilders Union to accept promotion to a new post as National Representative of the Shipbuilders Union.

In his new job, he will service and organize in the New England area under the direction of Eugene McCabe, New England Director for the Shipbuilders Union.

"It was with deep regret that I resigned from Local 5," Orcutt says. "But this is a new challenge for me. And I am looking forward to working with Gene McCabe in serving labor throughout the New England area."

He and McCabe are now based at their new Shipbuilders Union headquarters at 21 Franklin St., South Quincy.

Orcutt, whose shipbuilding career in Quincy dates back to 1941, had been president of Local 5 for nine years, moving up from the rank of shop steward of the pipefitting department in 1950 to recording secretary of Local 5 in 1951.

He served as recording secretary until elected vice-president of Local 5 in 1956. He became president nine years ago.

During his tenure he gained a reputation as a hard-hitting but level headed and square-shooting union leader--admired and respected in both labor and management camps.

As president, he led Local 5 to one of the best working contracts in shipbuilding history.

The esteem in which Orcutt is held was vividly illustrated the night of Feb. 20 at Florian Hall, Dorchester, scene of a surprise testimonial dinner in his honor.

Because the dinner was to be a surprise, there wasn't a single word of advance publicity in any newspaper.

Yet that night, more than 500 persons were on hand to pay tribute to "Mr. Union".

They included the rank and file and a head table of more than 30 dignitaries. The latter included Sen. President Maurice Donahue, Congressman Hastings Keith, Andrew Pettis, National President of the Shipbuilders Union, Quincy Mayor-Sen. James R. McIntyre, Brockton Mayor John Sullivan, Salvadore Camelio, president State AFL-CIO, Lloyd Bergeson, general manager General Dynamics Quincy Shipbuilding Division and Robert Smith, assistant to the general manager.

Other dignitaries included: James Loughlin, secretary-treasurer state AFL-CIO; Joseph Sullivan, Daniel Murray, Antonio Svizzerio and Valantine Murphy, vice-presidents of the state AFL-CIO; Edward Moore, representing Congressman James A. Burke, George McCall, president Local 5; Fred Perone, president Local 25; Arthur Fitzgerald, president Local 90; James Arthur, president Local 151; Mel Craven, president Local 4.

Eugene McCabe was toastmaster. Major Walter Douglas of the Salvation Army gave the invocation and benediction.

Orcutt was showered with gifts, including, luggage, desk set, book-ends, desk name plate, a tray with the engraved names of the Executive Board, two plaques from Mayor McIntyre, fishing equipment, and a money purse.

Entertainment was by the 35-voiced Sweet Adelines.

Antonio Svizzerio was dinner chairman. The committee included Angelo Trantaffelow, Arthur Durand, Richard Piccuito, Arthur Batson, Richard Cirello, Thomas Clancy and officers of Local 5.

Orcutt, who lives at 145 Brookside Ave., Brockton, comes well equipped with the tools and credentials for his new assignment.

In addition to his service with Local 5, he has held a number of other major labor and non-labor posts. Among them:

Vice-president of the state AFL-CIO, director Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Community Service Councilor for United Fund, member Election Committee state AFL-CIO, chairman Workingman's Compensation Committee, member Executive Board Salvation Army, member Board of Directors UCS Health Planning Council for Greater Boston, member Governor's Committee representing labor in the state.

And now, a new challenge for "Mr. Union".

Arthur Tobin Acting Mayor

State Rep. and City Council President Arthur H. Tobin today has a new title--acting Mayor.

Tobin is serving as acting chief executive during the absence of Mayor James R. McIntyre.

McIntyre flew to Washington last night to testify for a proposed $3.2 million federal transportation program. He was then scheduled to fly to Jacksonville, Fla. to participate in a U. S. Mayor's Conference seminar.

Beauty Ideas By Sabina

NOTES ON NOSES

Your nose is the most distinguishing feature on your face. Except for identical twins, there are no two exactly alike. Therefore, each nose deserves individual attention at the make-up table. Here are some tips.

Make a wide nose look narrower by brushing brown conturer in narrow strips down each side of the nose from the eye to the nostril, then blend well.

Make a thin nose look wider by brushing white highlighter on each side of the nose from the eye to the nostril.

Make a too-prominent nose look smaller and shorter by dotting the tip with a tawny blusher or darker foundation than the rest of your makeup.

To make a flat nose look more prominent, use white shadow or highlighter down the center of the nose.

Put the spotlight on a pretty, turned up nose by brushing white shadow or highlighter on the tip of the nose.

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

THREE MONTHS BEFORE THE WEDDING

Last week we discussed what to do four months before your wedding. Briefly, the points covered were:

Make a definite date for your wedding with the minister, rabbi, or priest.

Select your wedding gown.

Contact your hall or hotel for the reception.

Make arrangements with your photographer.

Start your wedding guest list.

Now, it's three months before the wedding! Let's go on with invitations.

You've had your little tiffs on whether to invite great Aunt Tillie whom you haven't seen for years or dad's boss, or perhaps it was mom's bridge club versus the office girls. Never the less you've finally come up with a list of the desired number of guests. It's time to order the invitations, announcements and thank you cards.

Announcements are sent to those not invited to the wedding but whom you wish to know of your marriage. These are sent immediately after the wedding.

Now is the time to make arrangements for the music for both the wedding and reception. Double check with the church on your selections for the wedding.

Contact your florist and reserve the date with him.

If you are going to have an aisle carpet, canopy or limousine now is the time to make that arrangement.

Now comes the time probably most dreaded by brides. The time to choose the bridesmaid dresses! As I have so often stated in this column and to my brides, select two or three gowns before taking the girls shopping and insist they make their decision from your selection.

Your mother and your fiancee's mother should also make their choice. Their color and style must also complement your gown and each others.

It is also time to shop for your going away outfit. The wise bride will base the rest of her trousseau around the color of her going away outfit, thus eliminating extra baggage needed for accessories necessary for each individual outfit.

Between Us Girls

By Pat Ridlen

OTHER KIDS MOTHERS

When my children were very young and just starting to talk, I couldn't wait for them to be able to converse in sentences. But I have come to rue the day I wished that. Because now every sentence I hear from my offspring, begins with the words "OTHER KIDS' MOTHERS."

I am so sick of hearing about other kids' mothers, I could scream.

Did you know that other kids' mothers let them eat hot dogs for breakfast? Other kids' mothers let them sleep outside? Other kids' mothers give them money without their having to do one speck of work for it? Other kids' mothers give money for "C's" on report cards, not just "A's" and "B's"?

Other kids' mothers let them buy their own clothes? Other kids' mothers let other kids sleep over every night of the week? [How come my kids aren't the other kids that sleep over these other kids' mothers houses]?

Other kids' mothers don't make them take care of their bratty little sister?

Other kids' mothers bake cakes and cookies every day? Other kids' mothers give them money for a movie, and don't care if its rated "X"?

Other kids' mothers don't ask "Where are you going?" and "Where have you been?" Other kids' mothers don't mind a few friends staying over for supper. Other kids' mothers don't care if a kid ever takes a bath? Other kids' mothers never yell at them and don't watch every move they make?

Other kids' mothers don't tell the teacher "if he gets out of line, whack him"?

Other kids's mothers let a kid skate from 7 a.m. till 9 p.m. and bring his lunch and supper down to the pond. Other kids' mothers let them stay up to watch the Late Late Show. Other kids' mothers never make them get a haircut?

Other kids' mothers don't care how their kid's room looks? Other kids' Mothers don't . . . .Hey, I just realized, to the kid next door I'M THE OTHER KIDS' MOTHER.

Church Women United World Day Of Prayer Friday

"Take Courage" is the theme of the World Day of Prayer sponsored by Quincy Church Women United at Bethany Congregational Church Friday at 2 p.m.

Rev. Bruce B. Noyes, first-full-time Protestant Chaplain at the Long Island Chronic Disease Hospital in Boston Harbor, will speak.

The nondenominational program in Quincy will be a link in a chain of prayer spanning six continents and celebrated in 25,000 communities in the United States.

Throughout the world women of courage from various communities are being honored. In Quincy, Mrs. Emma S. Tousant of 41 Shellton Rd., will be honored and her biography outlined during the service. Mrs. Tousant, a widow who became former judge of the Massachusetts Industrial Accident Board and was first woman in the country to become president of a YMCA, a position she held in Quincy.

Douglas of the Salvation Army; Mrs. Robert Hunter of Adams Shore United Methodist Church; Mrs. Henry Jackson of St. Michael's Church; Miss Irma Johnson of Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Mrs. John W. McGowan of First United Presbyterian Church; and Mrs. Kenneth Rickson of Bethany Congregational Church. Lambert Brandes will be organist; and Virginia Rodgers, soloist. Mrs. John R. Smith, president, will welcome the women.

The Quincy service was planned by Mrs. William L. Newcomer, committee chairman, wife of the pastor at Adams Shore United Methodist Church, who moved this week with her husband to Millersville, Pa., where he assumed a new pastorate.

The offering will help provide religious educational materials for Latin Americans and Spanish-speaking families here; support a Women's Work secretary in the Near East Christian Council; and assist the dispossessed Spanish migrant and American Indian communities.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By Charles H. Wickens

In times past, people sought answers to questions just as we seek answers to more and more complicated questions in today's faster pace of living.

It seems the more answers we get, the more questions come up. We wonder if the answers are actually answers or merely temporized explanations. More and more people seem to be going to psychiatrist's couches for answers, explanation and help. At best, psychiatrists can only point out that the answer to an anguished problem lies within the individual.

Centuries ago, even a Man from Galilee uttered a question on the cross, "My God, My God, why has't Thou forsaken me?" Just as He, in experiencing anguish and pain, knew the question wasn't really a question, the same uncomplicated answer to individual despair awaits us; ours to accept, where and when we will...

Come Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'When Dialogue Stops'

"Dialogue is to love, what blood is to the body. When the flow of blood stops, the body dies. When dialogue stops, love dies and resentment and hate are born. But dialogue can restore a dead relationship...can bring into being once again a relationship that has died." So wrote Reuel Howe. But this isn't news...you already know this from your own experience...maybe all too painfully.

Isn't it strange that during the dating period a couple will ride sitting close...walk touching hands and talk about things they have in common...laugh together...talk of plans for the future...be sensitive to each other and enjoy an openness in conversation on all subjects for hours at a time. Then after marriage...wow!...periods of punishing silence you never thought possible. Marriage has spoiled some mighty fine friendships.

One woman said..."He just seems to withdraw into a shell and closes the door on me." Clamming up...that's what some people call it.

Some women badger...scream...pick quarrels with their husbands deliberately to get them to talk because they are so lonely and desirous of conversation. Some men seem to have a psychological deafness..."having ears to hear, they do not hear."

Intelligent women get tired of talking baby talk all day to little children...they even get tired of "girl talk" with other wives in the neighborhood. It's perfectly normal for a wife to look forward to her man's return home from work...to sit with him before or after dinner just to talk...about little events of the day. Some men are just as eager.

Why do people stop dialogue when they get married? Many don't...and they're much more likely to be the couples who are happy...who resolve problems...who are less likely to be found in the divorce court.

There are several reasons why the others don't talk. One is that men are physically and mentally tired when they get home after a hard day. Let him rest a few minutes.

Another reason is hurt feelings...one is hurt by a comment or action of the partner and withdraws. Some people can't talk because their "growing up" conditions discouraged conversation...they become shy...withdrawn...uncommunicative.

Some people use silence to punish the partner or to get what the other wants. No matter how painful, don't fall for this...it's blackmail. Large numbers of people won't let themselves be known to any other person...they have a fear of revealing themselves...of expressing their feelings...even to a wife/husband.

The effect of stopping dialogue is devastating to a marriage. The refusal to talk may cause the partner to feel guilty..."what have I done?...what have I said?" Silence often is a running away...an escape. Sometimes it is really cowardly. It says..."I won't REASON TOGETHER"...and when reason is banned, your marriage deteriorates rapidly. The refusal to talk brings a wall of separation...distrust...disrespect...destruction of companionship...kills love.

Dialogue is a state of relationship. There is no verbal dialogue worth a cent without relationship. So what do we do when we have fallen into this silent psychological quicksand? DO NOT push the silent one to talk. That can only drive the withdrawn deeper into his/her shell. Yelling is no good. Neither is throwing things...or words.

Some married people have found new dialogue by sitting closely together while watching television [as they did before they married]...playing a game of cards...checkers...or if you are a brain, chess or scrabble...or some project which you enjoy together. Many people experience their happiest dialogues in bed talking...touching...and during sexual relationship. Dialogue is a way of life...24 hours each day.

But you miss all that with twin beds.

HOUSE CALL

By Dr. Charles Djerf
Pediatrician

Warts

When a child, my hands had many homely growths - known then as warts - but with increasing knowledge they became to be called verrueae vulgaris - even by another name they remain a nuisance.

It was no status symbol to have these warts nor were you distinguished as were those who had freckles. Our generation rarely did anything about them and presto - one day they disappeared leaving no scars or indications of their visitations.

Wouldn't it be terrible if our faces had many of these skin blemishes? Nature occasionally pops up with a few small vulgar warts on the face, but since appearance is so important, we have, conveniently, a more benign, less disfiguring wart. It is a flat one called a juvenile wart. Sometimes seen in the hundreds but rarely detectable except with close scrutiny and not apt to provoke ridicule.

The ubiquitious chin scar or even one on the knee will, on healing, sometimes have one of these impish warts live on the scar. Don't worry!

Plantar warts, those on the feet, are the plague of the day - you might say they areepidemic. We've never seen as many as there are today. Happily most of them need no particular attention. The gymnasia or swimming pool seem to be the locus for their spread.

This foot wart on a weight-bearing surface may be very painful and demand immediate attention. A favorite spot seems to be under the toes. The heel and ball of the foot take the brunt of these obnoxious lesions. If conservative measures do not result in cures then more vigorous treatment is required.

As children, we suffered that same dirty contamenant - as frogs were the mystical or mythical source - but I don't believe that, do you? Where could so many children be exposed to the Rana [frog - Aristophanes delight]. The actual course is said to be a virus, and you know what stinkers viruses are and how tenacious, persistent and resistant they can be.

Many methods of treatment are and have been tried but none are perfect. The proprietary medicinals are practically useless. Destruction by using acids such as nitric, sulfuric or glacial asetic leave much to be desired.

Cryotherapy [freezing] using liquid nitrogen is effective but costly. This is popular with dermatologists and is used extensively in the military clinics.

Burning by electro coutery, using local anesthesia can destroy the growth but may scar and even this method isn't 100% sure. It still may be the last resort in the hand or foot.

Venereal warts seen in the genital areas are usually seen in adults and are not necessarily due to promiscuity or sexual exposure. Their treatment is usually handled by dermatologists, urologists or gynecologists.

A useful ointment containing podophyllum [an ingredient useful in cathartics], may be used in treating warts of the face.

Truly, these lesions are not serious, but then neither is appearance - but we spend an awful lot of time with it. Any blemish may seem mountainous in altering our image - just that sort of a gripe is a wart.

Sparkle Cleaners Appoints Rust Director Of Franchise Sales

Sparkle Cleaners of America, Inc. announces the appointment of Herbert B. Rust as Director of Franchise Sales.

Mr. Rust, of Chelmsford, was formerly the director of Franchising for Dunkin' Donuts of America, Inc.

He expects to have in operation 300 franchises within the next five years.

Sparkle, Rust said, envisions a minimum of 20 franchises in 1970.

"The Sparkle franchise plan is the best available plan that I have seen. The franchisee has no unreasonable hours such as Sundays, holidays or nights, and his return on his investment is, year after year, one of the best franchise deals available, plus the fact that Sparkle is a chain with over 70 years of experience in the dry-cleaning business and makes this experience available, in full, to all of its franchisees."

After a test program, Sparkle Cleansers announces its entry into the franchising field. With the appointment of Mr. Rust as Director of Franchise Sales, the pioneers of one-hour dry-cleaning, Sparkle, a Newton based chain, takes on an ambitious franchise program.

A completely automated full-service professional dry-cleaning chain, Sparkle has plans to open 20 franchises in 1970, with a total of 300 nationwide franchises in the next five years.

Brett Files $1 Million Bill To Solve City Flood Problems

A bill providing a possible solution to flooding problems in West Quincy and along Furnace Brook and Black's Creek has been filed in the state legislature by Rep. Joseph E. Brett of Quincy.

A hearing is scheduled for March 11, at 10:30 a.m., in Room 473B at the State House.

The bill directs the MDC to construct and maintain tunnels and surface conduits along Furnace Brook and Black's Creek in Quincy based on a comprehensive report made by Charles T. Main, Inc., Engineers, in 1956.

The study, made following Hurricane Diane of 1955, was made by the firm under a contract with the State Department of Public Works.

"Little or no action has ever been taken on the recommendations," Brett said.

"For far too long, there has been much talk but little action toward correcting the periodic flooding conditions which harass so many of our citizens and homeowners in West Quincy and along Furnace Brook and Black's Creek," Brett said.

He pointed out that Furnace Brook is the principal drainage channel to carry surplus waters from the West Quincy hills down to Quincy Bay. Furnace Brook becomes Black's Creek when it reaches the salt tidewaters.

Years ago when Furnace Brook and Black's Creek were open streams, there were no flood problems, he noted. Highway, residential and commercial development over the years have brought about the containment of brook and creek into inadequately-sized culverts.

The Charles T. Main report recommends the widening of all of the culverts, commencing at the lower end near Quincy Bay and continuing up into West Quincy.

To meet the necessary expense, Brett has added a provision to his bill calling for a bond issue by the State not to exceed $1 million to be paid within 30 years. He also suggests that any Federal funds available be spent for this purpose.

Support by citizens has been urged by Brett, both at the hearing on March 11 and by contacting State and City officials.

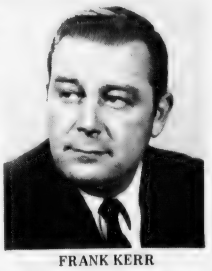
"We need all the support we can get to impress upon the powers that be the extreme seriousness of this recurring problem," Brett said.

Frank Kerr Leaving GD To Form Agency

Frank Kerr, public relations director of the Quincy Shipbuilding Division of General Dynamics, announces he is leaving the corporation March 31 to form a "writing agency".

He said he will be serving the federal government as a consultant writer, commuting frequently to Washington on assignments, and that he has also formed an agency called Newsmen International.

The agency will provide writing, including documentary motion picture scripts, and other public relations services for government, business and industry.



A former journalist and documentary motion picture writer, Kerr, 39, has been with General Dynamics 10 years, serving in California, New York City and Greater Boston.

He was transferred from New York to Quincy in 1966 when General Dynamics elevated its shipyard to full division status. He directs the shipyard's press, community and legislative relations and coordinates all ship launching activities.

"I regret leaving General Dynamics, which I consider to be the world's greatest and most exciting corporation," Kerr said. "But I have a wonderful opportunity to start my own writing agency and I've got to try it."

Before joining General Dynamics, Kerr was a newsman with newspapers, radio and television. He was also a free-lance writer, specializing in trade and business magazines and motion picture scripts.

Among his film credits, he wrote the nationally televised

FRANK KERR

"Friendship 7" for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The hour-long movie about John Glenn's space flight won 15 major international film awards.

He also wrote the long playing record "Astronaut John Glenn" for Frank Sinatra's Reprise Music Company.

Kerr is chairman of the Tri-City Industrial Oil Pollution Committee, comprising eight major companies in Quincy, Weymouth, and Braintree; president of the non-profit Hull Medical Center, Inc.; and immediate past president of the Pt. Allerton Association, a 400-member civic organization.

Born in Seattle, Wash., Kerr was graduated from Woodbury College, Los Angeles. He served four years as a Marine Corps combat photographer, earning the Bronze Star and the Commendation Medal during the Korean War.

He plans to headquarter Newsmen International in Hull, Mass., where he resides with his wife, Terrie and their four children.

Frazier Testifys For Nursing Home Bills

Ronald F. Frazier, executive secretary of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce recently testified before the Committee on Social Welfare hearing bills H-1670, H-2445 and H-2446 concerning Nursing Homes and the "rate freeze" to which they are subjected and which was established early in 1969.

Frazier testified, on behalf of the Chamber, in favor of the bills which would rectify the "rate freeze" situation. He said that the Chamber has a number of Nursing Home members, and that the Chamber took the position because there has been no freeze on costs and wages, and inflation has not stopped. In addition, constant legislative pressure, along with the highly professional nature of Nursing Home administrators, has resulted in high financing costs [at higher rates of interest] to provide quality facilities.

There are approximately 76 nursing homes on the South Shore, paying taxes to the community and employing nearly 4,000 persons, he said.

Nursing home officials have said that if their facilities are to remain efficient, and if they are to continue to provide quality services, this legislation must be enacted.

The Chamber questioned whether it was fair to subject only this one segment of the economy to a restrictive rate freeze.

If this legislation is not enacted, it is expected that many smaller homes will be forced to go out of business, Frazier said.

Eyes

Have you ever looked at the eyes
Around you?
Fascinating things
Some are black, and some are blue,
And some smolder with fire.
Some are hazel, some brown, some a cool, calm wise grey.

Some are ever changing,
Ranging from green to brown
Some smile,
Some know,
Some burn,
Some grow
Some can't see
Some are masked, but not many,
Look at the eyes around you.

Paul Bunyan And Babe Go To The Moon

One upon a time Paul Bunyan and Babe thought they would build a space ship big enough for the both of them. So Paul and Babe went to work. They got metal nails, wood, and soft mats. It was made before Christmas. Paul and Babe got in and took off. Paul saw the moon and he made the space ship land on the moon. They got out. Then Paul saw a big rock. He went over it and saw that it was a space ship. It was the Intrepid. Paul took it and went back to earth.

Otters

If you were an otter you would probably hump your back like a cat and have whiskers like a cat. If you were a baby you would have shining, soft, and dark fur, but if you were a bigger one your fur wouldn't be soft. The babies are no longer than squirrels while the mothers and fathers are bigger than cats.

They get most of their food by themselves. They catch fish and shellfish. They go ashore for the crabs. They crack the shells on rocks, wash out the crab, and eat it.

They have only two enemies. They are owls and Eskimo boys. To get away they go diving into the water or hiss fiercely and hump their backs.

Otters are like us. They need air and the babies cry. To put them to sleep they hold them in their arms and sing them to sleep. They use their paws like hands!

A Snowflake

I am a fluffy snowflake, who came to life one day.
It was cold, very cold.
There was a big snow storm.
Many trees were falling, I got stuck under a tree.
Two days later men came to lift up the tree.
By the time the trees were picked up the storm was over.
Then it began to rain and I was slush.

My Room

My room, I think, is very small
Ten by twelve that is all.
But it's like a palace to me,
For in here I am free.
My bed and dresser fill the room,
Almost like a pharaoh's tomb,
Cramped with his riches and his wealth,
But the difference is -
I'm in good health.

Then comes my closet - big and wide.
On the floor my shoes, side by side.
My dresses hang there one by one,
A rainbow of colors as bright as the sun.
On the shelf are many dolls and toys
Which once to me were my greatest joys.
And my door, you see, is on the right,
Which I now close to say, goodnight.

Twilight

Twilight is the nicest time of day,
Stars blink against the dark blue sky, so gay,
The bright yellow moon shows now
So beautiful against the sky and how.
With everlasting stars,
As far away as Mars,
Lighting the sky with golden light
Twilight isn't so eerie now, just bright.
Just bright.

Once upon a time, there lived a man named Paul Bunyan. He took steps from planet to planet he was so BIG!!! One day he found an ox as big as he, so he brought him with him. One time he had to jump to a planet. It was bigger than he. He got on and fell all the way back. He smashed 50 planets on his way back. Then he started floating and that's the end of the mystery of Paul Bunyan.

Paul Bunyan had a job and he needed a helper to do it with him, so he found an ox and fed him. He began to be big as Paul Bunyan. When the ox grew as big as him, Paul built a rocket ship to go to the moon and fix it up so we could live on it.

One day I went coasting. I met my friends. Then we started to go down the hill. Then it started to snow. We made a train with our sleds. Then we went down the hill. My friend said, "look out!" 250 In Junior Hoop League Action

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy has had an outstanding junior high school basketball program for many years and about 250 boys play varsity ball in each of five junior high schools.

This fine league, which has standout coaches and which sends up many players every year to the Quincy and North Quincy high school teams, was a source of pride to the late Munroe MacLean, director of athletics and physical education for the city for several years. His assistant, Ken Rickson, now coordinator of physical education, is also justly proud of it.

"I feel we have an excellent program in all sports and one of the best parts of it is the basketball program," Rickson said. "Each school has a seventh, eighth and ninth grade team with three games played on each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon card. We have outstanding coaches at each school with most having a great deal of experience and some having coached high school ball."

Another enthusiastic supporter of the junior high program is Carl Leone, now coordinator of athletics. "The high school coaches keep their eyes on the games and appreciate the fine work being done on the junior high level," he said.

Atlantic and North are the only schools which operate separately, the seventh and eighth grades being located at Atlantic and the ninth grade in the high school building.

Dean of junior high coaches is Mario [Mike] Casali of Central, now in his 13th year of coaching in the league. His ninth grade team has been up near the top with Point and Sterling. The eighth grade team has also been up with the leaders and his seventh grade club has been having an outstanding season.

There are no actual league championships in any junior high sport and all champions are unofficial. Emphasis is put on the competition between the players with no championship pressure.

"I think this league is outstanding in every way," Casali said. "The league this year is well-balanced. We at Central go all-out to win the ninth grade games but we try to get all the boys in the seventh and eighth grade games. We have won the championship 10 times in the last 12 years."

Casali has an intramural league for the seventh grade, calling it the Eye-Opener or Early Bird league. He has 78 boys playing with 13 boys on each of six teams. There is a game every morning at 7:15 and every boy plays the same amount of time. Every boy who plays in the league gets a chance to go to at least one junior high game as a player.

"This league has been going since 1960 and it gives a boy with less ability then the others a chance to be on a team and actually play," Mike said. "Central is a great school with great students and there is tremendous interest in sports here."

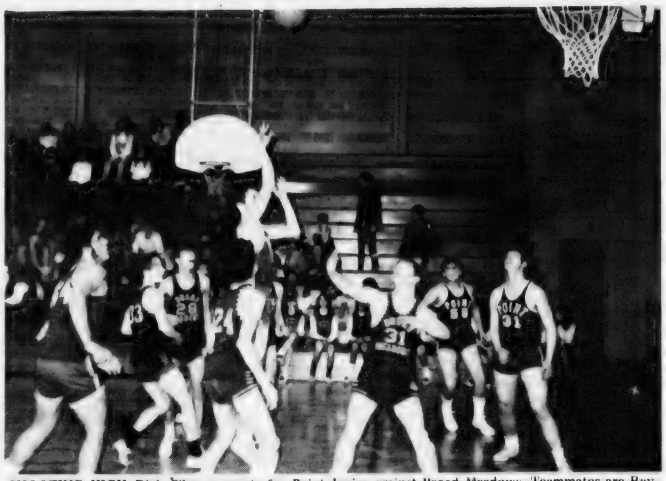
At Point Don Tobin's ninth grade team has been at the top of the league [or tied] since the season started. His eighth grade has had a good year but the seventh graders have been having their troubles.



Playing on the strong ninth grade quintet are Michael Priscella, Robert Spillane, Herbert Starr, Tim Dwyer, Rich Silva, Roger Johnston, Ken Silver, William Eklund, John Franceschini, Ray Papile, Ken O'Brien and Rich Sheedy. Lee Simlikos is manager.

The eighth grade roster includes: Don Jackson, Bob Calvi, Kevin Satterthwaite, Salvatore Alfano, Frank Cogliano, Bill Bossardt, Jim DeCristofaro, Stephen Doucette, Bob Petzoldt, Ron Butt, John MacFarlane, Stephen Keith, Ed Beaton, Michael Varrasso and Michael Cullen.

Seventh grade players are Rich Pizzi, Ray Morreale, Ricky Palumbo, Rich Bagen, Bill Breen, Bill Stevenson, Dan Perdios, Rich Butt, Joe Doyle, Wayne Lamie, Dennis DeSantis, Tom McKeon, John Overy, Bill Thibodeau, Ken Luciani, Michael Durante, Michael Cirillo, Matthew Guest, Rich Holzman, Bob Pizzi, Bob DeAngelis, Jim German, Matthew Higgins, Tom Leone, Ed Warchal, Bill Maloney, Michael Reardon, Joe Thorley, Dave Calvi, Bob Power, Gerard Mullaney, Tony Isaac, Jim Ash and Bill Bennett.

At Sterling Coach Dave Meehan's ninth grade team won the league title with a 10-2 record. Sterling won the crown with a 48-32 win over Point on the final day.

"We have a fast-breaking club with Mike Marvelle and Ken Furfari starting the break and John Reggiannini ending it with his scoring," Meehan said.

The ninth grade roster includes: Reggiannini, Furfari, Marvelle, Phil Iovanna, Mark McLeod, Jim McKinnon, Marty O'Toole, Mike Moore, Ken Corley, Bruno DiCienzo, David Ciani, Paul Creedon, Bob Volpini, Mike Ryan, David Douglas and Paul DiFederico.

High Scorers have been Reggiannini, averaging 18 points a game with a 47 per cent average from the floor, Furfari, Marvelle and McLeod. Marvelle and Furfari are the top rebounders, and Furfari leads in assists. The team is averaging 50 points a game as compared with 36 for the opposition, has shot 43 percent from the floor and 56 percent from the foul line.

Playing for the eighth grade team, which has had a .500 season, are:

Robin Carrera, Tom McKinnon, Paul Riggs, Rick Folino, Peter DiBona, Mike DePolo, Mike Kenney, Roger Thomas, Walter Steinkrauss, Gary Hawes, John Campbell, Paul Ricci and Kevin Souza.

The seventh grade players include Jack Kenney, Mario DiCienzo, Preston Carroll, Bud Souza, Joe Tocchio, Paul Volpani, Bud Starck, and Mike Wysocki.

Ron LaQuaglia's North ninth grade team has had only a mediocre season with just about a .500 record but the team has started to come along of late.

"It took them a while to jell as a team but they made it and are going to be a threat to everyone," LaQuaglia said. "The high point of our season came in the game against Point. They at the time had a 6-1 record while we were only 2-5 but our boys were really up and walloped them, 37-14.

"It was a complete team victory with Bob Morton and Bill Bradley leading our scorers. After that game we bombed Broad Meadows, 49-19.

"Most of our losses were by very close scores and, all in all, I'm pleased with the progress of the team. I know most of the players will be ready next year to play high school junior varsity ball."

The starters at North at:

Morgon, Bradley, Dave Barry, Brad Martinson and Ken Marsters and the other players are Jamie Doherty, Bernie Holleran, Bill Shea, Don Small, Charlie Smith, Mike Conroy, Ed Machado, Steve Fransoso, Bill Welch, Joe Campbell and Bill Carroll.

Broad Meadows coach Steve Campana, lacking height and an outstanding shooter, has had his troubles in ninth grade competition, while the eighth graders, with good height, have had a rather disappointing season, but a few ineligibilities have hurt. The seventh grade club has been rolling merrily and has been up at the top with Central.

"The seventh grade team has fine potential, size, speed and shooting ability," Campana said. "Good things are expected in the future."

The ninth grade players are: Randy Califano, John Dahlquist, David Durocher, David Ferris, Dennis Fitzgibbons, John Giggey, David Guido, Jerry Fanning, Robert Prakop, Bob McDonough, David Steen and John Whitney.

Playing for the eighth grade are:

Arthur Connolly, Frank DiSalvio, John Duyette, Robert Goldie, Mark Lorgeree, Steven O'Rourke, Richard Peterson, Tom Tasney, Tom Perry, Tom Moriarty, John Smith, Paul Craig and Walter Linn.

At Atlantic Bill Willoughby's seventh and eighth grade teams have winning records with the eighth graders up among the leaders.

The eighth grade team include:

Paul Zoia, Phil Robinson, Rich Leshane, Bob McMahon, Steve McLaughlin, Guy Sanderson, Jim Mullaney, Dick Colon, Mike Martinelli, Rich Mulcahy, Bill Bebera, Joe Carroll, Steve Moynihan and John Moore.

"The attitude of both our squads has been very good and the boys really want to play," Willoughby said. "Robinson is a fine leader, Leshane works very hard and McLaughlin has done an excellent job."

Quincy Faces Undefeated Arlington

By TOM SULLIVAN

When Quincy opened its hockey season in December, Coach Bob Sylvia and his players set three goals.

First, they wanted to finish in the first division of the Greater Boston League.

Quincy, losing only two of its last 12 games, finished third with a 12-4-1 record, right behind champion Everett and Malden.

Secondly, they wanted to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tourney.

They did that with a 3-1 upset win over Malden last week.

Thirdly, they wanted to win at least two games in the tournament.

The Presidents open their quest for this goal tonight but it will be the hardest of the three to achieve.

Sylvia and his club meet undefeated Arlington, the Suburban League champion and the tourney's second-seeded team in a 7:30 p.m. game at Boston Arena.

"I know probably no one outside of ourselves believe we can beat them," Sylvia said. "But we think we can win. "We have nothing to lose, we'll be the underdogs and will be loose. It was proven many times in our league this year that anything can happen."

If Quincy does upset the dope and win tonight, it will play the winner of today's Boston Tech-Don Bosco game Saturday night at 7:50 at the Arena.

This is Sylvia's fourth tourney team in his five years as Quincy coach. Although he admits some of his past teams may have had some individual players more outstanding than some of this year's players, he rates this his most exciting team.

"This team plays the most exciting brand of hockey of any team since I've been here," Bob said. "They move the puck around very well and in most games have out-shot the opposition. Our big trouble has been not finishing off our plays. In some games, including our 3-2 loss to Medford in the final game, we out-shot the other team about three to one but just couldn't put the puck in the net. Except for our first game, a 7-1 loss to Everett, we were in every game and were never out-classed.

"I know Arlington is as strong as any team in the tourney. I hope we can forecheck them and keep their attack down. If we can do this, we will have a chance of upsetting them."

Quincy has 13 seniors who would like to bow out with a fine tourney showing, but starting in the net will be Sophomore Artie Boyle, who took over after the first few games as a result of starring for the junior varsity team.

"Artie did a wonderful job for us and I think having such a strong backup goalie as Mark Erickson helped him," Sylvia said. "Mark is an excellent goalie himself and has kept the pressure off Artie. Erickson did a fine job for us, also. Sophomore Peter Rugg, who replaced Boyle as the jayvee goalie and played very well, will also be available if needed."

Quincy's number one defense pair is Kevin Grogan, one of three Presidents named to the league all-star team, and Billy Blake.

Behind them are Bobby Lindbloom, who returned late in the year after recovering from a broken leg, and Bob Cataneo, a fine junior. Lindbloom has gotten himself back into shape and will be a big help against Arlington.

The first line, all seniors, includes all-stars Chuck Condos and Harry Bertoni and Chuck Peterson. Bertoni was the leading scorer, followed by Condos. "This group played outstanding hockey and will be our major weapon in the tourney," the Quincy coach explained.

Sylvia has shuffled the second line around and has used Wayne Milford, Dave Mariano, Russ Barry, who also is a fine defenseman, and Phill Rugg.

A third line has Steve Cedrone, Steve Kleimola, Don "Bomber" Burke and swingman Ed Wiederman.

Two other juniors who have been used and who played good hockey are Bob P[illegible] Alan Colby.

"At the st[illegible] the season I was worried about our [illegible] problem, having lost a [illegible] standout, and thought we would have good scoring punch," Sylvia went on. "But it turned out just the opposite as Boyle solved the goalie problem and the scoring punch has been sadly missing in most games. We do have good depth and it has helped us a lot.

"This is the most dedicated group of boys I ever had. They never give up and have steadily battled from behind. And all are good students and are sure to go to college. They are all very good boys and are very coachable."

It has been a good season all around for Quincy. Jack Scanlan's junior varsity team was undefeated with a 6-0-1 record and allowed only four goals.

Ray Brown's junior high team, playing in an organized league [Greater Boston League] for the first time, won eight games in a row to finish with a fine 11-4 record.

Incidentally, Quincy last Saturday night edged Weymouth's Suburban League entry, 3-2, at Weymouth Skating Club. It was part of an ice extravaganza sponsored by the Weymouth Kiwanis Club.

ENC Girls Wind Up Successful Season

The Eastern Nazarene College girls' basketball team concluded a highly successful season with a 13-3 overall record after winning three of four games last weekend and placing second in the Women's Intercollegiate A. A. tourney at King's College in New York. The team was 6-0 in the WCIAA this year.

Coach Nancy Detwiler's team had a busy time in the one-day event, defeating Nyack College, Barrington and King's before bowing in the finals to Philadelphia College of the Bible.

ENC had finished its regular season with a 10-2 record.

"The girls did an excellent job all year long and I was very satisfied with their performance in the tournament," Mrs. Detwiler said. "It is pretty rough playing four games in one day and one of our best scorers was unable to play, which certainly didn't help us at all."

With only two seniors on this year's squad, Nancy has high hopes for another outstanding season next year and would like to get the team into a national tournament.

"I didn't push for a national tourney this year because the team was young and I didn't want to get the girls in over their heads," she explained. "With this year's experience, however, I think they will be ready for that competition in another year."

Ducey Sparkles At U. Of Vermont

BURLINGTON, VT. - A former Greater Boston League All-star and All-New England Prep standout, has been doing his thing for the University of Vermont freshmen basketball team.

Capt. Jim Ducey of Quincy, Mass., has been averaging 17.3 points a game, and has paced the UVM Kittens to a 7-3 record, including three straight.

The former North Quincy ace and co-captain in 1968 has been particularly sharp in his last eight games, averaging close to 20 points a game.

According to varsity coach Arthur Loche, Ducey "fits into my plans for next year", as the Catamount quintet loses two backcourt men, All-Yankee Conference ace, Frank Martiniuk and Captain Roy Greenman.

Ducey, a Business Administration major, came to Vermont via Bridgton Academy, where he also was a basketball standout, serving as captain in 1968-69. Charles Sherman was his coach at the Maine prep school.

At North Quincy, Ducey won three letters in basketball, playing under Bob Nolan. The versatile athlete also received three letters in golf.

Ducey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Ducey of 138 Waterston Ave., Quincy, Mass.

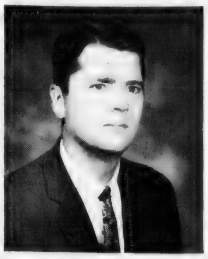
Hannon Named Register Of Deeds

Rep. Barry T. Hannon [D-Braintree] was appointed Norfolk County Register of Deeds this week succeeding the late L. Thomas Shine and ending speculation over who would get the post.

Hannon, 35, was named by the Norfolk County Commission Tuesday morning and that night formally announced his candidacy for election at a reception at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy.

The reception was originally scheduled for last week but was postponed because of Shine's sudden death. The latter was a Republican.



Hannon will be a candidate for election to Register of Deeds in this September's primary election.

He was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy at a meeting of the County Commissioners.

Hannon was nominated by Chairman James J. Collins of Milton who had considered running for Register of Deeds before Shine's death.

Commissioner George B. McDonald of Quincy seconded the nomination. Commissioner Thomas K. McManus of Norwood voted with them to make it unanimous. All three are Democrats.

Hannon is serving his second term as state representative from Braintree. He was first elected in 1966, leading an eight-man field for the Democratic nomination.

BARRY T. HANNON

He has topped the ticket since.

His district which originally included Quincy, now comprises Braintree and Holbrook.

Hannon has been responsible for legislation resulting in the prosecution of air pollution offenders. He is also the author of a "Safe Driver" automobile insurance reform plan currently before the legislature.

He serves as Chairman of the House Committee on Bills in the Third Reading and is also a member of the Committee on Insurance and Government Regulations.

Hannon holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Economics from Holy Cross College and obtained his law degree at Boston University. A former Captain in the United States Air Force, he was certified as a Prosecutor and Defense Counsel while a Judge Advocate with the Tactical Air Command during the early years of the Vietnam war.

Hannon is married to the former Deborah K. Smith. The couple and their three children live at 305 West St., Braintree. He is the son of Judge Edwin F. Hannon of the U. S. District Court.

Hannon is Chairman of the Braintree Democratic Town Committee, a member of the Quincy Elks, the Norfolk County, Massachusetts and Quincy Bar Associations, a director of the Association for Brain-Injured Children, Inc., and Senior Vice Commander of Camp 61 of the Sons of the Union Veterans of the Civil War. He is also a member of the American Legion.

Quincy Lawyer Named MBTA Acting Counsel

Appointment of Atty. Vincent M. Banks of Quincy, assistant general counsel of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, as acting general counsel is announced by General Manager Leo J. Cusick.

Banks, 56, is a veteran employee of the Boston transit system. He started as a clerk in the auditing department of the Old Boston Elevated Railway Company in 1936.

Born in South Boston, he is a graduate of Boston Latin School, Harvard College and Northeastern University Law School. He was admitted to practice in Massachusetts courts in 1943 and the federal courts in 1946.

From the Boston El's auditing department, he moved to the claims department, first as an investigator and then as an attorney, following his graduation from law school. He was assistant general attorney from 1963 to 1965 and became assistant general counsel in 1966.

He is a member of the board of directors of Index Bureau, Inc., the working committee of Massachusetts Claims Investigation, the Defense Research Institute and the Administrative Committee of Claims of the American Transit Association.

A resident of 1025 Hancock St., Quincy, he is married to the former Miss Mary Elwood of South Boston. They have two sons, Vincent M. Banks, Jr., of Canton, and Michael Banks who is serving with the U. S. Air Force in England.

$69,000 Grant For CAP

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

A grant of $69,000 to the Quincy Community Action Organization by the Office of Economic Opportunity will provide only for a continuance of the present program, according to Russell O'Connell, CAP director.

"We applied for $91,000 to work in three neighborhoods," O'Connell said. "Southwest Quincy where we have been working for two years; Germantown, three years; and the Atlantic section of the community where we wanted to open up neighborhood centers. We were rejected on the $22,000 needed to get started in Atlantic."

Announcement of the $69,000 grant was made by Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] and Senator Edward M. Kennedy. The grant was made "to provide administration and management of the community action agency for mobilization and coordination of local resources; and to provide encouragement to residents of low income neighborhoods to become involved in the affairs of their community and to take group action to deal with their problems."

O'Connell listed CAP accomplishments in Germantown including organization of a community council, a Federal Credit Union of 75 members with assets of $1,962, youth council and Senior Citizens group.

The most recent accomplishment in Southwest Quincy was the reopening on Monday of a well-baby clinic at Community Action Oranization headquarters, 372 Granite St., through work of the Southwest Quincy Community Council. Ten babies were brought to the clinic on opening day.

Southwest Quincy has a Federal Credit Union also, with 100 shareholders and assets of $2,180. Thirteen women have received typing lessons at the CAO office to fit them for business opportunities. A program in nutrition is being taught by Patricia Fromberger from the Norfolk County Extension headquarters at Walpole.

The group meets at Trinity Lutheran Church on Roberts St., where establishment of a day nursery program is also under consideration.

There is a Southwest Quincy Senior Citizens Council.

The federal grant of $69,000 is somewhat more than half the total cash received in 1969, a total of $124,502.23. This included grants from both State and City. The sum of $11,300 was received from the "Freedom From Hunger Walk" conducted last year by Quincy students. [The Quincy Walk Committee met on Tuesday [March 3] at Wollaston First Baptist Church with Dr. John G. Healey, National Director of Young World Development, to plan the 1970 "Walk".]

Further grants of "in kind" facilities, such as office space, etc., brought the total value of the Community Action Organization's program to $141,806.23, according to O'Connell.

Bellotti Calls House Size Vote 'Dark Day' In State History

Former Lt. Gov. Francis X. Bellotti of Quincy has called the vote on the House of Representatives size "a dark day in the history of Massachusetts government."

Bellotti said Governor Sargent "cannot escape responsibility" because the deciding vote was cast by a member of the Republican party.

The Quincy Democrat, in a statement issued this week, said:

"Wednesday, Feb. 25, 1970 will be remembered as a dark day in the history of Massachusetts government. The people of Massachusetts were denied their right to vote on the size of the House of Representatives on that day.

"Governor Sargent cannot escape responsibility for this. The deciding vote to prevent the people of Massachusetts from voting on this issue was cast by a member of his own party. The Republican leadership in the House led by Representative Sydney Q. Curtiss also voted to deprive the people their right to vote on this crucial issue.

"Is Governor Sargent once again deceiving the people of this state by taking one public position and privately having the Republican leadership in the House move in another direction for the prime purpose of creating a campaign political issue? Is the Governor trying to avoid defending the abysmal Republican record in this state? Or is he such an inept, weak "leader" that he cannot control the leadership of his own party?

"In any event whether through deception or weakness Gov. Sargent must share the blame along with others for this dark day in Massachusetts government.

"Those who argue that the people are incapable of voting on such a basic issue as the size of the House are really insulting us by saying that we are not capable of governing ourselves."

Friday Night Window Service At Quincy Post Office Ends

The experimental program extending window service two hours on Friday nights at the Quincy Post Office has been discontinued.

George K. Walker, Officer-in-Charge, Boston Postal District, said the program was dropped because of low patron participation.

"Response from the public has been minimal and does not warrant establishing extra hours on a permanent basis," he said.

The program had been in effect six weeks.

Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth District

Local Pollution Control Sought

Mayor-Sen. James R. McIntyre will seek creation of a concentrated Air Pollution Control District comprising Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth.

Such a district, he said, can more effectively battle not only air pollution in this area but also the problems of sewage and water pollution, fertilizers, detergents and chemical pesticides.

McIntyre has sent a communication to the state Department of Public Health, requesting permission for Quincy to join "with one or more contiguous towns to form a smaller and more concentrated Air Pollution Control District."

He said he will ask the neighboring towns of Weymouth and Braintree who have similar pollution problems to join with Quincy in the proposed district.

In his communication, McIntyre pledged "heartfelt support" of the proposed regulations for the Control of Air Pollution in the Metropolitan Boston Air Pollution Control District.

He said, however, that under the rules and regulations he believes that Quincy could join with other towns in the area to form a smaller and more concentrated district.

Smaller districts, with state assistance, he said, "can strike more effective blows in the battle against the common enemies of all mankind."

"The result of over-production is massive filth," McIntyre said.

He said that every year, Americans junk:

- Seven million cars.
- One hundred million tires.
- Twenty million tons of paper.
- Twenty-eight billion bottles.
- Forty-eight billion cans.

He also pointed out:

"Just to collect the garbage costs $2.8 billion a year. Every year U.S. plants discard 165 million tons of solid waste and release 172 million tons of smoke and fumes into the air.

"The nation's 83 million cars cause 60 per cent of the air pollution in cities.

"Clearly, if we do not act expeditiously and forcefully through corrective legislation as proposed by your Division, this Commonwealth will soon become a malodorous wasteland and other problems which beset us and appear now to be of paramount importance, will then be merely academic."

McIntyre noted that in 1965, the state Department of Health established seven air monitoring stations in the Greater Quincy area, and that 14 sampling stations were set up within 6,000 feet of Fore River Bridge.

He said that testing concluded in 1968 that the Edgar Station of Boston Edison was "the major and significant source of gritty soot, air-pollution particulates that fall out at various times with irregular frequency in the vicinity of that station.

"Although other agencies in the area are responsible for air pollution to a lesser degree, it would appear that this plant is the chief source of our local problem."

McIntyre concluded:

"The City of Quincy will take all steps necessary to insure the people of that area a reversal of conditions which are documented in that special report and to take an active part in the war against pollution."

WHAT ECLIPSE? Quincy seemed to be in the wrong seat for last week's heralded eclipse of the sun, as this view of the downtown area shows. Looks just like any cloudy day. But if you're still interested, the next one will come along in the year 2024.

Lucky Friday 13th For Cooper Family

Friday the 13th is slated to be a lucky day for Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Cooper of 76 Commonwealth Ave., Quincy.

Their son SP/5 John L. Cooper is due to arrive home after ten months' duty in Vietnam.

It could still be a good day. John was discharged a few days early -- although not in time for his 22nd birthday on March 6 -- and should be home by Friday.

A 1967 Quincy High School graduate, John entered service March 20, 1968, and served most recently with the Army's 4th Infantry Division. He is one of three sons, Francis T. Cooper, Jr. of 46 Broadway, and Gary Cooper, a senior at Quincy Vocational Technical High School are his brothers.

Houghs Neck Women Aid Muscular Dystrophy Child

Houghs Neck neighbors, Mrs. Albert Littlehale of 57 Winthrop St. and Mrs. Salvatore Affannato of 49 Winthrop St. are conducting a project of their own on behalf of Muscular Dystrophy.

To aid a child in the community stricken with the crippling disease, the two mothers will hold a benefit spaghetti supper Wednesday, March 18 from 6 to 9 p.m. in Fellowship Hall at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

The women have had admission tickets printed [$1.25 each] which they are selling themselves and which are also being distributed by Pages Pharmacy and Finlay's E-Z Shop.

City Council President Arthur H. Tobin has been invited to attend.

The women are hoping that at least 150 other Quincy residents will join them for a good meal in a good cause.

Oppose W. Quincy Re-Zoning

Petitions containing the names of an estimated 400 West Quincy residents opposing a proposed zoning change in that area, will be presented to the City Council next Monday night.

The petitions seek to have the city Planning Board reverse its proposed rezoning of an area between Robertson and Quarry Sts. from Residence "A" to Residence "C".

The petitions oppose changing the zoning to Residence "C" on the grounds that:

"The character of this neighborhood will be altered severely and it is not in the best interest of the homeowners. It would adversely affect the West Quincy area with respect to the typography of the land as it is presently within a critical flooding area."

The petitions also state:

"With due respect, we venture the assertion that a Zone "C" in this area will attract the development of high rise-high density building which is unconditionally incompatible to the area and will greatly add to the already dangerous traffic congestion."

Tobin Replies To Lawson On House Reduction Vote

In rebuttle to comments made by Roy A. Lawson - Chairman of the Massachusetts Association of Republical City Chairmen, in a letter published in the Quincy Sun March 5:

Many members of both the Democratic and Republican Party voted in favor of the issue of reducing the size of our House of Representatives and members of both parties voted against it.

I should like to remind Mr. Lawson that he does not have the facts straight. The GOP leadership of the House of Representatives fought vehemently against cutting the size of the House. I should also like to remind the Chairman that Mr. John Dolan of Ipswich who cast the deciding vote is a member of the Republican party.

It seems quite strange that the Republicans are making these charges when they can't control members of their own party. I think it is purely hypocritical and strict political camouflage to attack the Democrates on this issue when the Republican Governor, Mr. Sargent is going to have to stand up to the people in November to face the real issues of this campaign.

The rising unemployment in this state - inadequate housing - the State Welfare scandal and high taxes. And we Democrates are going to make them "Tell it as it is"

So please, stop attacking the Democrates if you do not have the facts straight.

Arthur H. Tobin
State Representative
Quincy City Council President

Brett Says People Confused On House Reduction Vote

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Most people seem to be under the same impression, that the legislators voted to deny the people the right to vote on the issue of reducing the number of representatives at the State House. Such was not the case, stories and statements in the news media to the contrary notwithstanding.

What we had to vote on was the main question...Are we or are we not in favor of reducing the number of representatives from 240 to 160? We were not voting simply to put that question on the ballot. If that had been the case, it is very likely that many of us could have done so. As a matter of fact, I wouldn't have any objection to having a question on the ballot to ascertain the feelings of the voters.

Unfortunately, though, the question before us was plain and simple...do we agree that the number of representatives should be reduced from 240 to 160? Personally, I sincerely believe it would be a tragic mistake to reduce the number of the people's representatives. Our country was founded by ancestors who came to this land to escape from the totalitarian governments of Europe. They were so grateful for their freedom that they established the "town meeting" form of government which gives the people a real voice in their government. Certainly, we have a louder voice in our government when we have a representative who lives almost next door to us and whom we can reach and communicate with quickly and easily. We also have the privilege every two years of indicating our approval or disapproval of his actions at the ballot box.

I have given this matter a great deal of consideration for many years. I am not afraid of change but I am not in favor of change unless it is going to result in improvement. In this case, I am convinced the change would be for the worse. Therefore, I had to vote against it. I would have been a liar and a hypocrite to do otherwise.

A final, friendly comment; As you know, we vote on thousands of legislative proposals each year. The "House cut" is only one. I'm sure I don't vote as you would wish on every single issue, but I would wager we would agree many more times than we would disagree. Perhaps, if you look at it that way, my "batting average" is not so bad after all. As I have been your representative for twelve years, my "average" must be pretty good. I'll try to make it even better in the future.

Frankly, I'm glad to hear from you even if we don't agree on this issue. I shall always cherish the fact that we can in fact disagree without being disagreeable. That is truly the American democratic way of life.

'The Cost Of Living'

By IDA F. KELLEY

17 Edgeworth Rd
North Quincy

The cost of living's got us
We're simply going mad
Instead of prices going down
They went from worse to bad

You can't afford good steaks and chops
Just what are we to do?
Something's simply gotta give
To meet the bill's past due

We sure don't need inflation
Depression we've already had
The men and women of America
Are really really sad

So now we're trying substitutes
To keep our families fed
But gee, what looks we're getting
We might as well be dead

Come on Congress, lend a hand
To us people everywhere
We're working every single day
We more than do our share

Hope you have an answer
To end all poverty
And the good old U.S.A. will be
The country it used to be.

$125,330 Wiring In February

The Quincy Department of Wire Inspection issued 116 permits for an estimated $125,330 wiring in February, according to William H. Pitts, inspector of wires.

Major wiring projects for the month included a new office building for Richard Barry and George Burke at 341 Hancock St., new buildings for C. P. Gardiner Co. at 99 Myrtle St., Eastern Nazarene College at 23 East Elm Ave., and Salvation Army at 6 Baxter St.

A total of 118 inspections were made and 17 defects noted.

Firefighters Commended For Reviving

Lt. Nicholas M. Malvesti and Firefighters Americo Speranzo and Donald A. Sturgis have received a commendation from Quincy Fire Chief Edward F. Barry for their action in reviving Peter Rotunno of 72 Crescent St. on Jan. 28.

Rotunno was overcome in his basement apartment because of an apparent faulty operation in the kitchen range and lack of oxygen.

When Police Officer Joseph Vallier forced his way into the apartment, Rotunno had stopped breathing and there were no visible signs of life.

The three fire department members began cardiac massage and other resusitation efforts which were successful.

Police Sgt Joseph Casagrande helped also in these efforts.

In addition to copies of the commendation, each man received a day off, with pay.

Sunbeams

Today's parents of high school seniors will definitely agree that times sure have changed.

The Quincy High School Class of 1970, for example, will hold its prom May 29 with a dinner-dance at a Boston hotel.

One young fellow already has made arrangements to hire a Lincoln-Continental to take his best girl to the big event, in grand style.

Next morning, they're going to Nantucket for a day at the beach, surfing and touring the island. They'll take a nice new lime green car with them on the ferry.

Quite a difference from the early 1940's when their parents as seniors had a modest prom [like at the Quincy Armory], followed by a chicken or Chinese dinner and were lucky to share a jalopy with two other couples.

DID YOU KNOW that the Vienna Choir Boys who will make a concert appearance at Quincy High School March 16 at 8 p.m., have a musical tradition dating back nearly 500 years?

So notes Rev. Edward B. Flaherty of St. Ann's Church who is assisting the Marianns of that parish in sponsoring the rare Quincy visit.

In 1498 [just six years after Columbus discovered America] Roman Emporor Maximilian I established the boys choir to participate in the performance of religious music in the court chapel in Vienna.

The choir made its first visit to the U.S. in 1932.

Current members range in age from 10 to 14.

[Tickets for the musical treat may be obtained at St. Ann's rectory, 757 Hancock St., Wollaston].

A THREE-MINUTE free telephone call may not sound like a big prize to win but it all depends on where you are. Like Robert L. Stone, Jr., of Rita Rd., Braintree, won it through the USO "Hi Mom" program while in Tokyo. He got a chance to call half-way across the world to talk to his parents.

Bob, whose father is an active and popular member of the Quincy Elks, was on leave from Vietnam at the time. He's been in Vietnam a year as an E-4 with the Army.

And what did he have to say? He was "counting the days to come home." He's due home March 25 for a 30-day furlough.

PLANNING a trip abroad? Did you know you can apply for your passport at Dedham? Clerk of Courts John P. Concannon, located in Norfolk County Superior Court, is authorized to accept passport applications.

Applications are forwarded from his office to Boston. And presto, from one week to 10 days later, the passport will be mailed to the applicant. No Boston traffic problems to contend with.

The applicant must bring with him to Dedham a birth certificate or certified copy and two small photographs. Also $12--$10 for the federal government and $2 for required fees.

For further info, call Concannon at 326-1600.

Special Meeting Tonight

'The Case' For Acquiring Black's Creek

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

The case for the acquisition of Black's Creek by the City of Quincy will be presented tonight at an 8 p.m. special meeting at City Hall.

Mayor James R. McIntyre has called the meeting so that all interested parties may plead their causes in an attempt to resolve the question of whether or not to take and preserve the 50-acre marshland.

It is hoped that agreement can be reached and the order for acquisition acted on by the Quincy City Council on Monday, before expiration of the twice-extended deadline of April 1 set for use of federal and state funds.

The Quincy Conservation Commission recommends that all the Black's Creek area under consideration be taken by eminent domain. This would allow the city to receive federal and state funds and a definite and fair price be established by the courts for the land.

The use of these lands constitute an important and valuable public function and it is unfair to merely restrict the present owners by ordinances and zoning, thus depriving them of the use of the land, the Conservation Commission insists.

A hard but foresighted decision needs to be made by the Quincy City Council on the protection and public use of these lands for present as well as future generations, the Commission says.

Commission members are Mrs. Frank E. Yeomans, chairman; Rep. Joseph E. Brett, Mrs. Edith MacDonald, Bernard C. Moore, Mrs. Paul T. Perito, Morris Silverman and Harold Buzzell.

The Conservation Commission has been joined in its efforts to acquire the Black's Creek land by community groups including the League of Women Voters, Quincy Citizens Association, Wollaston Park Association and the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

These groups feel that the land which has an appraised value of $76,700, with the help of federal and state funds, could be obtained with an expenditure by the city of between $30,000 and $50,000.

If Quincy obtains the area, it would, according to the Commission:

PICTURESQUE Black's Creek area would be preserved as open space if city acquires 50-acres of marshland. This view is from Pageant Field, looking northeast toward the Beechwood Knoll School, Fenno St. and Quincy Shore Drive. A special meeting is scheduled tonight at City Hall to present "the case" for acquiring this still natural land. [Quincy Sun Photo by Robert Leo Eng]

--Allow completion of the city's comprehensive recreation-conservation program for Black's Creek and Merrymount Park.

--Allow connection of the whole Merrymount Park-Black's Creek, Wollaston Beach-Furnace Brook Parkway recreation-conservation complex by a system of walkways and bicycle paths, and a linnear park along Fenno St.

--Help alleviate flooding along Furnace Brook by preserving water storage capacity in the marshlands.

--Help provide "breathing space" [anti-pollution function] between high density residential neighborhoods of Wollaston and Quincy Center.

--Through nutrient production of the marshes, help maintain good clamming and fishing of Black's Creek and Wollaston Beach.

--Enable the Conservation Commission, Quincy School Department and other interested groups establish an outdoor biophysical laboratory and living educational classroom for study of marine life and nature.

--Further protect and enhance the Beechwood Knoll and Merrymount residential neighborhoods. [Open space boosts nearby real estate values].

--Provide for all ages a wide range of active and passive recreation, and be a foresighted contribution by the city for future generations, a comparable to Central Park in New York and Boston Public Gardens.

Recommendations for the preservation and protection of the Black's Creek area go back to 1964. At that time an intensive study was conducted by the Division of Marine Fisheries of the State Dept. of Natural Resources.

One of its primary recommendations was that Black's Creek, along with the Squantum marsh, "be protected from alteration by the most effective means available."

In 1966 public hearings were held and in May, 1967, the Commissioner of Natural Resources imposed state restrictions under the Wetlands Protection Act.

After a summer-long study by Geoffrey Davidson, now City Planning Director, Mayor McIntyre announced a city-wide outdoor recreation-conservation program which recommended for first priority, a program for the Merrymount Park-Black's Creek area.

Financing was to come from the Federal Open Space Grant and Urban Beautification Act [HUD] and the State Self Help Act, with Quincy's share of funds approximately 25% of the total costs. Applications were made to federal and state agencies, and in 1967 the sum of $57,525 was approved for federal and state funds.

Six of the nine major improvements recommended for the Black's Creek area have been completed.

Acquisition of the open space lands has been delayed since 1967 due to the reluctance of the principal landowners to accept the appraised figures for payment.

The Conservation Commission is now recommending that the City proceed with regular eminent domain proceedings in order not to lose the federal and state monies, and so that a definite and fair price could be established by the Courts for these lands.

The highest desired value of the entire area is $275,300, or about five times the appraised value at which the city would like to obtain the land. Of this area, Grossman owned land is appraised at $51,400, and $250,000 is the highest desired value.

Preserve the land or possibly lose it. Quincy has to make that choice and time is running out.

ADVANTAGES OF HUMAN HAIR WIGS

Today wigs are made of either real hair or synthetics. The chief advantages of real hair wigs is that they look real. And if the quality is prime, they act real, because they may be set in a wide variety and range of styles.

The finest real hair wigs can cost hundreds of dollars. What makes them so expensive? The quality of the hair and construction. The hair of a custom-made wig is selected to match your own and mounted by hand on a base of fine mesh fitted exactly to the shape of your head.

You can find ready-to-wear real hair wigs for as little as thirty dollars. These are likely to be machine-made. From there on the price mounts according to the grade and quantity of hair plys construction.

So, if you want to invest in a versatile wig that lasts and lasts, that looks absolutely natural and that can be set like your own hair, shop for a human hair wig.

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

Two Months Before The Wedding

Have you started addressing your invitations yet? Now is the time to get them started. Remember only use black ink and no abbreviations. With the exception of husband and wife any one over sixteen receives a separate invitation.

Your fiancee should buy your ring now. If it is to be a double ring ceremony then, of course, you will buy his. It takes time for the engraving so allow the jeweler plenty of time.

Have your first wedding fitting. Be sure shoes and undergarments are the ones you'll be wearing at the wedding to assure perfect fit. Your second fitting should be about a month before the big day. If you are having formal pictures taken before the wedding be sure to let your bridal consultant know.

Choose gifts for all your attendants. Have them gift wrapped to save you time. These gifts should be a lasting momento of your wedding.

During all the excitement of planning for the actual wedding you must also plan for your new home whether it be apartment or house. It should reflect both your personalities. Ask your future husbands opinion and consult with him on purchases big and small. It's fine to have mother along for advice but never forget it's you and your husband who will have to live in the home and you want it to express both your tastes.

Buying a gift for your groom is optional. However if you do decide you want to buy one now is the time to shop for it.

Go to your florist and discuss all your floral needs with him. Tell him your colors and type of bouquets you desire. Listen to what he has to say. Like your bridal consultant, he is well versed in his business and can advise you in regard to best colors to go with your colors, flowers that are in season [this can save you a considerable amount] and flowers that will stay fresh the longest. This is an important thing to consider. What could look worse than a bride going down the aisle with a wilted bouquet?

If your bridegroom is ordering your bouquet now is the time. He should also order your going away corsage and corsages for both mothers and all boutonnieres. It's up to you to give him color swatches for the florist to make the right color selections.

Most of all allow your self time to rest..rest...rest.

The PTA Meeting

"Ma, they're having a PTA Meeting tonight, you're supposed to go." So I go.

First of all comes the "VERY SHORT BUSINESS MEETING." They discuss the cost of the drapes for the School Library, or as it is now called "The Media Center." If I remember correctly, the cost of the drapes for the Library had been brought up four years ago and turned down as being too expensive. They were $74. then. Every year they've been going up and now they cost $364.99. I imagine they'll still be arguing about the cost of the drapes 10 years from now. It will probably cost them $1,000. But, by that time, the government will have taken over everything, and they'll be delighted to spend the $1,000 for the drapes.

For now, we'll just have to suffer along with the stark naked windows. One of the fathers in the audience offered to paint the windows for nothing. His offer was turned down. Two months later it was discovered he was T. Z. Newhouse, the famous Artist.

Now to the guest speaker, Dr. Sylvia Silender, Child Psychologist. Dr. Silender then spoke on "YOUR CHILD AND YOU". She said that one of the main reasons children were the way they were, was because of us [A lot she knows]. That children need love, not punishment. [So do I] That sibling rivalry was normal and if there wasn't any, they weren't. [Score one for our family] Children get too much attention and should not be pampered so much. [I thought she just said to love them Boy, am I getting tired of rearranging my resolutions every two minutes]. She spoke for about an hour on the bringing up of children from the ages of two months to 21 years of age.

At the end of her talk, there was a question and answer period. Dr. Silender answered every question without a moment's hesitation. [No one can be this good] I bet she isn't even married, why I bet she doesn't even have any kids] I raised my hand and was recognized. I glanced around the hall and gave all my friends a knowing look, then casually asked. "Mrs. Sil..., I mean DR. Silender, Do you have any children of your own?" I sat down with a smirk on my face. Dr. Silender hesitated. [Ha, you've been found out] I looked around, gave a wink, as the Dr. answered. "Yes, I do, I have five. They range in age from seven months to 18 years". [boy, if there's anything I can't stand its a woman who would leave a seven months old baby at home and go out lecturing].

Although I tried to sneak away after the meeting, Barbara Renault had to get her two cents worth in by saying, "That was a very thought provoking question you asked tonight. Ha. Ha. Ha."

Well, I wasn't going to let her get away with that. I looked her straight in the eye and said "Question, Question? Oh, you mean, oh that wasn't me. No, that was Mrs. Whatchamacalit. We do look a lot alike, don't we."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By Charles H. Wickens

In a meeting with friends, the subject of Easter came up. Easter, as everyone knows, is not celebrated on the same Sunday every year. Some times it comes early; some times late. This brought up an interesting question. Surprisingly, no one in the group could give the right answer. When you read the question, ask yourself whether you know the answer...

"Why does the Easter date change from year to year; why isn't it on the same date?" Know the answer? Here it is -

Easter is celebrated on the first Sunday after the full moon that occurs on March 21, or on any of the 28 days following that date. Easter therefore can come as early as March 22 or as late as April 25; never before or later.

Incidentally, we hope to have an interesting thought appear for Easter. You will find it a little bit different from the usual Easter comment you hear and read. Watch for it .

Life without doubt

Do you ever doubt the sun will rise in the morning?

Even if rain or fog hide its rays, you know it's still there. You don't doubt this because you are familiar with the laws governing the earth's relationship to the sun.

In the same way, each of us could eliminate much fear and doubt from our lives if we understood the laws governing man's relationship to God.

Hear James Pike, of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, tell how effectively people have been able to act, even in a grave crisis, by listening to God's direction.

HOUSE CALL

By Dr. Charles Djerl
Pediatrician

[Today's guest column is written by Charles Munson, Clinical Psychologist]

To Control Or Not To Control?

This question looms larger for most parents with the passing of each day.

Fifty years ago we were still pretty much in agreement with Grandma's methods in bringing up children. Approximately 30 years ago due to an admixture of environmental circumstances and a crop of "experts" who offered some revolutionary, if at times, contradictory, insights into child-rearing practices, mothers and fathers started down the long road of increasing permissiveness in handling their children.

I find increasing numbers of parents asking the question, "What can we do?" when their children are disobedient, acting disrespectful, or telling their parents they are going to do, say or think in any manner they wish and that Mom and Dad have nothing to say about it. A mother of a four-year-old tells me she cannot do anything with him - if she tries to correct him or deny him his way in something, he hits her.

There are those parents who feel guilty when they are confronted with some disciplinary measure with one of their children. I hear many stories of "our child is so sensitive that if we tell her she is doing something she should not be doing she cries, is impossible to live with the rest of the day". There are those parents who explain or rationalize their inability or unwillingness to set limits for their children in terms of not wanting to bend, dent or otherwise damage the child's delicate ego. Other parents hold to the somewhat outmoded notion that one must not frustrate the child because "just anyone knows that this builds unnecessary tensions in the child".

I am hearing an increasing number of complaints or explanations of childrens misbehavior in terms of the schools not teaching their children to behave or "it's the group of kids they run around with". The mother of a pregnant 16 year old said angrily, "My daughter didn't know anything about sex until she went to that school--what are they teaching the children?" Really, mother! Your daughter should have known something about sexual matters before she was 16, from you. Furthermore, I do not know of a single school which has implemented a course, formal or otherwise, on how 16 year olds should go out and get pregnant. Such accidents have happened since time immemorial.

The foregoing complaints, questions and explanations seem to have their focus on the discomfort of mothers and fathers in having "lost control" over their children. Perhaps a more realistic appraisal of this situation would be that the child is out of control, and mother and father are anxious or uncomfortable about this for a number of reasons. If we can accept this assumption, we can then move in the direction of recognizing that the child who is out of control in some manner is probably much more uncomfortable than his parents.

Each infant is born with certain basic needs together with a rich storehouse of aggressive impulse-life for implementing or working towards the gratification of these needs. The aggressive impulses here are not so much those of a hostile, destructive nature, but rather those which provide a child with the energies for reaching out to the environment, for being curious, for exploring, for learning, for seeking out the means for gratifying any of his or her needs. Some children have a higher level of supply than others, this difference being seen even among brothers and sisters. As the infant grows, becomes increasingly aware of his many needs, aware in a feeling, rather than cognitive [knowing and understanding] sense, and as he gradually develops the means or techniques for announcing to us that some of his needs are going unmet, or even developing some measure of capacity for seeking the gratification of these needs, parents begin to sense that they have to control or set some limits on this child's behavior.

More important, however, is the fact that the child must know that mother or dad are in control of his aggressive impulses, his feelings. You may wonder how this can be when every time you attempt in some way to control your child it looks like the commencement of hostilities for World War III. Of course it can be, and of course it can resemble the beginning of some battle for a Pacific Atoll in which you are attempting to make a beachhead, and an angry little nipper [almost a horrible play on words there] is stoutly repulsing your efforts.

Little John's needs are intense, are crying out or demanding immediate gratification. His perception of the situation may be that if he doesn't have that cookie, lollipop, ball, etc., right this instant something cataclysmic may happen, the world may explode or he may fall into a million pieces. He has not learned yet that delay of impulses or of gratification of needs does not spell the end of the world. Of equal importance here is the fact that whenever we thwart John's goal - directed behavior, when we frustrate him a natural reaction will be one of anger towards that person or situation which stands in the way of whatever it is he feels he needs at the moment. Hence, the semblance of warfare. It seems that the parent - child relationship consists for the most part at these times of "No, you cannot mix the eggs, cornflakes, floor was and Babo in the middle of the kitchen floor for our breakfast", "No, you cannot jump off the porch roof, light the matches, cut your sisters hair, have the lollipop before supper, etc.,".

You may find your own imagination or resourcefulness severely tested in attempting to divert or re-channel your childs' energies at times as well. The control of your own angry feelings are going to be equally tested at times in your efforts at dealing with the child's anger. You have the advantage here in that you have been through the socialization process, you have become acquainted over the years through many experiences with the quality of your own anger as well as the quality and quantity of your controls over these feelings.

The small child does not know these things. The small child can become very uncomfortable with his anger, even terrified by it. He is not sure that his anger will not destroy a parent or in some way, himself. Hence, he looks to his parents or other adult figures to control these feelings for him, to make him feel comfortable within himself.

As we observe the child over these early years, we note that he is beginning to show some signs of maturity in his increasing ability to delay impulses, to channel their expression along appropriately adaptive, socially acceptable lines. We see as well that the child gradually adopts for his own those previously externally imposed controls. Furthermore, he begins to express and/or control feelings much in the manner of one or both of his models - his parents.

To control or not to control? I believe you already know the answer to that question.

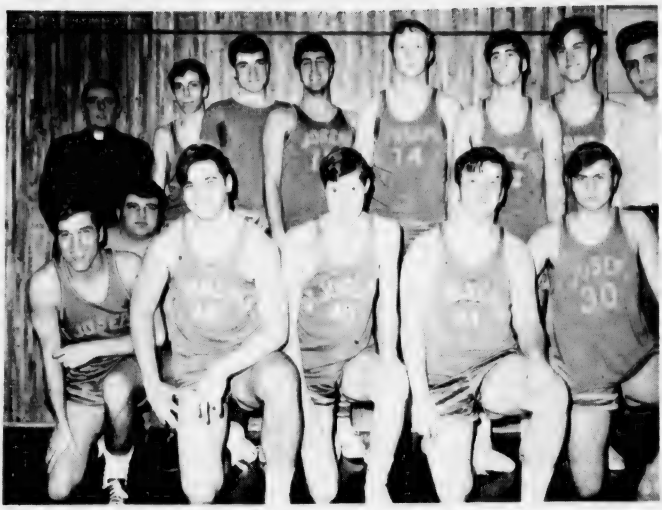
St. Joseph's Wins Two Hoop Titles

St. Joseph's basketball teams have won the Northern League Championship in the Intermediate and Junior Division of the South Shore Deanery. The Northern League includes all Quincy, Braintree and Randolph teams.



The Intermediate team, coached by decorated Vietnam veteran, Frank Brillo, ended the regular season play with a 13 win, 1 loss record.

Team players included Timmy Pettenelli, Tommy Daley, Brian Williams, Bob Pettinelli, Bob Walker, Bob Vincent, Ed Mariano, Mike Brusin, John Stevens, Steve LeClair, Steve Pasquale, Paul DiSalvo, Paul Chella, Paul Hanratty and Dave Satterwaite. Jack Travis was assistant coach.

The Junior team, coached by Bill Myers, won its Northern League division championship with a 9-1 record. The one loss came early in the season, and it was an all-out team effort which edged out another strong Quincy team for the league championship.

Mrs. Roberta Tripp coached the St. Joseph's cheerleaders who rooted the teams to victory. They included Sheree Tripp, Janice Corvi, Diane Chiaramonte, Doreen Coletti and Karyn Crosson.

ST. JOSEPH'S Intermediate team members, basketball champions of the Northern League of the South Shore Deanery: are [front] Bob Vincent, Tommy Daley, Paul DiSalvo, Steve LeClair, Timmy Pettenelli. At rear are Rev. Robert D. Tyrrell, curate; assistant coach Jack Travis; Ed Mariano, Bob Walker, Bob Pettinelli, Brian Williams, John Stevens, Mike Brusin, and Coach Frank Brillo.

Quincy To Have Two Teams In New Soccer League

Quincy will be represented by two teams in the newly-organized Commonwealth Soccer League, which will begin operations Sunday, April 5.

Quincy Rangers and General Dynamics will represent the city and will join Weymouth Warriors, St. John's of Boston, Glengarry of Boston, Revere, Norfolk Shamrocks of the Norfolk Correctional Institution, and Brockton.

Pete Gallagher, who played soccer at Milton High and in the service and who inaugurated a soccer program last year at Snug Harbor School, will manage the Rangers and Fred Bridge will handle General Dynamics.

The league was formed by Alan Grayson, soccer coach at Brandeis University, who will serve as secretary of the league and also as player-manager of the Weymouth team.

"My contention is that there is enough soccer interest in every South Shore community to form town teams if there were someone to organize them," Grayson said. "I often wonder what happens to players once they graduate from high school or college. This league will offer a recreational program for such players.

"There is no age limit as long as the players are physically fit and have ability. The Weymouth team has been contacted by boys as young as 14 and men as old as 40."

The league will continue through June, break for the summer and resume in September.

JUNIOR TEAM, champions in Northern League of the South Shore Deanery are: [front] Coach Bill Myers, Rev. James J. McCarthy, Rev. Robert D. Tyrrell, curates. In second row are Dennis Sullivan, Joseph Marani, Steve Williams, Gregory Palucchi; and at rear Michael Davis, James Walker, David Coletti and Michael McLean.

CHEERLEADERS who rooted the two teams to titles are Sheree Tripp, Janice Corvi, Diane Chiaramonte, Mrs. Roberta Tripp [coach], Doreen Coletti and Karyn Crosson.

Sylvia: 'An Outstanding Season'

Quincy Icemen Give Area Big Boost

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's hockey season wound up on a disappointing note last week with a 5-2 loss to Boston Technical in the second round of the Eastern Mass. Tourney but the Presidents provided the biggest upset in many years and achieved their three seasonal objectives.

"Naturally we were disappointed, but this was an outstanding season and these kids always played exciting hockey and never gave up," Coach Bob Sylvia said.

When the season opened Sylvia set three objectives--finish in the top half of the Greater Boston League, make the tournament and go at least two games in the tourney.

The Presidents achieved all these goals, finishing third in the league, qualifying for the tourney and shocking heavily favored Arlington [16-0-0 and second seeded] in the opening round.

The rival coaches in the Tech game, Sylvia and Bobby Martell, had a lot of incentive. They were linemates on the Boston University hockey team for three years.

"This was a real good Tech team, make no mistake bout it," Sylvia said. "They didn't get any cheap goals and really played a fine game."

Sylvia did feel an extra day's rest would have helped Quincy. The Presidents had only one day off after its brilliant victory over Arlington, probably one of the greatest wins ever for a Quincy athletic team.

"They were a little tired and it was noticeable as the game wore on," Bob said. "But this is no alibi as Tech certainly deserved to win it."

The Presidents again showed their fighting spirit as they fought back in the final period and it wasn't until the last two minutes that Tech pulled away.

Tech scored in each of the first two periods for a 2-0 lead but Harry Bertoni scored his 20th goal of the season early in the final period. Bob Murphy scored to put Tech up, 3-1, but again Quincy came back with Chuck Condos scoring his 16th goal. But then Tech scored two minutes from the end and added an insurance goal into an open net with eight seconds remaining.

Chipping in with assists were Condos, Chuck Peterson and Kevin Grogan.

"We didn't have any defensive lapses and Artie Boyle, our sophomore goalie, again played an excellent game," Sylvia said. "All the defensemen, Grogan, Bill Blake, Bob Cataneo and Bob Lindbloom, played well and the first line of Bertoni, Condos and Peterson played another outstanding game.

"This was the most exciting team I've ever had at Quincy and I'm very proud of every player. I'm just sorry they couldn't have made the quarterfinals at the Boston Garden."

In the opening game against Arlington, Quincy shocked the schoolboy world by handing the Spy Ponders a 5-2 defeat. "I don't think anyone but ourselves thought we had a chance," Sylvia said. "I felt if we stayed even for two periods, we could beat them and that is what happened. It was 1-1 going into the final period and I felt we had the momentum. We had them frustrated and the boys refused to fold when they tied it up at 2-2 in the last period."

From the start Quincy used shot and chase offense as it shot from center ice and poured into the zone after it. Rarely did a Quincy player carry into the Arlington zone.

"It paid off for us," the Quincy coach said. "We knew their goalie had allowed only 13 goals but we felt he hadn't been severely tested. We wanted to throw it at him as much as we could and see if he would crack. We shot more than usual and cut down on our passing."

Arlington took the lead at 4:40 of the first period but Peterson converted Bertoni's pass to tie the score at 10:48 of the middle period.

Bertoni scored the first of his three goals at 1:09 of the last period with Peterson assisting but Arlington tied it five minutes later. Bertoni scored the winning goal with a superlative individual effort as he intercepted a clearing pass at the right wing boards and drove to the Arlington net with a defenseman draped over him. He wristed a 15-footer that just caught the far side of the cage.

The senior wing made it 4-2 at 11:23, catching up to a Grogan clearing pass in the Arlington end and sending home a 20-footer riser. Condos scored an insurance goal with seven seconds left into an open net.

Boyle was brilliant in the Quincy goal, especially in the opening period when Arlington kept the pressure on.

The win was a tremendous boost for Quincy hockey and South Shore sports in general and Sylvia showed a letter of congratulations from Jack Garrity, a Quincy teacher who led Abp. Williams to the top of the hockey ladder.

Garrity, an All-American at B. U. who later starred for the Boston Olympics, said in part, "That had to be the biggest hockey upset in the past decade...it did more for hockey on the South Shore than I ever thought imaginable."

"It was very nice of Jack to send me such a letter," Sylvia said.

Quincy loses 13 seniors but has some fine players coming back and Sylvia feels the Presidents will be as strong defensively as this year but he must develop some scoring punch.

"With Boyle back, we will have one of the top goalies around," he said. "With this year's experience, he should be even better next season. Bob Cataneo also will be back and he probably saw more action this season than anyone else."

Two other defense returnees will be Alan Colby and Rich Patten.

Steve Cedrone, Don "Bomber" Burke and Steve Kliemola played together on one line and will be back.

Other returnees include Ken Kearney, Ed Wiederman, Paul Venegiano, Joe Cataneo and Colin Kearney.

"Some of these boys played with our undefeated junior varsity team coached by Jackie Scanlan," Sylvia explained.

"The entire jayvee squad will be back and there will be two defensemen, John Prescott and Steve Bergonzi, coming up from the fine junior high team who, I feel, will become two of the finest defensemen in Quincy history. Ray Brown also had some other excellent players on his club who could help us."

HONORARY SLUGGER--Quincy's Sam Mele, former baseball star and manager, now an official with the Boston Red Sox presents team bat to Mayor James R. McIntyre before heading for spring training. The bat is engraved with McIntyre's name.

Quincy, North Girls To Have Softball And Tennis Teams

The girls' varsity sports programs at Quincy and North Quincy High schools will continue to expand with softball and tennis teams starting this spring.

A year ago Quincy had its first varsity girls' basketball team and this winter North had its first team.

The school committee made an excellent choice for the Quincy girls' softball coach by naming Mary Pratt, who had had a world of experience in this sport.

Mary, who played for many South Shore softball teams, several years ago starred in the All-American Softball League in the midwest, rated the strongest girls' league in the country.

Hockey Coach Bob Sylvia has been named interim coach of girls' tennis at Quincy, accepting the job for this year. Plans are to name a woman to the job next season.

At North both the tennis and softball coaches have yet to be named. Marjie Bollen, who coached the girls' basketball team this year, was to have coached girls' tennis but has resigned.

"We want to find qualified coaches for both sports and don't want to pick just anyone," said Carl Leone, Coordinator of Athletics. "Also, we hope to add girls' gymnastics in both schools next fall but again, we want to find coaches experienced in this sport."

Recreation Roundup

College Pep Bands, Hot Chocolate, Hot Dogs warm fires and good friends were the high-lights of recent Youth Programs in Houghs Neck.

In the Snug Harbor area the time was geared to various tournaments and as a result we have this: James Larson and Daryl Hanlon are the champs of the ping pong doubles tournament. Steven Silva was rewarded the winner of the chess tournament while Robert Walburg was number one in checkers. On the sport scene Patrick Mariorty won the foul shooting contest.

Quincy Point's Youth Program at the Fore River Club House showed an increase in attendance and a supervisor of girls has been added. Some 24 boys and girls enjoyed a fun evening at the Club House under the leadership of Frank Brillo and Jack Kelly.

A volley ball tournament was started. A team captained by Tony Trubiano came out on top, winning four straight games. Other team members were Joe Marani, Mike Grosson, John Alfano and Mathew Guest. Dennis Sullivan and David Goguen were champs of the pool table. In table tennis Doug Rand proved to be the best. This week a hockey tournament is being planned, any one interested is welcome. Also for the girls we are starting an Arts and Crafts program.

The South-West Quincy Program is still searching for its Youth Center Location, the gym programs in the area are drawing large numbers.

The Grenham Youth Center was the sponsor of two outstanding events. The Pep Band of Eastern Nazarene College entertained at the youth center. David MacMillian, Director of the Youth Center, was the co-ordinator of the co-educational program for the Houghs Neck youths. Refreshments were served by all those who were so kind to pitch in and volunteer their services for a successful program.

The Youth Center was responsible for what was billed as "Houghs Neck's First Annual Skating Party". The party and idea conceived by the youth center, and directed by Leo Kelly and Mrs. Ruth Barra was held under the lights at Manet Lake in Houghs Neck. Youth co-ordinators, Billy Radcliffe and Ann Howard estimated that as many as 500 people young and old were gathered to renew young and old acquaintances and make new ones.

Three hundred hot dogs were donated by the youth center and hot chocolate and coffee were served to the cold but happy skaters.

The committee of volunteers who helped serve were Mrs. Andrew Boyd and Mrs. Robert Brill assisted by Mrs. Leo Kelly, Mrs. Ruth Barra and Mrs. LaBel who cooked the hot dogs and made the hot chocolate and coffee.

The hot dogs, coffee and hot chocolate were prepared in the Atherton Hough Fire Station and carried to the rink by a beavy of volunteers. The weather was not fully cooperative, which forced the City Park Department under the direction of Richard Koch to flood the area on three different occasions. Under adverse conditions the park men should be commended for making the best ice weather conditions permitted.

A coffee urn was loaned by The Most Blessed Sacrament Church, the barbecue pits were donated by the Houghs Neck Congregational Church and Joe Montello was kind enough to donate two large urns for the hot chocolate. To round out this total community project, all the supplies and equipment were moved to the rink on a truck loaned by Walter Hurley of Hurley Boat Rentals.

The crew assigned to set up were, David Blowers, Paul Slea, David Steen, Billy Radcliffe, Brian Picard, Steve McCormack. These boys under the direction of David MacMillian and Edward Kelly had made bon fires which lasted long into the night.

It was a night Houghs Neck will long remember, to all those who played in the party's success, Well Done!!!

They're Breaking Up Bradley Father, Son Team At ENC

The Bradley family has produced two big sports stories at Eastern Nazarene College.

First Carroll announced his retirement as head basketball coach after 13 years. For 17 years he was a professor of physical education at ENC.

Then his son, Ron, a sophomore at ENC, concluded a brilliant season in the King's College tourney at Briar Cliff Manor, N.Y. He set the school scoring record and added to it in every game.

An era has come to an end at ENC with the announcement of the elder Bradley's retirement. He was the only basketball coach and athletic director the school ever had.

Carroll was hesitant while coaching to talk much about Ron, former North Quincy High co-captain who probably could play on any college team in the country.

However, upon retiring he admitted "I'd have to say he's the best all-around player I ever coached. Bill Hutchinson, who played on my first team from 1956 to 1959, was the best rebounder and Ray Baltz, who played from 1961 to 1964 and who held the scoring record until Ron broke it, was my best shooter, but for all-around ability I'd have to say Ron is the best."

Ron ended a fantastic two-year career last Saturday when he scored 30 points but ENC was nipped in the final 20 seconds by Barrington, 62-61, in the finals of the King's College Tourney in New York. In two years Ron scored 1128 points despite missing six games last year with an ankle injury.

Ron wound up the regular season by breaking his own school mark and scoring 46 points but again ENC dropped a heartbreaker to Gordon, 98-97. He had previously scored 45 to break the seven-year mark of 44 set by Baltz in 1963. In the previous game he had scored 40 against Southeastern Mass. U. and followed up with 20 against Nyack and 43 against Kings in sparking ENC to the Kings tourney finals.

Ron recently was named to the District 32 [New England] National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics [NAIA] all-star team. He finished the year averaging 33 points a game.

Carroll's record at ENC was 157 wins and 112 losses, most of the losses coming in the past three years. This year's record was 11-17 but many of the losses were heartbreakers. "Our last four losses were by a total of six points," he said.

"I'm not really retiring," Carroll said. "I'm just getting out of coaching for a while and if my present plans jell, I'll be teaching in California next year."

Bradley, the father of three children, Ron, 19; Clyde, 14, a ninth grader at Atlantic-North Junior High, and a daughter, Fran, 9, a fourth grade pupil at Mass. Fields School, was an outstanding athlete at Newport, Ky., High School.

During World War II he spent three years in India with the Army and came to Eastern Nazarene as a freshman in 1947. He graduated in 1950 and went to Springfield College, receiving his M.A. Degree in physical education. He returned to ENC after teaching a year in the Cincinnati, public school system.

"I'm leaving now because I feel I need a change and I think a change would be good for the school," Carroll pointed out.

Bradley's first three teams compiled a 31-2 record. From 1960 to 1965 his teams never lost more than six games. Although the last three seasons have been losing ones, he does not regret them.

"We were losing but in spite of limited talent, I feel we gave a good account of ourselves. This year was especially enjoyable because I've seen Ron turn out to be quite a player. He is seventh nationally in NAIA small college scoring and a strong candidate for NAIA All-American honors. I really never thought he would be quite that good."

Bradley also coached baseball at the Wollaston School. His baseball fortunes were the direct opposite of basketball as his teams started out losing but the last three years his teams were 10-2, 12-2 and 12-4.

"Only those who have coached a sport in one school for so long a time can understand how I feel about leaving," he said. "For so many years ENC sports have been my life and I don't know yet how I'll do without it."

32 Volunteer As Teacher Aids At Montclair

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

At Montclair School, 32 North Quincy High School students are bridging the gap between pre-teens and teenagers.

They are serving as teacher aides to the 640 Montclair students in a cooperative effort between the two schools.

The plan evolved from the need of assistance to the 22 Montclair teachers, where one full-time teacher aide was working from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. each day and a Quincy Junior College student assisted 10 hours a week. There is also a full-time media specialist.

Leon L. Gould, Montclair principal, discussed his problem with Wilfred A. Nolan, elementary school consultant. He suggested a contact with the North Quincy High School Future Teachers Club. John Murphy, guidance counselor there, was receptive to the idea.

As a result, 32 students, seven of whom are Future Teachers Club members, are volunteer aides at Montclair School. They are scheduled around periods of time when they have two consecutive study periods, or a study the first or last period of the day.

Several students are allowed to report directly to Montclair School to help at the very beginning of the school session, and some are present three days a week.

"I can assure you at this point they really love it," Gould says. "We have made it clear to all these young people that any time they become bored or find that the loss of the study periods is placing a burden on them scholastically, they may drop out of the program with our very best wishes."

The high school aides do not teach. However, under guidance of the classroom teacher, they may drill children on number facts, listen to their reading, review spelling words, help individual children with visual aids, etc.

"One of the youthful aides is doing some highly creative work, assisting a second grade staff member in extending her individualized reading library," Gould says.

While all Future Teachers Club members were enthusiastic about participating, according to Murphy, many did not have the consecutive study periods. Those qualifying were Barbara Kreckie, Lorraine Page, Gretchen Drain, Ann Newman, Gail Belofsky, Betty Trask and Ann Smith.

Other North High School students taking part in the aide program are Marcia Landa, Sharon Constantine, Sandra Blacker, Marcia Spencer, Betty Fong, Janice Foley, Maureen Nestor, Nanette Gabaree, Karen McWeeney, Maryann Hernon, Christine Cullum.

Patricia Marcantonio, Michael Griffin, Maureen Reardon, Helen French, Linda Morash, Roseann Murphy, Donna McAllister, Gail Abbott, Susan Killen, Sandra Peterson, Robert Graham, Gail Linehan, Lorraine Marre and Jill Casey.

'Hear The Facts'

District Attorney Asks Open Meeting On Teen Drugs Use

Dist. Atty. George G. Burke proposes an open Quincy School Committee meeting on drugs so that parents and students "can hear all the facts".

Norfolk County's chief law enforcement official told the Quincy Sun last night he would be pleased to accept the School Committee's invitation to confer with members on the growing problem of narcotics use by teen-agers.

"I will be glad to attend a meeting with them," he said. "But I want it to be an open meeting with parents and students invited so that they can hear all the facts, too."

Burke, a Quincy resident, said he has information that drugs definitely are being carried into the high schools.

He said he has received that information from students themselves.

Burke stressed that the drug problem is county wide, and not just in certain communities.

"You can't separate the problem by community," he said. "It's county-wide. It's everywhere, and it's serious. It is serious in Quincy but no more serious than in other communities."

Burke said the problem has gone from the college level to the high schools to the junior high schools.

"It can only be licked with a good education program," he said. "We have got to start at the sixth-grade level to win the minds of youngsters before they experiment with this poison."

Burke said he has heard the Quincy School Committee plans to invite him to a meeting but as of last night had not received a formal invitation.

The invitation came in the wake of statements by Burke that the use of heroin is increasing in South Shore high schools and by Quincy Police Chief Francis X. Finn that 14-year-olds are using the hard drug.

Burke may be present at the March 25 meeting of the School Committee.

"I don't expect any startling revelations out of the district attorney's visit," said School Superintendent Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, "because we have a very close working relationship with the police department.

"We can hardly say that we are in control of the situation but we are knowledgable about it.

"Quincy is no different. It's no better or worse than any community. We knew that, until marijuana became difficult to get, any high school kid could easily find a place to buy it.

"We have no evidence that the Quincy schools are being used as a base for selling or pushing heroin.

"There are teen aged young people who are experimenting with heroin. But you don't experiment with that stuff too long before you become addicted."

And, for some youngsters, the next step beyond addiction is death.

Fewer Than 30 Enrolled

North Students Cool To New Voc-Tech School

The Quincy School Department is engaged in a long range program aimed at getting more youngsters from North Quincy to enroll or at least take courses at the $5.5 million Quincy Vocational Technical High School.

The subject came up recently when James F. McCormick, Sr., vice chairman of the School Committee, visited the school and found that almost all its students came from sections of Quincy served by Quincy High School.

"The figure for North Quincy students was so low that it bothers me," said McCormick. "We built the school for everybody, not just for one part of the city. I'm going to keep asking questions until I find out why."

School Superintendent Lawrence P. Creedon says that there are less than 30 students from North Quincy out of 548 enrolled in grades 10 through 12 at Quincy Voch Tech.

The figure is exclusive of the 200 youngsters enrolled in data processing courses.

In an interview with the Quincy Sun this week, Dr. Creedon made an educated guess as to the reason for North Quincy's poor numerical showing at the school, which has room for 1,100 pupils.

"It's not a new problem," he said. "Students from North Quincy never enrolled in great numbers in the old Quincy Trade School, although I'm sure many of them could have benefited from it.

"There has been this feeling since the 1930's when North Quincy High School was opened that it was not the thing to do for a North youngster to go to Quincy Trade. It was a matter of

Mayor Seeks Federal Funds For New Quincy Point Sewer

A request for HUD assistance for the Quincy Point Sanitary sewer system has been made by Mayor James R. McIntyre.

The application seeks federal financial aid for construction of a proposed new pumping station at the corner of East Howard St. and Des Moines Road, with a force main extending west in Des Moines Road, Martensen St., and Dysart St., to the high level sewer at Sea St. and Overlook Rd.

Mayor McIntyre noted that the present sewer system has been in operation for nearly 70 years, and for the last 20 has been endangering the health of residents and retarding new development.

The new system would relieve the problem of raw sewage discharging into residential neighborhoods, and the flow of raw sewage into tidal waters and bathing area, McIntyre said.

The "overtaxed" line now services:

--General Dynamics, Quincy Division, employing more than 8,500 persons.

--More than 350 units of Senior Citizens housing at 1000 Southern Artery.

It will service also:

--150 elderly housing units now under construction, another anticipated 350 units, and a 240-bed extended care facility for the elderly.

--A regional mental health center.

--A proposed new regional Community College.

Pointing out that federal economies could be effected by providing adequate sewerage facilities before rather than after federally assisted elderly housing, McIntyre asked that priority consideration be given the application for funds at this time.

Commend Firefighters For Squantum Woman Rescue

Fire Chief Edward F. Barry had commended four members of his department for their "meritorious actions" in rescuing a Squantum woman in a recent apartment blaze.

The four, Lt. Robert J. Kelley, Lt. John J. Murphy, Firefighter Peter J. Quinn and Firefighter Guido DiTullio were each awarded two days off in addition to the citation.

Chief Barry gave this account of their rescue of Miss Irene Ford, 40:

"On Jan. 26, 1970 at 12:13 a.m. in response to an alarm of fire at an apartment house at 15 Dorchester Street, Squantum, the fire companies were notified by a first floor tenant that Irene Ford was still in her apartment.

"The above cited men crawled through the heavy smoke and heat and finally located Miss Ford badly burned on the floor of the kitchen to which the fire was extending from her bedroom. They carried her outside to safety and saved her from losing her life in this fire.

"The heroic actions played an instrumental part in saving the life of this woman. The Quincy Fire Department takes pride in the actions of these men and this commendation shall be read at all roll calls. A copy of this commendation shall be presented to each man.

"Recognition is also given to Firefighter Cesidio Sacchetti for his efforts at the fire as well as for all members who were at the fire scene and assisted in containment of the fire and extinguishment.

Lawson Replies To Tobin On House Size Vote

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Since Representative Tobin has publicly replied to my recently published letter condemning the Democrats I feel it is incumbent upon me to answer him.

I am well aware that a few Republicans joined the hoard of Democrats in denying their constituents the opportunity of deciding, at the ballot box, whether or not to reduce the size of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Tobin is undoubtedly embarrassed about his own vote and obviously attempting to cloud the real issue.

Percentage-wise the Democrat legislators over-whelmingly voted against this bill and all Mr. Tobin's rhetoric and smoke screens will not diminish their blatant disregard for the people.

I believe that Mr. Tobin came very close to the real key when he spoke of the Republican Party not being able to "Control" their own legislators. This is true - they are not badgered and threatened to follow the whims of the thumb-screw turning leadership. And Mr. Tobin speaks of hypocrisy??!

I am hopeful the issue of cutting the size of the House will, in fact, be answered at the polls in November. I faithfully believe in the people and that this time they will vote against those that voted against them. Or perhaps the Democrats are once again hoping for a repeat of the voter apathy that they reveled in when they unconscionably voted themselves a pay raise.

No, Mr. Tobin, this time it will be we Republicans who will make you "tell it like it is".

If you're ever feeling lonely
And ever feeling blue
Just think of all the many things
That God had done for you

He made the sky so big and blue
He made the roaring sea
The flowers and the green grass
He did this for you and me

The birds all cuddled in their nest
The bees all buzzing by
The sun that shines upon us
The stars up in the sky

The rain that falls upon the dew
Each breath of air we take
The thunder and the rolling clouds
The fish all in the lake

Hope your sadness will depart
Your hopes will go up high
Talk to God above us
He'll hear you in the sky

Put your trust and all your faith
In our Savior up above
He has so much to offer us
The gift of Eternal Love

Heir Pollution

Today is the day of the ecologist. Students, who only a year ago would have been involved in anti-draft movements, and campus disorders are now concerned with the environment, and the rape of the environment by mankind.

Government is getting on the bandwagon - it is certainly politically astute to be against pollution, as well as for motherhood and apple pie. Big business [even the small business] also is taking note - and organizing lobbies against the anti-pollution movement. I'm in favor of this ecology trend. When I see pictures of polluted rivers on fire, and hear reports of an elevated DDT content in breast milk, I figure we've gone far enough - perhaps too far.

Today the college students who a few months ago might have been on the drug kick are now on the health food habit. They even won't drink milk from cows that graze in areas where DDT is used. Commendable! Wonderful! Too bad that there's a lag of the influence of the college students in the high schoolers, of a year or two, or more. Our drug problem would be less.

The whole point is - the HUMAN environment CAN become polluted. Note the problems with food additives - thus the swing to "natural foods", and organic gardening.

However, not much mention is made of one type of pollution ... that of the unborn child. Medical information would indicate that the average woman takes at least five different medications during pregnancy. I'm not down-playing the necessity of these medications, for there is generally a reason. However, if they are JUST for maternal comfort, and not to treat a specific disorder, then I would question their use. I would think that physicians should be defenders of the unborn child, not just interested in a happy pregnancy, free from discomfort.

It is known that some drugs ingested during pregnancy can affect the fetus adversely. All of us remember the Thalidomide controversy of a few years ago. It is also known that a large ingestion of vitamins by a pregnant woman can seriously affect the fetus and infant. Just about anything that enters the mother's circulation also enters the fetal circulation as well. Some things are well tolerated. Others affect the fetus, mildly or severely.

Most physicians who deal with pregnant women are aware of the drug - fetus problem and are careful of the drugs used. However, many women take things during pregnancy, that are not under the advice or control of her physician. There are old family remedies, and sometimes medication taken in the attempt to abort an unwanted pregnancy. These attempts usually fail, and only leave society with a damaged child to raise and care for.

In addition, there are the drugs taken today by the young [sometimes not so young] mother, for kicks. The effects of LSD on a fetus are now being reported. Also, a recent report shows that a mother who partakes of alcoholic beverages during pregnancy, expecially in the last four months, gives the fetus a blood alcohol level ten times that of the mother.

Smoking mothers have smaller babies, sometimes under-weight babies, according to many reports. This kind of "heir pollution", pollution of the internal environment, pollution of the fetus, would be a logical next step for the protester. I'm all for an organized demonstration on behalf of the unborn child.

Maybe the Senator from our near neighbor to the north would add this to his anti-pollution campaign. I doubt it, as fetuses can't vote, now, nor in 1972, unless the voting age is REALLY lowered. -

McDonald Seeks Regional Waste Disposal System

The newly formed Norfolk County Refuse Disposal Study Committee will hold its organizational meeting on April 14 at 7 p.m. in the County Commissioners' office in the Superior Courthouse, Dedham.

The committee was formed at the behest of Commissioner George McDonald of Quincy to investigate regional waste disposal systems that are too expensive for single communities to handle by themselves.

"I am convinced," McDonald told committee members, "that you and your fellow members on the committee will play a most important role in helping to contribute to a regional approach that will be both beneficial and economically feasible for all participating towns in Norfolk County."

"The towns are screaming about the high costs of solid rubbish disposal," McDonald told the Quincy Shopper. "They don't generate enough solid wastes individually to make disposal plants economically feasible.

"The more rubbish that is disposed of the less it costs per ton to dispose of it. The more rubbish that is contributed by a town the more economical a regional plant would be for that town."

Members of the committee are John McSweeney and Frederick Sheehan, both of Quincy, Walter Blazenak of Norwood, Robert J. Lanigan of Needham, David Perkins of Walpole, Thomas Lydon of Millis, John C. Nourse of Weymouth, George A. Trubiano of Randolph, John McCahill of Franklin, and Charles Yaitanes of Stoughton.

The study committee, the first in the state of Massachusetts, has asked for an appropriation of $8,000 from the legislature under the environmental control act.

Sixth Graders Turn Bankers At N.S. Hunting School

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

"Money and Banking" is the name of the game at the N. S. Hunting School, at Adams Shore.

There is "N. S. Hunting money" and there are "N. S. Hunting checks", spurious currency all made by the 26 sixth grade students with the approval of their teacher, John J. Finnerty, assistant principal.

For this unit in elementary economics, each pupil was allocated a check book balance of $200 to start his business transactions.

Bank officers were elected to keep the bank accounts and issue money and checks: Lindsay Delaney, president; Judy Spillane, vice president; Debby Sullivan and Judy Kenny, treasurers.

A system of payments for exceptional school work and for school jobs was initiated. On the debit side, there were fines for certain infractions, payment for rental of desks, use of paper, pencils, etc.

Bargaining sessions were held for the exchange of various articles, first by barter. Later money was used to emphasize its advantages as a medium of exchange.

Having learned how to keep a check book balance, the difference between deposits and withdrawals, and the value of keeping a record of earnings and expenditures, the class this week emerged from its make-believe world of finance into the real thing.

Recently Lindsay Tait, treasurer of the Quincy Savings Bank, visited the class to discuss banking and related subjects.

Groups of 13 students each, the class and Mr. Finnerty visited the South-Shore National Bank where they had a guided tour and discussion.

"The class response to this unit has been most enthusiastic," Mr. Finnerty commented.

P.S. There might be some parents in the "real world" who would like to enroll for this unit.

19 Quincy Applications For VA Police Training

In Quincy there are 19 applications for police officer training in the Veterans Administration's on-the-job training program, according to the VA.

They are among the 5,400 veterans participating nationally, and among 390 applicants for police officer and fire fighter training approved by the Massachusetts Department of Education to date, according to Donald E. Johnson, Administrator of Veterans Affairs in Washington.

The VA supplements a policeman's or fireman's earnings during training, but requires that he be paid at least 50% of the regular salary. A minimum of 85% of the regular wage must be paid during the trainee's final month of training.

Basic requirements for veterans interested in applying for the programs include a personal interview, character investigation and driver's license.

"Newly discharged veterans, through their military experience, provide a prime source of recruitment because of their demonstrated maturity, reliability and their sense of citizen's responsibility," Johnson said.

Will Coloring Damage Hair?

There's only one way to be absolutely sure that coloring will not damage your hair. Go to a professional - at least for the initial coloring. The initial process is tricky and could be full of surprises. It's best left to someone who knows how to deal with such surprises.

There are various techniques hairdressers use to protect your hair from color damage. Conditioners may be needed to give your hair maximum strength. The stronger your hair, the better it will take coloring.

A preliminary strand test also insures happy results. Bleach or dye is applied to an inconspicuous strand of hair and left on for a measured amount of time. Then the color is examined. If it's too light or too dark, the time of processing is altered accordingly until the colorist knows exactly how long it takes to color your hair properly. Everyone's hair reacts differently to coloring.

Here Comes The Bride

Later Than You Think

Your wedding day is drawing close. To you, it still seems a long way off. It's later than you think!

Thus far you've made your church arrangements.

You've checked the color scheme of the church, making sure your colors blend. The width of the aisle has been checked if you are wearing a bouffant skirt. This is to make sure there is room for you and your dad to walk down the aisle with ease. Also, the length of the aisle has been measured for the carpet.

The invitation list has been compared with the seating capacity. What a tragedy if your guest list far exceeds the number of pews!

Your reception arrangements have been made. You've made sure all the colors co-ordinate with the colors of the bridal party. [hall, linens, flowers and wedding cake, if color is to be used].

The photographer has been engaged. You've started your list of special pictures you want him to take.

You've made your final list for invitations. All addresses are correct. They have been ordered and delivered. It's so much easier to sit down now and address them.

Remember there are two size envelopes. The larger is for the mailing address. Use black ink and no abbreviations.

Arrangements have been made with the florist.

Music for the ceremony and reception has been taken care of and you've started a list of the numbers you want played.

The rings have been purchased and engraved. Be sure to put them in a safe place, to avoid panic on your wedding day.

Most important of all the gowns have been ordered. If you placed your order several weeks ago, as recommended they have been delivered to the store and you all have been fitted. Soon you will have a second fitting to make sure all is perfect with your gown.

Have you been following our time schedule? If so, you have by now, found you are still calm, cool and collected six weeks before the wedding day.

A Planner's Viewpoint:

'New Zoning A Regulatory Tool For City's Growth'

[The following article on Quincy's proposed new zoning is written by City Planning Director Geoffrey A. Davidson. In it, he explains the proposed ordinance and what, in his view, it will do for Quincy in the years to come.]

By GEOFFREY A. DAVIDSON
City Planning Director

The strong and continuing economic growth of the Boston region is the prime motivating force behind the proposed Quincy Zoning Ordinance.

This growth has produced a significant change in the economic character of the region - from that of soft goods manufacturing, employing unskilled and semi-skilled people to one of highly-skilled, highly-paid technical and professional endeavors.

Growth of the latter type of activity has heightened the desirability of the region as a place to live and work, thereby contributing to population growth.

These changes have not bypassed Quincy, and the changing conditions make the need for zoning changes all the more important. Regional studies have shown that, of all the areas in the Boston region, the South Shore is the fastest growing.

New mass transit facilities, which will accommodate and encourage this growth, will be in service within a short time.

In order for Quincy to maintain its economic ascendancy in the South Shore community, the City must harness these forces to its advantage before the same forces overwhelm Quincy residents and potential developers of property.

The growth processes described above, which will accelerate on the South Shore at an increasing rate during the decade of the 1970's, are already causing ill effects in the City because of the lack of adequate zoning controls. Among these ill effects is ''overbuilding'' in multi-family residential areas, which is the condition of too much structure on small lots.

Overbuilding occurs when controls on lot sizes, building bulk, residential density, yard dimensions and open space are either inadequate or omitted from a municipal zoning ordinance.

Unfortunately, such is the case now in Quincy. To complicate matters, the present zoning ordinance does not adequately differentiate various intensities of land uses by zone, thereby contributing to unstable land values. This seriously affects the financial capabilities of a potential developer.

What does the proposed ordinance accomplish in terms of benefits to Quincy? It has three major objectives which can be expressed as follows:

●--To encourage and guide new development. New standards of regulations and changes in the Zoning Map are geared to attract investment in desirable types of buildings and land areas necessary to strengthen Quincy's economy.

●--To provide maximum protection to existing good development. Changes in the text of the Ordinance and the location of districts on the Zoning Map are intended to insure proper standards of light, air, open space and population density and to protect physically sound areas from the intrusion of incompatible land uses.

●--To eventually correct low standard buildings where equitable. By upgrading dimensional and use standards, the Ordinance will gradually reduce nuisances, nonconforming uses, and insufficient parking facilities and buffer areas. To accomplish these objectives, Quincy's new Ordinance redresses several existing zoning dificiencies:

●--Pyramiding Zoning - Quincy's new Ordinance ends the pyramiding of district uses which allows increasingly more uses as districts become less restrictive. Incompatible land uses, such as residential development in heavy industry districts are not permitted so as to protect the investment of each and reduce health and safety hazards.

●--Density and Bulk Control - Apartment development has become a fact of life for Quincy, yet the development of essentially unregulated multi-family construction can lead to the overtaxing of Quincy's utilities, schools and access ways. Proper control means proper growth to assure good standards of land usage, population density, building spacing and size. Two new aspects of Quincy's Ordinance propose to regulate the overall population through density controls and building bulk through Floor Area Ratios.

Density controls require a minimum amount of land area for each dwelling unit to be built. It is an important tool of zoning because it governs how many people will live in an area rather than merely regulating the height or setback of buildings as does our present Ordinance.

In recommended Residence C apartment areas, for example, 1000 square feet of land is required for each dwelling unit constructed, so that 20,000 square feet would accomodate no more than 20 units.

Floor Area Ratio, or F.A.R., regulates the bulk or size of a building. Floor Area Ratio expresses the ratio of the gross area of all floors in the building to the area of the lot on which it is placed. It is the best means of regulating the "amount" of buildings allowed on a parcel of land.

A floor area ratio of 1.0 might be a one-story building covering an entire lot, a two-story building covering half of the lot, or a four-story building on a quarter of the lot. A one-story building covering half the lot would have a floor area ratio of 0.5 as would a two-story building covering a quarter of the lot.

To control building size, it is recommended that maximum floor area ratios be established within each zoning district. In order to assure adequate light and air to adjoining properties, density controls and floor area ratios are supplemented by regulations establishing front, rear and side of all setback requirements.

OPEN SPACE, such as this Black's Creek area marsh land, is not adequately protected by city's present zoning say proponents of the proposed new zoning ordinance.

●--Business Districts - Most modern zoning ordinances provide a minimum of two, and frequently three, Business districts to differentiate types of business activities. Certain activities which are highway oriented are seldom found in local neighborhood convenience stores or in the central business district.

For example, the ''Drive-In'' eating establishments are large consumers of land, inappropriate to the small scale of neighborhood business and economically unsuited to the central business district where land values are high and development intensity should be maximized.

Furthermore, with different Business districts be established:

A. Local; for small neighborhood oriented services.

B. General; for highway oriented and city-wide commercial services.

C. Central; for downtown intensive business development. A further advantage to a separate Central Business District is the elimination of individual parking requirements.

Quincy's present Zoning Map expressed the past belief that major streets should be zoned Business to encourage commercial activity. The result of this thinking is "strip zoning" which scatters development, complicates traffic congestion, and creates underutilized land use.

The proposed Zoning Map would restrict strip zone areas to their current limits of development. Effecting these proposals will help stabilize and support commercial property values.

●--Industrial Areas - A prime objective of zoning is to stop mixing incompatible land uses. By permitting residential development within Industrial districts, Quincy's present Ordinance creates an undesirable mixing of land uses especially in heavy industrial areas.

This mixture creates health and safety hazards, a poor environment and lowers both residential and industrial land values. It is recommended therefore, that mixed land use be curtailed. Further, there is no existing regulation of intensity for heavy industrial development. It is expected that the imposition of Floor Area Ratio on industrial land will correct this deficiency of land development.

The proposed Ordinance also provides setback and yard requirements for industrial areas in addition to parking and loading space. Such standards are meant to help create a pleasant working environment and maintain industrial land values.

Because there is intense competition for land between industrial and apartment developers, and, because Quincy requires a constant inflow of new investment, mixed light industrial and residential uses can solve many problems for large vacant land tracts.

Although industrial development is less applicable to the "master planning" approach of the Planned Unit Development concept where residential and industrial uses can be proven to be compatible, P.U.D. should be utilized and encouraged.

In addition to these necessities, the proposed Ordinance encompasses many changes that will have salutory effects on Quincy's environment and general amenities for generations.

One device that is incorporated for this purpose is the Flood Plain Zone. This provision would eliminate the health and safety hazards and economic hardships in areas of potential flooding by requiring a special permit for any proposed development in such areas. In these cases the burden of proof would be on the developer to show how and why the proposed development would not constitute a health or safety hazard to surrounding property or to the development itself.

The proposed Ordinance also designates Open Space zones to include public or semi-public parks, reservations or cemeteries. Such lands may also be in private ownership if used for public or semi-public purposes, for example a privately-owned golf course.

The Open Space zones would be restricted primarily to open recreation or conservation purposes, with all structural development prohibited except for such buildings associated directly with the recreation or conservation use.

These Open Space zones represent the "breathing spaces" of Quincy because of their perpetually open, non-developable restrictions.

On a lot-by-lot basis, open space will be provided in the proposed Ordinance by means of minimum open space requirements in multi-family developments. The amenity of open space will serve to maintain high property values in these areas, and permit multi-family residents and their abuttors to enjoy the openness of suburban living. This open space requirement would be as high as 600 square feet per each apartment in some multi-family residential areas.

The parking problem has plagued Quincy for several years. Presently the requirement for parking in multi-family districts is one space per each apartment. The inherent inadequacies of this regulation is evident in the number of cars parked in restricted areas, on lawn areas and across driveway entrance.

Therefore, the proposed Ordinance calls for 1.5 spaces per each apartment. This upgraded standard will tend to balance the two-car families against the families with no car, and create additional spaces for guests and other overflow situations.

However, in areas close to rapid transit stations, where the pressure for automotive transport is less crucial, the requirement will remain at one space per each apartment.

Zoning is but one tool, and it cannot solve all problems for a city. It does serve as a guide for a community.

Quincy's new Zoning Ordinance makes this regulatory tool applicable to the 70's through appropriate standards for community growth. Its application will mean a positive step forward for all citizens of Quincy.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By Charles H. Wickens

A prominent firm of psychologists ask this question when screening and examining employee applications for their clients. "Of all the men you know, have known, met or heard of, what one man would you most like to be like?" Explain why -

Reports indicate this question brings in a lot of different answers and peculiar reasons. Selections include Grandpa, Dad, Uncle John, Cousin Tim, and so on in an apparent effort to tie in a helpful family trait...or affiliation. Other applicants select men such as Churchill, Lincoln and other historical greats. Some select sports, business or political personalities.

Obviously of course, the psychologists are interested in the 'reasons why' - not so much in the selection itself. The reasons for the selections also vary greatly. Accomplishments, achievements, materialistic success, untarnished reputation, character and other attributes are mentioned as reasons.

It is an interesting question. How would you answer it? Who would you select? Why? Watch for our selection next week. You may - or may not - be surprised!. . .

Come, Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Pill Poppin People'

The man who sat in my office was tall...masculine...graying temples...a company executive..."Doctor," he began..."In all my years I have not yet had one tranquilizer pill...not one sleeping pill...have only an occasional cocktail...and until this family problem hit me I've always been able to cope with the highs and lows of life. But this conflict with my wife has got to me."

Smart men know when they need help. I admired him. He had an emotional problem and he wasn't reaching for a bottle...or a tube of salve or a package.

What great numbers of people have done is to resort to some kind of drug to solve their unhappy adult life. A pill to sleep on...a pill to give peace...a pill to move bowels...a pill to regulate menstruation...a pill to elevate mood...a pill to take off fat...a pill to prevent tension...a pill for digestive disturbance...a pill to reduce pain. Some use alcohol...the most common drug on the market today. Drug use for happiness and kicks is not just the "thing" of young people...adults are a little hypocritical to be kicking up so much dust about the kids smoking pot.

Most of our ailments for which we resort to some kind of drug could better be dealt with in more constructive ways. Temporary treatment may be indicated...but too many are resorting to these "crutches" out of bottles...jars...tubes..."soft pack and hard packs"...on a permanent basis...which in the long run may do more damage than the ailment they claim to cure.

Yet advertiser pressure is on doctors to prescribe...and on users to buy. That we have problems cannot be denied. But the solution to many of our health and happiness problems may lie in some very simple remedies not involving any drugs at all.

Unhappiness produces health problems...when our emotional life is upset, chances are our digestive tract will be upset. When you and your partner are in conflict it is not unlikely that you'll have insomnia. When your daughter's run away it is not abnormal for you to have a headache. When you're following childhood hang-ups and patterns that don't fit your adult life it's little wonder that you get depressed. When you disregard the simple rules for mental health and emotional stability it's very likely you may have chest pains...neck pains...abdominal pains. When you feel thwarted in your love life...can't seem to get problems resolved...feel lonely and unloved from the source you want to be loved, it is little wonder you want to reach for some kind of pill to "kill the pain." Prolonged bitterness...hate...grief...loss of love...fear...take their toll on your health.

You see what I'm saying is simply this...whether you're a company executive or a pretty young housewife...teen-ager or senior citizen... our emotional conditions are intertwined with our physical conditions. They cannot be separated. "Happiness is a good medicine." Most of our ailments need only changes in our lives...adjustments in our attitudes...not chemical attack.

Try these simple rules. First...Get to thinking rationally...positively...not defensively but courageously looking at yourself. Incidently this kind of thinking has to accompany any real benefit from counseling. You waste your money and time unless you do.

Secondly...Dump the quack remedies...the fad foods...the "miracle pills"...the shaking contraptions...the spending of your good hard-earned money on "wonder remedies" which may even injure you.

Third...Eat a good breakfast...light lunch...good dinner...according to your age and activity requirements...avoiding over-eating and a real "No-No"...snacks between meals.

Fourth...Exercise regularly. I jog. You may walk...or ride a bicycle. The automobile isn't much of an exerciser.

Fifth...Have a regular bedtime and sleep hours...five to eight per night. Oversleeping may be a way of escape.

Sixth [it probably should be first]...Get your relationship squared away. That's why most people have head and neck pains...chest pains...abdominal pains...and there's no pill...no tube of salve...no pack [not a six-pack or "Me and my Winston" that will cure your sick love life. We can't live healthy happy lives without love.

Now if you're already a pill-popper you'll be scared to even try this formula...but try this "five-day free trial" just for fun. At the end of that time if you aren't better you'll be better equipped to begin the search for a better remedy.

The Machine Called Raid

Once there was a machine called Raid. He had thousands of feet that looked like T.V.'s. He is one hundred feet tall, his head looks like a paper bag. He has legs that look like hoses. Everytime he sees an insect he steps on it, if he sees a fly or bee he takes two of his feet and claps them together. But there is one thing that is wrong with him, he thinks people are insects. Instead of clapping his feet together at flies, he does it to planes, helicopters, space ships and other flying objects. The question is how to stop him. Scientists have found a way. They will not kill him. Instead they will shrink him to the size of a child. Now he is four feet tall. Instead of stepping on people he steps on insects. Instead of clapping planes together he claps flies and bees. That's how his name became Raid.

The Bumble Bee

Early in the morning sun,
And in the eve when work is done,
Look in the flowers and you'll see
A creature called the bumble bee.

Up in the hives on trees so tall
Is the busiest insect of them all,
No matter the weather, rainy or sunny,
Working, working to make sweet honey.

They're at their work day after day,
The bumble bee doesn't ever play.
This is a tribute to the bee,
Protect him now for posterity.

The Frog

Hello, my dear old friend the frog,
Who spends his days down in this bog.

Why all those croaks and squeaks you make?
They keep the neighbors all awake.

And why's your color always green?
It's not the nicest to be seen -

You should be brown, or red or blue,
Or a color that is really "you".

But you are smart there in your bog,
It beats the city with all that smog.

You lucky frog, you've no inflation,
It really is a bad sensation.

Sometimes I wish I were a frog,
Croaking in my little bog.

Herbie, The Escape Pencil

Once I had a little pencil that helped me get out of doing my math problems. When I asked it a problem it would tell me the answer to the problem. Whenever I have a quiz I use it or when I am working in my book. Sometimes it falls asleep and I have to sharpen it to wake it up. I take my pencil with me all the time. It is a lot of help. Sometimes we play games. It hides sometimes. The reason why it hides is it can change colors. I close my eyes and it changes and it changes it's color. When it comes out I try to guess what color it has changed to. When it came out it was blue, black, red, yellow, brown and green. Then he went back in and I closed my eyes, it changed colors again. When it came back it was every color in the world. Then we played a math game it would ask me a math problem and I would try to answer it. I got them all right. My pencil was very happy.

Race Against The Warriors

It was a warm autumn morning when I woke up. I dressed and went into the kitchen. There I saw Crazy Bull, an Indian friend of the family. He looked like we all were in grave danger. I asked him why he looked so sad. He said "Many Sioux warriors attack Fort where your father is." "Oh no!" I said. "I better get the news there fast. I'll start early in the morning." When I woke up early next morning, I guessed it was 5 o'clock. I started running down the trail to Fort Kansas. I knew the way my father went. He said he had to go straight ahead. It was only a mile away now. But then up ahead were 20 warriors. I had to protect dad. I ran and the Indians saw me. They came after me, some with muskets and some with tomahawks. Pretty soon I saw a wide hole up ahead of me, with a branch above it. I swung about eight times and finally I got across. The fort was only 200 to 250 feet away. I had to make it. I had to! The Sioux were riding horseback after me. I now was less than 50 feet from the fort. I ran as fast as I could to get there when an indians tomahawk slightly hit me. I was in the fort! "Dad the Sioux are attacking." We got reinforcements and after a bitter battle we won! I was proud!

Kalabolo used to be very cold and even in the summer time it would snow but I decided not to let it freeze.

I headed toward Kalabola. When I shined for Kalabola they loved it. They had adventures because there wasn't anymore snow. It melted. It was diffrent for them to go places because of the snow. Now they are satisfied. I like shining for them. It was so hot there that finally the water turned orange. I thought I better leave and let it snow because there were other countries that needed me. District Attorney Asks Open Meeting On Teen Drugs Use

Dist. Atty. Burke said last week that 49 deaths have been caused by drugs in Norfolk County in the past four years. The latest was a 17-year-old Needham boy who died in his sleep from an overdose of heroin.

Burke said the 49 deaths included "seven or eight teen agers, but the proportion of young people is rising every year."

The district attorney, who is an acknowledged expert on drugs and drug use, said some drug peddlers are introducing heroin into marijuana cigarettes thus addicting pot smokers to the harder drug.

"All the things we've been saying for years about marijuana leading to hard core drugs have come true," he said. "We never used to get reports of heroin in the county but now we get them all the time.

"We're in the heroin age."

As early as a year ago, Burke was proposing an educational program on the sixth-grade level for Quincy and other Norfolk County communities to "win the minds of youngsters before they experiment with this poison."

Burke set up a drug education program in the Virgin Islands at the invitation of the islands' Crime Control Commission. Aimed at the sixth grade through high school set, it has frequently been cited as a model program.

Why Do North Students Shun Voc-Tech School?

allegiance to North Quincy High."

"We are making a concerted effort to encourage a change in this attitude. It has to be done over the long pull. It's not something for which we should go into a crash program.

"We have started holding evening sessions at the junior high and elementary schools to familiarize people with the Vocational Technical programs and facilities. Recently, the Voch-Tech department heads were at Atlantic Junior High School one evening to present their case.

"We are trying to get the various women's clubs in Quincy to pick up the expense of buses used on field trips to get people from North Quincy to come up to Voch-Tech and see the facilities.

"We started last fall to coordinate the schedules of the three schools [North, Quincy and Voch-Tech] so that students could take their academic courses at North and Quincy and others at Voch-Tech.

"It's a real problem when you consider the time lag for a North Quincy student. You can't schedule him for first period at North and second period at Voch-Tech. He has to spend a half day or a day.

"The schedule problems have outstripped the ability to schedule by hand. We have to use the computer to make up the schedules and we are to some extent."

The Vocational-Technical High School was completed in 1967 for 1,100 students on a three year projection. Right now there are about 775 enrolled in five years, grades 10 through 14.

"But", adds Dr. Creedon, "the capacity figure is based on the number of students in the school at one time. Properly scheduled, with academic courses taken elsewhere, it can serve more than 1,100."

Daly Thanks Knights Of Pythias For Vocational Scholarship

Maurice Daly, assistant superintendent of Quincy Schools, and Richard Haines, guidance counselor of Quincy Vocational-Technical High School, were speakers at the recent Scholarship Breakfast of Presidents Lodge, Knights of Pythias, held at the Jewish Community Center.

"Our vocational students and graduates have long been overlooked in the distribution of scholarship funds as compared to graduates of academic courses," Daly said in expressing his appreciation to Presidents Lodge.

Presidents Lodge is the first fraternal organization in the area to award a scholarship to vocational students. This scholarship money is awarded to a male graduate to further his education or to buy tools needed in his trade.

"Presidents Lodge helped other organizations and also the public to become aware of the necessity to consider the scholarship requirements of the vocational student," Daly continued.

Chancellor Commander Leonard Morris, Scholarship Chairman Max Noodell and Paul Bailey, Co-chairman, urged members to expand their fund-raising efforts.

The Lodge assists also in providing funds for Kiddie Kamp, Cerebral Palsy, Cystic Fibrosis, and at the Quincy blood bank.

Applicants Sought For Supplemental Medicare Medical Benefits

Again, it is the time to consider seriously enrolling in supplemental medical insurance under the Medicare Program, notes the Quincy District Social Security office.

The Social Security Administration is trying to get in touch with those persons who now have the hospital insurance protection of Medicare, but who did not wish to enroll in the supplementary medical insurance, Frank Culkin, Quincy District Manager announces.

On January 1, 1970, a new enrollment period for medical insurance began. It will end on March 31. Those who failed to enroll before now have an opportunity to sign up for medical insurance protection.

Culkin advised that the Social Security Administration is trying to reach those individuals who became 65 between September 1966 and September 1967. For those people, this enrollment period, January 1, 1970 - March 31, 1970 is their final opportunity to enroll for supplementary medical insurance. They may file for cash benefits or hospital insurance benefits after this general enrollment period, if insured, but supplementary medical insurance protection will not then be vailable.

Persons who delay in enrolling, pay a premium that is 10% higher for each full year they could have had the medical insurance protection.

Consumer News

By Robert H. Quinn
Attorney General

[This is another Consumer News column from Attorney General Robert H. Quinn to inform the citizens of Massachusetts about the laws that have been enacted to protect them as consumers.]

A Massachusetts couple sat in their living room recently and listened while a salesman described in glowing terms the assets of owning land in another state. It would give them a place to settle after retirement, or if they desired a sure-fire investment, the land would soon triple in value.

"But," the salesman continued, "you must act quickly. Only a few plots of land are left, and they are rapidly being bought up."

With that buildup, the salesman produced a contract, and the couple was encouraged to sign immediately, thus committing themselves to pay several thousand dollars for land they had never seen.

The Consumer Protection Division of my office has received several complaints concerning out-of-state land sales. Unfortunately, in some cases the land turns out to be swampy, or title to the land is questionable.

Anyone considering such an investment should see the property. If the salesman tries to rush you into buying without furnishing a complete description of the property or without affording you an opportunity to see the land, he probably has a reason for not wanting you to see it.

If the land is out of state, be sure to hire an attorney in that state to investigate the title and to examine the land, its location and its characteristics.

MENTAL ANGUISH RULING

A Massachusetts man has been awarded a total of $844 to compensate for the mental anguish, humiliation and financial loss he suffered when the owners of a three-family house in Roslindale refused to rent an apartment to him because of his race.

The award for mental anguish, handed down by the state Supreme Judicial Court, was the first ruling of its kind in the state. The case was argued by Frederic R. Kellogg, an assistant attorney general in the Civil Rights and Liberties Division of my office.

The court found that the owners of the house, George and Rosemary Franzoli of Allston, had falsely told Manfred Henry of Worcester that the apartment he wanted was already leased. He was awarded $250 for humiliation and mental anguish and $594 for expenses incurred because he could not find a place to live near work.

CHEMICAL POLLUTION

In Japan, several people have died after eating shellfish that came into contact with mercury wastes that were dumped into the ocean.

To avoid the risk of even one such death in Massachusetts, I have proposed the establishment of a special state agency to regulate the off-shore dumping of chemicals and other wastes.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, at my request, revoked the permit of a private firm to dump chemicals 9.3 miles off-shore. The firm handles most of the chemical disposal for Eastern Massachusetts.

But all such dumping must be controlled, and a means must be found for safely getting rid of the chemical wastes. The Chemical Disposal Board I have proposed, composed of members from the Department of Public Health, the Department of Public Works and the Department of Natural Resources, would take on this responsibility.

Bellotti Calls 'One-Vote' Bill 'Political Bossism' By Clique

Former Lt. Governor Francis X. Bellotti this week denounced "political bossism and a small clique of state senators for trying to foist legislation denying the voters a free choice of candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor in the coming party primary elections."

The Quincy Democrat referred to a legislative proposal [Senate 427] that provides for the nomination and election of governor and lieutenant-governor as a group in the primary. He said it denies the people one vote.

"The party bosses and senate leadership are attempting to sneak through legislation that once again would deprive the voters of this Commonwealth a say in state government and the election of their constitutional officer," he declared.

"This bill was taken out of order and voted on when only six senators out of 40 were present and voting.

"This is a bold attempt by the party bosses to control the convention system, dictate who the candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor will be, and restrict the voters freedom of choice. I oppose this blatant maneuver to rig the convention system and disenfranchise the voters."

Attorney Named To Transit Committee

A Quincy attorney and two other officials of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority have been appointed to administrative committees of the American Transit Association.

Appointed were Atty. Vincent M. Banks, assistant general counsel, of 1025 Hancock St., Quincy; Donald B. Eagles, assistant director of public information, of 100 Louise Rd., Braintree; and Thomas F. Cunnally, manager of central stores, of 46 Beacon Street Circle, Milton.

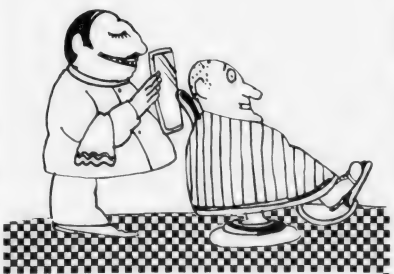
Banks, who has been employed with the Boston transit system for 33 years and is in charge of the Authority's claims department, will be serving on the ATA's administrative committee of the claims division.

A graduate of Harvard and Northeastern Law School, he began his career in the transportation field as a clerk in the auditing department of the old Boston Elevated Street Railway Company.

Eagles, who began his career in transportation as a messenger in the claim department of the old Boston El 28 years ago, will serve on the ATA's administrative committee of the public relations division.

Cunnally, also a veteran from the old Boston El where he started 43 years ago in the equipment engineering and maintenance department, will serve on the administrative committee

Lions Raising $2,500 For Guatemala School



Members of the Quincy Lions Club are helping to raise $2,500 to enable CARE to build a two and a half room school house in Guatemala.

"Lions all across America are making a concerted effort to strike at the roots of problems caused by world poverty," said Quincy City Auditor, Alexander Smith, deputy district governor of the Lions.

"In Guatemala, where less than half of the children have schools to attend, Massachusetts Lions are helping CARE construct 200 classrooms for 10,000 Guatemalan children.

Quincy Lions have taken on the project in addition to their basic major project of eye research and eye care.

Put Zip In Mail With Zip Code

You can put a lot of zip into your mail by using zip codes, reports George K. Walker, Officer-in-Charge of the Boston Postal District.

The Post Office can sort mail faster with zip code as it eliminates many handlings and is sent more directly to its destination, he noted. Public acceptance and usage continues to grow steadily with the percentage of first-class mail bearing the five-digit Zip Code, now at 75% on a national average.

Walker is alerting all patrons in the Boston Postal District to the zip code directory maps in the yellow pages of the telephone book. Additional zip code numbers may be obtained by calling your local post office.

The mechanical sorting equipment at Boston's South Postal Annex will be furnished with additional computers in the near future which will direct letters by zip code to the Sectional Center or large post office nearest its destination in further speeding its delivery.

Walker urged that all patrons use zip code on their return address as well as to the addressee.

Recreation Roundup

William F. Ryan, Director of Recreation announces that the Pilot Project in Recreation now in its fourth week has been most successful. Cooperation has been the key factor of the success.

Barry J. Welch, Pilot Project Director reports the following news from the four project areas:

Quincy Point

The Quincy Point Programs are proving to be most promising.

At the Fore River Club House 51 boys and girls signed the membership role. Pam and Eileen typed out membership cards which will be given to members at the next meeting. At the next meeting, an Advisory Board will be elected. Nominations for officers will start at 7:30 p.m. The Advisory Board, comprising youths who are official members of the Club House will undertake the responsibility of the youth center.

Planning, organizing and creating new ideas will be the main theme of their goals. The Advisory Board was created so that the youths may speak out and work for things which are of interest to their particular needs. Five members of the youth center have planned a trip to the Grenham Youth Center, to get ideas and hints on how other successful programs operate.

All members of the Fore River Club House wish to welcome William Myers to the staff.

The girls program has been quite successful under the direction of Miss Peggy O'Brien. The girls at the youth center began their Arts and Crafts program this week. Pamela Gianotti, Patricia Kinnally, Eileen Keaney, and Julie Trubiano were among those who enjoyed batiking. Batiking is a coloring and dying process which has its origins in India. The girls used melted crayon, old sheets, and dye to create beautiful tapestry.

Eight to nine o'clock has been allotted as the girls hour to use the center's pool room. All girls interested in playing pool are invited to join us at the Youth Center, Wednesday nights at that time.

At the Quincy Point Junior High School Gymnasium it has only been two weeks since the initiation of soccer to the junior high level and already 35 boys have participated in a seven team tournament. For two hours the teams battled until a champ was found. A weary but victorious team made up of Stan Miller, Mike Varaso, Dave Goguen, Mathew Guest and Ronnie Butt celebrated as if they had just won the finals of the Stanley Cup. The rules are very similar to ice hockey.

A total of 43 senior high boys participated in a two hour basketball program. No champion was crowned. Some of the boys who competed on the court were, Bobby Vincent, Bobby Walker, Dave Coletti, Mike Crosson, Joe Marani, Steve LaClair and Ray Papile.

South West

In the South West Quincy area, Sterling Junior High is boasting about having 148 youths show up for the gym program. Indoor sessions are held at the Sterling gymnasium where mats, rings and ropes make it possible for a would-be gymnast to test equipment and learn various skills.

Those at Sterling are looking forward to many innovations in the weeks ahead, and they feel that with the continued interest of the participants that their program will continue to expand.

South West Quincy is still hunting for a youth center. They soon hope to be able to accommodate the youth of their area with a well organized youth center program.

Germantown

Members of the Germantown Youth Center wish their former supervisor Lefty Walsh, a speedy recovery. The Germantown youth council welcomes its newly elected members from the seventh and eighth grades, Dan Connors, Terry O'Day, and Rich Hebert. Rich is the cousin of the center's new supervisor James Hebert.

Dennis Cardelli has reached the 9,000 point plateau in the pin ball machines. Dennis holds a record of a fine 9,472. "Deadly" Ed Sullivan and Wally Parellis are still the toughest shuffle board players around. Bumper, Pool and soccer are big hits. Ted Stevenson handled the goalie and defenseman, the result: an 8-2 defeat for Teddy. In the working are plans for the showing of movies of this year's Quincy High football team, and a possibility of a block dance. A thank you is sent to Peter McNeil for his donations of records, and Fred Parsons for repairing the pool cue sticks.

Thanks to Rene De Gust, Marylou Bouchard and Linda Fishel, the Tuesday night program for Junior and Senior High School Girls at the Snug Harbor gym, is off to a good start. They helped recruit close to 50 girls for the program.

Plans for the future include a ping-pong tournament. Perhaps, if ping-pong's not your thing, you might want to take part in our gymnastic routines. A little bit "out of shape"? How about slymnastics to the tune of Abbey Road and I Got You Babe?

You might have a great idea for more fun on Tuesday nights. Come along and bring your idea with you. [We'll try anything, once.]

In an effort to promote interest in a wide range of activities, the recreation program in the Snug Harbor gym held tournaments in checkers, chess, ping-pong and kala as well as weekly basketball games.

Jim Winners and Sonny Thomas were undefeated in the checker matches and next week they will meet each other. Steve Melzard and John Ventosi took five straight matches by wide margins in the doubles ping-pong playoff's and Steve Melzard also won the singles.

The weekly basketball games continued to exhibit its usual enthusiasm. Don Connors and Terry O'Day were high scores in the Junior High Game, and Bob Yula and Bob Fanning were standouts in the high school game, scoring well and playing excellent defense.

All the boys are eagerly awaiting the arrival of the field hockey equipment.

Grenham

Youth Center

The Monday girls program at the Grenham Youth Center continues to grow with the addition of student volunteers from Eastern Nazarene College.

The students along with Youth Center participants, Mary Broderick, Janet Kusser, Luann Price, Mary Picard and Theresa Iacsuino recently went on a kite excursion down Sea St. The volunteers from the college will return each week and assist the women volunteers from the Community.

Tuesday nights the gym program is under the direction of the pilot project staff. This program is continuing to show much promise. The girls have been exercising to music to maintain those lovely figures and they are also playing basketball. This month Mrs. Virginia Farnhan will speak to the girls about make-up and other facial essentials.

Rag Dolls Clinch Finals Spot In Women's Tourney

The Rag Dolls rolled the day's high as they defeated the Rollerettes 1486-1472 in Sunday's quarter-finals of the 15th annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Tourney.

The tourney, sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy, is being held at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys.

The Rag Dolls' victory gave them a berth in the final round scheduled for April 15.

The Queen Pins defeated the Eight O'Clock Rollers 1481-1379 to qualify for the semi-finals this Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m. The Queen Pins will meet the Lucky Strikes. Winner of that will clash with the Rag Dolls in the tourney finale.

The Rag Dolls jumped off to a 43-pin lead at the end of the first string and added 10 more in the second. The Rollerettes bounded back to take the third string by 39 pins but it was 15 shy of a comeback victory.

Gail Dillon and Alice Costello rolled a 314 each to pace the Rag Dolls. Marlene Brigette had a 301.

Evie Lorusso led the Rollerettes with a 315 and Helen Van Buskirk was second with 312.

The Queen Pins took all three strings for a 102-pin win. Pacing them were Bev Putnam and Betty Gagne, each rolling a 310. Joyce Agnew had a 297.

Nora Dunn led the Eight O'Clock Rollers with a 293.

The Koch Club will present individual trophies and a $50 cash prize to the championship team. Prizes will also be provided for the high tourney three string total, high single and high average for teams that compete in at least three matches.

QJC's Beston Sets Hot Marks

Quincy Junior College's basketball team finished its season last week when it lost in the finals of the Massachusetts Jr. College Conference playoffs.

Paul Beston, former Quincy High star, set some scoring figures that will be pretty hard to equal.

Although finishing the regular season with an unimpressive 10-14 record, QJC was 8-4 in the conference to finish in third place and qualify for the playoffs. It upset Newton Junior College, 78-72, in the semifinals but was walloped by powerful league champion Becker, 105-67, in the playoff finals.

Becker was unbeaten in league competition and finished 23-3 overall.

Beston, who averaged more than 30 points a game for the season, scored 31 in the finale.

He had scored 19 in the win over Newton in the semifinals and in the final regular season game, a 112-83 loss to Becker, Beston had scored 36.

Incidentally, Bob Payton, a 6-4 inch center from New Jersey, exploded for 52 points for Becker in that game.

QJC, under new coach Earl Vermillion, will lose only three players by graduation, Beston, Charlie Edgar, who averaged more than 15 points a game, and Bill Yout. Beston and Yout were this year's co-captains.

Mike Jordan To Co-Captain Crusaders Next Season

Mike, a safety man, earned the Mike Cunnion Memorial Award as the Crusaders' outstanding sophomore in 1968. He intercepted numerous passes that season.

Big things were expected of Jordan last fall but the Crusaders were forced to cancel their schedule after the second game because of an outbreak of infectious hepatitis.

The other co-captain next year is fullback Tom Lamb, who was co-captain of the 1969 team and is one of three players repeating their senior year who were given permission to play another year of football.

Ed Monti Top Scorer In CYO Basketball

Ed Monti for the second year has won the CYO Basketball League scoring title.

Ed, with 42 points, led the Sacred Heart team in a losing battle with St. Mary's. This year he totaled 406 points in a 14-game season for a 29 point average.

St. Mary's finished in third place in CYO action, defeating North Quincy 92-73 in a well fought game. Leading St. Mary's were Steve Pekkenen with 40 points and Eddie Arnold with 20 points.

The win gave St. Mary's a 10-4 record, while Sacred Heart finished with an 11-3 mark.

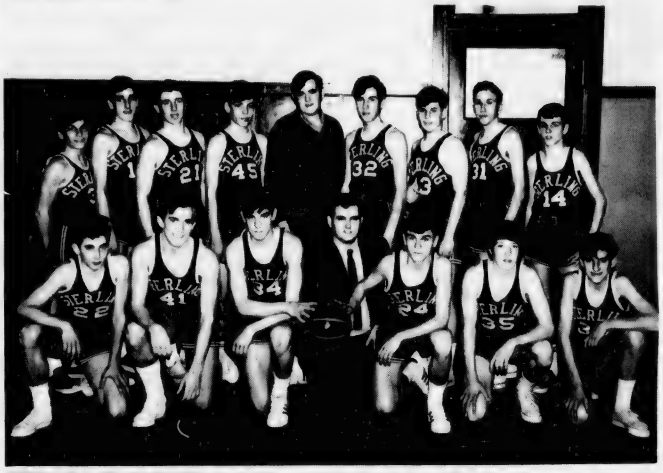
JV's Brighten Hoop Picture At N. Quincy

North Quincy basketball coach Bob Nolan loses several outstanding players from this year's Tech Tourney team but he will inherit some excellent prospects from Joe Amorosino's outstanding junior varsity squad.

The North jayvees this year won the Greater Boston League title with an 11-2 record and finished 13-3 overall. The losses were by a total of just six points.

"I had mainly a sophomore team and the boys did a terrific job," Amorosino said. "I think some of them definitely will help the varsity next season."



The leading scorer with an average of 14 points a game was Dave Nelson, 6-1 sophomore.

Bob McKay [5-11] was another good scorer, Bob Flaherty, in his coach's words, "is a real tough competitor," Jack Walker has an excellent shot, Leo Papile [6-3] is an outstanding rebounder; Dave Mahoney at 6-1 jumps as well as any 6-4 player and did a remarkable job on the boards and Charlie Santoro at 6-2 also saw a lot of action.

Steve Sullivan, Jeff Sheehan, Frank Webb, Bob Torino and Dave Carter rounded out the squad and did a fine job.

"In many of our games we trailed at the half but bounced back to win," the North coach added.

"At Somerville we trailed by 11 points at the half but pulled it out and it is very hard to come from behind like that out there. The boys played a good, steady game throughout the season and it was a real team effort. I'm very pleased with our season."

With four weeks remaining in the Quincy Bowling Little Loop season, Hennessy Plumbing Supply holds a slim one-point lead over Wollaston Bowladrome.

The Mayor McIntyre team is just two points out of first place, Bryan VFW Post five points and Atlantic Fuel Oil and Rep. Joseph Brett team only six points each.

Paul Peckham, captain of the Brett team, is pacing the league with a 102.27 average–the most consistent bowler in the league's 16-year history.

In 16 out of 21 weeks, the 14-year-old left-hander has rolled a 300 or better with 38 strings over 100. His lowest three string total has been 274.

The Bowladrome team rolled both the weekly high three–1,400–and the high team single of 493.

Tom Joyce racked up the high individual three with a 322 and the high single, 137.

Joyce is runner-up to Peckham with an average of 97.24. Behind him in the top 10 are:

Mike Conroy, 97.16; Mike Lorman, 96.39; Steve Levine, 96.30; Dick Hirtle, 96.14; Dick Magnarelli, 95.16; Frank Alibrandi, 94.35; Charles McCarthy, 94.26 and John Repoff, 94.8.

Gale Palmer Girls Softball Coach At North

Miss Gale Palmer who, although a teacher at North Quincy High school, coached the Quincy girls' basketball team this year, has been appointed girls' softball coach at North Quincy.

The Quincy and North girls will play a varsity schedule in softball and tennis this spring for the first time. A girls' tennis coach at North to replace Marjie Bollen, who resigned, has not been named as yet.

The school committee also named Joe Wessling as assistant track coach at Quincy High.

The committee voted unanimously to send letters of commendation to the Quincy High hockey and North Quincy basketball teams for their participation in the Eastern Mass. tournaments.

Quincy, Old-Timers To 'Score' For Munroe MacLean Fund Friday Night

The Quincy High School Old-Timers and this year's team will "score" for the Munroe D. MacLean Scholarship Fund Friday night.

The two teams will meet at 8:30 p.m. in the Quincy Vocational-Technical School gym with proceeds going to the fund.

In a 7 p.m. co-feature, the Quincy High varsity hockey team will put aside their skates to match hoop shots with the cheerleaders.

The Old-Timers, who won last year's game, will be coached by Steve Needel. Their lineup will include:

Dist. Atty. George G. Burke, City Councillor Clifford H. Marshall, former City Councillor Richard W. Barry, Ed Needel, Dick Sizer, Eddie Dunham, Wayne Hamilton and Pete Ramponi.

Tickets are on sale now at the Quincy Savings Bank and may be obtained at the door the night of the game.

Burrell To Instruct Hockey

Dick Burrell, a former Quincy High School hockey star, will be an instructor at the Connors Hockey School to be conducted at Ridge Arena, Braintree, during the spring school vacation, April 20-24.

The school is run by Ed Connors, the hockey coach at Hingham High School, in two sessions – 8 to 12 year olds at 11:15 a.m. and 13 to 17 year olds at 2:15 p.m.

Ron Bradley Receives Three Major Honors

Ron Bradley, Eastern Nazarene College sophomore sensation, received three major honors in the recent King's College Invitational Basketball Tourney, in which ENC lost a heartbreaker in the championship game.

Ron, who broke all the school's scoring records and had a fantastic two-year record, scored 93 points in three tourney games and was selected the tournament's Most Valuable Player and also was voted the Sportsman Award by the referees.

Bradley, an NAIA All-New England selection and ranked nationally in the top 10 NAIA scorers, finished the season with an average of 30.8 points a game. He twice broke the old school record of 44 points by scoring 45 and later 46.

Committee Planning Ceremonies For Adams Shore Library

Plans for special ceremonies at the new Adams Shore Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library during National Library Week will be made at a committee meeting tonight [Wednesday] at 8 p.m. at the new branch meeting room.

Mayor James R. McIntyre officiated yesterday morning at a ribbon cutting ceremony for the new building. Appropriately, green ribbon, in observance of St. Patrick's Day, was used.

The building will now be open for use by the public. The one-story brick and glass structure is located on Sea St., between Palmer St. and Riverside Ave.

Representatives from the areas of the peninsula to be served by the branch have been asked to serve on the planning committee.

They include Dr. Peter V. Corea of Houghs Neck Congregational Church, Rev. Jack H. Thorne, Bethel Beach Church of the Nazarene; Rev. James Har, Most Blessed Sacrament Church; Rev. Thomas Croke, Our Lady of Good Counsel Church; Rev. John J. Dacey, new pastor at St. Boniface's Church; Rev. Franklin W. McGuire, interim pastor at Adams Shore Community Church.

Paul J. Crossen, immediate past president, and John M. Connolly, 1970 president, will represent the Merrymount Association; John J. Urbanus, Rock Island Cove Improvement Association; Bernard J. Macauley, Baker Beach; John B. Powers, Houghs Neck Community Council.

Area residents include Mrs. William J. Duane, Antonio Monteiro, Harold J. McCarthy, Mrs. Robert Hurney, James J. Lydon, Mrs. Arthur B. Horton, Charles H. McGarry.

City Council President Arthur H. Tobin and Ward 1 Councillor Edward S. Graham are representing the City of Quincy; Francis R. Hackett, Thomas Crane Library trustees; with Librarian Warren B. Watson and Miss Dorothy Newton, assistant, also serving on the committee.

Milton Bank Shareholders Reject Planned Merger With Shipbuilders Co-operative

The planned merger of the Shipbuilders Co-operative Bank with the Milton Co-operative Bank has run into an unexpected snag.

Shareholders of the Quincy bank voted unanimously Tuesday to approve the merger.

But shareholders of the Milton institution voted against the merger. The vote reportedly was 62-11.

Unless Milton shareholders at a later date reconsider their vote, the merger of the two banks will not materialize.

The boards of directors of the two banks and state Commissioner of Banks Freyda Koplow had approved the merger.

Plans were to merge the two banks under the name of the Presidential Co-operative Bank.

Brett Says MBTA Tracks Should Have Been Depressed In Quincy

Closing of temporary bypasses over the MBTA right-of-way through Quincy points up a major failure in the planning of the South Shore rapid transit extension, according to Rep. Joseph E. Brett.

The Quincy Democrat recalled he recommended several years ago, when the project was first discussed, that the entire right-of-way through Quincy be depressed to allow all intersecting streets to cross from one side to the other at their grade level.

"This would have precluded the necessity for motorists and pedestrians to negotiate a lengthy circuitous route in many instances to get from one side of the tracks to the other," he said.

"A perfect example of the point I am making is the depressed Massachusetts Turnpike Extension through Boston where all of the intersecting streets cross the highway via overpass.

"It's 'water over the dam' now, but its' just too bad that motorists and pedestrians through the years will have to use round-about routes to get from one side of the rapid transit tracks to the other when the lowering of the roadbed could have made it possible to have a dozen or more crossovers between the Neponset River and Braintree."

Between Us Girls

By Pat Ridlen

First Love

I guess we all remember our first love, for it is the best and the worst feelings all rolled into one.

I was in seventh grade, 3rd row, 5th seat. HE was in 2nd row 4th seat. His name was Bryan McNeil, and I loved him So did every other 12 year old girl in the class. He never looked at any of them. He never looked at me either, but I knew that was just because he was so shy.

One day the teacher had oral recitation, and Bryan didn't hear the question. I hissed the answer from behind my book. He never let on it was me who had given him the wrong answer. He was that way.

I used to write him little notes, and toss them on his desk when he wasn't looking. Notes like, "I love you Bryan, from Guess Who" and "I am watching you, from your Nutcracker Sweet" or "I don't care about your acne, Bryan, from your Secret Admirer." He would crumple up these papers and aim for the wastebasket. But I was sure he had memorized every word first and kept them in his heart.

Other girls would fall all over themselves talking to him. Not I. No words ever passed between us. Our love was too big for words. I would stare at the back of his head in History Class. He had 200,497 hairs and dandruff. But I didn't mind. Whenever I would pass his desk I'd carefully blow the dandruff off his shoulders. And he never knew it was me. At least he never let on he knew. Our's was a secret love.

I used to take the gum out of my mouth, wad it up into a ball, and throw it at his ear, because then he'd turn around, and I loved the way his eyes crossed when he got mad. If he had realized who it was doing it, I know he would have told me of his feelings.

It was true, we had never spoken, but then came that magical day. I was going out the school door and he was coming in. It was Fate. We were alone. We both stood still for what seemed like an eternity. Then he spoke. Oh, the rapture of it I can remember even now Bryan McNeil spoke to ME.

I floated home on a cloud until I reached my door. My mother knew today was not like other days, as she said "Dear, whats happened to you, you smiled at me?"

I wanted to keep his words locked in my heart, yet I wanted to share them with someone, to let another know that HE had spoken to me.

"Mother," I said in hushed tones, "Bryan McNeil spoke to me today. He said "Get out of my way, you're blocking the door, stupid."

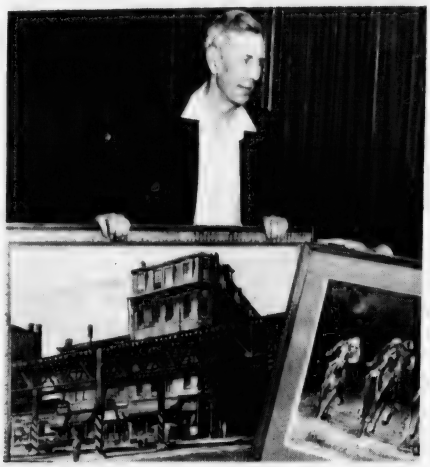
McDonald Requests $7,000 For City Health Clinics

City Councillor George B. McDonald has introduced a resolution asking restoration into the city budget of $7,000 for maintenance of health clinics and preventive and educational medicine for the summer.



The budget item requested by the Quincy Health Department was deleted from the budget by Mayor James R. McIntyre.

McDonald's resolution would have the Health Department resubmit a total program to the mayor requesting an appropriation in a supplemental budget from the city council.

"It simply asks the mayor and the health department to recognize what we have had for the past 19 years, ever since we opened the second health center in the United States back in 1951," said McDonald.

Some of the programs eliminated by the budget cuts were polio and diphtheria immunization, diabetes detection, X-rays for tuberculosis for food handlers, hearing tests for adult and children, and dental service for pre-school children.

"We can't evaluate such programs in dollars and cents because they are preventive," said McDonald. "But remember the old saying, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

A WATERCOLOR demonstration by James Hooley of Milton, shown here, will be a feature of the March 24 meeting of the Quincy Art Association at 8 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center, 10 Merrymount Rd. The demonstration is open to the public and there will be refreshments. One of the judges for the February exhibit of the Association at the Thomas Crane Public Library, he attended the Hawes School of Art of Boston and has had a number of one man shows.

McIntyre Favors Gas Tax Money For Mass Transit

Sen. James R. McIntyre [D-Quincy] sees the possibility of using gasoline tax money for mass transit as "a benefit for all our citizens."

The Joint Legislative Committee on Transportation, chaired by McIntyre, recently reported favorably on a constitutional amendment that would permit such use of the money.

"If we are able to improve our rapid transit," said Sen. McIntyre, "more urban commuters will take advantage of it and there will be fewer highway travelers. South Shore highway users should not object to a little more room on the Southeast Expressway.

"Our property taxpayers can no longer afford the cost of improved and efficient mass transit. They need financial help and it must come now from the silent tax man in the gas pump. The importance of this measure cannot be overstressed."

Sen. McIntyre has filed similar bills in the past but this is the first time that one has reached the first stages in the legislative process, a favorable committee report.

Kerr 'Engineer Of Year' At GD Quincy Division

Murray Kerr Jr., a hull design supervisor, has been named "Engineer of the Year" at the Quincy Shipbuilding division of General Dynamics.

Kerr was selected from among eight nominees for his work in helping design the Lykes Bros. "Seabees" ships, which will be the world's largest and most versatile cargo transports, and for design suggestions that led to cost savings in building U.S. Navy Ships.

A $500 honorarium and certificate of achievement were presented to Kerr by Lloyd Bergeson, shipyard general manager and a General Dynamics vice president. In addition, Kerr became the Quincy Shipbuilding division's candidate for the corporate design achievement award, which includes a $1000 honorarium and certificate.

Kerr began his shipbuilding career at Quincy in 1948 as a structural draftsman. He was promoted to hull design supervisor in May, 1968. He is a graduate of Lincoln College of Northeastern University and a registered professional engineer. His activities include membership in The Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers.

Kerr and his wife Joan are the parents of twin daughters, Debra and Denise, and a son, Murray, III. The family lives at 10 Dunster Lane, Scituate.

Decision Awaited On Student Half-Fares

A decision was awaited today from the MBTA on whether Quincy youngsters will get the same break as Boston students in bus fares to and from school.

The MBTA's board of directors was scheduled to meet Wednesday night with Reps. Walter J. Hannon, Clifford H. Marshall and Arthur H. Tobin to discuss further the proposed half rate fares for Quincy students.

The two groups last met March 6 and, said Rep. Hannon, "The entire board was most sympathetic with our position and feel that something is to be done about it. I hope we'll have the answer tonight."

Boston school children who have to take two buses to school pay one fare on the first bus and get a free transfer on the second. Quincy youngsters pay 15 cents on each bus.

"That adds up to 60 cents a day round trip or $3 a week for each youngster," said Hannon. "Families with two, three or four children pay $6, $9 or $12 a week. That's a lot of money.

"We figure the cost of extending the plan outside Boston will be about $100,000 for Quincy, Lynn and other places. Sure it opens a pandora's box for the MBTA but I don't see how they can fairly come to any other decision than half fare."

Once the fare change gains the approval of the MBTA's board of directors it must also be reviewed by the MBTA's advisory board.

Record - High Budget

$130-Plus Tax Rate Seen

Quincy property owners face an ominous possible $130-plus tax rate this year.

PRETTY PREVIEW--Admiring Easter lillies at Roy's Flowers is pretty Janice Siddens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Siddens of Calvin Rd., and a fourth grade student at the Merrymount School. [Quincy Sun Staff Photo]

Passage this week of a record-high $39.9 million municipal budget brought dire predictions of an increase ranging somewhere between $10 and $20 with $15 or $16 the probable mark.

The 1969 rate is $116.40--a hike of $17.50 over the previous year.

Mayor James R. McIntyre thus far has declined to attempt to pinpoint the actual rate other than that there will be "a substantial increase."

Ward 6 Councillor J. Vincent Smyth, chairman of the council's Finance Committee, predicted the budget alone will mean at least a $10 tax rate hike.

He noted his forecast is not taking into consideration other such factors as increased county, MBTA and MDC assessments and a cut in state aid to the city.

Other City Hall sources, preferring not to be identified at this time, see a hike of "around $15 or $16". Some think it could run "in the neighborhood of $20".

This year's tax bills will be based on the present assessment formula as the city, for the third time, won a one-year postponement of implementing 100 per cent fair market value appraisals.

Judge Frank W. Tomasello in Norfolk County Superior Court, gave the city another one-year reprieve, following a hearing on a motion by City Solicitor Harry Pavan to delay implementing the figures until 1971.

Near the end of Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa's administration, Quincy was ordered to assess property at fair market value.

The re-appraisal, brought about by a taxpayers' suit, was carried out by a private firm. Many homeowners protested that the new figures were "unfair" or that errors had been made in the appraising.

McIntyre, who came into office in 1966, set about and has succeeded in postponing implementation of the figures.

A Constitutional amendment, proposed by him and supported by the Quincy Beacon Hill legislative delegation, will put the question of 100 per cent fair market valuation in Massachusetts on the state ballot this November.

If the question wins, the legislature would then be allowed to create disproportionate assessments for homes, industrial and other commercial properties.

Mayor McIntyre hailed Judge Tomasello's decision this week as one that will bring "real assistance taxwise to the small homeowner and rent payer".

He said it would also greatly help "elderly persons on fixed income."

But Atty. Laurence Fordham, counsel for revaluation proponents, saw it quite differently.

"I suggest there is no basis for additional time," he argued before Judge Tomasello.

He likened Quincy's delays to implement court-ordered revaluation figures to Southern delays in implementing court-ordered integration.

He said Quincy has had 185 years since assessment laws were established in 1785 to assess at full and fair market value.

He noted further that it has been nine years since the Springfield taxpayer's suit that knocked down disproportionate assessing.

He pointed out that it has been three years since Cole Layer and Trumble completed the re-appraisal in Quincy and that "there is no basis for additional time."

City Solicitor Pavan argued that implementation of revaluation figures this year could be obsolete next year if Massachusetts voters approve amending the Constitution to allow disproportionate assessing.

Mayor McIntyre slashed $3 million from the original department financial requests before submitting the budget to the council. The council's Finance Committee pruned another $127,000.

Although the budget, as passed, was $39.9 million, the actual operating costs--including earlier appropriations this year--are over $40 million.

Biggest budget increases are for the school, hospital, police, fire and public works departments.

Revaluation Election Issue Says Tobin

Revaluation and unemployment will be the key issues in this year's state election, says Rep. Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy].

Tobin charged that Republicans who have criticized the recent controversial vote on the House reduction are "trying to smoke screen these issues".

He said that if the House size had been cut prior [before this year] to the Constitutional amendment vote to put revaluation on the state ballot this year, the referendum on revaluation would have been killed.

"It was won by just three votes," he said. "If the House had been cut prior to this vote, Quincy would have lost two House seats and two votes. The revaluation victory would have been a defeat, I am sure."

"Quincy homeowners should be proud of their legislative delegation," he declared. "If it hadn't been for the Quincy group, these property owners and others throughout the state would never have gotten the opportunity to vote on revaluation."

If voters approve, the legislature would be allowed to draw up disproportionate formulas for assessing homes, industrial and commercial properties.

Under present law, all properties are required to be assessed at full and 100 per cent fair market valuation.

"This was a tremendous Quincy victory led by Mayor James R. McIntyre and supported by the Quincy delegation," Tobin said.

He said revaluation, favored by "special interests" and unemployment "allowed to rise by Republicans" will be the chief issues in November.

Kelly Ward 4 Chairman

School Committeeman Paul C. Kelly has been elected chairman of the Ward 4 Democratic City Committee.

Kelly, who was vice-chairman, succeeds Robert Montgomery who resigned.

Daniel M. Shea of 114 Bunker Hill Lane, was elected vice-chairman.

Two new members were voted into committee membership. They are Henry Bertolon of 96 Connell St., and Joseph P. Shea of 95 White St.

1938 Hurricane Souvenirs Cleared From Black's Creek

An estimated 200 tree stumps--ugly souvenirs of the 1938 hurricane--are being removed from a section of Black's Creek.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board, said the project has two purposes:

--Remove the 32-year-old eye-sores as part of the city's beautification program.

--Deepen the water storage area to help lessen flooding conditions along Furnace Brook.

The stumps, thrown into the Black's Creek area at the rear of the soccer field at Veterans Memorial Stadium, were from trees bowled over by the surprise hurricane of 1938.

See Photos On Page 3

Hurricanes in the New England area were so infrequent back then, they were not given names as they are today.

Park department personnel, with three trucks, a large crane and a Water Department power shovel are digging away.

The water-logged stumps are being carted to the city dump for burial.

"Removing these stumps is part of our program to beautify the Southern Artery," said Koch. "We have been working on Southern Artery for three or four years.

"Removal of the stumps will also help ease flooding problems along Furnace Brook by deepening the water storage area."

Koch said the high area between the soccer field and the water will be graded and picnic tables and benches placed there.

Woof! Woof! It's License Time Again

Woof! Woof!

It's that time again.

If you own a dog, you must license or re-license him by April 1, reminds City Clerk John M. Gillis.

Fee is $2 for male and spayed and $5 for female.

Last year, an estimated 3,000 dogs were licensed in Quincy. Gillis estimates there may be as many as 4,000 in the city now.

Owners who fail to license their dogs are subject to a $15 fine, he said.

You can save yourself $15 and spare your dog the embarrassment of being carted off to the city pound by licensing him by April 1.

Story On Black's Creek Land 'Splendid' And Appreciated

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Your fine story on the Black's Creek Marsh, written by Mrs. Wainwright, was spendid and of inestimable value in helping the cause for the landtaking.

The civic spirit which prompted THE SUN to devote such space and attention to the Black's Creek Marsh project is truly commendable.

Future generations of residents of Quincy, as well as visitors from afar, will, I am sure, thank Mayor McIntyre, the City Council, the Conservation Commission, the Planning Department, the local press, and the civic groups that had the foresight to recognize the open space-conservation value of this acreage and take steps to preserve it.

Your editorial help was very timely and much appreciated. Thanks very, very much.

Easter

The Tomb was sealed by order great.
The Lock was set by human hate.

And HE who calmed the raging sea-
Died for the love of you and me.

But the Nazarene they thought was odd,
Now sits at the right hand of God.

"Father forgive them they know not what they do."
So spoke the Lord - and his work was through.

He died on the cross at Calvary,
To rise again in Eternity.

They found the great stone rolled away,
And heard the guardian angel say,

"Christ is not within his gloom,
He has risen from the tomb."

He rose triumphant o'er the grave-
And reigns in glory-still to save.

Overseas Mail For Servicemen To Be Expedited

Mail for military servicemen overseas will be expedited by utilizing special containers in the lobbies of all local Post Offices according to George K. Walker, Officer-in-Charge, Boston Postal District.

Mail addressed to APO or FPO New York and San Francisco should be brought directly to the lobby of the local Post Office and deposited in containers marked "Vietnam, APO & FPO". Walker said this mail would be expedited to its destination.

This arrangement is for the duration of the work stoppage, he said.

Sunbeams

Close friends are just about convinced that School Committeeman James F. McCormick will run for mayor next year if incumbent James McIntyre bows out.

They feel he wants to run and that his change of jobs [new brokerage firm] will allow him to toss his hat into the ring.

And on his past vote-getting performances, they think he would be a man to reckon with in any kind of a mayoralty field.

HOUSE SPEAKER David Bartley will be among those attending a friendship dinner May 2 in honor of Rep.-City Councillor Clifford H. Marshall. The event will be held at the Fore River Clubhouse. Committee chairman is Miss Louise Tropea of 48 Baxter Ave.

MILESTONE: Frank Easter Bridgman, former Quincy resident and long-time clerk of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, will be 91 March 29. He's now living at Wesley Manor, Jacksonville, Fla. Mayor James R. McIntyre is sending him a large "birthday card"--an Honorary Quincy Citizen certificate.

CONGRESSMAN James A. Burke remembered friends in the Quincy area again this St. Patrick's Day by having his office distribute tiny pots of shamrocks to them

DAN CUPID NOTE: James [Pete] Ricciuti, Mayor McIntyre's executive secretary, will be escorting pretty daughter, Carole, down the aisle in October. She'll become Mrs. Richard W. Corner. The latter ran for the Ward 3 City Council seat last year.

TAXES, TAXES and more taxes, Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the City Planning Board speaking at a recent Quincy Rotary Club meeting, said he sees Quincy's tax rate up over the $125 mark in 1971. Twenty years ago it was something like $35.

Help is on the way, though, he noted. The Jordan Marsh distribution center in North Quincy will yield $1 million tax revenue in 1971--reflecting about $5 on the rate.

The planned multi-million dollar State Street South complex in Montclair will bring a King-Size chunk of new revenue. If it were completed next year, for example, it would help the rate by $25, he said.

He also sees considerable construction of office and apartment buildings near the three new MBTA stations in Quincy.

But in the meanwhile, taxes, taxes and more taxes.

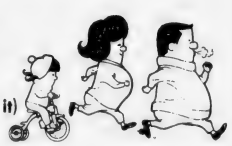
MAYBE THE FACT that the air around us is being poisoned every day doesn't bother some people. But it should. Do you know, asks the Massachusetts Medical Society, that you inhale air 22,000 times every day. That's a lot of poison.

* * *



A LOT OF PEOPLE must be absent minded. The IRS reports 3,638 Massachusetts taxpayers waiting for refund checks aren't getting them--for a while, anyway. Instead, they're getting back their federal income tax returns because they forgot to sign them. And others may never get their refunds. They're the ones who moved and forgot to leave a forwarding address.

McIntyre Bill Brings Additional Housing Funds

A Senate amendment won by Mayor-Sen. James R. McIntyre will allow Quincy to receive additional funds for leased housing for the needy and elderly.

Commenting on the amendment, passed Tuesday, McIntyre declared:

"Senate Bill 1325 was amended by me in the Senate to give more funds to the cities like Quincy which have taken full advantage of the funds available from the state Department of Community Affairs for leased housing.

"Under the provisions of my amendment the Quincy Housing Authority which has already used up its state allocated $100,000 for leased housing may apply for additional funds and may receive a prepayment of up to $5,000 to give to the landlords.

"There are not more than a dozen city housing authorities which make use of these available funds and Quincy has the best program in the Commonwealth. I am pleased this amended bill will allow more funds to become available for leased housing in Quincy, because it is an ideal program for needy tenants who live in these apartments leased to the Housing Authority.

These housing units, unlike most housing authority units, are still kept on the tax rolls of the city which benefits both the tenants and also the taxpayers."

Mrs. George MacLean of 44 Silver St., from St. Joseph's Church, also a den mother for more than four years, received the medal from Rev. James J. McCarthy, Scout chaplain at St. Joseph's.

Msgr. Robert W. McNeill, Archdiocesan CYO director, was in charge of the program.

Advantages Of Synthetic Wigs

Synthetic wigs have now come into their own. Most of the basic objections to their maintenance, wearability and appearance have been eliminated. The unnatural, hard, shininess is gone from the better wigs. The tangling, matting and shedding problems have been solved by new construction techniques. And there is a much wider range of colors from which to choose.

Synthetics are now color-stable and resist fading. However, you can't change the color yourself and few salons will attempt to alter the color.

Synthetic fiber wigs have two things going for them: low price and easy maintenance. They may be bought for a fraction of the price of a human hair wig. They are almost impervious to rain, and you can store them in an old nylon stocking or carry them in a handbag.

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

One Month Before

Now is the time to mail the invitations that have been neatly addressed in black ink with no abbreviations, sealed and stamped weeks ago.

It's time to go for the final fitting of your wedding gown. Be sure you have the same undergarments and shoes you had for your first fitting. These are also the ones you'll wear on your wedding day. Make arrangements with your bridal consultant to pick up your gown. The nearer to your wedding day the better. A good bridal shop will press your gown. If you pick it up too far ahead chances are you'll have to repress it. This is no job for an amateur.

Also, you will find all your friends and relatives will want to "peek". This will spoil the fun of surprise as you walk down the aisle. Check with all your attendants to make sure they have had their fittings and made their dates to pick up the gowns. They should also have their hats, shoes and proper undergarments by now.

Have you made plans for the rehearsal party? Now is the time to finalize these arrangements. Occasionally the groom's parents take care of this. If this is the case, then all you have to do is to give your new mother the list of names. Make out your seating list.

Finish your trousseau shopping. Remember little extras such as new comb and brush, toothpaste and brush, hair spray, nylons and tissues.

Your new home should be just about complete. Finish the details after you come back from your trip. The important thing from now on is to be sure to get rest.

By now gifts should be arriving. Thank You notes must be sent out on time. [Within two weeks after you receive them] Take the time to write a personal note and mention the gift received.

Never send a printed thank you note only. Your guests took the time and effort to send special gifts now it's up to you to show your appreciation.

[Mabelle is owner of Weddings by Mabelle and a noted bridal consultant]

Black's Creek Acquisition Brings Letters Of Thanks From Rep. Brett

Rep. Joseph E. Brett has expressed his "deep appreciation" for the long sought acquisition of 50 acres of Black's Creek marshland for preservation.

Brett, a member of the City Conservation Commission and one of the spearheads for the acquisition, sent letters of appreciation to Mayor James R. McIntyre, City Council President Arthur H. Tobin and Mrs. David B. Coletti, president of the Quincy League of Women Voters.

In his letter to McIntyre, he declared:

"Please accept my most sincere thanks and appreciation for your affirmative action and leadership in seeing the Black's Creek marshes preserved and protected from undesired development.

"I'm sure the years ahead will prove this action to be a major step forward in the interest of keeping Quincy a place we can all proudly call our home.

"My heartfelt gratitude is extended to all who have played a part in this positive step forward for our beloved community."

In his letter to Tobin, he said:

"I am happy to convey my sincere thanks and appreciation to you and your fellow councillors for the favorable action on the acquisition and protection of the Black's Creek marshes from undesired development.

"Your unanimous action is a feather in the cap of all the councillors who can wear it proudly for many years."

In his letter to Mrs. Coletti, Brett said:

"I do want to express my deep appreciation and sincere thanks to you and your associates [especially Anne Kane] in the League for the wonderful job you all did in helping to save our Black's Creek marshes from undesired development.

"As you know, I have been working on this project for years but it could never have been accomplished without the help of the League."

Brett in 1959 filed legislation to have the MDC acquire the land for park and recreation purposes.

Last week, after hearings and a vote by the City Council, the city formally acquired 50 acres of the land for preservation when Mayor McIntyre signed a $76,700 finance order and an accompanying land taking order.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By Charles H. Wickens

This question appeared here last week. Psychologists ask the question in behalf of clients when examining employee applications.

"Of all the men you know, have known, met or heard of, what one man would you most like to be like?" Explain why - - Some selections and reasons show peculiar, even fuzzy thinking. What person, at least of Christian faith, could possibly fail to select the One Man who not only changed the course of history, but changed the calendar as well? Apart from the religious aspect, this Man was so remarkable, our calendar is dated B.C. and A.D. - before Christ and in the year of our Lord. Even non-Christians who deny His divinity, knew He DID live on earth. From His birth to His crucifixion, He lived an exemplary life of selflessness; never a thought of selfishness. His life, His acts, His teaching - left an indelible imprint with more impact than any other man who ever lived.

At Easter, let us rejoice that He proved life is continuous; indestructible; that His resurrection proved eternity does not start with death, but from the moment of mortal birth; that He proved our physical life of imperfections is only a prelude to spiritual perfection He promises us in His Heaven. When we reject Him, we reject the precious gift of Easter. . .

Maundy Service Special

Rev. Franklin W. McGuire, interim pastor since March 1 at Adams Shore Community Church [United Methodist], tonight [Thursday] will preach his first sermon from the church pulpit.

Four weeks ago an oil burner emergency laid a thick layer of soot and oil over the entire church interior. Believing that "the people are the Church," crowded cottage-type worship services and all activities, including Church School and all meetings, were transferred to the recently vacated parsonage at 100 Albatross Rd.

Folding chairs in living room, dining room and kitchen served as pews. Paper picnic plates doubled as offering plates, and a discarded buffet was the altar. Miss Marjorie McAllister, church organist, provided suitable music on a portable $29.95 chord organ.

Tonight at 7:45 p.m. parishioners will return to a cleaned sanctuary for Maundy Thursday worship. Rev. McGuire's sermon will be "Evil Was a Guest." The reactivated Senior Choir will sing "O Sacred Head," directed by Miss McAllister.

Reason enough for a joyous Easter.

'A New Set Of Problems'

There's no perfect marriage. Many people who claim they have no problems in their marriage are either burying their real problems...or are presenting a false front. Probably a little of both. Every set of problems is different...but they are there...you're the cause...or your partner...OR BOTH.

Occasionally one is satisfied while the other isn't...which makes for a sick situation. A man is responsible for the happiness of his wife...a woman for her husband's happiness. To ignore the needs of the other is selfish.

Typical problems: Your wife is cold...or you are; you're an alcoholic...or your husband is; you're a sloppy housekeeper...or your husband's a slob; you're a hypochondriac...or your wife is; you're so rigid that to bend a little you break...or your husband is; you're frigid...or your husband is impotent. So you've gone on now for a long time...unhappy...not knowing how to handle the problem...not knowing who to talk with...now it's getting to you...you're feeling "it's now or never" if you're to have any happiness together. The magazine articles you read point out your problems clearly. But what to do?

You've considered voluntary separation...maybe even tried that...but since the problems were not resolved when you went back together the same old conflict reared its ugly head. You've considered divorce hoping to find a new partner who would carry you up to Cloud 9...there to live "happy ever after." That too is a myth...that new relationship would also have problems...a NEW SET...probably no easier to handle...maybe that you'd be less able to handle. Think about that!

Some marriages probably should have been dissolved long ago...some shouldn't have taken place in the first place. But too many divorces take place on unrealistic grounds...couples simply got tired trying...ran away from the set of problems with which they were familiar...hoping for a new relationship free of problems. They only fool themselves. I see many people with "second marriage" problems.

Nearly always the "little boy in the man"...and the "little girl in the woman" are dictating to two adult people. So they can't relate to each other in their adult roles...because one...or both are acting out the child within them. Child conditioning is rather indelible. So until we learn to bring the "inner child" under our adult control...become parent to the child within us, we have problems in our relationships...especially the man to woman relationship. Until we resolve that inner problem we can go through a dozen wives/husbands and still not find happiness.

A man said recently to his boy..."I'd rather be who I am than anyone else in the world." His son answered, "So would I, Dad." They have their problems but that family is coping.

There's a popular song...at the top of the best sellers at this writing...which says what I think a husband/wife should be to each other...or parents to children..."Like a Bridge Over Troubled Water." I wish I could sing it to you...I think it packs a powerful message.

"When you're weary, feeling small,
When tears are in your eyes
I will dry them all.
I'm on your side.
When times get rough, and friends just can't be found.
Like a bridge over troubled water I will lay me down.
When you're down and out, when you're on the street.
When evening falls so hard I will comfort you.
I'll take your part when darkness comes
And pain is all around.
Like a bridge over troubled water I will lay me down."

Mr. Husband, one question...straight from the shoulder...man to man..."Are you a bridge over troubled water for your wife?" If not, why not?

Mrs. Housewife, the same question..."Are you a bridge over troubled water for your husband?" You're his greatest need...that's why he married you. If you are truly, then your set of problems can be brought under control. If you're not...either of you...you can just keep running...and running...and running from one shallow relationship to the next...never really solving any set of problems...just running away.

There are no Angel Gabriel husbands. There are no Virgin Mary wives. We're all just human beings.

Integrity Vital Part Of Business State Street Executive Says

"Integrity is as vital a part of business life as it is of spiritual life", John N. Dwyer, vice president of the State Street Bank and Trust Company said Sunday in a Communion Breakfast address to the Ave Maria Council Knights of Columbus.

Dwyer, who heads the bank's planned multi-million dollar State Street South project in North Quincy, called for the practice of integrity to make the New England of today and tomorrow as good and as rewarding as the New England of the past has been.

He cited integrity as New England's cornerstone, and traced the development of New England life, business and industry based on the virtue. He also said the principal attraction of State Street South was the integrity of the concept itself and the integrity of the State Street Bank.

"In this age of everybody doing their own thing, why not make our own thing integrity?", he asked. He said as a banker he is employed in a profession which sells integrity and deals in money. "Our stock in trade is confidence, trust, experience, knowledge and management", he said and added, "and they are all based on an integrity without peer in the banking business whose bedrock itself is fundamental honesty".

In discussing State Street South, Dwyer said he is convinced that it has been the basic soundness of the bank which has been the ultimate catalyst. Noting that traditional methods were not used in assembling the new project, he said the only familiar aspect of the State Street Bank and Trust Company in State Street South has been its venerable and respected integrity.

Dwyer said that in forging the concept of State Street South, the bank has used a new avenue of cooperation between the public and private sectors to bring it about. He said the procedures have been based on a mutual integrity embracing public officials and bodies and the bank.

Dwyer cited the integrity of the concept of the new development. "It will preserve and further the environment and it is being planned for people and is a plan for the future. And to insure its soundness, we have insisted upon controlling the environment to protect the environment rather than exploiting it".

Dwyer termed State Street South a "demonstration of our faith in the future of the people of this area and the area itself".

He said he was stressing the need for integrity because he thinks the virtue is in danger of not being followed. He suggested that parents must practice integrity as an example to their children, if it is to be passed along to future generations.

"There is a greater need for a commitment to integrity today in 1970 than ever before", he said. "There is a dire need for a commitment to integrity because unless we preserve it and further it there will be no measurement left to dignify human actions. Distrust will flourish and we will continue only to preach but cease to practice. And any one or all of us can picture the logical end."

I Cry A Lot

They sure aren't making movies like they used to. Oh, I don't mean because of the SEX, SEX, SEX angle, they're just not making what used to be referred to as "tear-jerkers".

In days gone by I used the movies instead of a psychiatrist. A good cry is great for all that pent up hostility you would normally direct at the kids, your husband, your mother-in-law, the grocer and the President. For the price of admission to the movies I could get rid of all my pent up emotions.

No more! I was all ready to cry at the wedding in "The Graduate" and there wasn't any. I had my handkerchief out and ready when Rosemary was going to show the baby, and all they showed was a bassinet. Even I don't cry at a bassinet.

Look at "Butch Cassidy And The Sundance Kid", I knew they were going to get it in the end, and I had my Kleenex all ready, but the end turned into a still picture. Its really frustrating.

I used to go to the movies quite a bit. The children came with me if my husband refused to, on the grounds that his suit wasn't drip dry. Towards the end of a tear-jerker, my kids watch me instead of the movie, when they see me pull my lips together and reach for a handkerchief, they say, "O.K., let's go", and they run down about six rows in front of me, because from past experience they know what's coming.

But they can still hear me. And as everybody turns around to look at the lady sobbing hysterically, they say in a very loud voice "who is that strange lady back there crying?" The other one says "I don't know, I've never seen her before in my life."

When the movie is over, they slink up the side aisle, and wait for me outside, turning their coat collar up so that no one will recognize them as being related to the woman being assisted out the door by the usher. [Crying takes a lot out of you.]

Years ago, I was embarrassed when the lights went on, and everyone could see my red and swollen eyes, make-up running down my chin, and dozens of kleenex around my seat, but now I just whip out my sun glasses and stagger up the aisle, still sobbing, of course.

I read all the reviews of the current movies trying to get some idea of how many packs of kleenex to bring with me. Some movies only take half a pack of kleenex, others take two boxes. You really must know these things before you go, because I have been caught short sometimes, and find myself wiping my nose on the coat of the person sitting in front of me.

I do enjoy a good cry at the end of a movie. But I really get annoyed at writers who inject a tearful scene in the beginning or middle of a picture, because then I miss the rest of the movie, and people sitting around me are very unkind in their remarks about any woman who will cry for an hour or two when they're trying to watch a movie.

TV is a big help now. They show so many old movies, I can cry in the privacy of my home. I will admit a lot of my meals are quite salty. I also cry at TV soap operas. Why in the past 15 years I've used up 37½ boxes of kleenex on "As the World Turns".

My crying had been limited to afternoon and evening TV shows, but now they are showing re-runs of Lassie about 7:30 every morning. Do you realize the predicaments Lassie has gotten into over a period of 10 years? That poor dog is extremely accident prone.

Now when the kids come down for breakfast, instead of finding hot oatmeal on the table, they find me, tears streaming down my face, saying, "Please, Lassie, please get Timmy out of that cave before the bear comes, and the typhoon causes the volcano to erupt and that bullet in your heart starts to slow you down, please Lassie HURRY!"

Quincy, North Choirs On Television

The combined Quincy and North Quincy High School Concert Choirs will be seen tonight [Thursday] at 7:30 p.m. on WBZ-TV and again on April 5 at 5:30 p.m., in a taped reproduction of their Symphony Hall Concert debut.

The choirs, numbering some 90 students, were directed by Gale Harrison of Quincy High and Maurice Carbonneau of North Quincy, on Tuesday in a program organized by American Youth Performs. Sponsors were American Airlines, Jordan Marsh Company and WBZ-TV.

Invitations were sent to all Quincy officials and school administrators, and the performance was attended by families and friends of the Quincy students.

Prof. Allan C. Lannom of Boston University conducted the chorus which included also the Weymouth High School Concert Choir directed by Richard Burns and selected members of the Southeast and Northeast District Choruses.

A band directed by Prof. Robert Winslow of Boston University included Abington and Bedford High School Bands, with selected musicians from the Southeast and Northeast District Bands.

Ralph Hermann from New York was guest conductor for a combined chorus and band selection. Emerson Head was guest trumpeter.

Recreation Roundup

William F. Ryan, director of recreation and Barry Welch, Pilot Project director are pleased with the Pilot Project's activities for this, the sixth week.

Highlights this week will be the opening of the Youth Drop In Center at the Fore River Club House. This will leave the South West Quincy program as the only project area without a building that area youth can call their own.

Sterling Junior High

A change in the schedule has been implemented effective last Monday. Monday evenings will replace Fridays in a concerted effort to complement the all ready large number of youngsters that the program is now serving. The New Schedule is:

Monday and Wednesday, 6-7 elementary, 7-8:30 junior high and 8:30-10 senior high.

Joe Daly, a Boston College senior, and a detached worker for the program is greatly responsible for the large turnout the program is experiencing. Joe has contacted many of the boys on the streets and in establishments where the boy's have been known to frequent. Plans are being formulated for softball activity at Kincaide Park when the warmer weather permits. Junior High basketball, never dormant in the area, seems to be the sport that captivates most of the interest among this age group. Among the non-regulars on the Sterling School teams who have shown leadership and ability in this area are: Dick Griffin, Bob Volpini, Brian Osborne, Jim Hearn and Preston Carroll.

Alan Boidi was recently awarded a junior leadership badge by Vin Picardi, one of the leaders of the program, for exceptional leadership in the elementary group.

South West Quincy--Girls

Sterling Junior High gym is the place to be on Thursday nights for girls recreation from 6 to 10 p.m. They have an enrollment of 70 girls ranging in age from elementary to senior high school. These girls enjoy the use of the gym's apparatus such as balance beams, still rings, and ropes. There is always a game of basketball, volleyball, or badminton going on, and a record player is kept in a corner of the gym. The instructors, Betty Chase and Peggy O'Brien are putting a girls basketball team together from the junior and senior high girls, who hope to compete with other teams in the city.

Snug Harbor

Things are really beginning to come alive at Snug Harbor. The crowds keep coming and growing. Gymnastics is the big attraction down here and we hope to get a gymnastics team started real soon. Who knows, we might even make the olympics next year! Large tissue paper flowers made the scene last week. Thanks to Joan Campell, Gayle Bergstrom and Linda Fishel who all made real prize winners, alias "The Flower Children". Ping pong is beginning to shape up, along with checkers and Kalah, all done to popular background music.

Atherton Hough

"Up, Up, and Away," by the 5th Dimensions is a great incentive for exercising with the girls at Atherton Hough. Maybe you would rather do your sit ups to the Temptations greatest hits. Whatever your musical preference we have it and exercising to music makes a big hit with us!

Volleyball and basketball are played in great style by the girls. We are in the process of organizing teams and planning playoffs. Badminton enthusiasts Debby Condon and Lynn Hodges welcome any avid competitors.

The girls enjoy the area of Arts and Crafts. They have experimented in Batiking, Tissue Paper Bottles, and last week designed giant mod colored flowers; made of tissue paper and wire. The "in" colors appear to be purple and green. We congratulate Madeline Flynn, Joanne Cossette, Joanne Candido, Yvonne Mackey, Karen Mackenzie, Diane Damiano, Helen Bernetosis and Betty Maher for their creative endeavors in art.

Margaret Ryan, Debbie Condon, Lynn Hodges, Doreen Condon, Diane Condon, Janice Lorenzetti and Bonnie Henneberry display great skills in the area of gymnastics. They organized a demonstration which included such feats as back walk overs, front walk overs, back hand springs, areials, forward rolls, backward rolls, back extension rolls, tincikas, and round off back hand swings. We are looking forward to challenging other Quincy areas.

As you can see we are off to a rigorous and fun filled start. The more the merrier - why not join us!

Three Top Pitchers Gone

Quincy Will Need 'Winning Attitude'

Quincy's baseball teams have acquired a winning attitude as the result of their success the past few years and Coach Bob Basiliere admits "the boys will really need such an attitude this year."

Basiliere, whose teams have done extremely well over the past several years and made the Eastern Mass. tourney again last spring, is far from optimistic this year with his three top pitchers and several other starters gone.

"I honestly will settle for just winning our share of games this year," Basiliere said. "We are not established at any position and are seeking depth and stability."

A year ago the pitching was the Presidents' strong point with Steve McDevitt and Paul Duff outstanding throughout the year and Bobby Pettinelli turning in one of the year's top feats in putting the team into the tourney.

All three graduated and the only pitchers with any varsity experience at all are southpaw Steve Sullivan and right-hander Rich Brown. Both saw very limited service.

"I hope these two will improve enough to be regular starters," the veteran coach said. "Both have the potential and are hard workers."

Other pitching hopes are Joe Sterling, Bob Driscoll, Mark Whelton and lefty Jimmy Walker. Walker is a sophomore, the others juniors.

Quincy has seven senior lettermen, catcher Cliff Mattson, infielders Kevin Ryan and Rich DiCristofaro, pitcher Brown and outfielders Bruce Carlson, Paul Hand and John Stevens. Sullivan and infielder Pete Lucier are junior letter winners.

Lucier saw little service during the regular season in 1969 but, after an injury to the regular third baseman, he took over and did a tremendous job for a sophomore in the playoffs.

Pushing Mattson for the catching spot are junior Bobby Sacchetti and sophomore Bob Bosader.

Billy Maver has the inside track on first base and other infield hopefuls are junior Russ McDonald and sophomores Art Boyle and Dennis Marvelle. If Boyle can come through as he did as goalie on the fine hockey team this winter, Basiliere would be delighted.

Among those striving for outfield berths are senior Lloyd Allen, junior Dave Drew and sophomore Steve McCarthy, a brilliant running back last fall for the varsity football team.

"I had a turnout of 55 which is quite small compared to other schools, including North Quincy [84]," Basiliere added. "I think North will be one of the league's best teams this year and we will have our hands full opening up with them on April 13 and then going up against Somerville in the next game."

Basiliere won't soon forget the 1969 season. When Quincy lost the final game of the regular season, 5-0, to North, he was so sure the Presidents were out of the tournament running that he packed away all the uniforms and went fishing on the Cape.

However, other big upsets on the final day enabled Quincy to tie Malden and Medford for second place behind Somerville, necessitating a three-way playoff.

Quincy topped Medford, 8-4, in the first game and then battled Malden to a thrilling 18-inning 2-2 tie.

With Duff and McDevitt having gone all the way in the two games [McDevitt went the entire 18 innings against Malden], Basiliere was strapped for a pitcher for the playoff of the tie game.

That is when Pettinelli, who hadn't pitched much during the season, stepped in. He went all the way in pitching a 7-3 victory to put his team into the tourney.

North Has Vets Nucleus

Charlie Bunker, former pitching star whose chances of making the grade with the Red Sox, were ended by a sore arm, made his debut as North Quincy baseball coach last year.

And, although his first club had only a 5-9 Greater Boston League record and 8-9 overall mark, it lost many tough games and gave all teams trouble.

This year Bunker has a good nucleus of veterans and several excellent graduates of last year's fine junior varsity team and the Raiders' coach hopes for better success.

"We have a lot of fine players and should have a good season," Bunker admitted. "There is a lot of good competition and the boys from Jack Bowen's jayvee team look very good." That club was 8-4 last year.

The highlight of the 1969 season was a 5-0 win over rival Quincy on the final day of the regular season which apparently knocked the Presidents out of an Eastern Mass. Tourney berth. But a series of other upsets enabled Quincy to finish in a three-way tie for second place and it eventually won a three-way playoff to make the tourney.

North lost an outstanding pitcher in Gary McGrath, big righthander, who was signed by the Seattle Pilots, but has some excellent hurlers back.

They are headed by Craig Bogosian and Bill Deshler, who hurled well for the varsity a year ago. Scott Manson, who won six games for the jayvees, Mike Gillis and Dan Zink, other jayvee graduates, and a newcomer, Jeff Calvert, also look good. All are right-handers.

Steve Tomasetti, a starting outfielder last year, has the inside track on the catching spot handled well by Dennis Driscoll last spring, and three 1969 junior varsity players, Tony Kelly, George Bourikas and Steve Donaghey, and sophomore Dave Nelson, are pushing him.

Veteran Bill Cobban and Bobby Bell, who moved up from the jayvees late last year, are fighting it out for first base and Tim Flynn, who batted .400 for the jayvees, Bob Colleran, another jayvee grad, and Joe Marini, out for the first time, are the second base hopefuls.

Two vets, Bob Langley and Dan O'Malley, and a good prospect from the JV team, Tony Alibrandi, are going for the shortstop job.

Jack Flaherty, who batted .480 for the jayvees, and sophomore Tom Burke, are the top hopes for third base.

In the outfield Tomasetti will play if one of the other candidates makes the grade as catcher. Other veterans are Ed Monti and Gary Watson. Junior varsity graduates are Zink, Ed Monahan, Jim Sarruda and John Alberti. Chris Norton, Bob Graham and sophomore Mike Lorma are other aspirants.

"We have about 40 sophomores out and they all look good," Bunker said. "They include Nelson, Burke, Bobby McKay, Bob Torino, Jack Linnehan and Brian Corcoran. Several of them will play for the junior varsity."

Judging from the large number of sophomores, it is evident that a separate sophomore schedule would be a welcome addition to the athletic program.

"We should have a lot of speed and the defense should be strong," Bunker continued. "The pitching is a question mark but has fine potential and I think we will hit all right. If Flynn and Flaherty can hit as they did with the jayvees, they will help considerably."

Bowes, who has been jayvee coach for several years, continues in that capacity and was praised by Bunker for his excellent work.

North opens its league season against Quincy on April 13 but the season's opener will be against Abp. Williams on April 10.

Henry Willman Retiring April 1 After Half-Century Service

By TOM SULLIVAN

Last spring Quincy YMCA lost one of its most dedicated workers when General Secretary Gilbert [Crum] Crofts retired after serving the Y for 43 years in various capacities.

Next Wednesday the Y loses another of its gifted executives when Henry J. Willman, program and membership director for 14 years and promoted last September to associate executive, retires after serving in YMCA work for 48 years.

Willman shared in the growing number of administrative duties as well as a specific assignment as director of the recently established Program Department.

Henry came to Quincy in 1955 when the new building opened as program and membership director. "I think I was the first in the building," he smiled.

He took over his new duties after 27 years as physical director of Brockton Y and six years as physical director at Lynn Y.

Willman was secretary and advisor of the Y Church League for 14 years, watching the popular league expand until there are now more than 1,000 boys and girls playing in it.

He was connected with the Y's basketball and softball leagues for five years after coming to Quincy when these leagues were in their prime.

Henry, who looks much younger than his 72 years, served as General Secretary for two months following Crofts' retirement.

He also has directed, together with Clifford Mason, the Y's popular sailing camp which operates each summer at Mason's Point in Squantum. He plans to continue this activity on a volunteer basis.

Henry J. Willman

Willman, who sails a lot himself, is a member of the Quincy Race Week committee as well as the Coast Guard Auxiliary and in 1963 he was awarded the Finlay Memorial Trophy for service to sailing. The award was presented to Henry for saving two women from drowning when they fell out of their boat.

A native of Boston, Willman spent his early youth in Quincy and Weymouth before moving to Brockton. He graduated from Brockton High school and summer schools of physical education at Harvard and Silver Bay, N.Y.

He began his YMCA career in 1922 at Brockton under Ralph W. Fish, who was for many years the physical director, and took over as physical director in 1939 when Fish was appointed as membership director there.

During his 27 years at Brockton Willman served as secretary for the athletic committee of the South Shore Principals' Association and was director of the high school basketball and track meets which operated there for many years.

It was during that time that I first met him while covering tournament basketball games and found him a dedicated worker and a fine man with whom to work. We met many times during his career at Brockton.

He has received numerous honors. He is a past president of the Massachusetts and Rhode Island YMCA Physical Directors' Society, served as secretary of the Two-State Track and Field committee and as YMCA representative on the New England Amateur Athletic Union governing board.

He is a member of the N. E. Track and Field Officials' Association and officiated at many NEAAAU, Intercollegiate AAAU, high school and YMCA track and swimming events.

He was awarded an honorary life membership by the Massachusetts Board of Approved Basketball Officials in recognition of his efforts over the years in behalf of the sport.

Henry resides at 888 Sea Street in Quincy with his wife Irene, a former physical director. His daughter, Natalie, served as physical director at the Philadelphia Y and now is physical education teacher at Farleigh-Dickinson College in Teaneck, N.J.

"I'm going to miss YMCA work after all these years," he said. "But I intend to stay active and they will continue to see plenty of me around the Y. We are going to visit Europe for five weeks and when we return I am going to continue working with Cliff Mason with the sailing camp. I've made many friends while serving in Quincy and I hope to keep these friendships. I want to thank all those who worked with me and assisted me with the many YMCA activities."

Like Gil Crofts, Henry Willman will be sorely missed by all those with whom he has been associated and all those who have been helped by him.

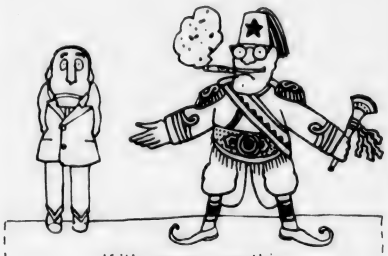
Chamber Members Attend Unemployed Workshop



Ronald F. Frazier, executive secretary of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce participated in a work-shop sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Alliance of Businessmen at the Fenway-Cambridge Motor Inn, Cambridge last week.

Also attending were Chamber members Marvin E. Watts of Procter & Gamble, Legislative Committee Co-Chairman for the Chamber; Edward Hart, Quincy Shipbuilding Division of General Dynamics, Personnel Managers' Group Co-Chairman for the Chamber and David Lavalette, also of General Dynamics.

The National Alliance of Businessmen is a voluntary effort to encourage businessmen to hire and train the hard-core unemployed. The national jobs program is expanding considerably and the United States Chamber arranged the state level meeting in order that Chambers in Massachusetts might be able to decide the feasibility of Chamber of Commerce involvement in such a program in local areas, as well as the affect on Chambers programs.

Frazier noted that there are a number of companies on the South Shore presently hiring and training the hard-core unemployed.

A helpful hint for Mrs. Clean.

Electric heat. You see it's flameless. So there's no fuel grime to keep you rubbing and scrubbing. With electric heat, every room can have its own thermostat. And you get more space because there's no furnace, flue, or fuel tank. Reasonably priced, too.
Why not call us for a free estimate?

Electric heat does more for you.

Weymouth Wolf Watchers

Once upon a time, boys and girls, there was a young cat assigned to watch over a flock of sheep. It was his first job, and his parents hoped he wouldn't mess things up. He was, however, fairly loose, and cool, and all like that.

One night he decided to have a blast, so, when all the squares in the village were asleep for the night, he began to holler "wolf, wolf". In no time at all the hillside was covered with townsmen, out to slay the wolf. [Isn't it amazing, and frightening, the way men will react, ready to fight, without really knowing what the facts are?]

This sheep-watching cat had a belly full of laughs over the whole caper, and tried it a few more times. The villagers finally caught on, and, as you know, when the wolf finally did make the scene, the ball game was all over, for the sheep and the wise cat.

At the last town meeting, the people of Weymouth voted, by a narrow margin, to fluoridate the water supply. One would have thought the whole future of the world depended on the outcome. If as much time and effort - money and literature was expended on youth programs, we would not have the drug and delinquency problems we have. But, then, these "villagers" think THEY know what's important. Proponents would have you believing that teeth are rotting and falling out, right and left, while opponents would have you imagine that the Antichrist himself is leading the fluoridation parade.

The facts are ... fluoride, in a concentration of 1.2 parts per million, can reduce the incidence of dental caries [cavities] by 60% or better. This has been proven in experiment after experiment, where inhabitants of similar cities, one with fluoride one without, have been compared. The only difference between these groups of citizens is a reduction in the number of cavities. There has absolutely been no increase in incidence of any known [or unknown] diseases attributable to fluoridation. This is not to say that fluoride is harmless. However, only in large doses can it be particularly dangerous. It is estimated that one would have to drink 16,000 glasses of water in a single day to absorb a lethal dose. Now that's a lot of water, even for one under Chinese torture.

It is charged that:

Fluoridated water causes or makes worse many diseases or physical ailments. Included in anti-fluoridation literature are the following diseases alleged to be caused or made worse by the consumption of fluoridated water:

Cancer; diseases of the digestive tract; liver diseases; kidney diseases; respiratory diseases, including tuberculosis; diseases of the circulatory system, including hardening of the arteries; hemophilia, leukemia and anemia; eye diseases and defects; diseases of the endocrine glands; degeneration of the thyroid gland; diabetes; impaired functioning of the thyroid, adrenal and sex glands; diseases of the skin, nails and hair, and diseases and abnormalities of the bones and joints.

All these charges have been refuted in a beautiful article by Elwell and Easlick.

Those against fluoridation for medical reasons don't have a leg, or even half a leg to stand on. They are taking isolated facts, and making wild, unsubstantiated statements about them, completely out of context. This sort of "freedom of speech" is getting close to "crying fire in a crowded theater". It is dangerous, and for the most part untrue. This is crying "wolf".

With the exception of one year, I have resided in communities with fluoridated water since 1960. My hair hasn't fallen out [since it is a family trait to LOSE hair, maybe fluoride has helped]. I don't have kidney stones, my teeth are pretty and white [or pretty and gold, as the case may be] and my libido hasn't changed, neither do I need to take Midol for headaches. The only real change that I have noticed is a lowered tolerance for those who make wild claims without the facts to back the claims up.

I do not wish to argue with those who oppose fluoridation with a political or religious argument. They have a right to their opinions, and a right to express themselves, just as I have my rights. I don't think the merits of these arguments, pro or con, belong in a medical column. I would only ask that those persons be consistent.

Speaking of consistency, I have recently noted that the same people who are damning the Supreme Court and Mrs. M. M. O'H., [prayers and the Bible belong in the school, not the home], are the same ones who are condemning Mary Calderone and SEICUS [sex education belongs in the home, not in the schools]. There is a wee bit of inconsistency to some people's arguments.

I am not here taking a stand on either of these issues..

More May Be Coming

'Do-It-Yourself' Snow Cleanup Saves $50,000

Quincy, still digging out at mid-week from a double-header Easter snowstorm, braced itself for possibly more of the same.

The white stuff that left a seven-inch blanket Easter Sunday and a new five-inch covering Tuesday, was forecast again for last night and today.

The "White Easter of 1970", meanwhile, was destined to take its place in history with such memorable reminders of nature's wrath as the "Portland Storm", the St. Valentine's Blizzard of 1941 and the twin-blizzards of March, 1956.

But, there was some consolation for Quincy taxpayers. The city, thanks to Public Works Department crews, managed to save an estimated $50,000 fighting this week's storms. Actual cost was approximately a total $6,000.

Department personnel left Easter gatherings at home Sunday afternoon and night to report to work to plow, sand and salt.

"Thanks to these dedicated men, we did not have to hire private contractors or extra equipment," Mayor James R. McIntyre said. "They are to be commended for giving up most of their Easter and for doing a fine job."

He estimated it would have cost approximately $25,000 Sunday to hire outside help and equipment.

On Tuesday, Public Works Department personnel again carried the entire snowfighting task, saving approximately another $25,000.

"This is a lot of money--especially at this time of year," McIntyre declared.

Public Works Commissioner John M. Browne joined the Mayor in praising his men.

He called Sunday's storm one of the worst of the winter.

For Quincy and most of New England, Easter looked more like Christmas than last Christmas did.

It was post-card pretty. But to other than Quincy students who got an unexpected day off from school Monday, it was all pretty awful.

The storm brought traffic snarls and an outbreak of accidents, attributed mainly to the fact that many motorists had believed the calendar and removed their snowtires.

It curtailed family Easter reunions.

It spoiled the Easter fashion parade as many churchgoers left newly bought outfits in the closet and bundled up in warm, if somewhat worn, winter clothing.

It was an Easter that yet unborn grandchildren and great grandchildren will hear about in the years to come.

It will be remembered as "The Year It Snowed On Easter".

Firefighters Report Saturday

Five new Quincy firefighters, sworn in last week, will assume their duties Saturday.

Four of them are the first of 38 new firefighters needed to implement the new 42 hour work week which will go into effect May 2 for the Fire Department.

The four appointed for the new work week are:

Frederic A. Santoro of 12 Cushing St., Weymouth.

Robert Hermanson of 47 Brooks Ave., South Quincy, will replace Firefighter Leonard LeBlanc who retired.

Hermanson will be stationed at Houghs Neck, Santoro at North Quincy, Connors at Central and McAdam and Finn at West Quincy.

Quincy Target Friday For 'Nuclear Attack'

All systems point 'to "GO" for tomorrow's 'nuclear attack' on Quincy.

The mock three-hour attack, the first to be conducted in Massachusetts from an Emergency Operations Center, is scheduled for 9 a.m. to noon at Quincy's Public Works Department.

Mayor James R. McIntyre and municipal department heads will run the city from the new Emergency Operations Center.

The general public will not participate, according to City Civil Defense Director Edward Roberts, but will learn of the test through the local press. There may be observers from other cities.

The test is part of a Civil Defense Planning Clinic and will be conducted under the direction of Harold Perkins from the University of Massachusetts.

Miss Grace Rockett, field officer from the Regional Office of Civilian Defense, and Louis F. Saba, supervising area director, will direct the test.

City Council Zoning Hearing On April 27

A public hearing by the City Council on the proposed rezoning of Quincy will begin April 27 at 8 p.m. in the City Council chamber at City Hall.

To conform to legal technicalities, only one public hearing will be held. However, this hearing will be recessed and reconvened until residents of all six wards have been heard. Ward 2 will be heard first.

City Council President Arthur H. Tobin explained:

"We are asking people to cooperate with the City Council so that the hearing may be held in an orderly fashion.

"Because Councillor Edward S. Graham of Ward 1 just underwent a very serious operation and because we do need the vote and counsel of Mr. Graham on several important pending matters in Ward 1, it is vital and in the best interests of Ward 1 that he should be there. Therefor, we will start with Ward 2, then 3, 4, 5 and 6, and then go back to Ward 1 at the public hearing.

"Although we are going to start with Ward 2, persons from other wards may attend. Everyone in the City will be given an opportunity on his particular night to come in and we will listen," Tobin said.

"We must look to Mr. Pavan, the City Solicitor, for his counsel and wisdom," Tobin said. "He has advised the City and Council well. The City Council is abiding by his advice to avoid legal technicalities. We may be saving more money in the long run by abiding by the

Today's Financial Problems Like Those Of Roman Empire

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Today's problems are not new. The Roman Empire faced bankruptcy 2,000 years ago as more and more power was concentrated in the central government and government spending grew.

Cicero spoke out against the trend. This great Roman senator said, "the budget should be balanced, the treasury should be refilled, public debt should be reduced, the arrogance of officialdom should be tempered and controlled, assistance to foreign lands should be curtailed lest Rome become bankrupt. The mobs should be forced to work and not depend on government for subsistence."

Romans ignored Cicero; Rome fell.

History is great - if you learn from it. It is not too late for U.S.A. to heed those 49 words of the past.

Certainly, it can be shown that money is the root of much evil. It can be shown that for various personal reasons certain wealthy bankers, often from other countries, have brought America into wars and depressions through the manipulation of our nation's currency and credit.

The current prime interest rate of 8.5%, an extreme form of usury imposed fraudulently as a means to halt inflation, is a typical example. I believe that unless our people quickly learn the root causes of the current confusion, they will walk head first into financial heartache. Write to me for free reprint "The Almighty Buck."

We sold our house today-
Complete with memories and dreams,
Of noisy boys and laughing girls,
Of happy times and teary scenes

We left the scratches on the floors,
Made by children's running feet.
We also left the garden gate
That kept our loved ones from the street.

The rooms are big and empty now,
The children gone away.
We packed our dreams and memories
And sold our house today.

STATE OF THE STATE

by Governor Francis W. Sargent

A MONTHLY REPORT TO THE PEOPLE OF THE COMMONWEALTH

On February 25th, the Legislature, meeting in Joint Convention, defeated by a single vote a proposal which would have allowed the citizens of Massachusetts to vote on whether or not the House of Representatives should be reduced in size.

The vote on the House cut proved beyond anyone's doubts that Massachusetts needs constitutional reform. And reform, as all responsible men know, requires change. To reform, and therefore change, an existing institution is no frivolous matter. It deserves serious consideration.

But to kill the people's chance to reform the Legislature is to prove how desperately we need that reform.

Paths of Change

The best available method of bringing about reform - is a Constitutional Convention that will take place next year if approved by you - the voters -this fall.

I pledge anew to work for bipartisan support of the convention.

I have taken the unusual step of asking for full discussion by conventions of both political parties, because this issue is vital to all of our citizens.

A Household Word

Two years ago the voters of Massachusetts approved an initiative law which provides that a question be placed on the 1970 ballot asking voter approval of a costitutional convention.

If approved, the ConCon, as it has come to be known, would assemble in July of next year.

Between now and the time for ballotting on this question, I intend to exert every effort to make the "ConCon" a household word.

Let me make that clearer still: The time has come to place our legislative House in order. And the constitutional convention will give the voters this chance...this chance denied them by the Legislature.

The People Speak

I would like to explain something of the workings and membership of the ConCon.

-- The convention would consist of 150 members: 3 to be elected from each of our 40 state senatorial districts; 10 elected by the people at large; 10 elected by the Senate; and 10 elected by the House.

-- The convention would discuss and propose amendments to the State Constitution. If approved by voters in 1972, the amendments would become part of our Constitution.

A reduction in the size of the House would be within the scope of the convention. And,

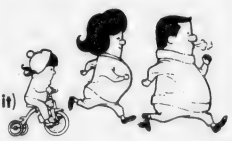
"To kill the people's chance to reform the Legislature is to prove how desperately we need that reform. . ."

at long last, THE PEOPLE would speak . . .

A Time For All Renewal

In this first spring of this new decade, I seek to renew the worn out fabric of a state government which must increasingly work for the people.

I have proposed and mandated by signing into law a total reorganization of our state agencies and departments which will take effect next year.



I have addressed and pledged myself to the need for a redirection in priorities in state government in my annual message to the General Cout.

I now seek to complement these efforts by asking you to join with me now in - still another bipartisan effort - a movement to update the legislative arm of our state government.

And together we shall renew the face of Massachusetts.

Quincy Teachers Attending San Francisco Meeting

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, director of pupil personnel services for the Quincy Public Schools, and Miss Althea Sawyer, head counselor at Broad Meadows Junior High School, are attending the 47th annual meeting of the American Orthopsychiatric Association in San Francisco which closes today.

Dr. Griffin and Miss Sawyer will take part in a workshop on the "School Adjustment of Adolescent Boys."

They will also visit the American Institute for Research in Palo Alto to discuss the Project PLAN Guidance Program now operating in three Quincy schools.

New Quincy 'Representatives' On Beacon Hill Tomorrow

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

Quincy will have three new "Representatives" tomorrow at the State House, Boston, when Student Government Day is observed.

Duly elected are seniors Charles Peterson from Quincy High School and Joseph Orlando from North Quincy, who will serve in the House of Representatives. Joan W. Keating, chosen by the faculty to represent Woodward School for Girls, will hear bills before the 20-member Committee on Commerce.

And, as he has since 1959, Rep. Joseph E. Brett of the Third Norfolk District, will have the students as his guests. Rep. Brett accompanied the students for their pre-visit day on Jan. 31 when they were introduced to legislative procedure.

Tomorrow he will again escort them to the State House, act as their guide, be their host for lunch, and return them to their homes as the close of the day.

Of the 30 students who have represented Quincy in the past on Student Government Day, there seems to be only one so far on which politics has had a lasting effect.

Miss Ruth Scanlan who now serves on the Quincy School Committee, represented North Quincy High School at the State House in 1961.

The only sisters elected were Deborah Hodges in 1965 and Beverly Hodges in 1967, both from North Quincy High School. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Peter M. Hodges of 86 Walker St.

Last year Jeffrey Hughes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Hughes of 262 Granite St., was elected as Quincy High School's representative. That same year he received an $800 scholarship from the Elks National Foundation. He is now a biology major at Boston University.

A political future does not seem the desire of this year's group. Charles Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Peterson of 216 Governors Road, is heading for a career in medicine. A varsity hockey player, he is senior prom committee chairman at Quincy High School.

Joseph Orlando, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper J. Orlando of 93 East Elm Ave., has been accepted at Providence College, with law in his future. Vice-president of the North Quincy High School senior class, he is a varsity basketball and soccer player, works part-time for Seymour's Ice Cream.

Elementary education is the goal of Joan Keating, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ripley Keating of 112 Sea Ave., first Houghs Neck student to go to the State House on Government Day. She has been accepted at Northeastern University.

All are honor roll students.

Others who have served their time in the State Legislature on Student Government Day are Robert McSorley of 575 Beale St. [1959]; Joyce Davidson of 73 Botolph St., Robert DiAntonio of 25 Morley Rd. and Susan Holland of 115 Summit Ave. [1960].

Lois Casagrande of 96 Water St., Barbara Curtis of 330 Beale St. [1961]; Charles Gaughan of 60 Montclair Ave., Richard Whiting of 49 Alton Rd., and Ruth Marchitelli of 85 Oakland Ave. [1962]; William Jones of 113 Wendell Ave., Michael Ferris of 64 Captains Walk; and Loreen Schmidt of Evans St. [1963].

Edward Marchant of 21 Janet Rd. and Bonnie Jean Fraser of 68 Haviland St. [1964]; John McWilliam of 6 Lawn Ave. and Suzanne Pinel of 26 Lantern Lane, Weymouth [1965]; Russell Doherty of 76 Edwin St., Martha Andrews of 63 Bay St., and Helen Deschenes of 17 Reardon St. [1966].

Charles Troup of 82 Alton Rd. and Kathleen McNally of 88 Quincy St. [1967]; William Ayers of 144 Sonoma Rd., Dorothy Tehan of 43 Town Hill St., and Dale Edson of 10 Kemper St. [1968]; Thomas Perrin of 29 Herbert Rd. and Eileen Jacobs [1969].

312 QEA Teachers Favor Strike Bill

A strike bill filed by the Massachusetts Teachers Association with the General Court is supported by 312 teachers of the Quincy Education Association, according to Robert P. Basiliere, president.

A survey with 65% returns in from the membership revealed that 146 teachers were against supporting the bill, thus not favoring a strike under any conditions. Twenty-one QEA felt other alternatives should be sought.

In Quincy, Basiliere notes, good faith bargaining was carried out to the satisfaction of all during the first years of collective bargaining.

Today "the issue of fiscal crisis in the cities and towns and the fear of the teacher power by the School Committees in areas of education" are cited by Basiliere as reasons for increasingly more difficult collective bargaining sessions.

"Support for this bill will have to come from the teachers who recognize the need for a more vigorous approach to collective bargaining," Basiliere states. "Non-supportive teachers, who see the trends now being used by School Committees will have to re-evaluate their own thinking and realize that the fight is not completely over for teacher rights."

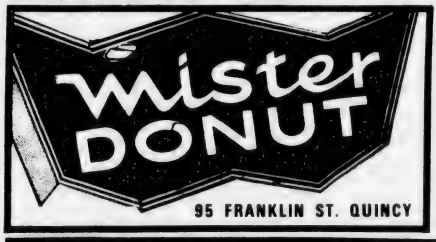
Houghs Neck Council Plans Fund Projects

Five April projects will aid the Scholarship Fund of the Houghs Neck Community Council, which annually provides grants to students seeking education beyond high school.

A Saturday car wash sponsored by the Sgt. Lawrence T. Grenham Youth Center will kick off the month-long fund raising effort. David MacMillan, Youth Center director, will direct the car wash to be held at Most Blessed Sacrament Church parking lot.

On April 8 at 8 p.m. at Houghs Neck Legion Hall, a Tupperware demonstration and sale will be conducted by Mrs. Frances Gill. Admission is free. There will be a door prize and refreshments.

A public whist at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall is scheduled for April 16 at 7:45 p.m. with Herbert E. Morgan as general chairman. Tickets may be obtained in advance at Pages Pharmacy or from Mr. Morgan.



On April 17 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, fight films will be shown featuring Rocky Marciano, Cassius Clay, Floyd Patterson and Sugar Ray Robinson.

A wrestling match featuring Buzz Orio of Houghs Neck will be held April 25 at 8 p.m. at the Atherton Hough School gymnasium. Tickets may be obtained from Gerald Lyons or at Pages Pharmacy.

All fund-raising projects are under the direction of John B. Powers, Houghs Neck Community Council president, and Arnold Beresen, scholarship fund chairman.

In the five years the scholarship fund has been in existence, $2,600. has been given to 23 young people of Houghs Neck in grants ranging from $50. to $250.

The council hopes through fund raising to enlarge the scholarship fund so that more and larger grants may be made to students.

Youngster To Get Downstairs Bedroom

Eight-year old Ralph Affannato of 110 Charles St., Houghs Neck, a student at the Pollar School class for the physically handicapped, is going to have a downstairs bedroom now.

With funds raised at a benefit spaghetti supper at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church given by Winthrop St. neighbors, Mrs. Albert Littlehale and Mrs. Salvatore Affannato [Ralph's aunt], his parents will be able to fix up a convenient room on the first floor for him.

"The benefit was a wonderful success," Mrs. Littlehale said, "We want to thank the stores and individuals who donated and all who attended or purchased tickets."

In addition to the bedroom, a contribution of $25. is being made to the Muscular Dystrophy Fund which provides assistance for Ralph.

advice of the City Counsel and avoiding possible lawsuits."

The public hearing must be held 14 days following publication of the proposed zoning changes. It will be published on April 9 in the Quincy Sun.

Because the City Council must meet April 27 at 7:30 p.m. to consider two routine street acceptances, it was decided to start the rezoning hearing that night at 8 p.m., Tobin said.

Beauty Ideas By Sabina

Weatherproof Your Hairdo

It's easy to outwit bad weather and keep your hairdo looking its prettiest. All it takes is a few plan-ahead tactics.

If the weatherman predicts rain and you must go out, put off your shampoo. When hair had a moderate amount of natural oil, it has more body and better discipline.

On damp, gusty days, trick bobby pins into the lower layers of hair to bolster the style lines and reduce the effect of powerful winds. Use extra hairspray, but let it dry thoroughly before stepping outside. Carry a miniature container of hairspray in your handbag for midday repairs.

When selecting a rain-day hat, put practicality first. A wise choice is one with a wide brim to shelter side hair from a downpour; one with a chin-tie to hold it on securely. The color - as sunny as possible to brighten the gray days.

Best hairstyle for blustery weather is long or short hair with smooth contours. This shaping stays put longer than perky, loose curls.

Here Comes The Bride

Your Wedding Day Arrives

Are you nervous? Excited? Getting panicky? Perhaps having spats with those near and dear to you? This does happen sometimes. Usually because you are not getting the rest you need. Resolve now to retire earlier.

It's two weeks before your wedding day! Now is the time to have the party for your attendants and to present them with their gifts. It is also an excellent time to invite your future in-laws for dinner and show them all the gifts you have received. [another good way to cement relationships]

If you have put off having your final fitting don't wait any longer.

Don't forget to make your beauty parlor appointment.

Start to check and recheck every item on your list. Get plenty of rest!!!

About 10 days before the biggest day of your life you must contact the people you haven't heard from as to whether they'll be attending the reception. This can be done by your mother or a close friend. Hopefully, there won't be too many to contact. Give your caterer the final count.

Rest...rest...rest...

We are down to the final week! Plan some time alone with your fiancee. Perhaps lunch on the day before your wedding. More important, plan time with your family and have your future groom arrange time with his.

Keep up with those thank you notes.

Start your packing, leaving the crushable for the last minute.

Attend reherarsal and dinner party.

IT'S HERE--your wedding day!

Everything has gone smoothly. Now you forget everyone and everything but yourself and your bridegroom. Every person in the room is bursting with excitement but you are staying calm. Be sure you pay extra attention to mom and dad. You, your attendants, and family have been ready for an hour before the ceremony. The photographer has taken pictures. The limousines are waiting to take you to the church and your waiting groom.

Have a good day and a happy life together.

Ilda DiMascio Heads QEA Scholarship

Miss Ilda DiMascio, a Quincy School teacher for the past 23 years, will for the fourth year head the Scholarship Committee of the Quincy Education Association.

The Scholarship Committee's purpose is to raise funds for deserving students. Last year, $2,200 was given in scholarships by the Quincy Education Association, $1,000 each to Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and $200 to the Quincy Vocational-Technical High School. Sub-committees at the schools determine who the recipients are to be.

Miss DiMascio, a sixth grade teacher at Beechwood Knoll School, says of her fund raising projects, "Initially I look for variety programming as fund raisers, such as fashion shows, wine parties, wig and hat shows. A great deal of time is spent on research, for I naturally want to put on the best type of program."

Frequently Miss DiMascio receives mail and telephone inquiries regarding the Scholarship Fund who wish to donate to the fund for a specific purpose.

Come Let Us Reason Together

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'How's Your Will Power?'

Although my daughter is a TWA hostess that fact is not what moved me emotionally when I heard how the wounded Captain Wilbur safely landed the Eastern 707 at Logan Airport recently. What touched me was the way the Captain came through in a crisis.

I doubt that he had had any special training for landing an airplane when both arms had been wounded by a gunman's bullet with his co-pilot on the floor of the cockpit fatally wounded. The last thing he needed at that point was to have to carry out the responsibility of landing his plane. But he did it...keeping cool in the presence of madness. I think he played the MAN. How'd he do it? WILL POWER.

I like to think it's always that kind of man at the controls of the planes I fly in.

I've often asked myself if I would come through...the man...were I to be in such a crisis. Most people's will power is never tested by having to land an airplane with both arms wounded with their co-pilot dying. Not many of us are ever put to such a test. Most of our will power tests are in the little every-day on-the-ground situations.

Take for example the use of money. A lady told me recently that she had filled out the budget sheet I had given her and put herself on that budget. If she followed the budget she would have $4.00 left over at the end of each week. With an expression of victory she exclaimed..."I did it." How'd she do it? Will power.

The same applies to over-eating...over drinking...fast driving...smoking...temper control...tardiness...harnessing a sharp tongue...prejudice...thinking of sex as dirty...sloppy housekeeping...frigidity...impotency. Add your weakness to the list. How can you overcome it? Will power.

I know a man who has an ugly wart on his face...not serious, but to him it is serious...it is causing him to withdraw to the seclusion of his room. He refuses to see a doctor who could easily correct the condition. Why doesn't he? He lacks will power.

I see many persons whose personality development was arrested back in the teens...so now they still act as irresponsible children...wives leave husbands at home baby-sitting while they tour the night spots...with "girl friends" they tell their husbands. One girl said..."I just don't like housework so I can't make myself do it." Why doesn't she grow up? Lack of will power.

I never cease to be amazed and rejoice when a husband and wife who have had much conflict...all of a sudden get back together when it seemed that all love was lost...even after cruel words and often violence. How does it happen? The counselor's help? Yes...in part...but the principal factor is personal will power.

It's a lame excuse..."I don't have any will power"...as though it is something that one buys at a drug store. We do what we want to do. If we want to flunk out, we flunk out. If we wish to succeed, we succeed.

Where do we start? First...by recognizing my weakness. What most of us do is to deny the weakness...or project the blame to someone else...usually a husband/wife. For instance...if it's a fact that you don't know how to treat a man, then admit it. You can learn...if you want to...but you must first recognize the weakness.

Stop excusing it. It's sure to ruin a marriage. Conquer it...by will power.

Secondly...recognize that you have a choice...to remain victim of the weakness and lose precious values, or to conquer it. You can't expect to have a warm loving wife if you hate women, for example. To make the choice takes will power.

Thirdly...go to work at it. I used to think that if a couple has to "work at" being married in order to be happy that something's wrong. Not so. You must work at it...work at yourself to bring that weakness which is jeopardizing your marriage happiness under your adult control. That takes will power.

This may surprise you...Love is not enough to make a marriage work. It won't work without love...but there's more to marriage than love. It means growing up...facing realities...sometimes giving up childish weaknesses...that takes will power.

"Now that you have become adults you must put away childish things." There I go again with a biblical quote...but that old book has such good psychology in it. How's your will power?

'Junkie Priest' To Speak On Drugs At Aquinas Jr. College

Rev. Daniel Egan will discuss "Drug Addiction: A Problem and a Symptom" April 15 at 8 p.m. at Aquinas Junior College of Business at Milton.

Fr. Egan, known as "The Junkie Priest" has worked for the past 20 years among addicts in New York City. He is the founder of Village Haven, the first live-in Halfway House in the United States to treat female addicts. He has helped to set up similar houses in other cities in the United States and Canada.

His experiences are described in the best-selling book, THE JUNKIE PRIEST, by John Harris, now in its 10th printing and soon to be made into a major international movie.

Something Old, And New

Trinity Luthern Church Women Offer Tasty 'Heavenly Recipes'

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

"Heavenly Recipes," a cookbook of new and generations-old dishes compiled by Trinity Lutheran Church Women, is now in its second edition.

Several "first ladies" have contributed to the cookbook's pages.

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, wife of the President, sent in a recipe for eight, "Hot Chicken Salad". Mrs. Francis Sargent, wife of the Governor of Massachusetts, sent along a typical New England dish, "Quahog or Clam Chowder".

Mrs. James R. McIntyre, wife of Quincy's Mayor, contributed a tasty "Ham Loaf", serving 10 to 12 persons.

A recipe reputed to be originally from the "first lady" of Great Britain and which she makes herself is the "Queen Elizabeth Cake".

From the hundreds of recipes submitted by church women and their friends, more than 200 of the "most treasured" were chosen for the cookbook, in a three-months' task.

A picture of the church and the cookbook title on the cover page are in blue on white, suggesting the Finnish background of Trinity Lutheran Church and the origin of many of its recipes.

An example is Nisu [time-consuming Finnish coffee bread] its recipe handed down from generation to generation and now rarely seen; and Karelian Ragout [Finnish]. For other culinary tastes, there are Chinese barbecued spareribs; Dolma mixture [stuffing for grape leaves]; Shish Kebab; Cannoli [Italian pastry], Scandinavian pastry, and Italian veal stew.

With the first edition of 300 cook books already sold, more have been ordered and are expected this week. Cookbooks at $2. each may be purchased from committee members, Mrs. Donald Robinson, president of Trinity Church Women; Miss Helen Heikkila, secretary; and Mrs. Weikko Luoma, membership committee chairman.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By Charles H. Wickens

At one time or another we all must face a moment of truth. It is a normal pattern of life. At times the uncloaked truth is hard to take, especially when it reveals bad luck or disaster. At that moment, we can open the door and courageously face reality - or - we can close the door and try to hide from the despairing truth. When we face reality, we must face the truth that self pity does not and can not create pride and who among us can deny a desire to be proud?

A moment of truth can be like a fading candle light that leaves us dreary behind a closed door. Or, it can be a beacon of light that shines in our path as we open the door to face the future.

When compelled to face a moment of truth, we can gain help from examples of others who showed us how it is possible to triumph over tragedy. In next week's thought, we will mention people by name and show why the world owes them a debt of gratitude for showing us how we too can face our own moment of truth. It will be interesting. Watch for it...

Between Us Girls

You're Staying In The House

When the children are small, corporal punishment is the only answer.

By that, I mean anything from a smack on the head to a smack on the bottom. But after a child has reached the age of puberty [isn't that an icky-sounding word] corporal punishment won't suffice. One reason is that after so many smacks, they've become immune, and a few of the odd ones get to enjoy it.

Also, and this is a big ALSO, they are starting to get bigger than you. Then you begin the punishment that is known as the "YOU'RE STAYING IN THE HOUSE FOR - [Anywhere from 15 minutes to the rest of your life] punishment. This is guaranteed to reduce the worst kid to a bowl-ful of jelly. Upon hearing those heart rending words "You're staying in the house for" children become like putty in your hands. They are six of the most wonderful words in the English language.

I have had children get down on their hands and knees begging me to hit them, putting fly swatters in my hand, [I use fly swatters, since I broke so many blood vessels in my hands] I have had children say I could hang them up by their thumbs, pull out their fingernails, never feed them again, cut off their allowance for a week, but, please, please don't keep them in the house.

I don't know about you, but at times like these I feel almighty. I can be magnanimous and say "Oh, alright, but just this once, next time...[Of course, I am saying this to the air], or I can be cruel and avenging, and say "No, you are staying in the house for the entire weekend". To a child, a weekend in the house is like being sentenced to Sing Sing for life. It is the ultimate punishment. I have stopped using it. Oh, old habits die hard, I find myself saying "OK, You're staying in the .....", then I bite my tongue and reach for the fly swatter.

My husband still thunders "YOU'RE STAYING IN THE HOUSE FOR A MONTH etc." The kids cry, beg and moan, but he stands firm. Once in a while, I believe the kids are grateful that I no longer say those most AWFUL of words YOU'RE etc. because as I am hitting them with the fly swatter, I see tears of gratitude welling in their eyes.

I feel I am accepting their gratitude on false pretenses. I have stopped saying "YOU'RE STAYING IN THE HOUSE FOR A WEEK, not because I don't think they deserve it. They do. But I sure as heck don't!

I had finally come to realize what was turning me into a raving maniac. It was having kids in the house for weeks, months, years. Because with the children I have, there is bound to be at least one in the house being punished.

Now whenever my husband begins those words "YOU'RE STAYING IN THE HOUSE FOR A .....", the kids get down on their knees, crying and begging to be let out-and its a disgusting spectacle when people walk in, see the kids on their hands and knees, and me lying on the floor, kicking and screaming "No, no, please no, hand me up by the thumbs, pull out all my fingernails, never take me out again, cut off my all..[I'm not that far gone], But, please, please, don't keep the kids in the house!!!

Kittens And Cats

Kittens, little tiny kittens
They don't need a pair of mittens,
They are so little, tiny, and cute.
Some are striped
Some are plain.
All kittens are just the same
Kittens grow into cats.
They get so, so fat
They sleep on beds, blankets, and on a favorite mat.
Almost every cat will chase a rat
All kittens and cats are so nice,
They all love to chase mice.

Why The Tide Comes In

The answer to why the water comes in and out is because there is a giant fish in the water.
This certain fish does this when his friends are near the line of the fisherman.
The big fish will swallow the part of the sea where the fish are.
When the men are gone and the fish are in safety the big fish lets all the water out of his mouth.

Just as the sun begins to hide,

Few Veterans But - -

Quincy Track Prospects Bright

Quincy's track team isn't overloaded with veterans but Coach Tom Hall is delighted with his largest turnout and plans to carry between 55 and 60 boys including only 18 seniors.

"This is predominately a junior-sophomore team and there are some outstanding performers among them," Hall said. "Despite a lack of veterans, the potential is there and I look for a good season in our new league [Greater Boston League].

Tom does have some outstanding returnees from last year's spring team which was 3-2 in the Suburban League and 4-3 overall, as well as some fine performers from Gene Macomber's winter team.

The outstanding senior candidates are Larry Finneran, 100 and long jump; Bob Laing, two-mile; Tom Plante, half mile; Steve Shapiro, weights, and John Dempsey, hurdles.

Finneran was on last year's spring team and the winter team. Laing was on both and Dempsey was on the winter team. Finneran should be among the top dashmen and Laing one of the better two-milers in the GBL. Laing also was a standout in cross country.

Hall has two junior stickouts in Joe Goguen, second in last year's state long jump, and a fine dashman, and Rich Menchi, weights. Goguen starred for both the 1969 spring team and the winter squad.

The Quincy coach is extremely high on a trio of sophomores who should have an outstanding season. They are Bobby Ciano, loser of only one cross country race last fall and one of the better runners in the Met League this winter; Pete Daley and Brian Feeney, both winter stars. Ciano will run either the mile or two-mile and is outstanding at both distances. Daley is an excellent quarter miler and high jumper and Feeney is a fine half miler.

Among the Presidents' other top aspirants are Jim Malvesti and Phil Gill, 100; Mike Gilcoyne, 220; Roy Smith, low hurdles; Bob McDermott, high hurdles; Larry Butler and Jim Dubois, 440; Jim McGuire, half-mile; Kevin Egersheim, high jump; Jim Buccaneri, shot put; Scott Brand, Mike Paluzzi and Dave Tarrant, discus, and Bob Gallo, javelin.

Butler, Dubois, Egersheim, Buccaneri and Brand were on last spring's team, while Butler, Buccaneri and Brand also competed on the winter team.

"We should have a good relay team with Finneran the only senior," Hall said. "Right now Goguen, Daley and Gilcoyne look like the top relay runners with Finneran but there will be changes, according to how some of the other runners develop."

Like North Quincy coach Bob Gentry, Hall is extremely disappointed at the league's vote to exclude the pole vault. "It will make it very hard for our boys to compete in this event in the state and New England meets," he said. He also wanted to see the triple jump added.

Hall sees Quincy being solid in all running events but feels the Presidents need work on the hurdles. He also said the high jump and long jump will be strong. Last spring Quincy set a record in the long jump in the state relays.

The league will operate like the Bay State League with four dual meets being held on the same afternoon at the same site. Quincy, Somerville and Medford will be the sites of the league meets.

"One good thing this year has the league selecting officials to handle the meets, giving us a chance to coach," Tom said. "In the past we coaches had to do the officiating with the help of others."

Hall has a new assistant coach in Joe Wessling, a former Quincy trackman, who is doing an excellent job with the wightmen.

Quincy faces Scituate in a practice meet April 9 and opens its league season on the 16th against Revere at Medford. The Presidents will also have non-league meets with Abp. Williams, Milton Academy and Weymouth.

Quincy High Dinner April 10

The annual Quincy High School Basketball Awards dinner will be held April 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Voc-Tech cafeteria.

There will be a catered roast beef dinner for members of the varsity, junior varsity basketball teams and members of the varsity and junior varsity cheerleading squad.

Jackets and trophies will be awarded.

Invited guests include Mayor James R. McIntyre, Supt. Lawrence P. Creedon and Carl Leone, director of athletics.

Guest speaker will be Charles Luce, Boston University varsity basketball coach, class of 51. Luce was a successful high school coach at Montrose High School, New York, Bob's Ferry High School, New York, and Greenwich High School, Greenwich, Conn., before returning to Boston University in 1966. At B.U. his teams have been steadily improving. Last year's unit was 14-10.

Reservations may be made for the dinner before April 8 by calling: Gerald Ryan 472-6520; Tony Malvesti 479-7474; Will Bertrand 773-2590; Ted De Cristofaro 472-1265.

56 Candidates

North Trackmen Solid Threat

Bob Gentry, North Quincy cross country and winter track coach, is back as spring track skipper and, with many members of his successful indoor team and a number of returnees from last spring's outstanding team coached by Ralph Frazier, the Raiders loom as a solid threat in the new Greater Boston League.

The amiable Gentry returned as spring coach when Frazier was named head football coach and Bob is no stranger to most of the performers.

"We have an excellent group of boys working out and I see no reason why we shouldn't have a good season," Gentry said. North has 56 candidates including 14 seniors, 25 juniors and 17 sophomores.

One of the top performers is Paul Affsa, who can do just about anything. Holder of several school records both in indoor and outdoor track, Paul will see most of his action in the 220 and long jump but can fill in at almost any running event and high jumping if called upon.

Other seniors are Paul Day, shot put; Bob DeRosa, mile; Don Gilliland, hurdles and high jump; Dave Haight, outstanding hurdler and high jumper; Bob Hale, 440; Chris Kennedy, half mile; John Keenan, 220; Bob Lee, long jump; Bill McCall, hurdles and high jump; Pat McCormack, mile; Al Moscaritolo, 440; Paul Salamaa, half mile, and Rich Sanderson, dashes.

Affsa, Day, Gilliland, Keenan and McCall were on the winter team and Affsa, Haight, Hale, Keenan, McCall and McCormack were on last year's spring team.

There are several standouts among the juniors, who include Dave Alleva, Jim Balzarini, Ray Cadogan, 100; Matt Clancy, mile; Lee Davis, hurdles and javelin; Jim DeVarennes, hurdles; John Graceffa, shot put; Jay Griffin, John Hemphill, javelin; Kevin Henry, mile and two-mile; Greg King, dashes; Alan Kirshner, javelin and hurdles.

Paul Lippens, Bob MacGregor, half mile; George McCall, mile and high jump; Bill Morgan, javelin; Tom Mountford, dashes; John Panarelli, shot put, expected to be one of the league's best; Leo Papile, weights; John Salenis, hurdles; Jeff Strungis, half mile; Richie Yee, half mile; Ken Baker, weights and dashes, and Steve Mullaney, mile.

Clancy, Graceffa, Griffin, Henry, McCall, Strungis and Yee were on the winter team which had a winning record in the Met League, and Davis, Hemphill, McCall, Morgan, Panarelli, Strungis and Yee were on last year's spring team which lost only to unbeaten Weymouth and finished second in the Suburban League.

The sophomore group includes Paul Bonoli, two-mile; Dave Carter, weights; Paul Chambers, dashes; Walter Collins, weights; Dan Coughlin, 220; Kevin Egan, 440; John Gill, Woody Hall, mile; Kent LaFleur, Steve Leet, shot put; Steve Little, mile; Dave Mahoney, hurdles and high jump; Bill Mathews, 440; Doug Morrill, weights; Rick Paulson, mile; Walter Shea, half mile and javelin, and Jim Ziniti, weights.

Bonoli, Coughlin and Little were on the winter team.

"We should be strong in the distances with several veterans not only of spring and winter track but cross country," Gentry said. "We need help in the weights and right now the dashes pose a question mark."

Jack Laverty, a former North star and now a substitute teacher, is helping out with the distance men on a voluntary basis, as he did in winter track.

Gentry is disappointed the league voted to exclude the pole vault this year. "Tom Hall [Quincy coach] and I voted to have it but the other coaches voted against it," Bob said. "It is too bad because they have it in the state and New England meets."

North opens with two non-league meets at home. Next Tuesday the Raiders host Randolph and Thursday will be home to Abp. Williams. The first league meet is against Somerville on April 16.

The league meets will be held at three sites, Quincy, Somerville and Medford, with all eight entries competing at the same time.

The league is made up of the same schools as in other sports, Quincy, North, Somerville, Medford, Malden, Everett, Revere and Chelsea.

Queen Pins Meet Rag Dolls In Women's Tourney Finals

The stage is set for the finals of the 15th annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney with the Rag Dolls meeting the Queen Pins for the crown.

The April 5 championship roll off is scheduled for 1 p.m. at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys. The tourney is sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy as part of its winter athletic and recreation program.

The Queen Pins qualified by defeating the Lucky Strikes 1570-1477. Betty Gagne and Joyce Agnew tied for top honors, each bowling 333 for the Queen Pins, followed by Bev Putnam's 308; Mary Powell, 305; and Mal Adams, 291.

Claire Goy's 310 led the Lucky Strikes, with Hallie Parzalie rolling 307; Jodi Mitchell, 299, Jean Barry, 288; and Sally McCusker, 273.

Eileen Rowbotham N.Q. Girls' Tennis Coach

This completes the roster of coaches for the expanded girls' sports. Girls' tennis and softball teams have varsity scheduled this spring.

Gale Palmer is coaching the North girls' softball team, Mary Pratt the Quincy girls' softball team and Bob Sylvia the Quincy girls' tennis team.

Sylvia is serving only as an interim coach until a qualified woman coach is found.

Like Road Worker

Bradley Has Many Diamond Holes To Fill At ENC

Carroll Bradley, baseball coach at Eastern Nazarene College, will be doing a road worker's job this spring.

"We've got a lot of holes to fill," he says. "We've had strong teams the past three seasons. We lost most of that team through graduation last spring." The past three seasons ENC had records of 12-3, 12-4 and 8-7.

Graduating were starting infielders Wayne Hassinger, Ron Bartholomew, and Bill Turner; starting catcher Doug Von Iderstein, and starting outfielders Jack Willy and Everett Kauffman.

Also lost were starting pitcher Larry Eller and John Golden, the top reliever.

"There were some excellent ball players in that group," said Bradley, "and I don't know if we have the personnel to fill the gaps.

Returning from last year's squad are Ron Bradley of North Quincy, a pitcher catcher; John Whitman of Hilton, N.Y., a pitcher infielder; Bob Henning of Hilton, N.Y., and Don Kauffman of Harrisburg, Pa., outfielders; Bill Keene of Butler, N.J., and Bill Mauger of Pottstown, Pa., infielders.

"Right now," says Bradley, "we're looking for another catcher. Ron Bradley can catch, but he's also our second pitcher and we need someone to catch when he's on the mound.

"We need some infielders, but we may be able to fill one of those holes by playing Whitman in the infield. He can play the outfield as well when he's not on the mound."

Bradley held his team's first practice last week and had 19 candidates.

It's hard to tell what to expect this early in the season," he said. "The boys aren't loosened up yet, so you can't really tell what you have yet, and we still expect one or two ball players to still come out."

The Crusaders will open their season April 10 when they host Nasson College at Alumni Field at 3:30 p.m.

The 19-game schedule will include one new opponent, Babson College of Wellesley. It also includes three double headers. The first will be against New Haven May 2, the second at Nasson May 9, the third against King's May 16.

Action Starts Sunday

Rangers, GD In New Soccer League

The newly organized Commonwealth Amateur Soccer League opens play next Sunday and among the eight entries are the Quincy Rangers, who won't open until the following week, and General Dynamics.

The Rangers, mostly former Quincy High players, and General Dynamics, rated one of the top favored teams, comprising mainly British and Scottish immigrants who have come to this country in the past year or so, will hold the local spotlight. The latter have been playing soccer since they were children.

Coaching the Rangers will be Ron Martin, Quincy High coach, a native of Scotland who played there in his early school years and has played with several Greater Boston amateur teams. Manager is Peter Gallagher, a teacher at Snug Harbor School who played soccer at Milton High and in the service who is also league president. Both, incidentally, will play for the Rangers.

Alan Grayson, Brandeis University coach, is the league's secretary-treasurer and also will be player-manager of the Weymouth Warriors.

Other league entries are Revere, Norfolk Shamrocks, Peabody CLC, St. John's of Boston and Glengarry of Boston.

League games will play Sunday afternoons until the end of June, and then after the summer resume in September. Quincy's games will be played at the high school soccer field at the rear of Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Although most of the Rangers are from Quincy, three of the more experienced players are natives of Montevideo, Uruguay, who played together on the same teams there for several years. They are Carlos Ferro, Roque Acosta and Walter Duque and are expected to be a great asset to the local team because of their vast experience.

Other players include Jim McGuire, co-captain of last fall's Quincy High team, an all-scholastic who has been selected to try out next week for the U. S. Olympic team.

Bruce Carlson was the high scorer for the 1969 Quincy High team and was named all-scholastic.

Dave D'Olympio, Quincy High's outstanding goalie last fall, was named to the South Shore League all-star team and is expected to be one of the league's top goalies this year.

Russ Barry, co-captain of Quincy High's team, was another all-league selection.

Al LaVoie was a Quincy High wing and a league all-star.

Vin Bertrand was a forward for Quincy High and one of last fall's top scorers.

Mike DelGreco is another former Quincy High standout now attending Massassoit Community College. He is a fine goalie and halfback and a versatile performer.

Martin brings a world of experience to the team and can play at any position.

Dave Sampson, another former Quincy High player, now plays for Eastern Nazarene College and is a big, strong player with much ability.

Rounding out the squad are Gallagher, Rich Brown, Nick Conderlos, Bob Curtis, Gus Dano and Craig Simpson, another former Quincy High stickout.

"General Dynamics looks like the strongest club because of their tremendous experience," Gallagher said. "St. John's, a Greek church in Boston, has another experienced team which includes some North Quincy players. The team made a strong showing in the top division of the Boston and District League last year.

"The other teams appear to be well-balanced and all are capable of beating any other team. Our club is young, strong and fast and we expect to surprise a lot of people. We should be right up with the leaders all season and hope to finish number one."

The Rangers began a fund-raising drive Monday and will continue through April 11. The players are visiting merchants in the city and the money will be used for uniforms, equipment such as balls, nets and corner posts, to pay the referees, help support a junior team and pay the fees for the league and United States Soccer Football Association.

Among the team's supporters are insurance agent Henry Berry, Hank Conroy and Bob Sylvia, Quincy High coaches; Harold Crowley, Snug Harbor School teacher; Carl Leone, Coordinator of Athletics for the Quincy schools; Ken Rickson, Coordinator of Physical Education for the Quincy schools; Daniel Malvesta, principal of Snug Harbor School; Wilfred Nolan, Coordinator of Quincy elementary schools, and School Committeeman Charles Sweeny.

Giachetti, Pasciucco 'Outstanding Athletes'

The volume annually publishes biographical accounts of 5000 college athletes for their achievements in sports, campus activities and in the class room.

Giachetti, a split end in football and centerfielder in baseball, twice received All-East honors and was honorable mention in All-America selections last fall. He holds the N. E. record for the most pass receptions in a season, 56, and in a career, 159. This year he was co-captain of football and is co-captain of this spring's baseball team. He has been named Tufts' Most Outstanding Athlete for the past two years.

Pasciucco, a Boston College High graduate, was the second leading pass receiver at Tufts for the past three years and has been named four times to the ECAC Team of the Week.

Kennedy Receives Numeral

Bruce G. Kennedy of Quincy is among 17 freshmen at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me. to receive a numeral as a member of the freshman swimming team, according to announcement by Director of Athletics Daniel K. Stuckey.

Lynch Named To Skating Rink Committee

John Lynch of 226 Fenno St. has been named by Mayor James R. McIntyre to serve as a member of his recently appointed Ice Skating Rink Investigating Committee.

Carle Leone, Jr., Quincy director of athletics, is chairman of the group which is looking into the possibility of providing a self-paying rink in Quincy.

The Commonwealth Figure Skating Club of Weymouth will stage its 28th annual figure skating show, the Commonwealth Capers, April 11 and 12 at the Weymouth Skating Club.

A large number of young skaters from the South Shore area take part in this show which has grown annually in popularity.

Invitations have been sent to many of the top sportswriters, editors, radio and TV news announcers in the area so they can see the constructive influence such dedication to a sport can have on young people.

Like most sports, figure skating is demanding, requiring sacrifice and much work on the part of the youngsters. Except for the very few who attain prominence, the only measure of achievement is the way this annual event is received.

Recreation Roundup

William F. Ryan, Director of Recreation, announces that once again last weeks programs in the Pilot Project were very successful.

Highlight of the week, was the opening of the Drop-In Center at the Fore River Club House. In the past this program, sponsored by the Ward Two Civic Association has been held in the regular Club House facilities. Now with the cooperation of the Park-Recreation Board and working under the Pilot Project Grant, a room separate from the club house has been provided. This room will be used as a meeting place and Drop-In Youth Center, for Quincy Point Youths.

Quincy Point

JUNIOR HIGH PROGRAM:

At Point Junior High on Monday evenings the first hour was devoted to a basketball tournament, made up of six teams. Each team chose for their name, one of the national basketball team names. The Los Angeles Lakers, led by Mike Varasso, won four straight games. Other team members were David Goguen, Steven Gest, Neil Dwyer, John Goguen. In the last hour, the fast growing soccer tournaments were held. Although soccer is still new to most of the boys, an overwhelming willingness to learn and participate has been shown.

Supervisors, Frank Brillo and Bill Myers, serve as referees in the tournaments. Although it is called soccer, the rules have been set up similar to those of ice hockey.

Basketball is the name of the game at Point with the senior high boys. For two hours, seven teams battled each other as though it were the finals in the Tech Tournament. A team captained by Ray Papile, won six straight games. Some of the boys enjoying their two hour stay were Mike Crosson, Dennis Sullivan and Tony Trubiano.

FORE RIVER CLUB HOUSE:

The 85 members of the Fore River Club House voted to elect an advisory board. The board consists of seven members, three girls, three boys, and a Police Chief. The role of this group is to assist the other members of the club house in organizing an appealing drop in center for junior and senior high boys and girls in the Quincy Point area.

Elected to the advisory board are: Joey Marani, Steve Arnold, John Ford, Debby Issac, Beth Handradi, Nancy Hamilton, and Ronnie Morris as Police Chief.

This was the first week the club house was able to use its own room. The drop in center is located on the Harrison Ave. side of the club house. Plans were proposed for obtaining a juke box, pin ball machines, a pool table, and coke machine for the room. A clean-up committee was also formed to help decorate the rooms in the drop in center.

South West Quincy

The recreation program in South-West Quincy is becoming very popular. Greater participation is in evidence each week. It might be appropriate at the start to acknowledge the leadership of Bob Johnson and Vin Picardi. Too often we take for granted any program which functions smoothly and efficiently from week to week. Certainly such a program demands creativity, planning, coordination, efficiency, public relations and plain old hard work. These two men have demonstrated an amazing capacity for fulfilling all of these qualities. Hats off to both of them!

At Sterling, the boys are busy practicing for their first basketball game. Outstanding tryouts are: John Sullivan, Joe Connolly, Jeff Aristide, James Hearn, Ken Kelly, Preston Carroll, Wayne Ponder, Peter DiBona, and Glenn Depaulo. Coach Bob Johnson anticipates many victories.

Activities continue at a fast pace during the elementary session. The elementary boys now number approximately 55 nightly. This program is proving very popular. Among the regulars from the elementary session who have been outstanding leaders are: Jimmy Maze, George Bush, Peter Pagnano, Chuck Reardon, Brian Kelly, Garry Prezioso, Francis Herbert, Phillip Daru, Brian Sciarini, Paul Lynch, Stephen Ohlson, Mark Sheehan, Kenneth Ryder, Bruce Aristide, Eugene Ryder, Clifford Edwards and James Dean.

Germantown

GERMANTOWN YOUTH COUNCIL:

The Germantown Youth Council welcomes the newest additions to the council. The two additions are "Deadly" Ed Sylva and Mike O'Brien. Ed is also the youth center champ in shuffle board. Dennis Carderelli still holds the championship in pin ball with Bob Lenuae coming up fast. Bob Sylva, Terry O'Day, "Duck" Conners, Rich Hebert, and the rest of the council are working to improve the center. Bob Sylva and Dave Califano are already to work on the center plastering walls and cleaning up.

SNUG HARBOR GIRLS:

The gymnastics team hopes to get a good start soon under the leadership of volunteers Carole Beliveau and Mary King. The girls think that given proper time they can defeat anyone in the city.

Things are beginning to get underway for a clothing drive to be conducted in this area. Darlene Bergstrom will be the publicity chairman and Linda Fishel, co-chairman.

Thanks to Renee Degust for her supervision during many sports activities. Great artists of the week: Georgie Pilalas, Gaile Bergstrom and Renee Degust.

SNUG HARBOR BOYS:

The recreation program at the Snug Harbor gym saw Joe Lupo and Mike Bohan undefeated in the chess matches Friday night with John Duzette and James French checker champs. In Kala, Arnold Havord and Mike Mackenzie were the eventual winners in a series of exciting matches.

Friday night saw a large turnout at the junior high level and four basketball teams were formed and the winners of each game played against each other. In an exciting climax both teams fought to tie before time ran out and the gym had to be turned over to the high school boys.

Mike Long was the standout for the evening both in the rebound and scoring departments. Other standouts, Frank DeSalvo, Michael McKenzie, Joe Zapo and Gary Warner.

Houghs Neck

ATHERTON HOUGH BOYS:

Every Monday night at the Atherton Hough School, junior and senior high school students from the Houghs Neck area have enjoyed the use of the gym.

The most popular sport at this time is basketball. There have been many cliff hangers in recent weeks. A great effort is made to allow everyone present to play. Bob Reardon, Charlie O'Shea, "Onie" O'Neil, Jim Forrester, Paul Began, Mike McGonnagle, Rich and Bill Cotter, and Jim McGinnes were high scorers in last weeks series of games.

Future plans for the program include volleyball and indoor hockey.

ATHERTON HOUGH GIRLS:

Work continued this week on the giant colored tissue paper flowers. Susan Doyle, Linda Patten, Janet Cusser, Patty Donovan, Betty Maher, Helen Bernatonis, Joanne Cossette and Karen Mackenzie all did a wonderful job with their creations.

Now that Spring is in the air the girls are planning to go over to LaBreque field for softball, tennis, football, and other activities.

Congratulations to Mary Picard for her progressive strides in Badminton. When Mary first joined, she had never played the game. Now, she is ready to compete with the best.

The volleyball teams are shaping up and preparing for some keen competition!

There is a new opportunity for participants to become "Donkey of The Week." Patty Donovan jumped for the title this week. Theresa Iacovino hopped into a close second. If you are interested in finding out how not to become a Donkey why not join the group.

Alcoholism

Every so often you have gotten information about new advances in medicine - a little ahead of the popular recognition of such gains. Today I was excited about steps being made against alcoholism.

Now alcoholism, whether you like it or not, is one of our most serious problems. The National Council on Alcoholism places the number of confirmed alcoholics at six and a half million with an equal number of "silent" alcoholics [the one who won't admit that he is a slave to booze]. Only three per cent of the alcoholics are of the "Skid Row" type. Add to these statistics the convivial drinker who is on the borderline but still carries on.

In 1968 - of the 52,500 traffic deaths recorded - more than 50% were unequivocally attributed directly to the influence of alcohol.

There is little doubt that a certain kind of individual becomes an alcoholic. One with an emotional makeup peculiarly prepossessed and whose body chemistry is sensitive to alcohol he uses to drown or lose his tensions.

Some years ago Antabuse [tetraethylthurran desulfide] helped. This material, when taken with alcohol, made the individual violently ill - figuring in this way to condition him against the desire. It has not worked as well as expected at preventing the desire for alcohol and required continual use which is rather demanding.

Two German scientists working with rats found that D.R. [diethanolamine rutinate] given before drinking alcohol counteracted the usual effects of the latter.

Researchers at the Southwest Foundation, with a grant from U. S. Public Health, have been very excited about the potentials of D.R. Admittedly, the drug is still only experimental and is used on rats but postulation and prophecy indicate that with the development of an analog [a substance of a chemical structure much like D.R. but without the poisonous side-effects] capable of being used on humans, we will have another fine tool.

Not everyone involved with the attempts to rid man of this disease feels that approaches such as with D.R. will solve this problem.

The most effective group working with the alcoholic is Alcoholics Anonymous [AA]. The attempt by this group is to have individual rehabilitation with the help of others who have licked the problem. Their results have been astounding. The zeal and devotion of the people involved in this work is phenomenal.

The success for such rehabilitation requires complete abstinence and is said to work if the alcoholic admits that he is "hooked" and that he has an unequivocal desire to be cured. The AA feels that D.R. would interfere with the process of total abstinence and the D.R. would act as a crutch and be a deterrent rather than a therapeutic agent in licking the disease.

Others who support D.R. feel that anything that helped to detoxify the person is of use while the alcoholic builds up a gradual self esteem to carry on the kind of intention that AA offers.

I personally feel that the AA has a good argument but as a medical man, I am thrilled about the potential this work can give.

Having lived as a child among numerous alcoholics and seen the ravages of this social disease, I thought you might be interested in the research discussed.

In respect for and admiration for AA, I was always impressed by the ad they ran that said "If you can drink that is your problem but if you can't that is our's - AA".

New England Electric System Pays $34.2 Million Tax Bill

Officials of the New England Electric System announce that its total property tax bill for 1969 was $34.2 million--an increase of $4.1 million [13.6%] over 1968.

Unlike other industries, electric companies pay taxes on "personal property".

New England Electric System is the parent of Massachusetts Electric Company, New England Power Company, New England Power Service Company, Narragansett Electric Company, Granite State Electric Company and the New England Gas System [comprised of eight retail gas companies formerly called New England Electric System Gas Division].

New England Electric pays property taxes in 344 cities and towns in four states: Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont. As in the past, the largest amount of taxes went to the 210 communities in Massachusetts. To them the Massachusetts Electric Company, New England Power Company and the eight system gas companies paid a total of $25.7 million--$3.6 million [16.3%] more than the previous year.

Quincy P & G Employees Share In Record Profits

Procter & Gamble employees in Quincy last year shared in a record $25,752,000 paid or credited in profit sharing benefits to P&G employees in the U. S.

Plant Manager Robert A. McIntire announced the profit sharing total when reporting plans for P&G's semi-annual "Dividend Day" celebration here Saturday.

The occasion, celebrating the 83rd year of P&G's profit sharing plan, will be a dinner dance at Valle's Steak House, Braintree. James M. Ewell, Cincinnati, P&G Vice President-Manufacturing & Employee Relations, will be the featured speaker. An estimated 500 persons are expected to attend.

McIntire said the objective of profit sharing is to assure employees a retirement income and to give them a direct personal interest in the successful day-by-day operation of the business.

Total benefits accumulated by participants have increased far beyond the profit sharing dollars set aside by the company, according to McIntire, because these funds have been invested in P&G common stock, which over the years has risen in value and never failed to pay a dividend.

$20,000 Drive Underway For Senior Citizen Theater Seats

A $20,000 campaign opens this week among residents at the 1000 Southern Artery Senior Citizens Center.

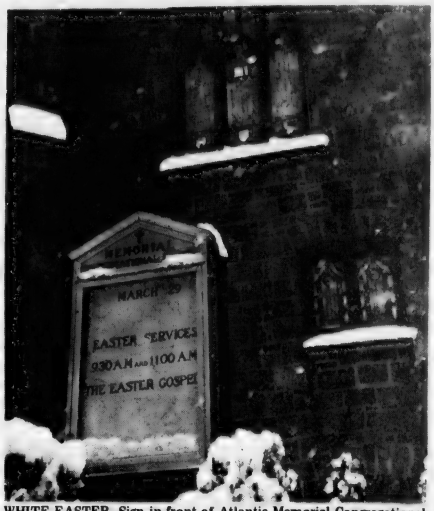
The drive is to underwrite the cost of 500 theater seats in the $120,000 auditorium planned to fit under a section of the Mall between South St. and the new South Wing at the center.

Since auditoriums cannot be included under mortgage terms of a housing facility for senior citizens under the HUD program, plans have been made to finance the construction from foundations, corporations and friends. The $20,000 will be sought from residents of both wings and center members.

On Monday a check for $15,000 toward the auditorium fund was received from the Permanent Charities Fund of Boston. This brings to $50,000 the total raised to date.

The auditorium is needed because many programs now presented attract as many as 200 persons to the lounge, where every seat in the dining room and lounge area are occupied, and there is standing room only.

Many programs have been refused because of a lack of proper stage area. Acoustics were also a problem in the lounge.



Plans are to begin construction of the auditorium as soon as residents are settled in the new wing, which should be by July 1. Target date for completion is Sept. 1. One wall is already complete, and the ceiling will be the under floor of the mall.

Entrance to the auditorium will be from the first floor of the South Wing, and the entrance to the balcony will be from the second floor. When completed, the stage will hold more than 50 people and will have a stage door opening to the street large enough to drive an automobile [or an elephant] in. The floor will have a gradual slant to provide a prime view of the stage and movie screen from every seat, regardless of location.

The auditorium will be fully air-conditioned and heated with units separate from those in the South Wing.

Residents are encouraged to underwrite the cost of one seat at $50., to provide several seats, or to share with someone else the cost of one seat.

The campaign is under the direction of Quincy Point Congregational Church, which operates the non-profit corporations of the Center and Mrs. Blanche Wellman, director at the Center.

County Commissioners Initiate Governmental Drug Center Study

Establishment of the state's first governmental drug center at the proposed new Norfolk County House of Correction and jail is under consideration.

Norfolk County Commissioners have instructed Colletti Brothers, Hingham architects, to include a study of the new drug facility as part of their overall study of a new jail and House of Correction.

A time limit of seven months has been set on the report by Commission Chairman James J. Collins of Milton and Commissioners George B. McDonald of Quincy and Thomas K. McManus of Norwood.

John J. Sullivan, Jr., County Commissioners' Administrative Assistant, will be coordinator for the correlation of the architect's study and the liason between county physicians, probation officers, school teachers, police and parents.

The study will not cost the county any extra money, and will determine the means of obtaining most of the needed construction funds from the federal government.

The proposed drug center would provide a rehabilitation center, and would also be a neutral clearing house for information for local police, teachers, doctors, probation officers and the courts.

The decision to study the feasibility of incorporating a drug center in the new House of Correction is the result of an earlier study to determine the practicability of using part or all of Norfolk County Hospital for a drug center. Dr. Donald A. Martin, hospital director, Gerard A. Coletta, Jr., indictment clerk in Dist. Atty. George G. Burke's office and Sullivan participated in this.

Their report led to the conclusion by the Norfolk County Commissioners that "only an all-out 100% drug facility had any hope of success." To try to adapt part of the County Hospital at Braintree for this purpose would be too expensive and would disrupt one of the most efficient tuberculosis and pulmonary disease hospitals on the East Coast, they said.

Ward 2 Civic Assn. Endorses Zoning

The Ward 2 Civic Association has endorsed the proposed rezoning ordinance for Quincy.

A letter is being sent to City Council President Arthur H. Tobin affirming the action.

Endorsement of the zoning proposal followed a presentation by Gregory W. Doyle and Theodore Gerber of the Quincy Planning Department.

Gerber explained the social and economic changes necessitating the rezoning effort. Three basic objectives are:

--To guide and encourage new growth so that Quincy can control its future in an orderly fashion.

--To preserve existing good development in accordance with the predominantly suburban life-style of the community.

--To upgrade the community by eliminating nonconforming structures, nuisances, and the blighting influence of incompatible land uses.

Also discussed were "density" and "bulk" controls regulating the number of families and size of buildings; open space requirements, and the new diversified business zones.

Dorothy Quincy Historical Society Subject

"Through the Dorothy Q. With a Camera" will be the program by Mrs. Doris Shalit Oberg at tonight's [Thursday] 7:30 p.m. meeting of the Quincy Historical Society at United First Parish Church, Quincy Square.

In conjunction with the Society of Colonial Dames which operates the Quincy Homestead, Mrs. Oberg has photographed the historic shrine inside and out. She will give an illustrated talk on the history of the mansion.

H. Hobart Holly will preside at the business meeting.

N.Q. September Opening 'Doubtful'

Slow Work Stalls MBTA Line

BIG GUN--Looking like the barrel of an artillery piece, a propeller shaft is lifted from its carrying cradle for installation on the U.S. Navy oiler-supply ship Savannah which will be christened April 23 at the Quincy Shipbuilding division of General Dynamics.

Mayor James R. McIntyre has "serious doubts" MBTA trains will be running to North Quincy by the current September target date.

"Construction slowness makes it doubtful that North Quincy will be ready in time," the Mayor told the Quincy Sun last night. "There are serious doubts".

He said he is prodding the MBTA Board of Directors to expedite construction work along the Quincy extension.

He said that even if the North Quincy station should be ready by September, traffic problems might necessitate delaying operation until next year when the entire Quincy line is scheduled to be completed.

"Opening just the North Quincy station could cause a mammoth traffic problem for that section of the city," he declared.

He said he is asking for a meeting with Col. Warren Higgins, Director of Planning for the MBTA, to closely examine the traffic effects on the North Quincy area.

"It could be just too much congestion for one area," the Mayor said.

McIntyre said that an MBTA official listed, the following as "targets" for completion of the Quincy line:

- --North Quincy--September.
- --Wollaston--'soon after'
- --Quincy Center--'hopefully next year'.

McIntyre said construction is "away off schedule in Wollaston."

"They promised to have the 500-car Wollaston parking area open last Christmas and it still is not open," he noted.

Progress on the extension of Newport Ave.--vital for vehicular traffic flow for the North Quincy and Wollaston stations--is also slow, he said.

The Mayor recalled the famous promise of recently MBTA General Manager Leo J. Cusick that he would ride the first train into Quincy on Christmas Day, 1969.

"There has been quite a promise and performance gap ever since then, on the part of the MBTA," the Mayor declared.

He attributed construction delays to strikes, changes in MBTA leadership and changes in other key posts.

"I am dissatisfied with the progress of the MBTA," he said. "They keep telling us we will soon have rapid transit--and we keep waiting.

"I have met recently with the Board of Directors and will meet with them again to expedite this construction. I want more than promises. I want action."

'Report To People' On Drugs Use April 27

A public report to the people on the use of drugs and narcotics among Quincy young people will be presented April 27, at 7 p.m. in Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

The program is being sponsored by Mayor James R. McIntyre and the Quincy School Committee.

Details of the program are being worked out by Mayor McIntyre and School Supt. Lawrence P. Creedon in cooperation with Mrs. Maureen O'Brien and Martin Finnegan, the School Department's research assistants.

Reports will be given on what is being done through the coordinated efforts of school, police and health officials to combat the drug problem, and plans for future activities will be announced.

Following the general meeting and a question period, those attending will be divided into small groups and given the opportunity to meet and discuss the drug problem with a representative from the School Department.

It is hoped that through the small group meetings, interested citizens may contribute their thoughts on how Quincy might best attack the drug menace.

Anti-War Rally In Quincy Sq. April 13

A "Come Together" rally against the war in Southeast Asia will be held April 13 at 3:15 p.m. in front of the First United Parish Church in Quincy Sq.

Professor Howard Zinn of Boston University, author of "Logic of Withdrawal" will be the featured speaker.

The rally is sponsored by a group of Quincy and North Quincy High School students, who have been granted permission by the City, the Police Department and Dr. Bradford E. Gale, minister of the church, to hold the rally in a cordoned area at the church front.

Active workers include Patricia Williams, who spoke at the Oct. 15 War Moratorium, a Quincy High School junior; Joseph Jabaily, a senior; Kathy McDonald, all involved in independent student newspapers. The hour-long program has the support of Ellis Swartz, Quincy High School teacher and author.

Smyth Says Senior Citizens Clinic Report 'Erroneous'

City Councillor J. Vincent Smyth today labeled as "erroneous" a published report that Quincy City Hospital is holding weekly complete medical checkup clinics for senior citizens.

Smyth said the report was published in a weekly newspaper [not the Quincy Sun] Wednesday, March 25.

"The report has caused considerable confusion," Smyth said. "The report is erroneous. No such program is in effect at the present time nor are there any plans being formulated to conduct such an extensive program in the future."

Smyth said he determined the report erroneous following a conference with Hospital Director Harlan L. Paine, Jr. and members of the hospital outpatient department.

"I want to publicly set the record straight," Smyth said, "so that these senior citizens will not think that such a service exists."

Smyth added:

"The outpatient department, however, will continue to function for those people who are in need for emergency medical attention."

Likes Ida Kelley's Poems

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I recently read two poems that were published by the Quincy Sun, written by Ida Kelley.; One was "The Cost of Living" and the other was "Thankfulness".

My husband and I really enjoyed reading them as probably so many others did. We hope that she will continue to send more in to the "Sun" as we will be watching and looking forward to it, as we've always enjoyed the Quincy Sun, since its been published.

Keep up the good work.

Also hope that you will publish this letter in your paper so many others will read it.

Thank you,
Mrs. James Curry

Thank You, Everyone

Happiness

By
Margaret DeAngelo

The world is full of happiness,
For those who want to find it.
It may be in the glowing sun
Or hiding right behind it.

It's pressed in every handshake,
And shown in every smile.
It lingers in a letter
And in the eyes of every child.

It can be a part of giving,
No matter how big or small,
And in a cheery welcome,
When someone comes to call.

It needs no special season,
Or time to come to you,
So find a bit of happiness
In every thing you do.

Sunbeams

Well, you'd have to say that working conditions have improved somewhat for the Quincy Fire Department.

On May 2, the department will go on a 42-hour work week. Since 1948, the men have been on a 48-hour week.

"I remember when we got the 48-hour week we thought that was really something," recalls Deputy Chief Thomas Maguire.

The reason they thought that was something was that before then, they worked a 70-hour week.

In 1941, they were on an 84-hour week.

And, during the 1920's, they worked a 100-hour week.

Times have changed.

SPEAKING of the Fire Department, the spanking new 100-foot diesel aerial arrived yesterday, bringing this comment from former Mayor Thomas S. Burgin:

"I feel like its granddaddy."

Reason: As Mayor in 1939, Burgin purchased Quincy's first aerial, the 100-foot Ladder One which is still in service and which the new one will replace.

"We certainly got a lot of mileage out of that first aerial," notes Burgin. "It was a good buy."

The city now has five aerials.

TIME ZIPS BY DEPT: The Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce is already planning its 45th annual outing for July 15. Nearly 500 men turned out for last year's event.

The committee is thinking of adding new activities this year.

And, the committee is also looking for new members to give a hand with this year's planning. Any volunteers? Give Ron Frazier a buzz at the Chamber.

* * *

DOCUMENTS, anyone? Anthony Famigletti, City cemetery superintendent and parade coordinator, is now wearing a third hat. Recently appointed a Notary Public. If you have the papers, he has the seal.

* * *

ATTENTION, generous souls: Do you know that if you made a gift of $3,000 or more to someone else in 1969 you have to file a federal gift tax return? Deadline is T-Day--April 15.

The IRS puts it this way:

"Federal gift taxes are usually due when gifts of $3,000 or more are made to any one person during the year. However, there are exceptions that eliminate the tax even though a return must still be filed. Each person has a lifetime exclusion of $30,000 which he may use to offset taxable gifts if he so elects.

"While the gift is exempt from income tax, income earned from the gift is taxable to the recipient."

* * *

STYLE NOTE: Well, crew cuts seem to be out in the political set. Former Lt. Gov. Francis X. Bellotti of Quincy was one of the first to let his locks grow in. Latest to join him: Rep. and City Councillor Clifford Marshall. Quite becoming.

TAXPAYERS' DREAM, via the current Quincy Taxpayers Newsletter:

"The state of New Mexico has turned up a rarity in the annals of fiscal finance: A general fund surplus. Furthermore, the state legislature intends to use it for something Massachusetts citizens only dream about-an income tax cut.

More efficient methods of tax collection plus greater-than-expected returns from a recently enacted tax reform package have accounted for an excess of $10 million over New Mexico's current fiscal budget of $224 million, and the state's finance director expects the surplus for fiscal 1971 to rise even higher.

The legislature responded by voting a retroactive cut of 20 per cent in 1969 state income taxes, and is considering a similar move for 1970 taxes.

It is refreshing to discover a state reducing revenue collection, rather than seeking new ways to increase it.

Citizens Association Asks Civic Zoning Study Committee

Mayor James R. McIntyre has been requested to appoint a committee comprised of officers of neighborhood and civic organizations to study the proposed new zoning ordinance and map and make its recommendations to the mayor and city council.

A petition has been prepared by the Quincy Citizens Association and signed by officials of 18 neighborhood organizations. The petition says Quincy Citizens have had "insufficient time to peruse them and give them their consideration."

The petition is signed by Laurence J. Curtin, president; Joseph N. Gildea, vice president; William W. Lyons, treasurer; and Miss Dorothy C. Kelly, secretary, for the association.

Endorsing the petition are Robert E. Watts, Jr., president St. Moritz Association; Edison M. MacLeod, president Willard School PTA; Marcia W. Jacob, president Cranch School PTA; Bernard F. Nolan, president Cranch Hospital Hills Association; Joseph A. Slattery, president Society for Preservation of Massachusetts Bay.

Edna Gilmore, president Adams St. Association, Dominic F. Falcetta, president Wollaston Park Association; John M. Connolly, president Merrymount Association; John B. Powers, president Houghs Neck Community Council; John J. Urbanus, president Rock Island Cove Improvement Association; Alfred E. Peterson, representing the Baker Beach Association.

Also Martin J. Foley, Adams Shore Improvement Association; Frances O'Donnell, Adams Street Association; Joseph J. LaRaia, John Quincy Adams Club; Pasquale S. DiStefano, Ward 3 Civic Association, as well as representatives of the Montclair Men's Club, the Montclair PTA and the Mt. Ararat Association.

Quincy Point To Hear Plans For $5.7 Million Code Project

Plans for a proposed potential $5.7 million Neighborhood Improvement-Code Enforcement Program for Quincy Point, will be outlined at a meeting of the Ward 2 Civic Association April 14.

Representatives from the Quincy Planning Department will discuss the project at the 8 p.m. meeting at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Association President James W. Lyons invites residents of Quincy Point to attend and learn first hand information regarding the project.

A 116-block area, bounded by Elm St., Town River Bay, General Dynamics shipyard and Quincy Ave., was selected by the Planning Department for the city's second residential rehabilitation program.

The three-year North Quincy project, costing approximately $3.3 million is being carried out in a 157-block area.

The preliminary cost of the proposed Quincy Point project is $2.7 million of which the federal government would provide $1.8 million and the city $900,000.

It is also estimated that the project area would be eligible for more than $3 million in home loans and grants at no cost to the city.

Some homeowners in Quincy Point would be eligible for 3 per cent interest loans up to $10,000 and others for outright grants up to $3,500 to improve their homes.

In addition to residential rehabilitation, the project area would undergo public works improvements including new streets, sidewalks, curbing, tree planting and other beautification.

Quincy Point reaction thus far, communicated to city officials through the Ward 2 Civic Association, has been reported as "favorable".

100-Foot Aerial In Debut

The Fire Department's new 100-foot diesel aerial ladder truck is "starring" this week in Quincy Sq.

The $77,985 Maxim tractor-trailer which will replace the 31-year-old Ladder One at Central Headquarters, was delivered to the city yesterday.

It went on exhibit next to historic First Parish Church yesterday and will be there each afternoon for the remainder of the week from noon to 4 p.m.

Old Ladder 1, the city's first aerial, and also a 100-footer was purchased in 1939. It is expected to be phased out.

Its successor is the city's second new aerial in a year. Last year. Ladder 3, an 85-foot diesel assigned to West Quincy, was purchased last year.

The city has three other aerials, Ladder 2, an 85-footer at Wollaston, Ladder 4, a 65-footer at Houghs Neck and Ladder 5, an 85-footer at Atlantic.

Fire Chief Edward F. Barry invites Quincy residents to stop by and view the newest member of his department.

50,000 Tons Of New Sand Due For Wollaston Beach

Approximately 50,000 tons of new sand will be spread at Wollaston Beach this spring, according to John J. Beades, executive assistant to the MDC Commissioner John W. Sears.

Enlargement of the present beach is planned after completion of the new roadway abutting the Black's Creek area. However, this will not be ready until next fall, Benjamin Fink, director of Park Engineering said.

Also approved by the Commission were plans and specifications for construction of the Squantum Force Main, which will be advertised for bids.

Group Seeks Help To Keep N. Quincy 'Fourth' Alive

Monday night at 7 p.m. at North Quincy High School a group of area residents will meet in a "'desperate" effort to keep alive the annual July 4th celebration at Welcome Young Playground.

"This activity has been in existence since the turn of the century, and there is a great threat that it may die if interested area residents do not group together and work together," committee members state.

Volunteers of all ages are needed to work with a committee which includes City Councillor Walter Hannon, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reinhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Mattson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. William Egan, James Butts, Mrs. Stephanie Peterson, Mrs. Barbara Mock and Mrs. Mary McKenna.

Care For Dry Skin

Dry skin reacts badly to the sun, chaps easily, is fragile and can easily become wrinkled. This tendency toward dry skin increases with age. However there is first aid at hand.

To cleanse, rely on cream or lotion. It will remove soil without leaving your skin feeling taut. Cleanse hands first then quickly swirl on facial cleansers. Massage skin firmly, tissue off the excess. Repeat and then remove all traces of cleanser with a pad moistened in mild skin freshner.

During the day, a thin film of moisture lotion, applied before makeup, keeps your skin soft and protects against loss of natural moisture. At night, stroke on a richer, dry-skin cream. Massage it in gently using upward sweeping strokes.

For a quick facial, smooth on night cream and hold your face over hot, steamy water for five minutes.

Here Comes The Bride

By Mabelle

Q. What should I wear for jewelry with my wedding gown?

A. You have not told me what type of neckline your gown has. If it is the victorian style [high collar] that is the most popular in today's styles no neck jewelry is worn. You may wear small earrings usually pearl or if you are fortunate enough to have diamonds by all means wear them. With a scoop neckline a string of pearls or a dainty pendant may be worn.

Never wear rhinestones or costume jewelry. You must not wear a watch or bracelet. Your engagement ring is worn on the right hand until after the ceremony. Then it is placed on your left hand over the wedding ring.

Q. Must I wear gloves with long sleeves?

A. Gloves are never worn with a long sleeved wedding gown. In the case of shorter sleeves there should be an inch to an inch and a half space between the bottom of the sleeve and top of the glove. Be sure to slit the seam of the third finger left hand, tuck the glove finger into the palm of the glove and you're ready to receive the wedding band.

Q. I will be married in September. I keep putting off shopping for my gown because I don't know just what is expected of me by the bridal shops.

A. There is an excellent article in one of the current bride magazines on "How To Buy Your Dream Dress". This was written after asking bridal consultants all over the country for suggestions. I recommend every bride read it before she starts shopping.
